The melody lingers on

By Edward Cafasso, Staff Writer

NEWTON — One-fifth of the city remained in the dark at the beginning of this week as two dozen Boston Edison repair crews teamed up with city workers to restore power in the aftermath of Hurricane Gloria.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann said the cost of cleaning up after the storm, which destroyed over 1,000 trees, felled countless branches and damaged hundreds of sidewalks, would significantly deplete the city's $1.3 million contigency fund set aside for emergencies.

Despite some lingering problems and damages estimated in "the millions of dollars," Mann pronounced the city "well on the way to recovery" during a press conference earlier this week.

"There isn't an area in the city that was left unscathed, but it seems we've got a handle on it," he said. "The city's workers came through and handled their assignments in a very credible manner. Everybody seemed to be working together in a total team effort."

Power was restored to the Ward Elementary School Monday night, enabling all public schools to open Tuesday.

City asks for help

By Edward Cafasso, Staff Writer

NEWTON — A special arrangement with U.S. Postal Service officials will allow the city to deliver notices asking for "cooperation and patience" to every Garden City household.

The xeroxed notices outline the procedures homeowners should use during the coming weeks to dispose of storm-related debris.

"Our first priority will be to ensure that all streets and the sidewalks on school routes are safe and passable ... We ask your cooperation and patience," the letter reads.

Ban makes ballot

By Howard Altman, Staff Writer

NEWTON — Garden City voters will get a chance to voice their opinions on a city-wide commercial construction moratorium.

Mayor Theodore Mann Monday took the final step in the year-long drive by moratorium supporters to get a non-binding referendum question by signing an order from the Board of Aldermen asking the question be included on the November ballots.

"As you know," Mann said, "it has been the practice of this administration to solicit (the public's) concerns. I am responding to the citizen's request to get this on the ballot."

Although he approved the ballot question, Mann remains lukewarm about the idea of a moratorium on construction. He pointed to criticism by John Connery, whose company, Connery Associates, is conducting the Village Study.

"Connery said the moratorium would cause more problems than it solves," Mann said. "What I'm here to do is to find a solution to our problems. If there is a sensible manner of communications, that is what I want."

Mann let it be known that there are other ways of taking the city's political pulse.

"I signed this with the full knowledge that ... a Village Study (has been authorized) to protect the residential character of the city by devising a long-term plan to guide growth."

Mann added the Planning Board will "devote the entire Opinion Survey of the 1986 census to the Village Study, in order to measure in a more comprehensive way the resident's attitudes toward our village centers."

Moratorium leader Thomas Paulini said he is happy with Mann's decision and is working on getting people out to vote.

"I think it's clear that this is probably the number-one issue of this election," Paulini said, "which is a non-mayoral contest. I felt all along that this is the one concern of most of the people of Newton, and we've already rallied to achieve this goal. From here on in REZONE will meet to plan strategy."

Paulini said he will work on getting the moratorium message to the voters.

"We will get people at the polls," Paulini said. "We have a meeting in October, and will have representatives at different candidate nights. Also, we may get a phone tree going, though we haven't discussed it yet. We will have a mailing, bumper

Library fundraiser picked

By Edward Cafasso
Staff Writer

NEWTON — The city's library trustees have reached an informal agreement with a Boston firm that is noted for exceeding fundraising goals set by communities trying to raise money for new main libraries.

Dorothy Reichard, chairman of the trustees, said the city's library group will officially hire Ketchum, Inc., to manage a $1-million fundraising campaign for a new facility at the corner of Homer and Walnut streets.

A formal contract with the firm, based at 1 Post Office Square, will be worked out once the Board of Aldermen acts on Mayor Theodore D. Mann's $250,000 appropriation request to begin designing a $12-million library for the four-acre parcel.

The full board is expected to approve the spending item and a resolution endorsing the Homer/Walnut site on Oct. 7.

"We want to be sure the aldermen and the mayor are moving in the same direction before we commit ourselves," Reichard said.

Anticipating the call for a fundraising campaign to augment the city's effort, the trustees and the Friends of the Library group began interviewing a half-dozen firms for the task in March.

A select committee comprised of five individuals selected by the trustees and five chosen by the Friends eventually boiled down the likely candidates to two companies.

The library group settled on Ketchum in June, a month before the Main Library Facility Committee released its report recommending a private fundraising campaign as a part of its library financing plan.

"The trustees and the Friends are hoping to raise about $1 million," Reichard said. "I'm confident this will be successful. I think there's a positive attitude now in the community that we need a new library. The momentum is there."

'This Old House' gains 'sweat equity'

By Lauren McFalls
Assistant News Editor

AUBURNDALE — Linda Helfet, Bill Hilliker and their two sons lived in relative obscurity in their Auburndale home on a quiet, tree-lined street for 11 years.

Then they decided to build an addition onto their house.

This may sound innocent enough, but, as a result of their decision, last Thursday there were around 30 people milling around the family's 53 Maple Street home, including a New York Times reporter and photographer, a TV production crew, caterers, an Owens-Corning Fiber Glass Corporation representative, Bob "the host," the plumber, painters, Norm "the carpenter," and the garage door man.

A decidedly diverse group, not all of them were there to build the addition. Instead, the common denominator among the crowd was their interest in one of the most successful magazine-style television shows in the nation — "This Old House," a program offering practical advice on restoring and building homes.

The TV crew was there to tape segments for the show, as were Bob Vila, the host, and Norm Abrams the carpenter and the plumber. Owens-Corning Fiber Glass was present because the show's multi-million dollar budget is underwritten by the company, and the New York Times was there because of the program's overwhelming success.

An Emmy Award winner in 1983, the show is produced through WGBH, Channel 2, in Boston, and is aired by over 260 other Public Broadcasting stations across the country.

But how did the relatively undramatic task of building a simple addition onto their home, turn into such a production?

The expectant Peter and Joan Sherman.

Life begins in a test-tube

By Christie Herlihy-Starr, Staff Writer

NEWTON — For four and a half years Peter and Joan Sherman have tried to have a child without success.

"It's very difficult to go to a regular obstetrician's office, and be in the same waiting room with pregnant women," said 29-year-old Joan.

"When you see things on television about kids being left in dumpsters, and you're trying to have one, it's frustrating," said her 31-year-old husband. "We always grew up expecting to have kids. You have to really want kids to keep on trying."

For 18 months the Shermans visited fertility specialists who conducted tests indicating only "minor things wrong," said Peter. With their infertility mystery still unsolved, the two finally decided to try in vitro fertilization, a technique offered at Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

Up until two years ago, the in vitro process, which produced the so-called test tube baby, was considered experimental in Massachusetts and could not be performed. Today, Newton-Wellesley Hospital is the only suburban hospital out of six medical centers offering the procedure in New England.

'Sweat equity' upgrades house

Gothic home built in 1860, Linda explains that her two sons, Daniel, 11, and Adam, 8, "grew to the point where we didn't fit anymore."

"We've lived here for 11 years in the same house," she explains as instructions from the show's executive producer, Russell Morash, are broadcast via a loudspeaker to cast and crew working on the addition.

Linda continues, "We went to look at the Boston Edison house (in Brookline) because we were interested in passive solar."

"We loved it," she recalls, and as she and her husband were interested in building on to their home anyway, they decided to approach the carpenter responsible for building the Boston Ed home. He just happened to be Norm Abrams, the carpenter for the "This Old House" series.

Now she and her sons will be TV stars starting Oct. 10 when the first segment of the series featuring her home is aired.

One reason Linda's house was chosen for the program was that it represents the show's effort to take on "smart projects," says Abrams. These projects involve including homeowners on the show to demonstrate the money-saving effects of performing simple tasks by oneself.

Bob Vila, host for the show and a Boston developer, explains that the concept is called "sweat equity" because homeowners put their own "blood, sweat and tears" into the project.

He continues that this particular project is "infinitely simpler" than those chosen for the show in the past. "That's part of its allure."

For instance, another "This Old House" series produced in Newton in 1979 involved renovating the former Bigelow house, an historic H. H. Richardson-designed estate perched on top of Oak Hill, into five condominiums.

Linda's addition, on the other hand, is a "short-term thing," says Abrams, in that it was started on Labor Day and will be plastered, one of the last steps involved in building a house, this coming Friday.

The addition, which is freestanding and connected to the main house via a bridge, looks a little like a carriage house, with a garage on the lower level and living space above.

The house and new addition will be painted a lilac-gray "taking the main house back to its original Victorian look," says Linda.

The architectural designs decorating the home's exterior "will be articulated by color," and the front doors will be painted in "Eggplant," a deep purple.

For Linda, who quit her job to devote full-time to the project, the construction and production involved in building the addition has meant more than just acquiring more space for her family and being on television.

Actually, its been more of a learning experience for her.

"One normally doesn't get a chance to talk to people in-depth about garage doors or nailing guns," Linda says. "Normally, I wouldn't know anything about shingles."

For one segment of the show, Linda was given demolition lessons in order to tear down the kitchen wall, where the addition is now attached to the home.

Another advantage to building an addition on television is that family members and friends living throughout the country can see Linda and, sporadically, her sons, each week on TV.

Notes Daphne Noyes, WGBH publicist for the show, "It's better than a Christmas card."

Further, she says, "I learned what contracting was all about the hard way," explaining that she had to obtain surveyors, masons and permits from the city, which she had never done before.

"A lot of them would not talk to me," she says, because they believed her "husband should make the decision." Her husband, however, has chosen to stay out of the project as much as possible.

House prices skyrocketing

By Edward Cafasso, Staff Writer

NEWTON — The average assessed value of a Garden City home is likely to jump by more than $50,000 by this time next year when the Assessing Department releases data compiled as part of its city-wide revaluation program.

John G. Harrington, a local realtor, and Assessing Board Chairman Robert Palmer last week confirmed the skyrocketing increase in residential property values.

Their speculation comes on the heels of new figures showing another incredible surge in the value of all homes here during the first eight months of this year.

"Since Jan. 1, 1985, Newton's real estate values have already appreciated 25 to 30 percent. This increase maintains the same pace as last year's record of 33 percent," according to Harrington, a sales associate at Gallery Realty, 1157 Walnut St..

Harrington compiled his figures using local data provided by the Multiple Listing Service, Banker & Tradesman and his experience at Gallery Realty, which is run by Brookside Avenue resident Roy Mennell.

Harrington, the son of former alderman Peter G. Harrington, believes many homeowners can expect the assessed value of their propertries to increase by 30 to 40 percent when revaluation takes effect next fall.

Any predictions about the impact of revaluation are "premature" because the values as of Jan. 1, 1986 are not ready yet, Palmer said, but he acknowledged that even Harrington's guess may be too low.

"If anything, that kind of increase in value (30-40 percent) may be a little conservative from what we've seen," he said.

Harrington thinks the city's soaring property values will drive the residential tax rate, now set at $20.54/$1,000, down to the $17 or $18 range.

Assuming his prediction of a 40-percent hike in the assessed value of homes is correct, however, even a $2 to $3 cut in the tax rate may not save residents from higher tax bills.

For example, the current average assessed value of a home here is $121,000. Under the current tax rate, that home receives a property tax bill totalling about $2,485.

> 'If you include this year's figures, you have almost an 80-percent surge in just five years.'
> John G. Harrington.

If revaluation increases the average home's assessed value by 40 percent to $169,400 and the residential tax rate is dropped to $17/$1,000, the average home will see a new tax bill totalling almost $2,880 — a jump of almost $400 over the previous year's charges.

Further evidence of the revaluation's expected dramatic impact can be found by simply comparing the current average assessed value of a home here, which is $121,000, to the current average sales price quoted by Harrington — $225,000 to $235,000.

"This may surprise you, but since Jan. 1, 1981 through Dec. 31, 1984, real estate values in Newton have increased approximately 54 percent. If you include this year's figures, you have almost an 80-percent surge in just five years," according to Harrington.

As expected, young couples looking for their first home are suffering the most from the city's soaring property values.

"There's just no way you're going to get married and buy a home in Newton," said Harrington. "A young couple starting out without any equity would have to have a combined income of at least $100,000 to afford a typical home here."

Harrington noted, however, that the previously feverish pace of the realty business has been slowing down since June, a possible sign that the market is saturated and the trend of astronomical increases in home prices has peaked.

Harvest Fair on Sunday

NEWTON — Newton's 11th annual Harvest Fair, an outdoor festival all in the spirit of the New England autumn will be held on Sunday, Oct. 6, on the Newton Centre Green under the auspices of the Arts in the Parks program of the Newton Parks and Recreation Department.

An event that draws thousands each year to the center of Newton, where farmer's markets were traditionally held during the 19th century, Harvest Fair brings together over 200 booths representing fine craftsmen from throughout the New England area, food booths offering traditional American foods and ethnic delicacies, and informational booths by many Newton cultural and social organizations distributing their most up-to-date literature.

Highlights of this year's fair include a children's pumpkin decorating booth where children can take home their own Halloween creation, a fantasy sidewalk chalk mural, facepainting, clowns, mimes and magicians. Entertainment includes Paulette's Ballet Studio of Newton Upper Falls celebrating their 25th anniversary with a 1:30 p.m. performance on Langley Road, 2:30 p.m. country music with Beth Sass and Bandit, who were semifinalists in the recent Massachusetts Country Music Festival and at 3:30 p.m. Mil Dixon, caller extraordinaire leads square dancing with The Great Plain Squares. The public is invited to join in.

'Vegetable Kingdom' thrives

By Howard Altman
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Nestled in the woods off Winchester Street lies the enchanted Vegetable Kingdom.

Maintained by the Department of Public Works and farmed by local versions of Green Acres' Oliver Wendell Douglass, the Vegetable Kingdom is a throwback to the Victory Gardens of the 40s.

"It's great to get out there and get dirt under your fingernails," farmer Lisa Brems says as she tends to her crop.

On this particular afternoon in the Vegetable Kingdom, Brems was busy harvesting what was left of her crop before Hurricane Gloria finished off the rest of her tomatoes, beans and peppers.

"It's been a tough year," she says, somewhat sullenly. "The rabbits are eating almost everything in sight. Also, we've had problems with beetles and other bugs, which took their toll."

A quick glance around Brem's plot proves her point. The leaves on her bean plants are perforated and some of the remaining peppers show signs of being nibbled on. In addition, there are vegetable thieves who slip in and nab the fruits of the farmers' labor. Still, Brems has no complaints.

"It's great being out here," she says. "It is a very peaceful feeling to work the soil. You feel like you're out in the country even though you are really in the middle of the city."

Brems says she became involved with the Vegetable Kingdom four years ago with a friend, and decided to keep at it after her friend got tired of it. Though Del Monte and Dole have little to worry about in the way of competition, Brems says there is a "satisfying feeling you get by growing your own food.

"I come out here once or twice a week, sometimes with my husband, Steve," Brems says, reaching for a pepper. "It's nice to be able to have something to bring home."

Brems says she also enjoys the company of other farmers.

"The people here are very friendly," she says. "We talk and trade stories. There are people of all ages, so it can be fun."

It was a bit eerie as Brems gathers her crops under the graying sky. Though it was a full day before the hurricane was due to strike, one could sense the coming storm as the clouds moved in. Standing out in stark contrast to the sky, however, was a neighboring garden with brightly blooming marigolds and petunias. The flowers were enjoying their last big bloom before Gloria's gusts would scatter them all over the field.

According to Kingdom Coordinator Patricia Sweeney, the gardens have been around since "the late 70s." She adds even without the storm, most of the plots would be depleted by this time of year because of the end of the growing season.

Police rape probe nears completion

NEWTON — Results of an intradepartmental probe into allegations of rape against two Newton police officers are about to be made public, according to Chief William F. Quinn.

"We have come up with some charges. I'm not at liberty to say what they are right now," Quinn said Tuesday afternoon. "Both will be charged with violations of rules and regulations. I can't tell you specifically what the charges are but, in all probablility, I expect there are going to be suspensions. I have a suspicion there will be no appeal."

The police officers that are the focus of the in-house investigation are Thomas M. Cloonan, Jr., and Robert T. Keefe, according to Quinn.

Dynamite removed from Dudley Road

NEWTON — The Bay State Drilling and Blasting Company returned to Dudley Road last week to complete work on an excavation project which was stopped after a city work crew unearthed two live sticks of dynamite, Public Works Commissioner James L. Hickey said.

"We don't deal with dynamite, so they had to come back and complete the digging at their own expense," Hickey said.

The dynamite was discovered while five city sewage workers were digging out a trench in which the independent contractor had supposedly finished underground blasting. Hickey said Bay State was hired by the city to remove a rock ledge underneath Dudley Road so a new sewer main could be put down.

"As soon as they discovered the dynamite, we pulled everybody out of there," Hickey said.

Police seeking suspect in robbery

NEWTON CENTRE — A man claiming to have a gun ordered an employee of the Li'l Peach store to give him money out of the cash register and discreetly fled with about $200 Saturday around 3 p.m.

Another clerk was talking on the telephone eight feet away from the cash register and did not notice robbery.

The woman who was held up told police a man came into the store and handed her a note which read, "This is a holdup. I have a gun. Give me the money now." She said he held his jacket open slightly and said, "I have a gun. I'm not kidding," but she never actually saw the gun.

The woman said she gave the man between $150 and $200.

The man was described as being a dark-skinned male, possibly black, in his late 20s to early 30s. He stood about 5-feet-10, weighed about 170 pounds and was well-built. He had short, dark hair, short sideburns and a heavy mustache. He wore dark blue pants and shirt and a jacket of the same color. He also wore a baseball cap.

HoJo's sees no change from takeover

NEWTON CORNER — The Marriott Corporation's recent acquisition of the Howard Johnson Company apparently will have no noticable effect on the HoJo's hotel complex in Newton Corner.

Marriott bought the famous chain for $300 million Tuesday and plans to sell all but four Howard Johnson hotels and lodges to Prime Motor Inns, of Faifield, N.J., for $235 million, according to Al Rankin, Marriott's vice president for corporate relations.

"We don't foresee it hurting us at all," Bob Rogers, the general manager of the Gateway Center hotel, said last week.

Although he said he had not yet heard of any specific changes that might be planned by the new owners, Rogers added, "I don't think it's really going to affect us."

He said one positive sign for the Newton Corner operation is Prime's decision to retain G. Michael Hostage, HoJo's chairman and chief executive officer, to run the chain's 125 motor lodges and hotels, 375 franchised hotels and 199 franchised restaurants.

A city assessing official said the Gateway Center complex is valued at nearly $23.5 million, including the hotel, offices and parking garage. Newton receives more than $800,000 a year in property taxes from the hotel.

Gentile wants open meeting law review

NEWTON — School Committee Chairman Leonard Gentile has asked his colleagues to consider submitting a petition to the Massachusetts Legislature which would amend the state's open meeting law.

"The present open meeting law goes beyond the original intention of getting policy decisions aired in the public and out of back rooms or behind closed doors," Gentile said.

The law "has gone overboard," he said, in forcing committees to discuss the "ability of a person in public." It is unfair to have the discussion of a candidate's ability or inability "appear on the front page of the paper the next day," Gentile added. "I refuse to do it."

Access promised religious groups

NEWTON — The School Committee recently approved a change in the regulations regarding the use of school buildings by outside organizations.

The decision to amend the regulations came after the city's law department discovered violations in the rules governing the after school use of buildings as a result of recent Supereme Court decisions. The court has mandated "public forums" must be made available for both religious and secular groups, Assistant City Solicitor Madlyne Morris said.

The main thrust of the amendment, Morris said, is to provide religious groups with the same opportunity of using school buildings as non-religious groups.

Prior to the amendment, sectarian groups were denied from using the buildings for meetings or public forums, she said.

The amendment also complies with state law which says religious groups can use public buildings occasionally or on a one-time basis, Morris said.

NEWTON HIGHLANDS — The former Hyde Elementary School is back as a major polling location for the upcoming city-wide election.

The Election Commission has notified City Clerk Edward English the vacant school's gymnasium will be available for more than 3,300 neighborhood voters to use on Nov. 5.

Alan W. Licarie, the commission's executive secretary, announced the decision last week and said the move should end any doubt about the gym's future use for balloting purposes.

The Hyde complex, named after the city's first mayor — James F.C. Hyde, has been closed since June 1984 and is expected to be sold shortly to a group of developers planning to renovate the Lincoln Street site for a mixed housing.

A provision allowing the gym to be used during all future elections will be part of the final sales agreement.

Licarie credited hard work by the Building Department as the main reason for the Hyde gym's resurgence as a focal point for the politically active Newton Highlands community.

Building Commissioner James W. Cameron said his workers developed a way to heat half the gym by adapting a small boiler in the building's basement.

Licarie said the gym will be partitioned and voting machines will be located on one side, rather than in separate areas of the room as has been the case in previous elections.

The school serves as the polling place for more than 1,300 registered voters in Ward 5, Precinct 2 and more than 2,000 voters from Ward 6, Precinct 3.

New Japanese 'Super Pill' Insures Rapid Weight-Loss

No Dieting — Eat All You Want, Pill Does All The Work

BEVERLY HILLS, CA — An exciting new "all natural" weight-loss "Super" Pill developed by the JMA (Japanese Medical Association) has just been approved for distribution in the United States. Reportedly, it can guarantee that you will lose more than a pound a day without dieting, from the very first day until you reach your ideal weight and figure. News of this "Super Pill" is literally sweeping the country. It's called Amitol and there has never been anything quite like it before.

"Flushes Calories Right Out Of Your Body"

What makes Amitol so thrilling and unique is its reported ability to flush calories right out of your body. Amitol is completely safe, it contains no drugs whatsoever. Its ingredients are derived solely from the Konjac root which grows primarily in Northern Japan.

Why the Konjac root? It has been used in Japan for over 1600 years to produce rapid and natural weight-loss!

Japanese studies verify that Konjac root actually prevents fat producing calories from being absorbed into your system. They say it does this by surrounding much of the fats, proteins and carbohydrates you have eaten with a protective viscous coating which is then gently flushed out of your system. And according to Japanese research this produces absolutely amazing results.

And who can disagree! Amitol (although brand new to this country) is already being called by many people, "the most exciting weight-loss breakthrough of the century." Now's the time to pull together

"I don't know why, but I always seem to have a headache after a hurricane," the man commented, shaking his head, apparently unaware of the connection between the "hurricane party" at which he spent most of last Friday and the pain in his head.

Would that the City of Newton's post-hurricane headaches should succumb to three aspirins and a tall glass of tomato juice. Public works officials seem to agree that our city was one of the hardest hit municipalities in the commonwealth. A short drive around the Garden City will reveal that they are right.

But even a couple of weeks from now there will be ample evidence of Gloria's wrath. Uprooted trees and broken branches will probably occupy a large part of the city workforce's time until the first snow flies.

The Graphic calls on all residents of the city to pitch in and lend a hand. The effort required to get the city back in shape will be a herculean one. Every resident will get a chance to do his or her part.

What we need is a community spirit that carries concern for public safety beyond the perimeter of a lot line. The city has received several awards for volunteerism over the years. Now is a perfect time to show we earned them.

What we do not need is a lot of griping about the occasional indelicacy involved in such a large effort. The residents who protested so vehemently over the temporary dumping of debris in the Old Cold Spring Park were the first to bring the words "not in my back yard" into the context of an emergency cleanup.

The aldermen who carried their protest to an already busy staff of city workers and department heads, instead of explaining to their constituents that some furniture is bound to be scratched when you are trying to remove an elephant from your house, lent a whole new meaning to "constituent service."

Would they have city crews truck the stuff all the way through debris-choked city streets to park it in the already overcrowded landfill at Rumford Avenue? They don't know. They do know that it's wrong to defile Old Cold Spring Park with it though, even temporarily.

Cleaning up the mess that Gloria made will require the subordination of parochial concerns in favor of the greater good of the whole community.

Come on, you guys. Wake up out there. The emergency situation in which the city finds itself is temporary. In a couple of months, it will be a memory. Let's not make things worse.

'Sexism' alleged

Women's role in the Church

By Kevin C. Kennedy

The apparent aftermath of a recent conference on the position of women in the Catholic Church, held at Aquinas Jr. College in Newton Corner, seemed to suggest that women are going to have a tough fight making the Church hierarchy respond to their complaints.

I met a woman on the rugged, mountainous Caribbean island of Dominica 15 years ago who, I know, would have something definite to say on the subject. She had never heard about women's liberation. If she is alive today, she probably still has yet to hear about it. But she seemed to know what has kept the world going around for, lo, so many centuries.

When I met her, she was standing next to a load of firewood she had gathered, about to heave it up on top of her head. The bundle was at least twice what I could lift.

We greeted each other and drifted into friendly conversation. We spoke briefly of the role of women in society, among other things. "Truly," she said with a grin that showed several gold teeth, "If it weren't for de women, de men would surely starve to death."

Her name was Sia. She was tall and sinewy, dark black from days in the sun. The veins in her muscular forearms popped out, testimony to a life of hard, physical labor. She had high cheekbones, the legacy of decades of Frenchmen on the island, and crinkles at the corners of her eyes from years of smiling.

I met her and another woman out on the "twin cabrits," two volcanic cinder cones that reach out into the sea above the town of Portsmouth, on the northeast corner of the island. They were gathering firewood to carry back to the village of Douglas Bay to bake bread.

Bread was baked only one day a week in the village. Firewood was scarce enough that one had to travel either up the mountain or out on the cabrits to rustle up a full load.

The mountain trek was a tough, dangerous one. You had to pass by "the blue stone" on your way up the mountain from the village; and the spirit of the stone was known for carrying souls away. The fabric of the legend of "the Spirit of the Blue Stone" had a few holes in it, but it was substantial enough to make most residents avoid the area.

The firewood Sia gathered was branches and brambles ... no logs. Back at the village, they would fill the large, earthen communal oven with the wood and set it on fire. When it had burned to ashes and heated the thick walls of the oven, they would sweep it clean and put the freshly made loaves of bed in its place.

The bread supply would keep pretty well. Toward the end of the week, the crust would feel like porcelain, but the center would still be soft and fresh.

On the day I watched the operation, most of the men in the village were down by the river. They had killed a goat, and they gathered by the river to cook it over an open fire and wash it down with large quantities of white rum and boasting.

If it were not for the courage of a young, single Jewish girl, there would not be any argument over the role of women in the Church. There would be no Church.

Occasionally, Sia and her companions would look over at the group of men by the river and smirk. What the men were doing was all right as long as they didn't hurt anybody. The women seemed to regard them as small boys.

On other days, the men would gather on the beach at Douglas Bay in the morning and linger in the shade all day, looking out to sea. On some days, they would spot a school of fish in the bay — flying fish, ballyhoo and the like. Then they would cordon off the mouth of the bay with a net and beaters from the shore would chase the fish into it.

On the days they caught fish, the men would bring it in and give it to the women, who would clean and cook some, dry some and take the rest to market, where they would sell it. On the days they did not catch any fish, the men would nap and play dominos while the women washed clothes, tended to kids and generally made sure the machinery of daily life kept running.

So, too, have women been largely responsible for keeping much of the machinery of the Roman Catholic Church going for many centuries. After all, without the courage of the Virgin Mother, Mary, there would not have been cause to create a new religion at all.

And don't think it was not a tough decision to make for a young, single Jewish girl to make. An angel appears and tells you that you are going to have a baby, and you never slept with a man. On top of that, the baby will be the Son of God.

You could not blame the girl if the first thing she thought about was the local ordinance that condemned adulteresses to death by stoning.

Now, according to tradition in the Church, that brave, young Jewish girl's decision to heed the angel's message has put her in a place of honor unrivalled my any male saints. If you really want God's ear, you are told, you talk to Mary first. St. Anthony can find something that has been lost. St. Blaise will protect you from diseases of the throat. St. Jude will accomplish tasks that have been deemed "impossible." But Mary, "The Blessed Mother," can get anything done.

Don't forget either that it was the women in Christ's entourage who stood at the foot of the cross while the mortal perne spun toward its destiny in the immortal gyre. One apostle was there. Another had hanged himself in grief after having sold his master to the authorities. The rest must have been busy with other matters.

Don't forget, either, that it was two women who first discovered that the tomb in which they had laid Christ's dead body was empty and announced to the world that the ancient prophecy of his resurrection had been fulfilled. The apostles, meanwhile, (those who were not busy denying they ever even knew Christ) were huddling together in fear of more persecution from Pontius Pilate's soldiers.

Those still wondering about the historical role of women in the Church should remember that her first shining lights in North America were Mother Seton, Mother Cabrini and an Indian maiden named Katherine Tekakwitha, "The Lily of the Mohawks."

In a more contemporary context, you might ask almost any adults who treasure their Catholic faith who instructed them in it. The overwhelming answer would be "my mother." Sure, Dad drove the car to church; but it was Mom who did everything else from making sure there were clean clothes to shouting upstairs at least a dozen times, "Come on. We're already late.!"

Given these few examples of the essential role women have played in the long history of an institution often referred to as "Mother Church," it seems obvious that there would be no real effort involved in granting women the status for which they were clamoring during the recent conference at Aquinas Jr. College.

There is no need for members of the hierarchy to rally, reform or revise. They need only acknowlege what has always existed and give credit where credit is due.

Meanwhile, those women who have been frustrated in their attempts to establish a niche in the Church's hierarchy might take heart from the fact that Judaism has welcomed women as rabbis. The roots of the Catholic Church, after all, reach deep into Jewish culture. That fact suggests that, as the Church matures — with or without an immediate change in the thinking of her present leaders, the role of women in it should blossom.

Mothers, the cornerstones of the Church

By John Moroney

> 'What does your mother need liberation from?' is one of my father's more frequent comments. 'She already makes all the decisions.'

I was raised — and, as far as she's concerned, am still being raised — by a devout Catholic woman who instilled in her sons the value of the being an active member of the Roman Catholic Church at an early age.

For her — and millions of other women like her — the goal of being a good Catholic has always meant loving God and making sure her children understood the importance of the Church in their lives. In return, she never demanded anything of the Church.

She was the one — not my father — who made sure the entire family was in the the car every Sunday morning for the trip across town to St. Elizabeth's, where our attendance at Mass was non-negotiable: "You're going and that's the end of it!"

Upon arriving at the church, it was she who greeted the parish priests with a laugh and a smile while her boys and husband dragged their feet and hangovers into the building for an hour of spritual enlightenment. And, when Mass finally started, she was the one five feet ahead of the lethargic group as she led us down the aisle to our regular pew in front of the Fitzgeralds and behind the Coughlins.

Now that the threats of sensory deprivation which followed my refusal to go to Mass have stopped, I have grown to understand and appreciate my life as a Catholic, thanks to my mother's role and devotion to the Church.

There is now a small group of liberal Catholic women who — by their incessant criticism of the Church's sexist approach to women — are making a mockery of women like my mother and their dedication to the Church.

They ignore or condescendingly scoff at the role many women have played in keeping the Catholic faith alive by teaching their children the importance of the church and being a Roman Catholic. Sincerity to the church for these women means nothing while their desire to play the faith's political game is everything. Granted, the desire is a natural and understandable human response to an institution which makes changes about as often the appearance of Hailey's Comet. But what these women do not seem to understand is that their matriarchal role is more important to the church's continued existence then their ability to distribute communion, hear confessions, perform baptisms or elect the next Pope.

Like most feminists, they call for liberation from the "oppressive male hierarchy" while women like my mother only heard about the so-called sexual revolution after their husbands explained it to them. "What does your mother need liberation from?" is one of my father's more frequent comments. "She already makes all the decisions."

This small, vocal female Catholic minority continues to complain about not being more involved in the decision-making process. If they took a closer look at the Church, they would see it is the female members who run the churches and parishes.

I've never known Mother Theresa of Calcutta to complain about her "limited" role in the church that prevents her from performing the seven sacraments. A Noble Peace Prize winner, she has accepted the Vatican's rules. And, instead of demanding more, she has adjusted to become one of the Holy See's strongest role models for both male and female Catholics.

As far as becoming priests, women should be given the opportunity. They can be as sensitive — if not more sensitive — to the needs of parishioners as men. But the church's decision to ordain women should not be based on the need to attract more personnel to the vocation — one of the agruments being used by this select group of women — but because of their genuine abilities and desire to teach other members of the faith.

I recently attended a "listening session" sponsored by the Boston Archdiocese which allowed women to address six bishops who are drafting a pastoral letter on the role of women in the Church and society.

After the "listening session" at Aquinas Junior College was over, one woman said she — among other things — was tired of the role model she had been assigned by the Church under the "guise of the Virgin Mary." As living representatives of Mary, she said, women are required to be "passive and submissive." The notion of the Virgin Mary, Mother Theresa and lay Catholic women like my mother as submissive members of the Church is absolute folly. It's their courage and determination which have always been the foundation of the church throughout the world.

Another concern of the women who attended the pastoral "listening session" was the Church's need to accept a group of women who have been considered "non-traditional" members of the church. This group, the women said, included divorced women, women using birth control and lesbians. Most Catholics — including myself — would agree the Vactican needs to re-examine its position regarding divorced women receiving communion and women practicing birth control methods other than the rhythm method.

The question of offically recognizing homosexuals is a difficult one for the Church and its membership. One women at the listening sessions hit the nail on the head when she said it would be impossible for the Church to recognize such a group because there is no foundation for them in the scriptures.

The last woman I spoke with at the session told me some women are so upset with the Church that they are discouraging their sons from becoming priests. After considering the influence my mother had in developing my Catholic beliefs, I realized the power mothers — especially Irish mothers — had in determining the fate and direction of the Roman Catholic Church.

Afterall, imagine where the church would be today if the Virgin Mary had convinced Jesus he was not the Son of God.

It's petition time!

By George Merry

It's that time of year when civic-minded Bay Staters might be well advised to practice writing their signatures.

Small armies of would-be reformers are moving about Massachusetts with petitions for change.

Yes, not all Massachusetts laws are crafted, or even approved, by state senators and representatives. The origin and support from some come directly from the people through the initiative petition process.

But it's a lot of work to go that route and only a small fraction of such efforts succeed, or even make it as far as the ballot.

And there is nothing to suggest things this year will be any different.

Of the 31 proposed initiatives filed with the state attorney general before the Aug. 7 deadline, by various interest groups and individuals, all but a dozen appear to have fallen by the wayside.

In some instances the intended sponsors changed their minds over the past six weeks and have either abandoned the idea altogether or decided to take a different tack, including getting behind somebody else's similar measure.

Three separate groups of state tax-shearers, for example, have joined forces behind a single initiative petition, rather than heading off independently on parallel courses in quest of the 61,508 voters' signatures needed to clear the first hurdle.

While none of the inititative petitions now in circulation is certain to survive all the way to the November 1986 ballot, the three with perhaps the brightest prospects would be those that would:

-Wipe out the decade-old 7.5 percent surcharge on the personal income tax and cap annual state revenue growth.

-Mandate a speedy cleanup of hazardous waste sites throughout the bay State.

The latter, patterned after laws in several other states, is being pushed by a broad range of civic and activist forces, including the Leagus of Women Voters, Massachusetts Fair Share, Citizens for Participation in Political Action (CPPAX), and Massachusetts Public Interst Research Group (MASS PIRG).

Environmental protectionists, similarly are banding together in a Mass PIRG-led drive to win signature support for the initiative to ensure the total elimination of high-level toxic waste sites throughout Massachusetts.

This proposal would require the identification of every hazardous waste location in Massachusetts within two years, and investigation of the dimensions of any potential threat to public health in each instance over the next four years. This would be accompanied by increased effort to develop techniques to clean up waste sites and fund such projects.

The push for the tax-slimming initiative is led by Citizens for Limited Taxation (CLT), the group which in 1979 and 1980 teamed with the Massachusetts High Technology Council, in selling Proposition 2½.

Considerably helpful in the current signature drive at least could be the decision of two other groups not to go ahead with similar measures.

Instead, the tax Limitation Alliance, a 1984 CLT spinoff, and a coalition of Republican legislators headed by House minority leader William G. Robinson are working for the CLT measure.

Considerably less complex than Proposition 2½, which focused on reducing municipal taxes, the latest CLT initiative calls for halving the surcharge in calendar 1986 and its outright elimination in 1987. Also provided would be what amounts to an adjustable ceiling on state revenues from all income sources tied to the average growth in Massachusets workers salaries and wages during the previous three years. Whenever revenue exceeded what was allowed, the funds would be returned through personal income tax rebates the following year.

Initiative petition backers have until Nov. 25 to get their signature, which then must be certified by local election officials and filed with the secretary of state's office by 5 p.m., Dec. 4.

The 1986 legislature then will have until the first Wednesday in May to enact any such proposals, and without changing a comma.

Should the lawmakers fail to act, as in the case Proposition 2½ in 1980, sponsors of the petition can place it on the November ballot through filing 10,252 additional voter signatures. That is an amount equal to the total vote cast in the Bay State's most recent gubernatorial election.

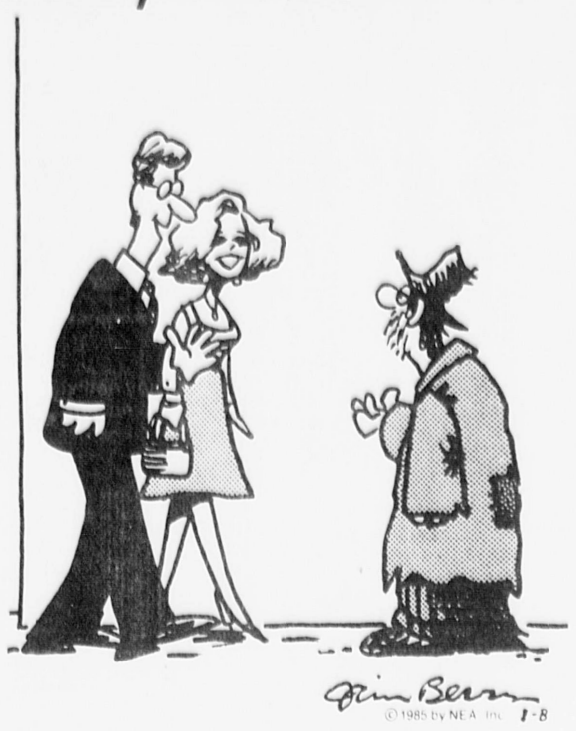

Once on the ballot, it is up to the voters throughout Massachusetts to decide whether a proposal is to become law, notwithstanding lack of iegislative approval.

Despite its sometime critics, this lawmaker bypass arrangement certainly is in the spirit of democracy. Surely it has worked well during the nearly seven decades it has been provided for within the Masachusetts constitution.

After all, no statute, even if put on the books through initiative petition, is cast in concrete. Lawmakers still can come back and wipe it out, or make changes. But in so doing, presumably they woould think twice before what could be considered tampering with the will of their constituents.

Confused by story on Eliot

As a Puritan and the pastor of the Eliot Church of Newton, I was saddened and confused by your recent article on "John Eliot's Divine Mission," Sept. 11.

To compare John Eliot's Puritan ministry with a 20th Century Baptist evangelist is to lack any sensitivity to the values of the Puritan way and the ministry of Eliot. Puritans were never good evangelists and by the 1670's, the percentage of church members to the population had declined.

One might see Eliot's ministry as a means to politically contain the native Americans but one could also interpret this effort as a means to relate to and welcome strangers into the community. The technological gap was huge and Eliot — rightly, I believe — felt that if the native Americans were to share at all in the community, they had to share in the technology. He might have been empowering the native Americans.

The truth is that his efforts were cut short by the King Phillip's War which resulted in massive retaliation against native Americans who were Christians and rejection of Eliot's attempts to relate to them.

I rejoice that scholars are studying the complex relationships between the English settlers, who were more than Puritans, and the native Americans. I would hope that they handled living traditions with care. We at Eliot Church of Newton, named for John Eliot, will be celebrating our 140th anniversary this year and the 350th anniversary of John Eliot's ministry among the native Americans beginning October 27.

Gloria cost city a bundle

Centre, were still without electricity and no one could guess when the power would be back on.

Public Works Commissioner James L. Hickey met with some success in his effort to secure additional equipment from private contractors, although many companies were busy on private construction projects.

Hickey and Purchasing Agent Blair Kanbar contacted the firms under city contract for snow removal to acquire large 10-wheel trucks, front-end loaders, backhoes and stump removing equipment.

The city's goal is to repair every damaged sidewalk on school routes by the end of October, before it becomes nearly impossible for concrete to set properly, Hickey said.

By late Monday, public works employees had fed into city computers all the damage information compiled during a street-by-street inventory performed over the weekend.

Hickey said the computerized system will lend a methodical approach to the city's clean-up effort by tracking the progress of repairs, preventing duplication of effort and stopping priority tasks from falling through the cracks.

Workers and heavy equipment from the National Guard and the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE) continued to help city crews clear away debris, making all streets passable by early Tuesday morning.

Residents in the Old Cold Spring Park area complained about the potential fire hazard created by the stumps, trees, and branches being stored at one end of the Duncklee Street playground, but their concerns were defused when the city called in heavy equipment to push the pile into the center of a field and assigned two firefighters to guard the brush around the clock.

Mann said no more debris would be brought to the park, which was used to store materials from the city's south side as "a stop-gap measure" during the immediate aftermath of the hurricane.

DEQE officials announced that municipalities would be allowed to burn wooden debris under the supervision of local fire officials, but the city has not yet decided whether to take advantage of the move.

One quarter of Continental Cablevision's customers remained without service yesterday afternoon, but a company spokesman said he expected nearly all the households to be online soon.

"Billing credits will be issued to all subscribers who experienced storm-related outages of their cable service for more than 24 hours. The amount of credit will be determined by the length of time that service was interrupted," the official said.

A Newton-Wellesley Hospital spokesman said seven babies were born to area couples during the storm, but none were named "Gloria."

The hospital was forced to use emergency generators when it lost electricity for seven hours on Friday.

Mann, who will eventually seek storm repair money from the federal government, said the clean-up effort would be "very costly," mainly because of the extensive overtime costs involved.

The mayor said he was confident the city could handle the expense, but warned that "all bets are off" if a severe winter storm hits the city.

A skylight at Newton South High School, which was bashed in by a flying branch, was listed among the hurricane damage to city property.

The storm also brought out the best in city workers, who worked tirelessly for days before finally returning to somewhat normal shifts Monday, and residents, who pitched in to help their neighbors and the city clear the streets.

Storm spirits

For years to come, medical researchers will join with meteorologists to figure out why so many people wake up with headaches after hurricanes hit the area. Local liquor stores looked like the set of "Supermarket Sweep" in the hours just before Gloria visited the city. Art Illman photo

Residents are being asked to tie all brush in four-foot bundles or place it in plastic trash bags and put the piles out with the usual household garbage for regularly scheduled collection by GSX Corp. crews.

"Through Monday, Oct. 14 (Columbus Day), tree limbs and heavy brush may be placed on the grass border for collection. Wherever possible, you are requested to trim branches so that neither the sidewalk nor the street is blocked," the notice reads.

City works crews will pick up the debris, but it may be "at least several weeks before every neighborhood can be reached," according to the advisory.

Citizens with proof of residency may also bring the brush and tree limbs directly to the Rumford Avenue landfill site on Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. and on Saturdays from 7 a.m. to noon.

Lanscaping and gardening firms cleaning storm-related debris from residential properties will be allowed to dispose of tree limbs and heavy brush at Rumford Avenue without charge.

However, the contractors will be required to complete a form indicating "that the berm, sidewalk and street immediately abutting the properties serviced have been cleaned. A Public Works employee will spot check to insure that this is being done," according to the notice.

Babysitters course

NEWTON — The Newton-Wellesley Hospital School of Nursing is offering a five-week babysitting course for babysitters who are 11 years of age or older.

The course will begin Oct. 16 at 4 p.m. in the School of Nursing Administration Building on the gounds of the hospital.

The program will cover child behavior, diapering, feeding, accident prevention, safety and first aid, and entertainment for young children.

Participants who complete all five classes will receive a certificate of completion. The fee for the program is $20.

The program is limited to 25 participants; early registratrion is therefor recommended. For more information call 243-6534 or 243-6535.

International set sought shelter during storm

By Edward Cafasso
Staff Writer

NEWTON — It will be quite a while before Jon Gunn and Kate Pinnock forget their bicycle trip though the back roads of historic New England.

Gunn, 28, of Australia, and Pinnock, 25, of England, were entering the second week of their planned three-week trek when they wound up in the city hall cafeteria Friday with a dozen other refugees from Hurricane Gloria.

"I've never been more frightened in my life," said Pinnock, a nurse, as she clutched two medium-sized American flags given her by Veterans Agent Carleton Merrill, who supervised the temporary shelter.

The foreign pair sampled cheese, bread and apple cider as they rode out the storm with eight special needs youngsters from a Newton Centre halfway house and a Framingham man who was stranded when he came to Waltham to pick up his paycheck.

Gunn and Pinnock had biked down from Montreal, picked up a bus to Boston in Portsmouth, N.H., and intended to ride from the Hub to Plymouth.

"We began to get nervous on the bus to Boston. We could feel the wind pushing the bus and we were hearing quite horrible reports on the radio," Pinnock recalled.

They arrived in Boston, carrying their canvas luggage and lightweight 10-speed bikes wrapped in sailcloth cases, just before the storm struck.

"We decided, rather than risk it, we would take the train to Wellesley to stay with friends of Jon's. We wanted them to pick us up, but they wouldn't come out to get us with the storm so near," she said.

Their trolley trip was halted when a huge fallen tree limb blocked the MBTA tracks in Brookline.

"I could feel the wind buffeting the trolley and see these metal poles swaying in the wind. I said to myself, 'My God, we're going to be one of the casualties,'" Pinnock said.

"There were lots of delays and we finally got dropped at Woodland (MBTA station) at 3 p.m. in the peak of the storm without any shelter or protection from these winds. We were hoping to catch a bus to Wellesley. I was in tears by then," she added.

Gunn, a law school graduate, did not seem as emotional as his partner.

"I grew up in Brisbane where they get two or three hurricanes — we call them cyclones —a year, so I'm used to it. But, then again, I haven't been home for five years, so it was a bit scary," he said.

Their fears were calmed when an "extremely helpful" state trooper drove them to city hall's impromptu shelter.

At last report, Gunn and Pinnock were looking for a bus back to Montreal where they planned to fly to Vancouver, Canada, and start another bicycle trip down the West Coast to San Francisco.

"That's earthquake country, isn't it," Pinnock said with a touch of worry in her laugh.

Finding it in the early stages does.
The earlier a problem is discovered, the greater the chances for successful treatment. If it's detected in time, breast cancer is curable.
No examination can find the disease as early as mammography – a safe, simple test that takes about fifteen minutes. If you're over thirty-five or if there's been a history of breast cancer in your family, call to make an appointment or ask your doctor to arrange for you to have a mammogram at Precheck.
In most cases a mammogram finds only healthy tissue. That can save you worry. But if it does find "something," that can save your life.

Jewels & Gems
BY CAROL
THE GOLD LADY
THE RARE EMERALD
Of the four "precious gems," diamonds, rubies, sapphires and emeralds, it is often surprising to learn that emeralds are the most expensive. A fine, large, clear emerald of good color and cut will bring more on the market than an equally large and equally fine diamond, sapphire or ruby. Why? Emeralds are rarer that the other gems. They more than often have inclusions (flaws) that mar the clarity of the stone and very rarely are found in large sizes. There have been many huge, famous gemstones named and treasured through the ages. Few of them have been emeralds. An emerald of good color and cut that is reasonably clear of inclusions undoubtedly is a gem of considerable value.
All precious gems are undoubtedly beautiful. They sell themselves in the way they are mounted in various jewelry items. Virtually no salesperson is needed. However if cost is a consideration then CAROL "THE GOLD LADY" should be your place to purchase your gems. We have whatever jewel you want in a wide price range and we can custom design a piece to reflect your individuality. Why not break with tradition and give an emerald as an engagement ring? We know she'll love it and the quality because you bought it at 109 Dalby St., Newton. Tues. Wed. Sat. 10-6; Thur. & Fri. 'til 9. Tel. 332-5935.

Renew push for accessory apts

By Howard Altman
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Aldermen Verne Vance and Sondra Shick are asking the Board of Aldermen to consider a change in zoning laws that will increase the number of "accessory apartments" — additional housing units built in large, single-family homes.

"The impetus for this is two-fold," Vance said. "We need to permit some additional housing units to be made available in Newton on a rental basis. There is a diminishing supply of rental housing and moderate-cost housing. We need to make units available in that market."

Vance said the second reason for asking the board to consider the motion is the preservation of Newton's older homes.

"Allowing accessory apartments is a way to preserve some large, single- family houses. Many were built for a single family and a family of servants or another family. Nowadays, it is becoming less economical to maintain the houses. They are becoming targets of institutional development. We want to head that off by making it economically more feasible to maintain them as residential buildings, rather than college dorms or halfway houses."

According to Shick, who chaired the Housing Committee last term, the question of accessory apartments is not a new one.

"Last term," Shick said, "we wrote an eight-page report on the issue and we transmitted it to the full board to be acted on but it never was. Verne and I both feel that the city should take a good hard look at the issue and make some provisions to legalize (accessory apartments). It's one way of providing more affordable housng, and the city has to face the fact that there has been de facto zoning going on."

Shick explained many home owners are building accessory apartments without obtaining the required construction permits.

"People have been doing things illegally and people have been accepting that," Shick said. "We're not talking about the Building Department. (There seems to be an) unwritten policy of ignoring things."

Shick — an attorney — added a call she answered yesterday from someone seeking legal advice about constructing an accessory department sums up the need for some decisive action by the city.

"I got call from somebody who wanted a lawyer," she said, "because they wanted to put in an accessory apartment because their neighbors had. I asked the person if he received a written notice from his neighbors, as required by law. The man said he hadn't, which meant that apartment is probably illegal."

Shick said situations like that necessitate zoning controls, because some problems, like parking, are not being addressed.

"City government has a responsibility to act reasonably," Shick said. "We have to act as the city is today and not what we want it to be or what it was 30 years ago. We need to put in some kind of controls and restriction on accessory apartments."

According to Vance, the matter has been referred to the aldermanic Land Use Committee for further study.

stickers, the whole bit. We are going to treat it as a campaign for a specific candidate and we are going to supprt that candidate, which is the moratorium."

To offset the cost, Paulini said he is planning a donation drive.

"We're going to solicit money and ask for donations in the mail," Paulini said. "We already exhausted most of our money — hundreds of dollars. It's hard to say, though, how much we are shooting for."

Paulini said he is confident he will get support.

"We will approach a couple of people in business, and a couple of people have already said they will help in any way. Now that we're on the ballot, there is plenty of work needed, and we should have no problem getting people to stand with signs and make calls, etc. We are going to have plenty of volunteers and pletny of bodies. Hopefully, we will have plenty of donations as well."

He added that REZONE is not the only organization pushing for a moratorium.

"We will work with the Newton Neighborhood Network," Paulini said, "for communicative support and also as a forum to get the word out to solicit help and funding. Now that people are finding out that it will be on ballot, I think that people will jump on the bandwagon."

The question reads: Shall the Newton Board of Aldermen pass a zoning amendment which in summary would impose a temporary suspension of the issueance of construction permits for commercial, industrial and multi-family residential buildings until such time as a new zoning ordinance is adopted by the Board of Aldermen?

Fundraiser chosen for library drive

City Librarian Virginia Tashjian, who participated in the selection process, said she was particularly impressed with the presentation offered by Ralph W. Peterson, Ketchum's senior vice president.

"I was delighted because I know what a wonderful job they did in Portland, Maine," Tashjian said.

The firm, which has acted as "a fundraising counsel" for 66 years, has a reputation for surpassing the monetary goals set by communities, especially in the field of library financing, she said.

The fundraising goal set for Portland's library effort was $650,000, but Ketchum managed to collect nearly $750,000, according to Tashjian.

When the city of New Britian, Conn., set a $600,000 goal for a new library, the company raised over $838,000 in private donations, she added.

"They would come in and do the whole thing," according to Reichard, who said the firm typically takes as its fee 10 to 11 percent of the money raised.

The company's first step in a local fundraising drive would be to set up a Newton office staffed with a full-time secretary, a project manager and interested volunteers from the community.

A list of potential donors, like individuals and corporations known for their gifts to charitable institutions, would then be created and large donations would be pursued, Reichard said.

Actual drawings and floor plans depicting the design of new main library building would help "sell people on the idea" of donating to the cause, she added.

The company would also arrange a series of functions designed to create widespread community support for the project, like dances, car washes, etc.

"They have all kinds of ways of getting everybody involved," Reichard said.

Ketchum has offices in most major cities, including Pittsburgh, Chicago, Dallas, Los Angeles and Toronto, Canada.

Supt. Strand wants school hours study

By John Moroney
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Superintendent of Schools John M. Strand released his annual report last week, including a recommendation outlining a proposed citywide survey to determine if elementary school hours should be extended on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

The proposal, the superintendent said, has been discussed for a number of years. The purpose of the survey, Strand explained, is to indentify the needs of the community as to whether more instruction is needed at the elementary level instead of the early dismissal, characterized by one committee member as "filler time."

Strand emphasized his decision to poll parents as to what children did after 1 p.m. every other day during the school week is only tentative.

Members of the committee disagreed over Strand's method of gathering input from the community before making a decision on lengthening the school day.

"Personally, I don't think a survey such as this is a good use of administrative time," School Committee Chairman Leonard Gentile said.

Member Susan Silbey, agreeing with the Gentile, suggested the committee make a few proposals with regards to lengthening the school day "and see how they fly."

Member Lynne Sullivan reacted to Silbey's suggestion by saying it is more important to get parental input before a decision such as this one is made. "We can not make theoretical suggestions in a vacuum," she said to Silbey.

James Mnookin, one of the committee's lame-duck members, tried to put Sullivan's fear of not getting enough parental input to rest. "I've been on this committee only a short time," Mnookin said. "But one thing's for sure, you will be inundated with reactions."

When the smoke finally cleared, the committee decided to move ahead with a few proposals while at the same time allotting more time for comments and reaction from the community. Strand told the committee he would have "something" they could act upon within six weeks.

In his report, the superintendent also addressed staff development and expanding curriculum. Committee member Nancy Mann cautioned Strand with regards to expanding curriculum because some teachers in the school system have expressed the fear of being "overloaded" with new curriculum, for example drug education.

On the same theme of monitoring expansion, Mann asked the superintendent to clarify his remarks in the report with regards to "a revised and expanded staff development program in Newton."

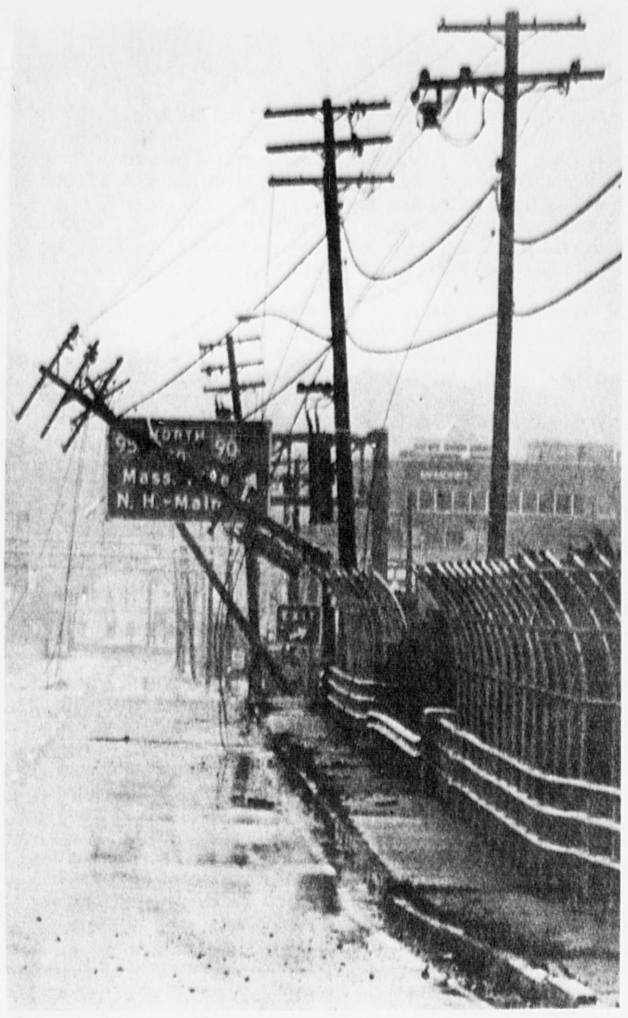

"I would like us not to assume that expansion is what we want," Mann said. Expansion, she continued, should not be "an automatic assumption" — maybe staff development means giving teachers more free time to do things on their own.

With the help of Larry Annett, assistant superintendent of curriculum and instruction, Strand explained to Mann this year the department was not mandating any new workshops for teachers.

"Generally, we tried to expand the opportunities for teachers and not the requirements," Strand said.

Committee member Angela Nielsen asked Strand to address a section of the report which deals with outfitting the school system with appropriate computer equipment. Strand said the administration is in the process of developing a single, "coherent K-12 plan." The rational behind one "plan," Strand said, is to avoid the duplication of requests for computer equipment from groups at the secondary and elementary school levels.

Committee Member Robert Ricles urged the administration and the School Committee to look at the report in its entirety. "Think about them (the report's recommedations) as a whole ... and we may see our way through them."

Zimmer honored by temple

NEWTON — Cantor Alex Zimmer, a Newton resident who celebrates his 30th anniversary as cantor of Temple Ohabei Shalom this Sukkot, will be honored by his Brookline-based congregation at a special Shabbat service on Chol Hamoed Sukkot, Friday, Oct. 4, at 8 p.m.

At the service, a stained-glass window will be dedicated in honor of Cantor Zimmer, and a musical piece by Dr. Herbert Fromm, commissioned for this occasion, will receive its premiere performance.

The Temple cordially invites the entire community, including past members of Ohabei Shalom, to worship with the Temple family on Oct. 4 and participate in this evening honoring Cantor Alex Zimmer. For more information call the Temple office at 277-6610.

NOTICE OF MIDYEAR PROGRAM CHANGES TO THE CITY OF NEWTON'S PROGRAM YEARS 6,8,9 10 and 11 (FY81,83,84 85 and 86) COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT BLOCK GRANT PROGRAM

Federal Community Development Block Grant regulations require that the City make available to the public a description of any additions to, substantial changes to, or cancellation of activities described in Final Statement of Community Development Objectives and Projected Use of Funds. The following are descriptions of activities which substantially changed the City's Final Statements for Program Years 6,8,9,10 and 11 on September 12, 1985, following a public a public hearing held on 22 August 1985.

CANCELLATION OF FY84 PROGRAM:

1. Cancellation of TRW Site Economic Development Assistance Project — $105,436.51 — (FY 84-6(C).

This project is being canceled for the following reasons:
1) The applicant requesting funding under this program has not documented that the required funding objectives would be met.
2) The applicant has not adequately demonstrated the need for this funding.
3) The applicant has not demonstrated an interest in the funding of this project in a timely manner.

ADDITION OF NEW FY81,83,84 AND 85 PROGRAM:

1) Activity Name: Newton-Wellesley-Weston Committee to Establish Community Residences for the Retarded (NWW) — $72,000 (FY81,83,84 and 85 uncommitted Housing Development Support Pool Funds) — 85-2(M).

The Newton-Wellesley-Weston Committee to Establish Community Residences for the Retarded requested $72,000 to rehabilitate and convert a single family residence located at 89 Grove Street, Newton into six units of housing for the mentally retarded. The property is currently owned by the United Parish of Auburndale, who is willing to lease the property to the above mentioned committee.

ADDITION OF NEW FY86 PROGRAMS:

Flu clinics open Oct. 8

NEWTON — The Newton Health Department will be administering the flu vaccine to city residents Oct. 8-11. This season's vaccine preparation consists of A/Phillipines, A/Chile and B/USSR strains.

The following groups, in descending order, are encouraged to receive the vaccine:

1: adults with chronic disorders of the cardiovascular or pulmonary systems that are severe enough to have required regular medical follow-ups, or hospitalization in the preceding year.

2: physicians, nurses and other medical personnel who have extensive contact with high-risk patients, e.g. staff of intensive care units.

3: healthy persons over 65 years of age.

4: adults with chronic metabolic diseases, such as diabetes, heart and kidney diseases, that are severe enough to require regualr medical follow-ups or hospitalization during the preceding year.

The clinics will be held simultaneously at Nonantum Multi-Service Center, 48 Silvert Lake Ave., and Newton Highlands Congregational Church, 54 Lincoln St., Newton Highlands. Daytime clinic hours will be Oct. 8 and 10 from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. and Oct. 9 and 11 from 9:30 a.m.to 8:30 p.m.

Please note that wheelchair accessible locations are Nonantum Multi-Service center and Newton City Hall.

If in doubt as to whether or not to receive the immunization, please check with your private physician before attending the clinic.

Also note that regularly scheduled health maintenance clinics sponsored by the Health Department at various drop-in centers will be cancelled the week of Oct. 7-11. They will resume as scheduled on Oct. 15.

Volleyball clinic set

NEWTON — The Newton parks and Recreation Department announces that there will be a Junior High School Volleyball Bump Set Spike Clinic on Tuesday, Oct. 8, 15, and 22 at 7 p.m. at Day Junior High School. This Volleyball Clinic is for grades 6, 7, 8, and 9. League play will start Tuesday, Oct. 29. For more information call Jean Cole at 552-7120.

Police, fire briefs

Pair injured during hurricane clean-up

NEWTON — A Providence, R.I. man, assisting in the hurricane clean-up on Route 9, cut his leg with a chain saw while carving a felled tree around 2:43 p.m. Monday.

Jose Gonzales was listed in stable condition Monday afternoon and was to undergo an operation following the accident which occurred at the intersection of Bolyston and High Streets. He was admitted to Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

A Newton city worker, Richard Coughlin, also injured his leg while cutting a tree with a chain saw in front of Fire Department headquarters around 11 a.m. Monday. According to the fire department, the tree fell and hit Coughlin's lower left leg. Coughlin was treated and released from the same hospital.

Woman robbed in darkened MBTA stop

NEWTON — A Brookline woman was robbed early Sunday morning near the Chestnut Hill MBTA station which was darkened because of a power failure.

The victim had arrived at the station around 1:22 a.m. and was waiting for her ride near the parking lot, when she was surprised from behind by a man wielding a knife. She gave the suspect her wallet which contained $15. The suspect motioned with the knife for the woman to go with him. The victim's father, however, arrived with the car, and when she told the suspect, he fled across the tracks toward Middlesex Road. The suspect was described as a heavy-set white male in his early 20s, 5-foot-5, with a moustache.

Jordan Marsh fire's cause still unknown

NEWTON — The Fire Department has been unable to determine the cause of a smoldering inner wall fire which caused smoke damage throughout the Jordan Marsh Warehouse on Grove Street.

Caulking and insulation of a fifth floor electric room and a first floor transformer room began smoldering around 12:30 p.m. Friday. The building's sprinkler system confined the small fires to the places where they started, according to the Fire Department. The amount of water and smoke damage was undetermined.

Youths dent, throw pizza at stopped car

WEST NEWTON — Two youths jumped onto the hood of a car and threw a pizza on its windshield while it was waiting at the intersection of Cherry and Waltham Streets last week, the car's driver told police. One of the youths kicked a dent into the driver's side door, then they both jumped back into their car and fled down Waltham Street. The youths were described as being white males in their late teens or early 20s, both about 5-feet-9, with medium builds and crew cuts.

$700 in checks stolen with deposit bag

NEWTON CENTRE — A bank deposit bag containing $700 in checks was reported stolen last week from the Newton Centre Music Shop. Store officials told police the bag was taken during the afternoon while the store was particularly busy.

Resident finds pillow case full of silver

NEWTON — A Walnut Street resident returning home discovered a pillow case full of silverware in a second-floor bedroom and a cut screen shortly before 11 p.m. Sunday. Nothing is believed missing, police said.

Bullets rip through windows on Carl St.

NEWTON HIGHLANDS — At least two gunshots were fired through the windows of a Carl Street home last week while its occupants were in Boston, according to police.

First and second floor windows were shattered and two empty 12-gauge shotgun shells were found outside the house. A neighbor told police he thought he heard three shots fired around 7:15 p.m. He then saw a green 1955 Chevrolet speed away with three or four persons inside.

The home's occupants were at Logan International Airport between 6 p.m. and 8:15 p.m. They did not notice the broken windows until just after 11 p.m., when they noticed a draft in the house.

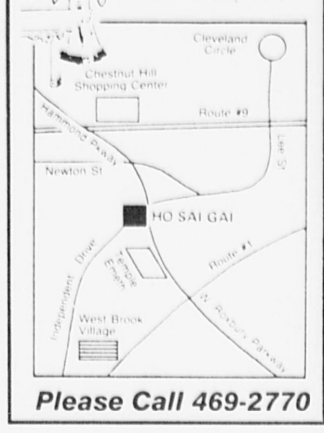

Beer, keys reported stolen from Chevy

NEWTON — Two cases of beer and a set of keys were reported stolen from a 1983 Chevrolet parked on Oakwood Road between 5 and 5:30 p.m. Saturday, police said.

Third time wasn't a charm for NRC man

NEWTON HIGHLANDS — An employee of the NRC Co. came out of work Monday night and found all four of the tires on his blue Chevrolet Cavalier had been punctured and flattened. He told police the same thing happened to him last spring and in the fall of 1984, and he doesn't know why anyone would do such a thing.

Newton man says innocent of extortion

By John Ombelets
Staff Writer

BOSTON — A former Watertown employee pleaded innocent in US District Court yesterday to 33 counts of extortion, attempted extortion, and making false claims to a federal agency, in a case involving alleged kickbacks and faked bids in the town's housing rehabilitation program.

James J. Pepicelli, of 43 Rustic St., Newton, appeared before federal magistrate Lawrence Cohen Thursday afternoon. He was released after signing a $10,000 non-surety bond.

Pepicelli, 63, had surrendered himself to authorities late Wednesday, the same day a federal grand jury handed down indictments against him, said FBI spokesman John Cloherty.

The action came after more than a year of investigation by the FBI, the Watertown police and the Boston office of the US police and the Boston office of the US Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

The former housing rehabilitation specialist is accused of extorting more than $10,000 from four unnamed contractors in return for jobs, and filing false statements with HUD, which funds the program.

According to a police source, Pepicelli misrepresented the amount and quality of the work being done in order to conceal the true cost and extent of remodeling projects.

Each of the four counts of extortion carries a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine, and the 28 counts of filing false statements each carries a maximum penalty of five years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine. Pepicelli also faces one count of attempted extortion.

Richard Dahlen, a Bsoton attorney appointed by the court to represent Pepicelli, declined to comment on the charges yesterday.

Dr. Burritt L. Haag has been named the winner of the prestigious Pfizer Award for Outstanding Clinician in the field of diabetes for 1985.

Haag, chief of Endocrine-Metabolic Service at Baystate Medical Center in Springfield, was awarded a medal and a $1,000 prize at ceremonies conducted at the American Diabetes Association National Convention in Baltimore.

Burritt L. Haag

The following M.I.T. faculty members from Newton have recently been promoted to full professor: David E. Housman, of Newton, Department of Biology; BA 1966 and PhD 1971, Bradeis University. Dr. Housman's most recent work has concentrated on the development and use of techniques to map region of human chromosomes, a capability that is extremely important to those interested in human genetic diseases since it could allow the prenatal diagnosis of these diseases.

Travis R. Merritt, of Auburndale, Department of Humanities (Literature); BA 1955, Williams College, MA 1956 and PhD 1965, University of Chicago. Professor Merritt is an authority on 19th and 20th century literature, with a special interest in the changing status and role of prose as a literary medium; his book, Style and Substance, is a teaching text in the uses of English prose.

David Thorburn, of Newton, Department of Humanities (Literature); BA 1962, Princeton University, MA 1965 and PhD 1968, Stanford University. Since coming to the Institute in 1976, Dr. Thorburn has been working on a study of television and popular literature, to be published by the Oxford University Press under the title, Story Machine; he has been recognized as one of the founders of the discipline of television criticism by, among other places, The Handbook of American Popular Culture.

Victor Nicolazzo Jr. is the newly-elected chairman of Olympic International Bank & Trust, which opened in early May on Congress Street in downtown Boston. Nicolazzo, who will head the bank's board of directors, is owner of the American Tire Co. and president of Bigelow Oil Co. in Newton.

Newell Flather of West Newton was re-elected as a member of the Museum of American Textile History, North Andover, Mass.

He was re-elected at the museum's annual meeting and dinner, celebrating the corporation's 25th anniversary.

Neal M. Kaufman, of 31 McCarthy Road, Newton Centre, representing Case Western Reserve University School of Dentistry, one of the five top colleges chosen nation-wide, was selected to be a recipient of the 1985 Warner-Lambert Preventive Dentistry Scholarship Award.

David Housman

Each recipient has made impressive contributions to their institutions, to their communities, and to the advancement of preventive dentistry.

New England Rare Coin Galleries recently appointed Elizabeth Ament Lipton of Newton to the position of Associate Corporate Attorney. Lipton has joined the firm's Corporate legal department headed by attorney Scott Semel, and will be responsible for various corporate legal matters. Prior to joining New England Rare Coin Galleries, Lipton was a Litigation Associate at Field and Shultz, a Boston law firm, and a case writer at the Harvard Business School.

Originally from Binghamton, NY, Lipton received her B.A. degree in political science from Mount Holyoke College, and attended Suffolk University Law School, where she earned her law degree in 1982.

Sandra Cohn Thau, of Newton, has been appointed as a clinical assistant for Emerson College's Division of Communication Disorders.

Thau has been associated with the Kennedy Memorial Hospital for Children in Boston since 1978, most recently serving as a clinical training supervisor. She also worked extensively evaluating and treating children with speech and language disorders.

Before joining the hospital, Thau was a speech-language pathologist for the Lowell Public Schools.

David Thorburn

She holds both her bachelor's and master's degrees in speech/language pathology from Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill.

Thau will join Emerson in September.

City workers receive tuition

By Edward Cafasso
Staff Writer

Mayor Theodore D. Mann and Boston College President J. Donald Monan teamed up last week to spread the wealth to eight city workers and 11 community organizations.

Rev. Monan presented the eight city workers, who represent a variety of municipal departments, with BC tuition vouchers allowing them to take job-related courses at the school for free.

Those receiving tuition vouchers and the city departments in which they work were: Tracy Parsons, accounting; Sandra Cetrone, building; Joyce Todd, police; Chief Budget Officer Stephen Cirillo, executive; Personnel Director Richard V. Moynihan; Water/Sewer Department Manager Judith Curby; Public Works Grants Manager Dale Silin; and Assessor Sally Powers.

Ironically, Silin and Powers could not attend the voucher presentation because they were in class.

Mann and Monan also used the opportunity to distribute some of the proceeds from the Tenth Annual Mayor's Prayer Breakfast to 11 community organizations. The donations were made possible this year when BC picked up the food tab for the Prayer Breakfast.

Previously, the mayor had disbursed $4,500 from the proceeds to Protestant, Catholic and Jewish relief agencies involved in efforts to stop the Ethiopian famine.

Those individuals accepting checks on behalf of the local programs were: Ann Carpenter, of Action for Youth; Doris Lelchook, of the Senior Citizen Shoppers Bus; Harold Williams, of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP); Paul Wiggin, of Music Serving the Elderly (MUSE); Carol Rubin, of Warmilines, Inc.; Tom Leonard, of the Newton North High School Band; Jack Rossini, of the Newton South High School Band; Saul Klashman, of the Newton Veterans Council; Lori Conners, of the Newton Family Day Care Center; and, Stephen Holmes, of the Senior Transportation Fund.

A Prayer Breakfast check will also be sent to officals representing the adult group of the local Cerebral Palsy program.

Starting life under glass

With such help from medical science, the Shermans are expecting a child in November.

"We went in for the blood test, and when they told us it was positive, we went out and bought two bottles of champagne; one for her parents and one for mine," said Peter Sherman.

So far, three of 15 clients who began the procedure at Newton-Wellesley since January have gotten pregnant, a success rate comparable with programs at other hospitals, said Dr. Peter Martin who along with Dr. John Derry founded Newton-Wellesley's in vitro program.

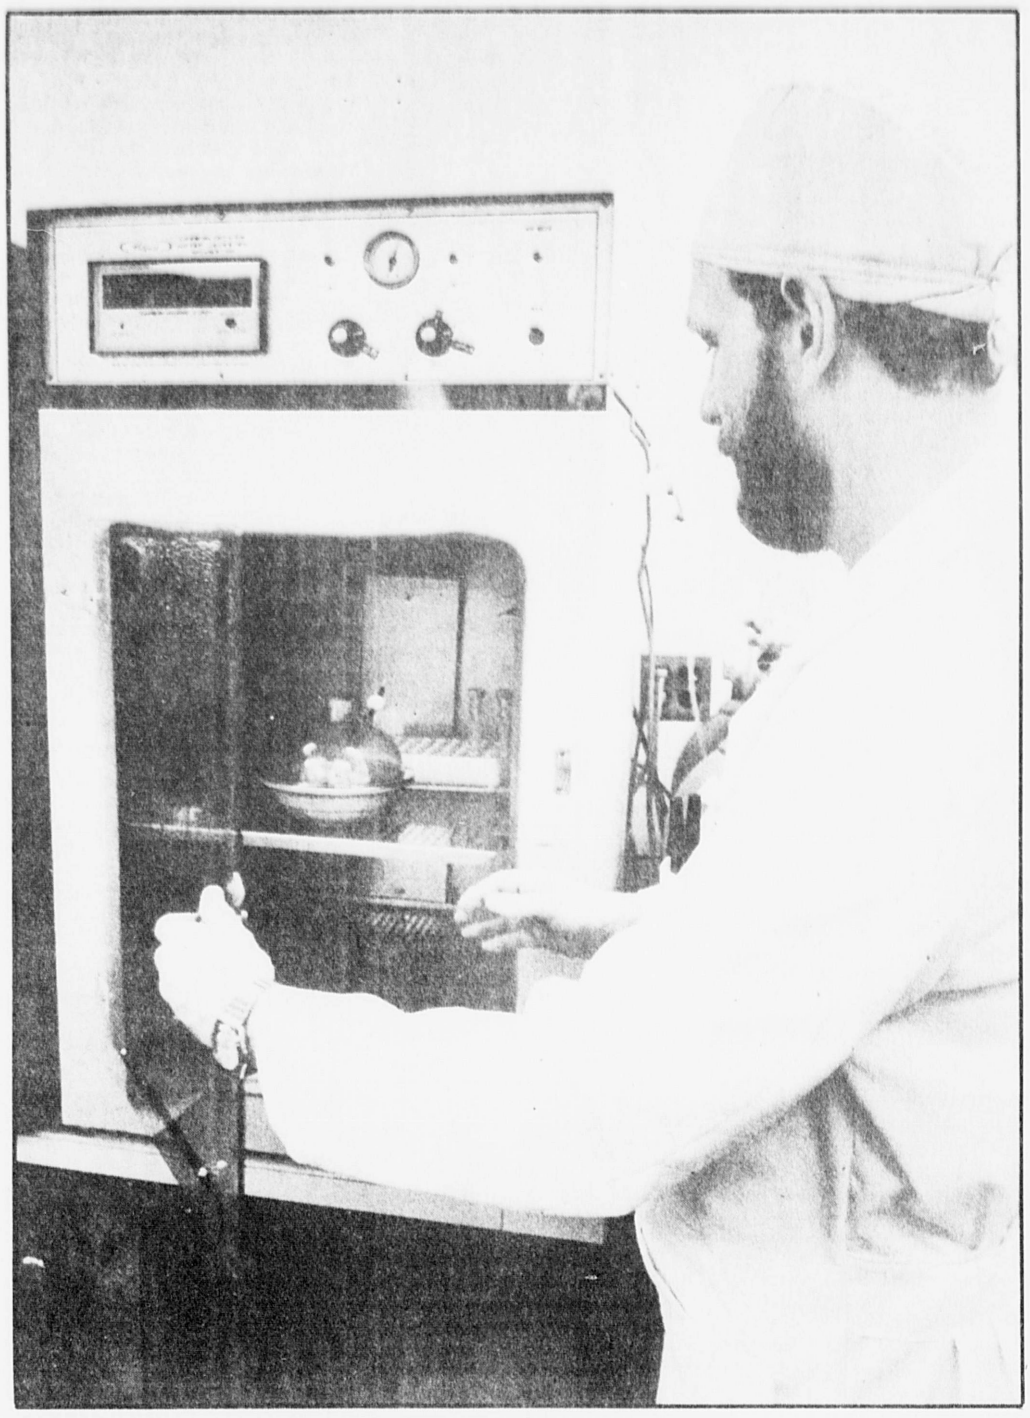

"If we could maintain that rate we would be very happy," he said.

In a fertile couple, a woman's egg is united with male sperm in her Fallopian tube. When the woman's tubes are blocked or absent, or if the male's sperm count is low, fertilization cannot take place. The in vitro procedure allows a few drops of sperm to fertilize the woman's eggs in a sterile glass dish. The resulting embryos are then replaced in her uterus, bypassing the Fallopian tube, and the pregnancy follows its normal course.

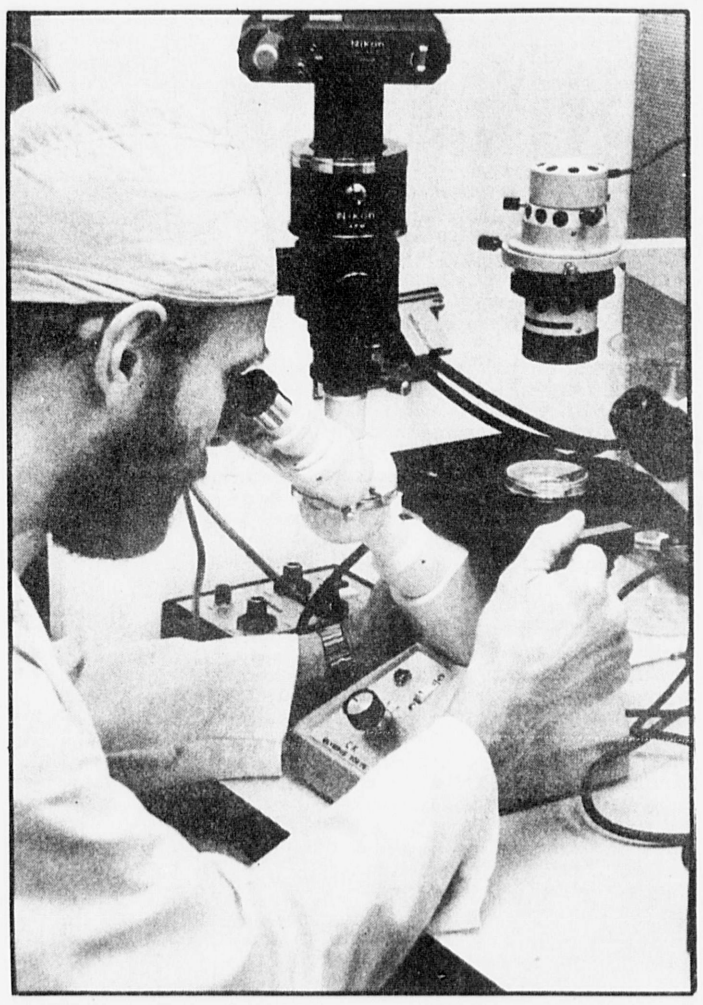

Egg harvesting for the in vitro process begins when the husband gives his wife an injection at a predetermined time to stimulate ovulation. Thirty-four hours later the woman enters the operating room, is anesthetized, and an 18-inch long needle inserted through her belly button to extract the ripening eggs.

Looking through a magnifying lens inserted in the same tube as the needle, the doctor removes an egg and its surrounding fluid from each of several ripening follicles that appear like glistening blisters on the outside surface of the ovary. Each egg is placed in a petri dish lined with a yellowish growth medium and mixed with drops of the husband's sperm.

The physician places the eggs in a protective bubble-topped container and stores them in an incubator within one centigrade of the human body's own temperature. Two days later the eggs are examined under a microscope to see if they have been fertilized, and are dividing.

After initial examination the fertilized egg is place into an incubator

Dr. Peter Martin of Newton-Wellesley examines egg and sperm

At least three embryos are implanted in the uterus to increase the chances of a successful pregnancy. While a lab technician watches through a microscope, the doctor suctions the fertilized egg from the growth medium, using a thin plastic catheter. The physician then transfers the embryo to the woman's uterus through her cervix, like a pap smear. The woman is not give anesthesia, and is able to leave the hospital four hours after the implant. A blood test two weeks later confirms whether or not there is a pregnancy.

If there is not, and there is an 80 percent chance of failure, many women opt to go through the entire process again. For some, just seeing the egg fertilized in the petri dish is a sign of accomplishment and hope, said in vitro program nurse and counselor Roberta Hayes.

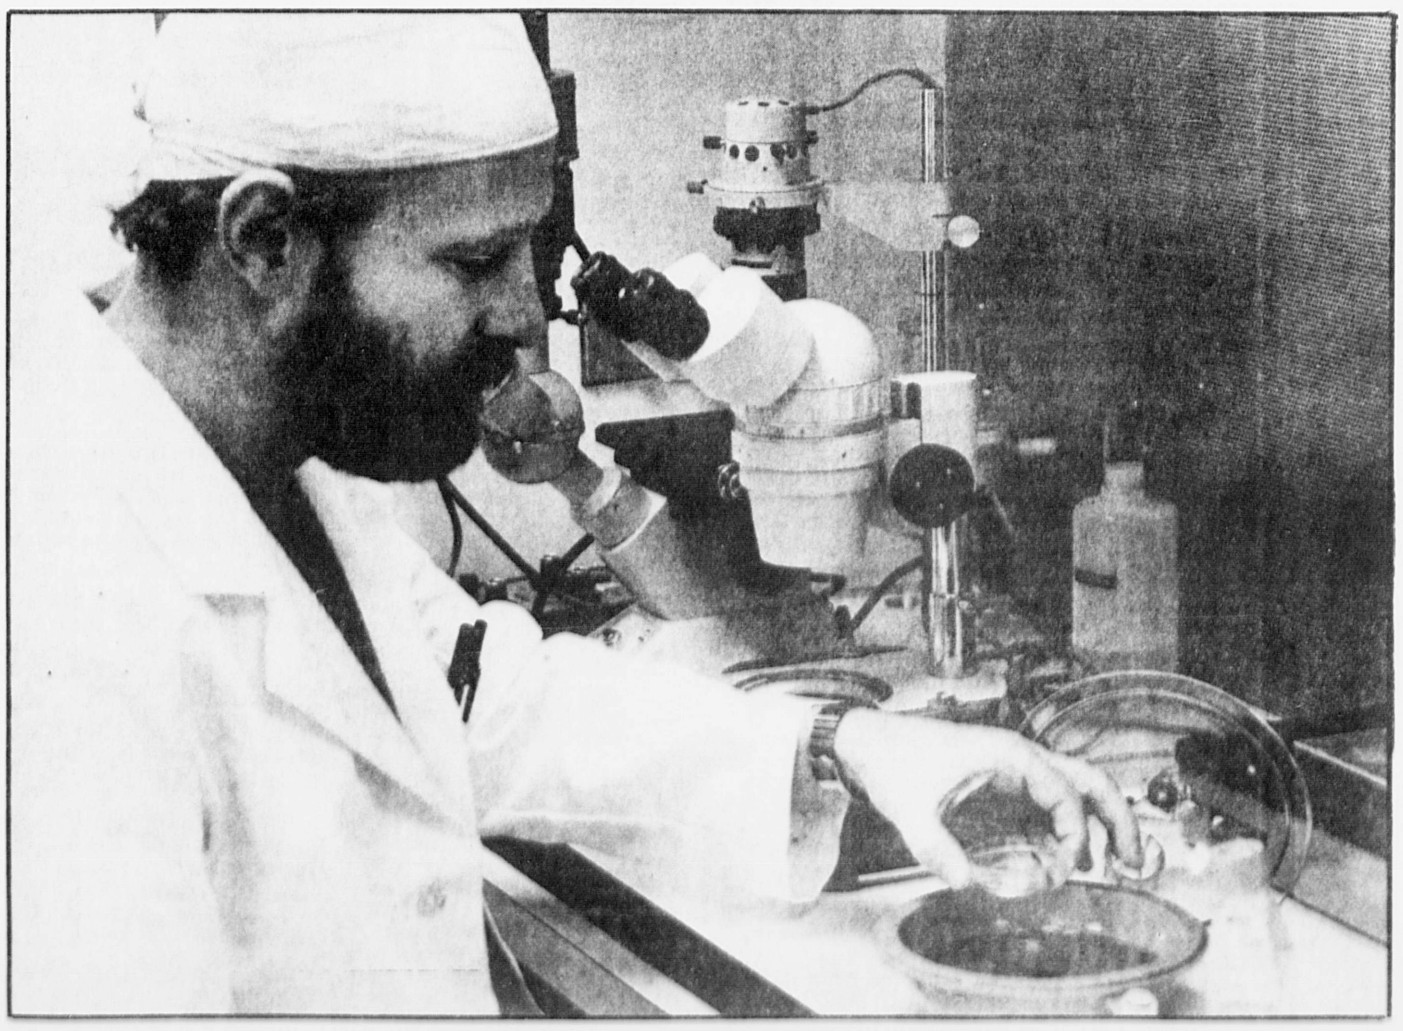

But even those receiving happier news need psychological support, Hayes said. "They find it hard to believe they are pregnant because they have been disappointed so many times."

Those receiving a positive pregnancy test have the same rate of pregnancy loss in the first trimester as a normal couple, said Martin.

Although her pregnancy was induced artificially, Joan Sherman feels every bit the normal expectant mother. "I don't feel different. If I did I wouldn't be telling people about it," she said. "I didn't feel like it was foreign matter. No one in the family said this was weird, just, 'If it works, great.'"

The in vitro procedure costs $4,700 at Newton-Wellesley for one cycle, which includes $800 worth of medication to stimulate the ovaries. Only a few medical insurance policies, however, cover the cost at this time.

"Because of the expense, many couples may choose not to do it. But it's not something only a rare couple would use," said Martin. Between 10 to 15 percent of couples have infertility problems. Of those, another 10 percent are simply unable to conceive. For those who have exhausted all other measures, in vitro offers one more hope for a child, said Martin.

Sacrificing for a chance at a miracle

Karin and John Shirley don't want to think about the money they have spent to have the miracle Karin holds in her arms.

For eight years 32-year-old Karin and her husband John, 38, have tried to have Christina, their first child. Although Karin was not a candidate for the in vitro process, she underwent expensive surgery eight times in four years to correct her blocked ovaries, a blocked Fallopian tube, and to remove bleeding foreign tissue.

The nine months of successful pregnancy, "made the eight years seem like nothing," said Karin. "Those who can just have a baby can't understand. Our whole life has been put on hold," said Karin who could not work while in the hospital. John said he kept a job he did not like just to keep the medical insurance which partially covered his wife's hospital bills.

"There are trade-offs you make. Some people finally say no and adopt. Or doctors may force you to make a radical solution, like have a hysterectomy," said Karin. But the Shirleys persisted. And their pursuit has been somewhat financially draining. "We keep our old car going, we don't have much furniture," she said.

Not all medical insurance policies cover infertility problems. "Blue Cross/Blue Shield will not pay for an infertility diagnosis or treatment," said Dr. Elliott Rivo, a gynecologist who specializes in treating infertility at Newton-Wellesley Hospital. Treatment can be expensive. A month's supply of the drug Danocrine can cost $100 a month. Surgery to correct a blocked Fallopian tube costs over $2,000. Infertility is not rare. One out of five couples has an infertility problem, meaning the couple has tried unsuccessfully for 12 months to conceive, said Rivo.

A couple who consults an infertility specialist is put through a battery of tests ranging from a sperm count for the male, to tests monitoring a woman's ovulation process, and x-rays to make sure her Fallopian tubes are not blocked.

These tests might reveal that drug abuse, stress, or medication are causing a male's sperm count to be too low or inactive. Or the tests might indicate that a misplaced vein in the testicle area is interfering with sperm production. Hormones may be out of timing, or be secreted in improper amounts, preventing a woman's normal ovulation. Medication or surgery can usually correct such defects.

Pelvic infections, in both males and females, are a common source of infertility. Whether they arise from sexually transmitted diseases, the use of the IUD contraceptive device or other sources, pelvic infections scar sensitive tissue inside the reproductive organs. "Scarring can close off passageways and obstruct an egg," said Dr. Gary Goldsmith, a Mt. Auburn Hospital obstetrician. Using special magnifying goggles, tiny tweezers and scrapers, a doctor can remove abnormal tissue. To prevent additional scarring through surgery, the doctor drips a special saline solution on the tissue being operated upon to keep blood away from the area.

Another cause of scarring as well as cysts in women is endometriosis. Cells lining the uterus which normally bleed once a month somehow travel or are produced outside the uterus. The cells bleed, causing the surrounding tissue to scar. The drug Danocrine can suppress such misplaced cells, but if there are too many, surgery might be necessary. One anxiety about infertility, is the waiting and hoping for corrective surgery to work. Results are not immediate.

"You try for three months, and if there is a pregnancy you wait three more months only to lose the baby. It takes three more months for recovery before you can try again," said John Shirley.

North coach Colleen White

Tiger swimmers romp in opener

NEWTON — Coaches always like a matchup that gives them a chance to rest the regulars and get the substitutes some action, though it doesn't do quite as much good when it comes in the first outing of the season. But that's what happened to the Newton North swim team on Tuesday, as Coach Colleen White sat out most of her regulars and still came away with a 118-48 trouncing of Quincy at Newton North.

As a result, there were no individual standouts with two or three victories. Quincy only won a single event, the 50-yard freestyle, but North didn't have a double-winner.

Still, there were several impressive performances, particularly from the freshman class.

Amanda Kulberg won the 200 freestyle, was second in the 100 free and was part of the winning free relay squad.

Other ninth-graders who stood out included Jenny Hager (first in the 100 breaststroke) and Melissa Leary (second in the individual medley).

Nancy Connolly, one of the few regulars to take part, picked up a win in the individual medley and helped the freestyle relay team to its victory.

White was also happy with the efforts of divers Andrea Marchant and Cheryl Cooperstein. Marchant won the event with 163 points, while Cooperstein took third.

It looks as though the Tigers are on their way to another superb season. As always, the Suburban League title should come down to the Newton North-Brockton meet later in the season, though Brookline and Cambridge Rindge and Latin can't be taken lightly.

Brockton has had the best of the matchup in recent years, but White feels that could change this time around.

Of last year's group, Abby Dezotell is the only graduated senior who took a significant amount of points with her. Offsetting her loss are at least five freshman who "will be a real big help," according to the coach.

When White unleashes her entire squad, she's has an awfully potent lineup. Connolly swam two events on Tuesday, and will pick up another when the going gets tough. Other three-event swimmers include junior Janet Bishop and senior Nancy Vendice. Bishop has already proven herself as one of the best swimmers in Eastern Mass. and should be even better this fall.

That doesn't even include the senior tri-captains, all proven point-getters. Penny Patrick, Heather Meyer and Julie Notartomaso all will swim three events in the big meets.

The diving is shaping up as another strong event, led by Martin. She's only a sophomore, but has a year of varsity experience under her belt.

At the other end of the scale is Cooperstein, a senior out for the first time. She's never dived before, but has come an amazingly long way in a short period of time.

Others who should come up with some points are junior Cathy Collier, senior Suzanne Galdston and senior Diane Larkin. Collier and Larkin are sprinters, while Galdston's specialty is the breaststroke.

"We won't beat Brockton without that depth," said White.

Tuesday's opener certainly didn't tell the Tigers just how good they are, but the team has a scrimmage with Wellesley today. After that, the coach said she will "really know what we have."

The next regular-season meet isn't until Oct. 8 when Cambridge Rindge and Latin comes to North.

South harriers get by Lincoln-Sudbury

LINCOLN — Sophomore Mike Silverstein pulled away with just under a mile to go, breaking the tape for Newton South and boosting the Lions to a 27-29 victory over host Lincoln-Sudbury.

Silverstein's time of 14:39 on the 2.7-mile course was half a minute quicker than Lincoln's top finisher. According to South Coach Paul McCarthy, Silverstein "stayed with his kid" and "after about two miles he (Silverstein) pulled away and finished going away."

McCarthy said he was pleased with the runs of Haley and Pickett, both who have been "improving every week" and have developed an intra-squad rivalry.

Peter Neischuler finished 11th for South and "really came through more like we expected."

Weston nips A-B

Freshmen Rob Fortune and Grover Heintz scored key points as Weston outlegged host Acton-Boxboro, 25-30.

Fortune passed an A-B runner with 50 yards to go to beat out a sixth-place finish and Heintz blew off two Acton opponents to pick up a ninth-place score.

"We were not in a winning position," said Weston Coach Don Duncan. "He (Rob) helped us greatly by sprinting right by their guy. Grover was in 13th place with a mile to go and finished ninth."

Senior Captain Rich Cook started the flow, capturing first place for Weston with a 16:30 finish at the 2.95-mile track. Sophomore Brian Allen took fourth and David Stewart placed fifth.

"David had his best race, and we've been expecting it," Duncan said. "He's going to get better."

Weston, 1-1 in the Dual County League, will host Wayland on Tuesday.

Canty escorts Lancers to romp in volleyball

NEWTON — Junior Angela Canty rolled off 11 straight points as Newton Catholic shut out Mt. Alvernia in game one on the way to a 2-0 victory Tuesday in volleyball, 15-0, 15-6.

Canty, coming off the bench, added to a Lancer 4-0 lead to win the game. In the second game, Newton Catholic got some good setting from Linda Leary and a few clutch digs from Cheryl Chagnon and Joanne Abruzzi, who had six points in the match. The serving of senior Ann Kling helped too, according to Newton Coach Rose Bertucci.

"The girls seemed to be playing better as a whole," she said. "They're calling for the ball and moving for ball better. We made some very good plays off the net."

The Lancers, still unbeaten at 3-0.

North improves to 5-0

A second-game letdown didn't prevent the Newton North volleyball team from winning its fifth decision without a loss on Monday, 3-0, over Acton-Boxboro.

It looked like it would be easy in the first game as the Tigers cruised, 15-3. The Colonials turned it around in game two, 15-11, but North battled back to take the deciding game, 15-7.

North coach Jay Cradle substituted in the second game, but she indicated the starters were the ones who suffered the letdown, while the bench players performed admirably. Those same starters, however, are the ones who came back in the third game to clinch the win.

The contest featured some excellent play at the net by first-year sophomore Rachel Healy. Elizabeth Yellen, in her first varsity match, also performed very well.

South edged

Newton South got in a close match with Brockton but came out on the short end of a 15-8, 15-11 score.

The Lions are 1-4 on the season.

Kinsella, McLellan teammates

A 1985 graduate of Newton North High School, Kinsella was a three-sport athlete participating in basketball, soccer and softball. During her junior year she captained the soccer team and as a senior cpatined the softball squad. She was an All-League and All-State (2nd team) selection in soccer as a junior and an All-League and All-State (1st team) pick as a senior.

McLellan gave the Friars much needed depth during the 1984 soccer season. Her quickness works well on the wing and her effectiveness with the development if her control and poise. According to Coach Gerry GUay, "Her confidence in herself in a one-on-one situation will determine her achievement in 1985." Guay went on to say, "Colleen's enthusiasm and work is always 110 percent."

A 1984 graduate of Newton South High School where she was a member of the varsity soccer squad, Colleen is the daughter of Tom and Betty McLellan of 34 Carver Rd., Newton.

Lions capitalize on fumbles

By David Cuddy

FRAMINGHAM — Keefe Tech Head Coach Jim Blair knew it before the game and he's still shaking his head.

"We're playing above our heads this week," Blair said as he prepared for a weekend contest against the new Newton South Lions. A storm delayed the game until Monday, but the report had not changed.

South strolled into Framingham Monday afternoon, controlling the ball for 40 minutes before finally getting back on the bus with a 22-0 victory in the bag.

The Lions did not only win a ballgame, their second in as many tries, but they manhandled a Unicorn squad that coughed up the ball on five of their seven possessions.

By the third quarter, it was getting to the point that every time Keefe got the ball, the only decision that had to be made was which South defender was going to pick it up.

Cornerback John Morgan had an interception and a fumble recovery, linebacker Kevin Rollins caught a pair of stray passes and tackle Keith Marion buried another fumble. Take your pick.

"We played a much better game defensively," South Head Coach Art Kojoyian said. "In the last game I thought we were weak, not as good as we could have been, but we played better today. We're still young, though, and we're going to make mistakes."

Offensively for South, Rollins and fullback David Mosby split the ball carrying duties. Mosby plowed his way to a 71-yard day with a touchdown while Rollins ran for 54 yards and caught a TD-pass.

Sophomore quarterback Ben Burlingame led the way to South's opening TD on the first possession. After back-up quarterback Sean Brady returned the opening kickoff 12 yards to the South 35, Rollins went to work and bulled the Lions to midfield. Burlingame then hit Chris Tyler on the option for a 26-yard gain before exercising the option once more, on a quarterback keeper down the sideline for the touchdown.

Morgan got South the ball back before the offensive crew had even reached the bench. Keefe took the kickoff, and on the very first play from scrimmage Bryan Munroe lofted the ball to Paul Colby on a halfback pass. Morgan stunned Colby just as the tight end gained control, knocking the ball loose and smothering the fumble on the South 28.

After the Lions punted the ball away, Munroe picked up some short yardage for Keefe, muscling his way across midfield to the Lion 28. On his next carry, Munroe split the middle only to find a pair of Lion defenders in his way. The Keefe running back was bounced into next week as the ball flew back 20 yards before Marion recovered it.

Mosby took his turn with the ball as South rushed itself upfield at the end of the first quarter. A 20-yard blast by Mosby brought the Lions to the Unicorn 26 just as the quarter ended.

An unsuccessful stint to open the second quarter cost South a turnover on downs, but Keefe played the hosts and gave the ball up after only two plays.

Rollins picked-off a Doug Landry pass at the Keefe 45 and scooted inside the 30 before being stuck hard by a frustrated Unicorn, taking on an additional 15-yards on the roughing call.

Three rushes and two penalties later, South was back at the original line of scrimmage before Burlingame led Mosby to the end-zone from 12-yards out for the touchdown.

Mosby cut through for the two-point conversion to put South on top, 14-0 at the half.

It was more of the same in the second half as South kicked off to Keefe, only to get the ball back three plays later. Landry threw a quick pass up the middle on third and long and Morgan pulled it in for the interception just inside Keefe territory.

Rollins rushed for 11 yards and Mosby ran free for a 12-yard gain to bring the Lions inside the 25. Two more carries by Rollins and a seven-yarder by Mosby put the ball on three, and after Keefe stopped both Rollins and Mosby on off-tackle rushes, South had a fourth and goal on the one-yard line. Mosby ended the suspense, bursting up the middle for the TD on the next play. Burlingame passed to Leroy Browne for the two-point bid to put South up, 22-0.

Keefe's only sustained drive was a fourth-quarter bid that moved the Unicorns inside the South 30, but they still managed to botch a scoring bid with penalties.

A 31-yard gainer by Munroe sparked Keefe, and after short rushes and a pair of Landry completions, Keefe had a first and 10 at the South 35. Munroe ran for seven on first down, but a holding penalty against Keefe on second down all but nullified the gain.

Losses by Jose Figueroa and backup quarterback Jason McGuire set up a fourth-and-10 situation before a personal penalty against the Unicorns turned the pigskin over.

Tiger stickmen in 1-0 setback

Eighteen minutes into the first half, the sophomore cashed in the goal out of a scramble in front of the net.

Junior Jenny Epstein had a hand in the play, bringing the ball upfield and getting it into the circle. The Tigers tried to clear it, but Stichweh was there to put it home.

Weston and junior goalie Jodi Jones have yet to allow a goal this season.

Thursday, Weston improved on a poor first half to outshoot host Concord-Carlisle, 19-3, after intermission, but still couldn't come up with a goal and had to settle for a 0-0 Dual County League tie with the Patriots.

Goalie Jones had to hold the fort in the opening half for the Wildcats, making five saves.

In the second half Weston "had control, pretty much," according to Butera, but couldn't get on the board. "We couldn't seem to get it in."

Part of that was due to C-C goalie Susan Travis, who played extremely well.

Santos, Epstein and Paresky all had solid games for Weston, despite coming up empty. Junior Andrea Barry also had some good moments off the bench.

Now 3-0-1, the Wildcats are at Wayland on Friday for a 3:30 p.m. contest.

Newton North's previous outing was a 2-1 victory over Wayland, thanks to Tara Feeney's goal midway through the second half.

The Warriors came right back to put the pressure on, but the Tiger defense held, led by senior sweeper Kiera Lymperis.

South blanked

Newton South was simply overmatched on Monday, losing a 7-0 decision to Concord-Carlisle at South.

South's last effort was also a shutout loss, to Lincoln-Sudbury on Thursday. The Warriors needed a pair of second-half goals to post a 2-0 triumph.

Queler scores 4 as Newton Midgets win

NEWTON — Sid Queler scored four goals to lead the Newton Midget A's to a 9-5 victory over Lexington-Bedford Monday.

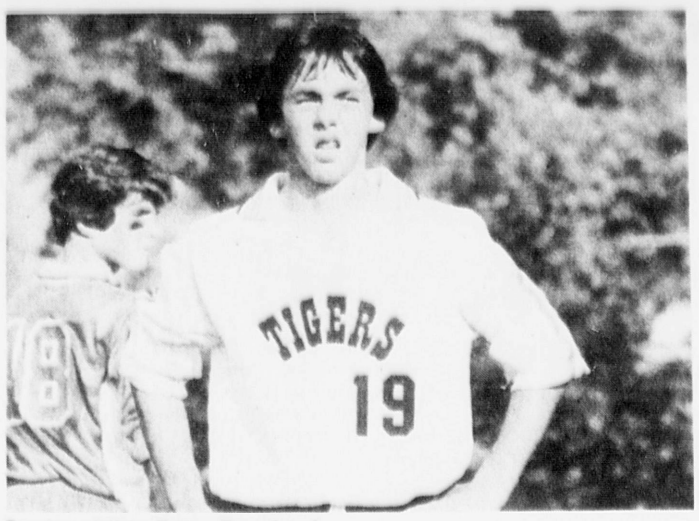

Queler hit the twine three times in the first period to boost Newton to a 4-3 lead, then finished off the night in the second stanza with his fourth goal. He also had two assists.

Queler then scored two goals in the final 30 seconds of the first period to put Newton back on top.

Rob Ingham opened the scoring in the middle period before Queler added his fourth on a nice fake. Dom Bianchi then lifted a shot under the crossbar from five-feet out for a 7-4 lead.

Senior striker Peter Bourland

Bourland averaging 3 goals per game

By Roy LeBlanc
Staff Writer

NEWTON — A hat trick in soccer is normally a rare event. But Newton North as a team, and Peter Bourland in particular aren't having what anyone would call a normal season thus far.

The Tigers are 6-0, which isn't all that shocking. What is surprising is how they got to be that way, mostly on the strong leg of Bourland. The senior striker has already punched home 18 goals, meaning a hat trick is an average game for him this season.

"I had no idea that I'd get off to this kind of start," said the senior striker. "The past few years weren't as good as I'd expected, so I worked harder this summer. I wanted to have a good year."

Again, the phrase "not as good as I expected" should be taken with a grain of salt. Bourland's standards are a bit different than most.

As a sophomore, he led the team with 23 goals. Only Steve Kasha had more points, mostly because of assists he picked up on Bourland goals.

With 18 already on the board and the seventh game not yet played, he's sure to zoom past his career high by plenty.

Bourland's season thus far is like something out of The Natural. In six games, the Tigers have outscored their opponents, 28-3, with him providing almost two-thirds of the goals.

It started immediately, as the Hancock Street resident pumped home all three goals in a 3-1 decision over Medford.

That was just a warmup for victories over Peabody (7-0) and Revere (8-1), in both of which he scored four times. Against Somerville, his output fell back to three, as his team waltzed, 5-0.

Bear in mind that in none of those routs did Coach Roger Brown let Bourland go all the way. Once the game was well in hand, the coach let the bench get some playing time.

Bourland did go the distance in North's fifth outing and it's a good thing he did. He scored only once, but it came with 42 seconds showing on the clock and gave the Tigers a thrilling 1-0 victory over Brockton in the Suburban League opener.

Ironically enough, he had missed on two good opportunities in close, frustrating him a bit, but making up for it at the end "felt great."

In addition to the hard work, Bourland is quick to credit his teammates for his success. One of the key contributors has been his brother Steve, who plays midfield.

"We really work well together," the elder Bourland said. "He sets up most of my goals."

Sweeper Brian Scales also received praise for his work in bringing the ball up and getting it to the forwards.

Scoring in big numbers is nothing new for Peter; he's been doing it since he was five. That's when he started playing soccer. He began as a striker, and he's been terrorizing goalkeepers for the 12 years since.

The game seems to be in the Bourland family blood. Steve, a junior, is in his second year as a varsity starter. Sister Dana, 14, and brother David, 10, both play soccer as well.

Neither Peter's father, Gene, or his mother, Norman, ever played soccer. Both were raised in Texas. Gene, a minister, did play both baseball and football in high school and college and obviously handed down some athletic ability.

Soccer isn't Peter's only sport. He's a high hurdler for the Newton North track squad, finishing fifth in the state as a junior. He'll be trying to improve upon that mark this year, and if he has anything like the success he's had on the soccer field, some records might fall.

His athletic and academic (he's a B student who favors math and geography) endeavors don't leave him much spare time. Much of what time there is will be spent choosing a college in the next few months. Places such as West Point, Holy Cross, Westfield State and the University of Lowell have already been in touch about taking his soccer talents to their schools.

If all goes well, Bourland would like to run track too, but admits, "it depends on the school." He's uncertain as to his eventual major. Physical education is a possibility, but for the time being he intends to "leave it loose."

A Suburban League all-star in soccer and track as a junior, Bourland has specific goals for this fall. Most important is the league championship for the team: "Everyone's thinking about that."

For himself?

"I'd like to make All-Scholastic," he admitted, though adding, "I don't like to think about it. I just like to let it happen."

North eleven presses Brockton

BROCKTON — It was a huge improvement over last year's 34-0 nothing loss to Brockton, and it was leagues better than last week's 42-2 drubbing at the hands of Natick, but Newton North is still 0-2 and the Boxers are 2-0.

North coach Peter Capodilupo has to be encouraged by Saturday's 27-14 loss at powerless Marciano Stadium, but in his mind, he's still got to be thinking about the mistakes and missed opportunities that could have turned this into an upset of major proportions.

"We were right in there," Capodilupo noted. "With a little luck we could have done something."

Granted, as Brockton coach Armond Colombo put it: "We played a very poor football game." But the fact is, without five turnovers (including an interception returned for a touchdown) and some untimely penalties, the Tigers could have had this one. Outside of a couple of lapses which resulted in three Tom Colombo touchdown passes, the Tigers dug in and stuffed everything the Boxers tried to do. But three of the four Brockton scores came off North turnovers.

Brockton never got any momentum going. The Boxers gained only 43 yards on the ground, and had the ball for 10 less plays than Newton (43-33). But what separates the Boxers from the normal high school football team is their ability to strike from anywhere on the field.

Colombo cashed in from 82, 19 and 46 yards away from the end zone, despite completing only five passes all day. Four different receivers did the job, as the Tigers concentrated on Greg McMurtry and shut him down, except for the 19-yard TD catch.

It didn't take long for the Newton fans who made the trek to Brockton to realize that this week was going to be different. Within 25 seconds their team had a 6-0 lead over the defending Super Bowl champs.

Dave Redmond's kickoff was fumbled by Brockton's Rudy Harris on the 26 yardline. Demitri Diatchenko pounced on it and the Tigers had their window of opportunity.

It took them only two plays to leap through that opening. After Mark Adams picked up five, Mike Ryan found Ganson Pollock alone behind the defense on a rollout pass and it was 6-0.

One play later, the Boxers had it back as McMurtry picked off Ryan's first attempt of the day on the seven.

After a first down, Colombo sent a little swing pass out to Aaron Gamboa in the left flat. With McMurtry drawing a crowd on the other side, all it took was one defender falling down to give Gamboa a clear track to the goalline. The play covered 82 yards and when Sal Gonsalves split the uprights, the home club had a lead it would never relinquish.

The Tigers turned the ball over again the next time they had a chance, this time on their own 33 as Adams coughed it up and Brian Houston recovered.

It took the Boxers seven plays, but they finally got into the end zone when Colombo looped a floater over the defense to McMurtry in the right corner of the end zone.

The mini-drive featured a lot of walking the ball back and forth, as each team picked up three penalties. Neither team did itself any favors in that department, as they combined for 15 penalties for 139 yards on the day.

"We constantly set ourselves back," said an upset coach Colombo afterward.

It stayed a ballgame at 14-6 until early in the fourth quarter when the Boxers thought they put it away with two quick scores.

Four plays after a Redmond field goal attempt bounced off the crossbar, Colombo was at it again. This time the diminutive junior blooped another rainmaker to a wide, wide open Dave McCormack for a 46-yarder. Another fraction of a second, and Colombo would have gone down, as Joe Fresolo already had a fistful of jersey when he let it go.

But for one big final mistake, the Tigers could have made an extremely interesting game of it down the stretch. Britt Ryan broke open for a 20-yard touchdown connection from Mike Ryan thanks to some great open-field running. Moments later, the Tigers were falling on Redmond's onside kick.

But what made this an anticlimax instead of a nailbiter was Dennis Martin's 25-yard interception return for a TD which preceded the Ryan score.

North QB Mike Ryan was trying to get the ball to Adams, but threw it just a little to low. Martin's arm went up, the ball came down, and the Tiger hopes flew away.

As it turned out, North couldn't cash in on the onside kick anyway. They turned the ball over two more times in the final two minutes, once on a fumble, the other on an interception.

Coming in for praise from Capodilupo for their job on McMurtry were Chris Rutan and Anthony Fillipone, who had the unenviable job of doubling the Brockton star all afternoon. Britt Ryan, John Flynn and Otto Mariano were three others whom the coach had good words for.

New styles in children's furniture

By Patricia McCormack

NEW YORK (UPI)— What's up in furniture for babies and kids is the real thing — adult chests of drawers and dressers. But cribs, high chairs, dressing tables, and teeny-tiny rockers, tables and chairs remain baby's and toddler's own.

Down and out

What's down and out: Clown, animal decorations on cribs and all else. The same for playthings designed into the crib. Attached balls for baby to twirl, for example.

It's almost as though today's babies are being ushered into a nursery more serious than usual. But hold on. The scene's not as drab as it sounds with furniture going Plain Jane.

The playful, colorful touches are added to baby's habitat with add-ons: bed linens, quilts, crib bumpers, fabric decorations featuring rainbows and popular characters from play and fantasyland. Many are meant to be stuck or hung on walls, doors, even windows.

No frills

The trend to the no frills, well-made, expensive, adult type dressers and chests of drawers and such for baby's room was noted by Ray Brown. He runs the infant furniture end of J. C. Penney. Some of the furniture bought for the nursery is the spittin' image of that in the adult department.

A similar report comes from that other big merchandiser, Sears. The trend was confirmed in visits to the big toy chain stores that deal in kid and baby furniture, including one that bills itself as "the world's No. 1" baby store.

Brown said the move away from CXB little baby chests and dressers — pink for girls, blue for boys — developed over the last 10 years, fueled by practical parents.

When parents spend from $200 to $400 for a chest or dresser for baby's room they want something that will continue useful as the child grows, according to the merchandisers.

First-time parents these days being older than they used to be has something to do with this practical bent, according to Brown.

"Today parents are 25 when the first child is born. It used to be 19 or 20," Brown said.

"Now the couple marry, vacation, buy a house and then a car. Then they decide to start a family.

"They are spending more and looking for furniture that is styled right, of good quality and that will grow with the children."

The cost

The least amount required to put together a nursery today is between $400 and $500, says John W. Summers, marketing communications manager, home fashions, Sears. The fact was confirmed by visits to stores.

The average cost, however, is between $1,200 and $1,500. When price is no object, the bill can be many times the average.

Summers said federal regulation, without a doubt, is influencing the design of nursery furniture.

"Styling is being affected tremendously — that is, crib tops will basically all look the same as no posts are allowed."

While colonial furniture continues to be the "hottest" style in nursery furniture, the people at Sears see a trend toward contemporary designs and lacquer looks.

Novelty lamps — such as Winnie the Pooh or clowns — continue strong in the nursery. Many have night light attachments.

In juvenile furniture — the term for fixings for rooms of growing boys and girls — bunk beds continue strong for boys and, for girls, canopy beds.

Summers said bunk beds with built-in storage space are popular these days, a result of the trend toward smaller homes and smaller bedrooms. A frame, board, two mattresses and storage unit costs $399 at Sears. The package is delivered knocked down. Customers must assemble beds themselves.

For teenagers

At the teenage level, girls' bedroom furniture is dominated by white wood or liminate finishes. If a girl hasn't had a canopy bed by teenage, this is her last chance. And many are snapping at the chance, making canopy beds strong sellers for teenage girls.

Furniture for adolescent boys center around maple or pine finishes in a colonial feeling. Brown says a lot of serious comparison shopping goes on when a nursery is to be furnished.

"I say the average woman has a short period to shop and must buy quickly for most things," he said.

Brown said the average mother-to-be shops at 4.5 stores. But he has seen some reports claiming it's more like 12 stores.

"They read all the magazines and talk to everyone with babies," he said.

Highlights

Other highlights from the juvenile scene: For the lazy baby who can't generate the energy to make a swing go to and fro — or for whose parents are too tired to push, there's a wind-up swing. It comes in at $36.99. Apparently you can't break the works. "Resists overwinding," the ad claims.

— A sinkadink, in case you didn't know, is a basin organizer that attaches easily to standard bathtub edge (5 inches wide or less.) "Helps toddler learn good health habits while having fun," the ad says. For splashers and mess-makers, 18-months to 4 years. Accessories — toothbrush, soap, plastic cup or what-not are included in the $13 tab.

— Electronic touches provide an invisible safety net around baby and little kids. Gerry Baby Safetronics, one manufacturer, offers an intercom and a door alert. The intercom transmitter is placed near baby. Receiver can be carried in pocket or set down when Mom or Dad work up to 300 feet from baby, inside or outside house. You will hear sounds baby makes while in crib or playpen. Operates on a 9-volt battery. The price of $40 does not include battery.

The door alert, meanwhile, can be used on swimming pool gates, stairways, closets and other potential hazards. It helps protect toddlers by making a screaming noise when the child opens a door. This also operates on a 9-volt battery which, in the traditional manner, is not included in the price of $10.

— A sassy bathing safety kit includes a white whale spout guard that adjusts to fit any size spout and eight fish-shaped non-skid treads to give a child secure footing and seating. Hard foam rubber.

— Use soft wall sculptures made of cotton broadcloth with polyester fiberfill to make nursery or child's room colorful. The creations with hooks for hanging include a 44-inch rainbow with clouds, a 30-inch-tall kite, an assemblage of balloons 42 inches high and 26 inches wide, a 26-by-36-inch tugboat with wide eyes and a nifty smile, a yard-long train with calico wheels. Prices: $18 to $20 apiece.

— Musical lullabye bird. Plays continually or when baby rocks. Attaches to crib and is supposed to please from birth to three years of age, unless, of course, baby shreds it. Four AA batteries not included in price of $16.97 at a discount toy store.

Artist puts personal touch on tiles

By John M. Leighty
UPI Feature Writer

STINSON BEACH, CALIF. — Artist Brenda Rose puts a personal touch into home decorating, creating scenes such as a splashing mermaid in a shower stall or a pastoral farm above a kitchen stove — all on tiny ceramic tiles.

"Anything is really possible on tile," said Brenda Rose, whose decorative tile works range from a colorful bird on a single square for a wall hanging to a set of undersea designs for lining the galley of a ship.

"If people knew the kind of things that can happen on tiles, they would use them more," said the longtime artist whose works in oils and watercolors contribute to her special techniques.

She has done a 24-tile shower scene of a maiden playing a lute in a lily pond for movie mogul George Lucas, and a tropical fish motif for the California Academy of Sciences director's residence. Comedian Robin Williams commissioned her to do three bathrooms of his home in Napa, Calif., in patterned deco tiles.

"I often do extensive research for authenticity if the job requires it," said Brenda Rose, whose replicas of Australian reef fish had to be scientifically correct.

One of her clients, Catherine Bevanda of Dillon Beach, Calif., was building her home on a cliff overlooking the ocean when she spotted Brenda Rose's works.

"It was a fluke," Bevanda said. "I wanted to employ an artist to do something in my home, but I didn't think it would be tiles. I'm very pleased."

For Bevanda's kitchen, Brenda Rose designed a tiled row of blue and white trees, for the two bathrooms she chose a lily scene and a woman bathing, and for the fireplace she used terra cotta tile for an intricate theme of the world's religions, with a rising sun and symbols of the zodiac.

"I just let her do what she wanted to do," said Bevanda, who suggested certain themes. "She's the artist and what she did are works of art, there's no doubt about that."

Brenda Rose started her unique tile-designing business full-time 10 years ago in Olema, Calif., after working in various art forms without much financial success.

"I couldn't sell my paintings and there was a lot of building going on at the time, so I thought I'd try painting on tile. It took off."

She was first commissioned to do work in homes in Inverness and Point Reyes and then branched out to the rest of Marin County and to San Francisco. For the past two years, she has built a reputation and a growing customer list out of her one-woman studio in downtown Stinson Beach.

Brenda Rose also accepts custom orders from out of state, creating the requested designs on murals made with individual tiles ranging from 3- to 8-inches square.

There are others who decorate tiles, but Brenda Rose said her creations are one-of-a-kind specialty items that she creates, glazes and fires in a kiln within her studio-shop.

"A lot of people do it, but it's the style that counts," she said. "My style is Brenda Rose. I really believe I'm the best. Other artists come in and can't believe how far I've taken this particular art form."

To visitors passing through, she has a series of offerings on her shelves, a popular item being an unframed kingfisher at $18.50, framed in redwood $24.50. Each kingfisher she sells is different because she uses no mass production methods such silkscreening. Among other things, she also offers a framed Blue Heron over water using for 4-by-4-inch tiles and priced at $65 and a 6-by-6-inch tile with a seagull over green mountains framed for $30.

Tiles in general have become increasingly popular in the United States, according to New York's Italian Tile Center, a major U.S. distributor of ceramic tiles used on floors, walls and ceilings. However, a survey by the firm showed most buyers of the 800 million square feet sold in the United States last year preferred conservative colors and styles with the prevalent use being in bathroom showers and over sinks.

There are also mass-produced decorative tiles, but only a limited number of these "designer tile" lines are available to choose from and they are generally repetitive in their textures and geometrics.

Brenda Rose considers her customized tile decorating as a way for people to "go an extra mile and put in personal touches" when redecorating or building a home. And, she enjoys being commissioned to do something special in a living space.

"With me, everything you get is one of a kind — each tile is hand-painted," she said.

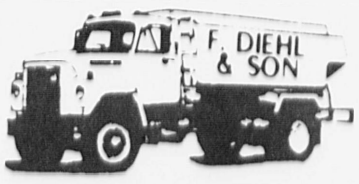

One project she undertook in Santa Cruz, Calif., was a shower jungle scene with parrots for which she charged $5,000. She also did a "stream scene" with ducks, deer and trees at another home that "literally told a little story," for $1,500.

Prices on such projects vary depending on intricacy, she said, with the average cost being between $60 and $120 per square foot in design fees. The tiles must then be installed by a craftsman.

"I've had 100 percent success with every client," she said. "I aim to please."

The benefits of window layering

By Debra Cooper
Copley News Service

Layering is one word we all know when it comes to fashion, but it's a term that should be added to our design vocabularies, as well. Combining several garments gives dressing versatility in any weather, and dressing a window for seasonal change is no different.

In winter, several coverings combined have more insulating power than the sum of the individual layers, since the air pockets created between them naturally trap heat. As warmer spring weather begins, those layers also lend protection from the heat of the sun.

Whether it's time to turn on the air conditioner or the thermostat, energy-efficient window treatments can account for a significant decrease in energy loss. In the summer, you can close draperies or blinds during the day to keep heat out of the room, and open them at night when temperatures cool down. On sunny winter days, they can be opened to let in heat and drawn at night to prevent warmth from escaping.

But window treatment style and color contribution to a room are as important as energy efficiency.

"The average home owner is concerned about energy efficiency but still wants a pretty, comfortable environment," said Barbara J. Cappelli, new product development manager at Burlington House Draperies. "When it comes to treating the window, draperies are the best bet. They offer good insulation and lend an aesthetic look, so fashion need not be sacrificed to function."

How you treat a window can vary widely, depending on the look you prefer. For instance, a semi-sheer curtain with a matching under panel is charmingly informal. A window shade combined with tie-back draperies is a highly efficient treatment with an elegant romantic effect. The high-tech look of vertical blinds and contemporary mood of woven woods can be softened and graced by the warmth of draperies.

Factors that determine drapery energy efficiency are panel width and length, drapery lining and fabric weight. According to Cappelli, extra full draperies are energy efficient and their rich softness well suits today's traditional decors. Wall-to-wall and floor-to-ceiling treatments are optimum because they create an effective barrier to seal windows. Lined draperies are preferable to unlined. Many manufacturers have developed thermal-back fabrics that add still more insulation. Heavy fabrics with a tight weave are best to maintain room temperature.

The effectiveness of any window treatment, however, depends on keeping heating and cooling sources clear so air can circulate around a room. Draperies, therefore, shouldn't cover an air conditioner, baseboard heater or central vent in the floor or wall. When a forced-air heating vent is in the floor directly beneath a window, the warmth can be redirected toward the room with an inexpensive, easy-to-install device called an air deflector.

Window accessories such as cornices with a closed top and fabric valances also help keep in warmth. Other heat-retentive techniques include installing three-sided solid lambrequin window frames or side-sealing drapery devices. And, of course, nothing can replace well-fitting storm windows.

It also pays to check around the window frame for cracks that might be letting in air from the outside. Caulking is an easy solution to this problem. If the window sash doesn't tightly meet the sill, use weather strip or a decorative draft guard to seal off the gap. With these easy energy-saving measures, your windows can help control the temperature, keep energy bills down and look their best year-round.

Tips on caring for furniture

By United Press International

Fingerprints, spilled drinks and two-year-olds with crayons are enough to send chills up the spine of anyone who has just spent big bucks for a new coffee table or inherited grandma's beautiful antique dresser.

The downside of owning any good piece of furniture is taking care of it, and many people are intimidated by the prospect. To keep your furniture looking good, the consumer services center of Johnson Wax offers the following tips:

— Always dust furniture with a polish-moistened cloth. Household dust contains tiny particles of fiber, earth and silica that can scratch fine finishes. Polish cushions the cloth and eliminates scratching.

— Arrange furniture so it is not in the direct path of the sun's rays. Prolonged exposure to ultraviolet rays from the sun can cause a chemical change in the finish, resulting in fine, hairline cracks. Depending on the type of finish or wood, sun can also bleach dark furniture or cause light furniture to darken.

— Try to avoid exposing furniture to extreme or constant changes in humidity or temperature. Wood shrinks when exposed to a combination of low humidity and temperature and swells when its environment is hot and humid. This subtle expansion and contraction can cause swollen joints, hairline cracks, blistering or buckling in the finish or warping of furniture sections such as drawers or legs. Using humidifiers or dehumidifiers, keep the moisture content of the air at between 30 percent and 55 percent and maintain temperature at 60 to 80 degrees.

— Spilled liquids should be removed promptly. If liquids remain on the surface long enough, they may penetrate or remove the finish or stain or raise the grain on the wood itself.

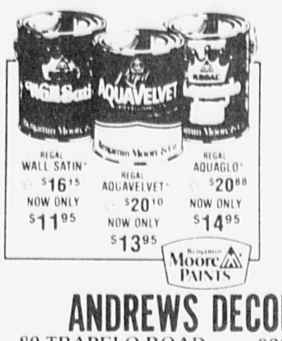

— Soap and water cleaning is never good for wood furniture. It can leave a hazy film if not rinsed well and generally is not thorough enough to clean the greasy soil found on furniture.

— Forget what you've heard about polish buildup. Furniture polishes are self-removing. Each time it is applied correctly, the cleaners in polish remove the thin layer from the last application along with any soil accumulation.

— Perspiration and body oils, when coupled with wear by daily use, may soften a finish an eventually wear it away. Headboards, chair arms and areas around drawer and door pulls need special attention with regular cleaning and polishing.

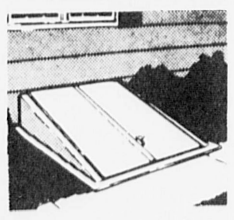

— Wooden furniture does not breathe or need feeding. Aside from the rare handcrafted, unsealed piece, most of today's furniture is sealed with several coats of laquer before it leaves the factory. The important thing is to protect that surface sealer or finish to prevent any cracks or scratches in it that will allow dirt or liquids to penetrate the wood itself.

Paula and Robert Rhodes

Paula M. McCarthy weds Robert Everett Rhodes

Mr. and Mrs. John J. McCarthy of West Newton and Hull announce the marriage of their daughter, Paula Mary, to Robert Everett Rhodes, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Everett Rhodes of Millbury and Dennisport.

The couple were wed on April 28 at St. Bernard's Church in West Newton by Father Stephen Josoma. A reception followed at Woodland Country Club, West Newton.

The bride's maid of honor was Janet M. McCarthy, of Watertown, sister of the bride, of Watertown. Bridesmaids were Marylou Sullivan, of Waltham, sister of the bride; Joanne A. McCarthy, of West Newton, sister of the bride; and Cindy E. McElhinney, of Waltham.

The bridegroom was attended by Les St. George, of South Yarmouth; Paul Pappas, of Holliston; Matthew Speight, of Brewster; and Michael Trainor, of Dennis.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore her mother's ivory satin wedding gown trimmed with lace. She also wore a fingertip-length illusion veil attached to a satin bridal hat, accented with matching lace. She carried a bouquet of silk roses, blue Peruvian lillies, stephanotis and baby's breath.

The bride graduated from Newton North High School and graduated cum laude from Boston College. She is currently employed by IBM in Boston.

The bridegroom graduated from Millbury High School. He is the owner of Rands Building Company.

After a wedding trip to Hawaii, the couple will reside in Dennisport.

Robert F. and Jeanne M. Rogers

Rogers celebrate 25th anniversary

Robert F. and Jeanne M. (O'Neill) Rogers, 20 Washburn St., celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary June 11 at The Cove in Auburndale. The couple were married in 1960 at St. Augustine's Church, South Boston, by Rev. Cyril Toland.

Frank, a Newton firefighter for the past 19 years, was born in Newton and attended St. Bernard's and Newton High School. Jeanne was born in Boston and attended Our Lady's and South Boston High School.

Frank is a member of the American Legion Post 440 — Firefighters International, and his wife is affiliated with the Guild of St. Irene and the Mt. Alvernia Club.

The Rogers have three children, Robert Francis of Laural Bay, South Carolina; Jeanne Michele of Newton and Mary Kristine of Newton. In addition, they have one grandchild, Kimberly Anne.

Frederick Rogers was the only guest attending the anniversary celebration who was in the Rogers' wedding party.

Out-of-town guests included Bobby and Kimberly Rogers from Laural Bay, South Carolina. Other guests were from Buzzards Bay, N.H., Boston, Newton, Waltham, and Bernardston.

N.E. Villages committee installs directors

Women's Committee of New England Villages installed its 1985-86 slate of officers and directors at the organization's annual meeting held recently at the Pillar House, Newton.

Highlighting the annual meeting was the announcement of NBC-TV newsman Tom Brokaw as guest speaker for Women's Committee's Anniversary Luncheon scheduled for Nov.7 at the Sheraton Boston Hotel. The announcement was made by Luncheon Chairman Eileen Darman of Sharon. The Fall fund-raisers, which include a Program Book chaired this year by Shirley Sheingold of Newton, have raised more than $1 milllion in support of the first New England Village in Pembroke over the past 15 years.

Following luncheon, the officers and board of directors were installed by Past President Shirley Abrams. Lois Sallen of Sharon was meeting chairman.

Terri Bersch plans to wed Mr. Margolis of Newton

Mr. and Mrs. David Bersch of Newton, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Terri, to Michael Margolis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jon Margolis, of Newton.

Ms. Bersch is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst where she received a bachelors degree in business administration. She is employed by United Bank & Trust of Hartford, Conn.

Mr. Margolis is also a graduate of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst where he received a degree in manufacturing engineering. He is employed by Pratt & Whitney of Hartford, Conn.

A June 1986 wedding is planned.

Joyce and Frank Kozol

Joyce Liberfarb is married to Frank Kozol of Sharon

The Congregation Mishkan Tefila in Newton was the setting for the recent marriage of Joyce Susan Liberfarb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Liberfarb of Newton Centre to Mark Kozol, son of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Kozol of Sharon.

The bride, a graduate of the University of Rhode Island, is presently completing a masters degree at Boston University. She is employed as a visiting nurse with the South Shore Visiting Nurses Association of Braintree. The groom, a graduate of Brandeis University, received his law degree from Boston College Law School and is associated with Kennedy & Lehan of Quincy.

Following a west coast wedding trip, the couple will reside in Quincy.

Jong to speak at Na'amat lunch

Erica Jong, author of the best sellers, "Fear of Flying" and "Parachutes and Kisses," will be one of the four top-selling authors to speak at Pioneer Women/Na'amat's Authors Luncheon to be held on Oct. 23 at the Park Plaza, Boston. Jong has the distinction of not only being a novelist and poet, but a social critic and writer concerned with satire, Jewishness and women's independence. Her first book, "Fear of Flying," was hailed as a breakthrough by Henry Miller and John Updike and became one of the top 10 best sellers. "Parachutes and Kisses," her latest book and best seller, was a Literary Guild selection and was excerpted in Cosmopolitan magazine. Joyce Kulhawik, co-anchor of WBZ-TV's "Live on Four" and Arts and Entertainment Reporter on WBZ-TV's "Nightcast," will be the moderator at the Authors Luncheon. Reservations are now being taken for this event. Please call 731-8378.

Writer to address church

NEWTON — The Women's Association of the United Church of Christ in Newtonville will convene on Oct. 2 for a luncheon and a program, presented by Rushworth Kidder, columnist of The Christian Science Monitor, entitled, "Television in America: For Better or For Worse."

Chairwomen for the luncheon are as follows: Mesdames Swainson, Yeranian, and Hassell. Reservations may be made with Louise Lutz.

Kidder, who writes the weekly "Perspectives" column on social issues and trends, recently returned to full-time writing after several years as feature editor. A native New Englander, he joined the Monitor as London correspondent in 1979, returning to Boston to write the weekly "Boston" column from 1981 to 1983.

Before joining the paper, Kidder spent 10 years as a professor of English at Wichita State University in Wichita, Kan. A graduate of Amherst College, he holds a Ph.D. from Columbia University in English and comparative literature.

He is the author of two books: Dylan Thomas: The Country of the Spirit (1973) and E. E. Cummings: An Introduction to the Poetry (which won the 1980 Explicator Literary Foundation Award). Two of his Monitor essays appear in the American Society of Newspaper Editors' "Best Newspaper Writing, 1983," and this year he received an award in the "Best Columnist" category from the New England Women's Press Association.

Fields' art on display

Ruth Fields' abstract, mixed-media drawings and other works will be shown at Chapel Gallery in West Newton through Oct. 27. The public is invited to a reception for the artist on Sunday, Oct. 6, from 3 to 6 p.m.

Chapel Gallery is located in the former Youth Chapel of The Second Church in Newton at 60 Highland St., West Newton. The gallery is open Thursday through Sunday, 1-4 p.m. in conjuncton with events at the church and by appointment. For further information, please call 332-7782 or 244-4039.

Health fair on Common

In conjunction with Tufts Associated Health Plan, the local hospitals are participating in a Columbus Day Race for Women left void by Bonne Bell. The Boston tradition has been re-named the Tufts 10K for Women and will be held Oct. 14 at noon at Boston Common.

The day begins at 10 a.m. with the Health Fair, an informative celebration of eight tents from area hospital on the common. Each tent will promote a different aspect of health, from cardiac rehabilitation to nutrition exhibits.

Fetishes, masks, and relics

NEWTON — The Newton Arts Center's 1985-86 Exhibition Series begins Friday, Oct. 11, from 6 to 9 p.m. with "Fetishes, Masks, and Relics." This group show, composed of works by Paul Bowen, Raymond Elman, and James Hansen, will run through Nov. 3.

All three artists use objects from ancient civilizations as inspiration for their work. Bowen combines and manipulates found objects to create works reminiscent of medieval weapons and objects.

"Urban Masks," a series of 6x5-foot paintings by Elman, were inspired by masks of certain primitive cultures. The imagery explores the seemingly eternal need of humans to decorate their bodies.

Using a variety of symbols and signs reflecting his interest in primitive work, Hansen's art talks about struggle: the struggle between good and evil, love and hate, faith and fear. The gallery at the Newton Arts Center, 61 Washington Park, Newtonville, is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m. For more information, call 924-3424.

BC conference

'Defining New Boston'

NEWTON — The post-World War II growth and development of the City of Boston will be the focus of a two-day conference, "Defining the New Boston: Boston Since 1945" to be held Oct. 4 and 5 at Boston College.

Sponsored by the BC Institute for Boston Studies, the event will feature former Massachusetts state representative and Boston mayoral candidate Mel King as luncheon speaker Oct. 5.

Notable among the conference topics will be a look back at the "Boston Citizen Seminars: After Thirty Years." Semi-annually for three decades, Boston College has brought together Boston's political, economic and civic leaders to offer their unique perspectives on contemporary issues ranging from harbor cleanups to the state of the city's schools, coffers and general health.

BC History Professor Thomas O'Connor, author of several Boston histories and currently presidential appointee to the Commission on the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution, will chair this retrospective on the past three decades of citizen participation.

The gathering of civic and academic experts, including Boston College faculty members, will also examine other aspects of "The New Boston," including:

Its People - Boston's new immigrants, the development of its black community and post-World War II race relations;

Its Politics - The new Hispanic electorate, public education and desegregation and black politics in the city after 1945;

Its Economy - From the current economic base to the trend toward suburbanization; also women's role in family/city economy;

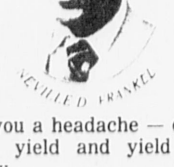

Its Organization - Issues faced by organized labor in the post-industrial economy (including racial and ethnic diversity), public housing and the tenant's movement, women (and black women in particular) as community activists, neighborhoods and urban renewal, the changing white collar workforce; and

Its Visual Arts - How has the picture changed?

The conference is funded in part by the Massachusetts Foundation for the Humanities and Public Policy and the Lowell Institute; program sessions are free and open to the public. For more information, contact Sharlene Voogd Cochrane, director, BC Institute for Boston Studies, at 552-8458.

Computing yields

MONEY TALK$

Neville Frankel is Vice President of Financial Planning Associates Inc., a Boston and New York affiliate of Confidential Planning Network, an international network of more than 120 financial planning firms. Direct questions to Frankel, care of this publication.

Dear Mr. Frankel:

I invest in short-term Treasury bills. When they mature my broker ploughs the proceeds back into new Treasuries. When I sat down to calculate my return over the last year, I discovered that no matter how I manipulate the figures the percentage interest that was supposed to be paid to me does not agree with the dollar amount in my account. The broker's accounting department insists that I'm using the wrong yield calculation. Please explain.

R.C., Waban

Dear R.C.:

It sounds as if you and your broker are defining "yield" differently, and calculating the yield on any investment can be tricky because there are so many variations on the theme.

There is the rapid, noisy yield of a stuck door to a swift kick; there is the kind of sensuous yield described in repetitive detail in romantic novels; and there is that popular favorite — of which we all know something — the yield to temptation. Of course, there is also the farmer's yield per acre which, when it is too high, he ploughs back into the ground like your broker does when your Treasury notes mature.

Investment lingo has its own family of yields. Among others, there is nominal yield and current yield. In addition there are the two I believe are giving you a headache — discounted yield and yield to maturity.

Assume you were to purchase a conventional bond with a face value of $1,000, which would yield 10 percent and mature in one year. Such a bond would cost you $1,000, and at maturity you would redeem it for its face value ($1,000), plus interest ($100) for a total yield to maturity of 10 percent.

Treasury securities, however, are purchased at a discount, and are redeemed at face value. If the above bond were a Treasury security, it would cost you $900 ($1,000 minus 10 percent) and you would redeem it for its face value of $1,000. Your discounted yield would be 10 percent (that is, 10 percent of face value).

However, you would actually be receiving $1,000 on an initial investment of $900 — which, defined as a yield to maturity, is really 11.1 percent.

According to Robert Swain, assistant vice president of the Fiscal Agency Department at the Federal Reserve Bank, they are equally valid measures, although discounted yield is more commonly valid.

The importance of the yield to maturity is that it provides a better comparative measure. And it's also known as the investment yield reflecting the return on your investment, which is really what you are interested in knowing.

Ward 8

William Shaevel

Goal: Elderly housing for middle class people

By Howard Altman
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Uncontested candidate for Ward 8 Alderman William Shaevel says he is glad he won't have to ask his friends to help him the way they did during his victory during June's special election.

Shaevel, an attorney, lives in Oak Hill with his wife Eileen. They have two children, Karyn, 22 and Jennifer, 11. The 44-year-old Shaevel is a member of the Oak Hill Park Association, Temple Beth Avodah, an Incorporator of the Newton Girls Softball League, Coach for Girls Soccer, former member of the Newton Economic Development Commission, member of B'nai B'rith, member of the Newton Conservators, member of the Massachusetts Civil Liberties Union, Treasurer of the Newton Democratic City Committee, Vice Chair of the Ward 8 Democratic Committee and a member of Memorial Spaulding PTA.

Q: How do you feel about your uncontested status?

A: After coming off of a four-way election in June, which was very, very intense, I breathed a sigh of relief at not having to ask my friends and supporters to put in an equal amount of time and effort.

Q: What one goal do you have for the upcoming term?

A: First, what I would say is the primary concern of almost all the aldermen, is to refine the current zoning code so it will restore the confidence of the residents that the zoning code can control growth and development so as not to change the predominantly residential character of the city. Also, I want to find a way to get some affordable elderly housing for middle-class people.

Q: Should aldermen and the School Committee be paid, and if so, how much?

A: Yes, they should both be paid. I feel it is a major time commitment and there are a number of expenses with it. Although you don't run for the compensation, it does assist and, more importantly, it allows the board to have a wider economic representation.

Q: Should there be a moratorium on commercial construction until zoning laws are revised?

A: I serve on the Zoning Review Committee (ZRC). I first favored a short-term, three-month moratorium to revise the codes, and I see that being done. If that is done, I see the need for a moratorium to be obviated. If the ZRC is not successful, I would re-look at my position.

Q: Does the city need a new library, and if so, where should it be located?

A: The city does need a new library. It's important for cultural reasons as well as for the perception of the city. I'm in favor of finding the financial mechanism that would not create a tax burden, and the location should be at Homer and Walnut. It's centralized and the by-product will create more citizen use of the whole site, creating a city center.

Creem stresses her land use expertise

By Howard Altman
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Cynthia Creem says she is glad her opponents think she is doing a good job and are not challenging her in her bid for a fourth term as Ward 8 Alderman-at-Large.

Creem, 42, lives in Oak Hill with her husband, Harvey, and two children, daughter Stacey, 18, and son Gary, 15.

Creem is an attorney and member and past president of the Oak Hill Park Association, member of the Massachusetts Bar Association, board member of the Bench and Bar News, Chairman of the aldermanic Land Use Committee, member of Temple Beth Avodah and member of Women's Division Combined Jewish Philanthropies.

Q: How do you feel about your uncontested status?

A: I feel pleased that my constituents thought I did a good enough job that they didn't oppose me. I hope that was the reason rather than apathy.

Q: What one goal do you have for the upcoming term?

A: I've enjoyed being chairman of Land Use, and I think there is still a lot of work to be done on revamping zoning ordinances, and the Land Use Committee will be dealing with that. I'm making recommendations for ordinance changes.

Q: Should aldermen and School Committee members be paid, and if so, how much?

A: I think that the aldermen should be paid a token. I would leave the status quo. School Committee members should be paid the same token also.

Q: Should there be a moratorium on commercial construction until zoning laws are revised?

A: I did not support the moratorium, but I do support putting it on the ballot. I feel that we are in the process of going over zoning ordinances and making changes, and I feel that will alleviate some of the concerns that the moratorium people have voiced. I think the moratorium as an issue has been a very helpful one because, as a result of that, we set up a committee to set up ordinances and it has been the impetus of that kind of approach.

Q: Does the city need a new library, and if so, where should it be located?

A: I think it does and I think it should be at Homer and Walnut. I think the board should support the recommendation from the library committee. I feel very stongly that a lot of people put in a lot of time and gave a lot of effort into working on that proposal. I think it would be unfair for us to not go forward on that if we really want a new library.

Wendell Bauckman

Favors eight month building moratorium

By Howard Altman
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Wendell Bauckman will begin his 21st term as Ward 8 Alderman-at-Large in January. The 47-year-old Bauckman is running uncontested.

Retired from the tanning business, Bauckman lives in Oak Hill with his wife, Edna. They have two children, Richard, 45 and Theodore, 43. Bauckman is a member of the Oak Hill District Improvement Association, past Master of the Dalhousie Lodge, Republican City Committee, Ward 8 Republican Committee and the Boy Scouts of America.

Q: How do you feel about your uncontested status?

A: It is comforting to know you don't have to get into campaigning, although I think the city would be richer politically if there were more contests. I'd hate to think our people were indifferent to what is happening and too comfortable with the results.

Q: What one goal do you have for the upcoming term?

A: To maintain our excellence in legislation through good and proper decisions.

Q: Should aldermen and School Committee members be paid, and if so, how much?

A: I served for about 15 terms without being paid. I feel that the city is wealthy with material, suitable therefore to serve without compensation as they did for over 100 years.

Q: Should there be a moratorium on commercial construction until zoning laws are revised?

A: I would favor a moratorium of six to eight months to enable the various committees to make a determination with reference to zoning corrections if necessary.

Q: Does the city need a new library, and if so, where should it be located?

A: Everyone is in favor of a new library. I'm opposed to the Homer and Walnut location, except as a last resort. The city has been acquiring open space for many years, and the most beautiful acquisition ever made was at the corner of Homer and Walnut. We have many other suitable spots, however the predetermination has decided that Homer and Walnut should be the site.

School committee:

Segelman stresses safety

By John Moroney
Staff Writer

Allyn Segelman

NEWTON — Allyn E. Segelman — one of two candidates running for the Ward 8 School Committee seat — believes the committee needs to address the health and safety issues of the city's school children during its coming season. These issues, he continued, "aren't being dealt with effectively enough by the current School Committee."

A practicing dentist and four-year resident of the Garden City, Segelman believes the safety issues which need to be addressed by the committee include seat belts in school buses, security at the city's schools and student exposure to lead and asbestos.

"The current school system programs do not provide enough adequate safety measures for the school children," he said.

Segelman also believes the committee should focus its attention on the "usual" issues which come up every year such as teacher contractors.

An assistant clincal professor of oral and maxillofacial surgery at Tufts University School of Dental Medicine where he received his degree in dentistry, Segelman has two children — Tovah and Rayne. Tovah is a first grader at the Memorial Spaulding School while Rayne is not yet of school age.

His community involvement includes membership on the PTA Board of Directors at Congregation Mishkan Tefila and chairmanship of Memorial Spaulding PTA's health and safety committee. Segelman is also a gubernatorial appointee to the special commission which is studying the mandatory use of seat belts on school buses.

He found his way onto the special commission through his chairmanship of the School Bus Safety Committee of the Massachusetts Society of Oral and Maxillofacial Surgeons.

A resident of Harwich Road, Segelman believes the decisions by the School Committee to close a number of schools were not "done in the most equitable fashion." The problems of overcrowding at the receiver schools could have been avoided had a "different mechanism been chosen."

The only comment he made with regards to stipends for School Committee members was to say that he was in favor of them.

As far as limiting the number of terms a committee member could serve, Segelman was in favor of the idea. "I think it is good to have new ideas on the committee," he said.

Ricles aims to maintain high teacher morale

By John Moroney
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Robert E. Ricles — one of two candidates for the School Committee seat from Ward 8 — believes if a community member possesses certain skills and talents, they should be devoted to the city's general welfare. "I believe I have those skills," the three-time School Committee representative from Ward 8 said.

Ricles has been a resident of Parker Road for 18 years and received a bachelor's degree in areonautical engineering from Georgia Tech. He is employed as the chief operating officer for IVS Graphics.

His contributions to the community include president of the Simons/Gutman Fund, chairman of the Democratic Committee in Ward 8 and School Committee appointee to the city's Design and Review Committee, Newton Schools Foundation and Edco Program.

Ricles has two goals for this year's School Committee. "The biggest one is trying to keep the morale of the staff high, which will provide good learning for the kids," he said. That can be achieved by an "early settlement of the contract."

The second is the implementation of Chapter 188, more commonly refer to as the education reform bill. "There could be some problems," Ricles said. "You get different answers depending on which meeting you go to about the substance of the law."

Ricles stressed that if there's one thing the city should not have any more problems with, it's school closings. "They're probably one of the most difficult things we're called upon to do," he said. "But they were necessary at the time — both educationally and financially."

Robert Ricles

Ricles is not concerned he will have to face school consolidations as a School Committee member. If elected, it will be his last term with the eight-member board, and the possibility of the city having to close additional schools between now and then is small, he said.

With regards to the question of limiting School Committee terms, Ricles said he "didn't have a problem with it," but that there have been marvelous representatives who spent 20 years on the committee. He offered the solution of "staggered terms" to ensure a committee with experience.

Ricles said, unlike the majority of his colleagues, he is opposed to paying School Committee members for their service. "It works out to about $50,000 a year," he said, which could be spent on programs for the students.

In addition, the old argument that stipends encourage candidates to run for office is incorrect, he said, pointing out that only four School Committee seats were being contested. One of the uncontested seats, he added, will be filled by somebody who has never been on the committee before.

Bryson forum

NEWTON — The Newton Ward 4 Republican Committee will host a question-and-answer forum with Polly Bryson, Ward 4 Aldermanic candidate. The meeting is scheduled for Oct. 9 at 7:45 p.m. at the United Parish of Auburndale, lower level, 64 Hancock St., Auburndale (corner of Hancock and Woodland Roads). All Ward 4 Republicans are invited. For further information, call 965-6054.

Government mpg cuts will save jobs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government announced Tuesday it has cut the federal economy fuel standard for 1986 passenger car models to 26 miles per gallon to save thousands of jobs in the U.S. auto industry.

It was the first time the government had eased mileage requirements for cars since they were imposed during the energy crisis.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, a unit of the Transportation Department, said it had cut the standard for corporate average fuel economy — CAFE — from 27.5 mpg because it would have led to higher unemployment in domestic automobile manufacturing.

The Commerce Department estimated earlier that 110,000 auto industry and related jobs would be lost without the change in the standard.

The federal agency said General Motors and Ford had made substantial progress toward achieving the 27.5 mpg standard that had been set for 1986 cars. But it said the two automakers were unable to meet the higher standard because of increased consumer demand for larger cars that consume more fuel.

To meet the 27.5 mpg level, GM and Ford would have had to restrict production of less fuel efficient automobiles and that would have meant the loss of jobs at their factories, the agency said.

Chrysler Corp. invested hundreds of millions of dollars in manufacturing changes to meet the higher standard, prompting chairman Lee A. Iacocca to say earlier this year, "We were pretty damn stupid ... to meet the law."

Both GM and Ford welcomed the lower standard Tuesday.

"NHTSA's action to adjust the 1986 fuel economy standard is encouraging and in keeping with the requirements in both the law and the real world," GM said in a statement. "A similar adjustment of the standard for future model years is equally important."

The nation's No. 1 automaker said when Congress passed the law it "wisely provided that, if conditions changed, NHTSA could make this kind of adjustment. Conditions have changed. Gasoline prices have gone down, not up, as anticipated, and consumers are buying cars to meet family and other needs."

Ford said, "The decision to set the 1986 CAFE standard for cars at 26 mpg is good public policy and reflects today's conditions. The prior standard was out of line regarding customer demand and if unchanged would have disrupted automobile production and threatened jobs while contributing very little if anything to petroleum conservation."

The federal agency also said it is considering petitions for changes in the standard for model year 1987 and subsequent years.

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The city's historic streetcar line, immortalized by playwright Tennessee Williams, celebrated its 150th anniversary with parties, jazz parades and free rides.

The St. Charles Avenue line, the oldest continually operating streetcar system in the world, is one of three national historic moving landmarks, along with New Orleans' Delta Queen steamship and San Francisco's cable cars, according to Cynthia Reeves, one of the organizers of the sesquicentennial celebration.

The streetcars, which once rattled over 225 miles of track in New Orleans, have been dragged by mules, pulled by men with heavy ropes and powered by ammonia, steam and electricity through the years.

The system began service Sept. 26, 1835, sharing the street with horse-drawn carriages, drays and pedestrians. It was restricted to 4 mph within the city, and its steam locomotives were criticized for spewing sparks onto ladies' dresses.

By the end of the Civil War, the streetcar system was nearly bankrupt and was leased for 25 years to a group headed by Confederate Army Gen. P.G.T. Beauregard, who devised an overhead cable for pulling the cars.

Beauregard's experiment was a failure but was to be used a century later on electric trolleys and streetcar systems around the world.

The streetcars switched to electricity in 1893 and reached their heyday in the 1920s, when the fare was dropped by a penny to seven cents and nearly five dozen lines criss-crossed the city.

The dark green cars were immortalized in 1947 in Williams' "A Streetcar Named Desire," in which the cars became brooding symbols of human destiny. By then, tourists were extolling the charms of cars lurching along Desire Street and other famous thoroughfares.

The St. Charles line is the only surviving route, running daily on 13.2 miles of track from downtown New Orleans through the mansions of the Garden District, past Tulane and Loyola universities to the Uptown shopping area.

There are 35 streetcars that make 104 passenger stops, serving nearly 6.4 million riders a year. Officials say tourists make up only about 5 percent of the passenger total. Most riders are regular commuters.

"Kids ride it to school. Housekeepers ride it to work. People take it downtown to work," Reeves said.

Regional Transit Authority officials say the surviving streetcars, built in 1923, are cheaper to operate than diesel-powered city buses — 28 cents a mile compared to 34 cents.

They also carry more people than buses and last five times longer, Reeves said.

Streetcars have taken on added duties in recent years, hosting birthdays, anniversary parties and weddings. Decorated with banners, placards and bunting, the 42,000-pound cars become parties on wheels.

The transit authority promised free rides on the St. Charles streetcars during the day Saturday and planned an evening streetcar parade along the tree-lined boulevard to celebrate the anniversary.

The Greater New Orleans Arts Council arranged an 1830s festival in Lafayette Square with people dressed in period costumes, street entertainers, food, drink and music. Festivals also were planned elsewhere along the route, with jazz bands scheduled to play and food pavillions offering oysters and jambalaya.

A group of businessmen and community leaders has discussed starting a new streetcar line along the Mississippi River, connecting the city's main tourist attractions.

"The future of the line looks very good. We really feel things are looking up," Reeves said, looking ahead to the streetcar system's bicentennial in the year 2035. "If I'm still ambulatory at that time, I'll be out there."

The 'secret' Faversham

FAVERSHAM, England (UPI) — There is no such thing as "unknown" England, but even a compact country whose every inch is charted and described can hide secret places. One of these is Faversham.

"We seem to get missed a lot," said Ken Rogers, president of the chamber of commerce. It's true, and it's a shame.

Englishmen know Faversham mainly as the scene of a 435-year-old murder immortalized in a Shakespeare-era play. But it is also a living sample book of ancient architecture.

Along the whole of Abbey street hardly a single house is less than 400 years old. Pedestrianized West and Court streets are lined with buildings from the 15th to 18th centuries which would be showplaces anywhere else. Here, they're in everyday use by old-fashioned butchers, grocers and candy makers serving Faversham's 15,000 residents.

For this is a town that is not a fossilized museum, but a thriving, friendly community preserving much of its 2,000-year past.

"Some towns have taken great pains to obliterate their links to the past," says an introductory slide show in Faversham's admirable heritage and information center. "Some, through neglect, let the past simply decay.

"Faversham has cherished its heritage. But it is no mere relic of the past. The present is in no way divorced from the past, but rather grows from it."

What this means is that, at least since the Middle Ages, Faversham has changed as a human being changes — gradually, slowly, preserving warts and all.

It is not a pretty-pretty town. Not all of it is travel-poster picturesque. It's industrial, as it always was, and industry is embedded in it like chocolate chips in a cookie. A huge brewery snuggles next to a 900-year-old church.

Warehouses built 600 years ago are still in use. The town council has owned one building ever since it was built in 1450. Faversham once was a famous port, and even now masts of sailing barges loom from its tidal creek. On the lovely market place in a 1275 building is a pharmacy which has been a pharmacy for 200 years.

In 1533 one Henry Hatch, a "merchant adventurer" — meaning pirate — left money to the town, and 452 years later the "Hatch charity" still dispenses grants for roads and the parish church. Hatch's loot-holding sea chest, also bequeathed to the town, is still in the heritage center.

There's a continuity even in Faversham's famous murder, the 1551 killing of one-time mayor Thomas Arden by his wife and her lover. It survives in the anonymous play "Arden of Faversham," first performed in 1592. But it lives, too, in Faversham buildings.

Arden's house is still a private house, a gorgeous three-story corner mansion of stone and half-timbering. On rare open days its owner points out the spot where the murder was done. The pub where the murder plot was hatched is the heritage center now.

Faversham is only 65 minutes from London by fast train, but its location conspires to keep it secret. The superhighway to English Channel ferry ports zips past the southern outskirts. Rochester is on one side, Canterbury on the other.

"We're not on the road to anywhere," said Christine Rayner, editor of the Faversham Times. "You have to turn off to find us, and not enough do."

"It's a beautiful little town, but it's between things," Rogers said. "It seems to be Canterbury that they're going to, and we miss out."

Favrersham does its best for those who do find it. Its Fleur de Lis heritage center is so informative it is easy to spend hours there learning about the town. There is no proper hotel, but the heritage center has lists of bed-and-breakfast accomodations.

In this hop-growing region, two breweries fill the air with the smell of malt and hops. Probably because of them there's one pub for every 425 men, women and children. Most are ancient — the Bull is 14th century, the Castle Inn dates from 1450 and several are Tudor-era timbered buildings.

Although its first charter dates from 811 A.D., Faversham wears its long history lightly. Its age-old houses are still homes. One beautiful 13th century building is now unobtrusively owned by Bob Geldof of "Live Aid."

But nothing seems to be forgotten, especially past extravagance. A plaque on a charity shop recalls a 1576 dinner given on that spot to Queen Elizabeth I.

"The supper to the Queen," it notes tartly, "cost 27 pounds 2 shillings, equivalent to 460 pounds now" and a fortune at the time.

"For 400 years," notes the heritage center, the gunpowder industry "made a major contribution to the town's prosperity." But its blessing was mixed — gunpowder factories blew up in 1767, 1781, 1846, 1896 and, the final straw when more than 100 people were killed, in 1916.

"We do what we can to tell people about this beautiful place," Rogers said. "We do get people from Europe — Dutch, Germans, quite a few French. But Americans? Not a lot."

He and fellow businessmen are now distributing car stickers calling Faversham "the medieval gem of Kent." A bit strong, perhaps, but close enough for a secret place.

New weight loss plan for overweight teens

By John Moroney
Staff Writer

NEWTON — It has become one of the great American pastimes: get off the school bus after a hard day at school, sit in front of the television for three hours and consume mountains of potato chips, ice cream and candy until dinner is ready.

The results are school hallways crowded with overweight adolescents who feel lonely, frustrated and are developing poor eating habits for life-long weight control.

Starting next month, the Newton Public Schools Division of Continuing Education will offer a five-week adolescent weight loss plan for overweight teens between the ages of 10 and 17.

"When I was a kid I weighed 240 lbs," Alan Caplan of the continuing education division said. "So, I know how some of these kids feel about being overweight." Caplan — who now says he weighs about 160 lbs — helped bring the program, "Forever Fit," to the city.

Through nutritional counseling and aerobics, the program will teach overweight teens the importance of developing good eating habits that will last them a lifetime. "It's a major problem in terms of long-term health care," Newton Dr. Jules Rako said.

Director of the program, Rako has spent three years in Stoughton conducting a similar program with some amazing results. During a three-month period, several overweight adolescents lost between 40 and 60 pounds. That weight loss doubled for some clients after the introduction of excercise into the program regiment, according Rako.

Rako picked aerobics as the excercise medium by which overweight adolescents could work off extra pounds without the fear of feeling out of place. A majority of overweight kids are "very clumsy," he said, and they feel uncomfortable with an excercise program that requires dexterity.

Rako said the program will be administered by a nutritionist, aerobics instructor and a behavorial psychologist. There will be five, three-week programs offered during the school year. Participants will meet three days a week on Monday, Wednesday and Friday for a total of 15 sessions. Each session will consist of: medical and nutritional assessments, aerobic excercises and weekly weigh-ins. The first 15 sessions will be offered at Newton North starting on Wed., Oct. 16 at 3:30 p.m. Subsequent sessions will be held at Brown and Day Junior High Schools. The cost of the program is $60 per person. For more information, contact the city's Division of Continuing education at 552-7461.

Library design gets green light

By Edward Cafasso, Staff Writer

NEWTON — The Board of Aldermen Monday night waded through some wild political manuevering to approve a $250,000 appropriation for the preliminary designs of a new main library at the corner of Homer and Walnut streets.

After more than two hours of debate, parlimentary gamesmanship and confusion, the board voted 18-4 with two absent in favor of Mayor Theodore D. Mann's funding request from the city's surplus building account.

The approval came after four aldermen agreed to kill a resolution they sponsored asking the full board to endorse the Homer/Walnut location.

"If there has been some grand strategy by either the opponents or proponents, it's gone totally over my head," Alderman Louis Irwin said in summing up the consensus view of the tactics that preceded the final vote.

Aldermen Wendell Bauckman, Richard Bullwinkle, Bruce Carmichael and Ron Marini voted against the appropriation. Aldermen Matthew Jefferson and an ailing Robert Tennant were absent from the tally.

The $250,000 will produce a detailed cost anaylsis of the project, site plans, architectural renderings, floor schemes, geological studies, and the likely traffic and parking impacts on the city hall area if the planned 76,600 square foot facility is erected on the four-acre parcel.

In short, a majority of aldermen believe the money will provide the final answers to any lingering concerns about the desirability and feasibility of a new library on the site.

Aldermen began the debate by considering the $250,000 request, but switched gears midway through when Alderman Paul Coletti suggested the Homer/Walnut resolution be taken first to initiate a dialogue on other potential library sites.

The board agreed to temporarily postpone discussion of the money item by a 13-9 vote, but only Coletti discussed alternative locations.

Alderman Rodney Barker rose to give the Human Services Committee's report on the resolution and then asked his colleagues to not take action on the item because a design study of Homer/Walnut

Next step for library

NEWTON — Two committees used to playing a behind-the-scenes role in city construction projects will now move to the forefront of the effort to design a new main library at the corner of Homer and Walnut streets.

The Design Review and Designer Selection committees will monitor every step of what may be a year-long process to produce preliminary architectural renderings, site plans and a detailed cost analysis for the library project, Building Commissioner James Cameron said yesterday.

Columbus is taking a beating

By Kevin C. Kennedy, News Editor

Pity poor Christopher Columbus. Plans are in the works, once again, to celebrate a day named after him, but the poor guy has been taking a beating ever since he set foot on American soil.

First off, when he got back to Spain and tried to convince the queen her jewels were not wasted on a bag of cocoa beans, some tobacco and some tall tales about "the land beyond the water" there was more than one elbow-in-the-ribs among his listeners.

Shortly thereafter, the lands Columbus allegedly unveiled to his European contemporaries were named after a mapmaker's signature in the corner of a map. The mapmaker, Amerigo Vespucci, had only peripheral involvement with Columbus' ventures.

Poor Columbus. For all his dreams of discovering a new route to Asia and meeting with "The Great Kahn," within a couple of years he was reduced to dealing in "human cargo," running captured Indians back to Europe as slaves. Having "discovered" the new world, Columbus thought he should be granted dominion over it; but his superiors thought his metier was that of an admiral not a governor.

He finally laid permanent claim to at least six feet of the New World after he died, when his body was sent to Hispaniola to be buried in Santo Domingo.

Recently, dozens of theories about who really "discovered" the Americas have sprung up. We have been regaled with legends of how St. Brendan, wandering west of Ireland in search of the absolute solitude he thought he needed to truly see God, stumbled across the North American coastline in a leather boat sometime in the ninth century.

Then there are the advocates of Lief Erickson and other leaders of Norse exploring parties who supposedly ran over to the North American continent during the tenth century the way we run down to the Star Market today.

For us who were grammar-schooled to believe Christopher Columbus, walking off the Santa Maria and planting the flag of Spain on some Caribbean beach, marked the birthday of the New World, it has been one shock after

'Capt. Kirk' beams up city Democrats

By Edward Cafasso, Staff Writer

WEST NEWTON — Paul G. Kirk, Jr., who rose from the grassroots of Ward 2 to become chairman of the national Democratic party, returned home last week to let it be known that the Democrats are "on the way back."

"The voices of the Democratic Party are pointing to the future," Kirk told an enthusiastic crowd of over 100 supporters. "The post-Reagan era is already here. The actor is leaving the stage."

"As Joe Louis used to say, 'They can run, but they can't hide,'" he warned those who "were swept into office on the coattails of personal popularity in 1980."

Hyde has not yet died

By Lauren McFalls, Assistant News Editor

NEWTON HIGHLANDS — The question of whether or not to close the Hyde School in Newton Highlands was resolved for most city residents when they voted down a referendum on the issue in the spring of 1984.

But faced with overcrowded conditions at Hyde receiver schools and ever-increasing amounts of city money spent on expanding them, many Highlands residents are now, more than ever, sure that the city made a big mistake when it closed Hyde.

"I haven't got an emotional thing about the issue," said resident Elizabeth Barker, explaining her continued interest in the topic. "I have an emotional attachment to logic. When I come to a problem, I like to look at the problem afresh and ask 'What possible solution could there be?'

When the city decided to close the school, it was faced with decreasing enrollments in the elementary schools, was financially strapped to close two schools and wondered what to do with one of two Hyde School buildings that was damaged by fire.

Now that these issues are resolved, the city faces new problems, said Barker, the wife of Alderman-at-Large Rodney Barker.

"Now the problem is overcrowding in five receiving schools. Now there's going to be $85,000 spent to add new classrooms on Mason-Rice," she said.

According to Barker, building additions onto schools is a "band aid solution" to the overcrowding problem.

Ward 4 race could affect entire board

By Edward Cafasso
Staff Writer

NEWTON — There are only five contested aldermanic races this year, but one of them could have a drastic impact on the way the Board of Aldermen conducts the city's business.

The pivotal tilt involves two candidates with somewhat identical community ties — incumbent Ward 4 Alderman and Board President Carol Ann Shea and challenger Polly Bryson.

At stake in the outcome is more than an aldermanic representive for residents in Auburndale and parts of West Newton.

The board president selects the chairmen and members of the numerous aldermanic committees, who, in turn, control the flow of items up for consideration by the full board.

The president, as presiding officer and chief parlimentarian at full board meetings, is also a deciding factor in the tenor of debate and decorum, two intangibles that play an important role in how the public views the effectiveness of its local legislature.

If Bryson defeats Shea, a leadership battle would be ignited among veteran board members during the aldermanic caucuses scheduled for December.

The outcome of that infighting could give the key posts in the state's largest municipal legislature an entirely new look because the vast majority of the current committee chairmen are Shea supporters.

Although Shea is "very optimistic" she will emerge victorious from her fray with Bryson, many of her aldermanic colleagues are privately expressing serious doubts about her chances.

One date with 'Gloria' to cost city $6 million

NEWTON — The Garden City's brief date with a deceptive lady named Gloria cost approximately $6 million, according to rough figures released late last week.

Preliminary damage estimates prepared by the city at the request of state Civil Defense officials show the hurricane destroyed $3 million worth of private property, $2 million worth of public property and cost the city about $1 million in wages and equipment fees.

"This impacts severely on our overall planning effort," Mayor Theodore D. Mann said. "We have to look at our budget again. Remember, we're not even in the winter storm season yet. We'll manage to survive, but we'll need to re-adjust our finances."

The administration must now decide "which pocket" the $3 million is going to come from, but it will be anywhere from "90 to 120 days" before a formal request is submitted to the Board of Aldermen, the mayor added.

"This is just top-of-the-head figuring. We need time to get a very clear picture of the bottom line, but we don't have any option but to spend the money," Mann said.

It is doubtful financial assistance from the federal government will be made available to reimburse all or a portion of the city's costs, Mann said.

Kenneth Horak, regional public affairs officer for the federal Emergency Management Agency, said it is up to Gov. Michael S. Dukakis to determine whether the cost of storm-related damages is too extensive for the state or individual communities to handle.

Dukakis can either apply directly to individual federal agencies for specific loans or grants, or he can ask President Ronald Reagan to another. We have listened skeptically to the tales of Columbus's alleged predecessors, wondering how someone could challenge one of the myths so basic to our own brand of civilization.

We have tried to hold our ground. After all, what are the basics? If Columbus did not really discover America, then what other erosion can we anticipate in the bedrock upon which this great nation is built?

We have found strange pleasure in watching one after another of the more recent anti-Columbus "discoveries" utterly debunked as hoaxes. The "Kensington rune stone," discovered in Minnesota in 1898 and purported to be a remnant of ancient Viking civilization was greeted with near unanimous derision and ultimately condemned as a prop to bolster the Viking discovery theory. After all, it was "discovered" by a man of Scandinavian descent.

"The Vinland map," touted as proof of early Viking discovery of this continent, was given an equally sound drubbing when it was discovered the ink used in its creation was of modern origin.

Perhaps the most outrageous of all the attempts to rip from Columbus the discoverer's mantle took place right here in Newton and is represented by the stone tower in the Norumbega area, across the Charles River from the Newton Marriott hotel. A plaque on the tower professes that, on that spot, Vikings created a viable colony early around the end of the first millenium. The colony, founded by Thorfinn Karlsefini in 1007, even had a bishop and all the trappings of a diocese in the tenth and eleventh centuries, according to the story on the plaque.

In a work called "The European Discovery of America," the noted Harvard historian Samuel Eliot Morison takes time out to punch some holes in the well-orchestrated Norumbega myth. According to Morison, the whole sham was perpetrated by a well-to-do Harvard professor, who, desperate to publish something of significance after decades of tenure, decided he had to make news if he were ever to be news.

According to Morison, Professor Eben Horsford spent a bundle on rearranging research data to back up his contention that an early colony of Vikings saw the beauties of the Norumbega area long before the Marriott Corporation decided to base one of its most successful operations there.

The two-story tower that survives is testimony to the man's determination, but he did not make a dent in the storehouse of popular opinion that still puts Christopher Columbus in the lead, on the rail, in the race for the New World.

Those diehards, many of them claiming the same European ancestry as Columbus, are in for a shock though if they can not dispute some data being passed on to us by a man named Charles Berlitz. A world-renowned linguist, he is the grandson of the founder of the Berlitz language schools.

In a book called "Native Tongues," Berlitz describes a number of linguistic oddities that seem to suggest that men and women were crossing the Atlantic Ocean many centuries before Columbus first sallied forth.

For instance, there is some reason to suspect the ancient Greeks and their contemporaries once roamed the Americas. The Delaware Indians called their river the Potomac. In Greek, the word for river is "potamos." Certain tribes of indians in South America also show traces of early involvement with ancient Greeks. Their word for river is "poti." Their word for home, "oko," bears certain similarities with the Greek word for home, "oika."

The name of the Andes Mountains suggests that area might once have been visited by some ancient Egyptians, for whom the word "andi" denoted "a high valley."

"Konex om panex," an invocation used in the celebration of the Greek religious mysteries, closely resembles an exorcism Mayan priests used for protection against strangers, "Konex onam panez."

Bolivian indians used the word "malku" for priest, while the Hebrews used "melekh" and the Arabs used "melek." In Mayan, the word for priest is "balaam," while in Hebrew "bileam" means magician.

Berlitz further contends that descendants of an historical expedition led by Prince Madoc of Wales in 1170 left a considerable linguistic heritage with the Mandan Indians, a light complected, blue-eyed tribe that roamed the environs of Missouri.

For the Mandan, "bara" meant bread, while, for the Welsh, the word was "barra." For the Mandan, "ma" meant great and "glas" meant blue. For the Welsh, the same words were "mawr" and "glas."

Brazil actually seems to have had a name already when the first Portuguese explorers "discovered" it. The word "Brzl," with the proper vowels added, meant "iron" in Hebrew, Phoenician and Aramaic, and it was used for centuries to refer to a land rich in iron lying somewhere across the Outer Sea.

But, disregarding theories that would have us believe there were traffic lights in the middle of the Atlantic Ocean to control the volume of explorers that preceded Columbus by hundreds of years, there is good reason for his supporters to hang on to his being a hero.

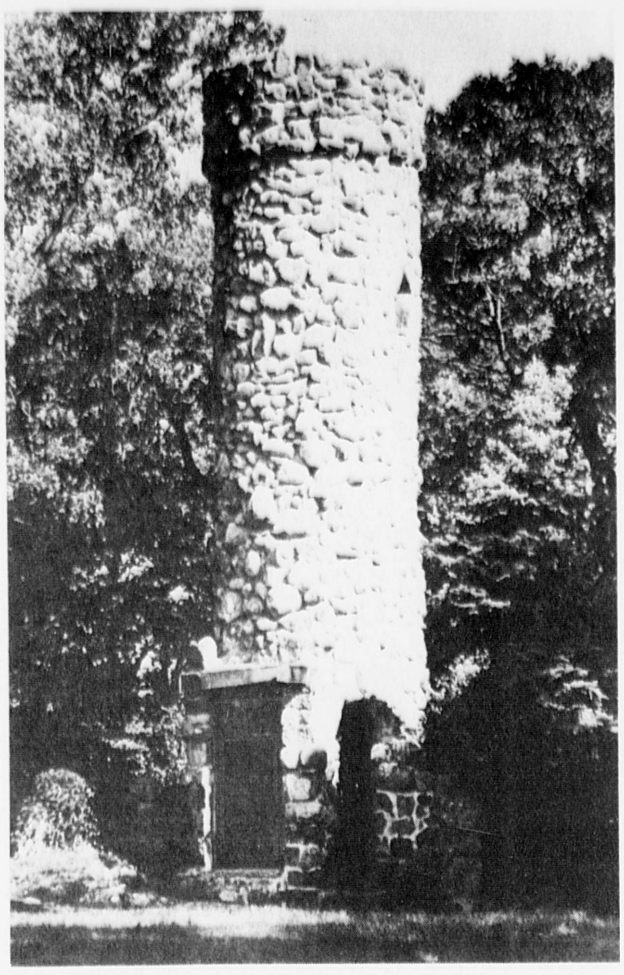

As Berlitz points out, the word discover can be taken as meaning "unveil." In this limited sense, Christopher Columbus, a tall, fair, redheaded Jew from Genoa, can legitimately be credited with the discovery of America.

Before him, the land beyond the Outer Sea was only a legend, a notion enshrouded in a mist of myth and mystery. He made it a reality. Given his monumental effort, it was simply a matter of logistics to install Europeans on the shores of the new found land. The first colonialists, regardless of their ethnic origins, enjoyed the advantage of standing on Columbus' shoulders when they surveyed their new digs.

Let the Irish and the English, the Welsh and the Portuguese, the Danes and the Swedes fight it out over the details. For the kids who listened to Sister Lorraine tell the glorious tale of Columbus's triumph in the fifth grade of St. Patrick's School, in Elmira, N.Y., a long, long time ago, he is still a hero who has passed the test of time.

For kids today, who are desperately casting about for a hero that doesn't wear one white glove and never had his eyes bobbed, Christopher Columbus might serve them well. He was a man driven by his dream; and we have few enough of them around today.

Poor Columbus

This tower at Norumbega, across the Charles River from the Marriott Hotel, represents one of the baldest attempts to rip from Christopher Columbus the mantle of "discoverer" of America. A Harvard prof had the tower constructed to nail down his theory that Vikings colonized the area 500 years before Columbus ever set foot in the New World.

Emergency loans for storm repairs

By Edward Cafasso
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Emergency loans are available to low and moderate income residents whose homes suffered structural damage from Hurricane Gloria, the city announced last week.

Community Development Director Stephen Gartrell said the funds in the city's regular Housing Rehabilitation Program (NHRF) may be used by residents whose houses are not covered by homeowners' insurance.

Approximately $420,000 in Community Development Block Grant money has been set aside for this year's NHRF program, according to Gartrell.

The money is typically given to residents who need to make major repairs to bring their homes up to building code standards.

Families of four with a combined annual income of less than $16,150 may be eligible for repair loans at interest rates which range from zero to 6 percent, he said.

Moderate income households that earn less than $25,850 annually can obtain loans at interest rates of up to 13 percent, while a low to moderate income elderly household can obtain deferred payments loans that will not have to repaid for a 10-year period, he said.

According to 1980 census figures, approximately one-third of the city's families would meet the NHRF program's economic eligibility requirements.

The emergency repair loans, which are only given to homes with structural damage or related problems, are available immediately, but the money cannot be obtained to pay for tree removals, according to Gartrell.

Low and moderate income families in need of non-emergency housing rehabilitation may also apply for similar low interest loans under the regular NHRF program.

Such NHRF applications will be accepted beginning in November, he said.

Residents seeking emergency assistance will have to document their economic eligiblity with W-2 forms, pay stubs or the previous year's income tax forms.

Inspectors will perform on-site visits to verify the extent of the damage and write up the work specifications, Gartrell said.

Community development officials will assist qualified applicants with the NHRF program's bidding procedures by providing a standard construction contract and a list of reliable firms to do the work, he added.

Those residents interested in determining their eligiblity under the emergency program's standards may call city housing rehabilitation officials at 552-7140 or visit the office, which is located at 76 Silver Lake Ave. in Nonantum.

Alcohol abuse program axed

By John Moroney
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Attempts to solve the problem of student alcohol abuse — according to some — suffered a major setback last week when the federal government urged the Governor's Highway Safety Council to stop the funding of Project BASE. The five-year project is a high school alcohol prevention and education program at schools around the state including Newton South.

Judith Malone-Neville, director of the project at Newton South, said "It wasn't a very bright decision because it means the end of an excellent program."

Barbara Kopans, director of communcations for the Executive Office of Public Health and Safety, said the alcohol education program was cancelled only after four years as a result of cost ineffectiveness.

The project was funded with a half-million dollar grant from the National Highway Traffic Saftey Administration, Kopans said. The state initially approved the project with the stipulation that it would be instituted in "hundreds of high schools throughout the Commonwealth." The state decided to stop the project because only 10 high schools in the state were using BASE, she said. "We want to use the money for programs which can reach a greater number of kids," Kopans said. "The governor is looking to develop a comprehensive, statewide K-12 program."

Based at Brookline High School — the governor's alma mater — the program served an estimated 400,000 students and trained about 500 teachers during its existence. BASE coordinators had planned to expand to 22 schools this year, but were forced to cancel services after the state refused to augment the federal grant with a request for an additional $149,000. "If it was such a great program," Kopans said, "why haven't the schools — including Brookline High — paid to pick it up."

According to Malone-Neville, state officials promised project members over the summer that there would be money to keep the program going through Feburary. "The money never came, and there were salaries that had to be paid," she said. "It's really frustrating."

The most irritating part is that Newton South never had the opportunity to "feel the results" of a program which Malone-Neville considers to be the best around. The Newton South headmaster shopped around "quite a bit" last year for an alcohol education program. Brookline's project, she said, fit in with the city's "autonomous teachers" who like to develop curriculum for their classrooms themselves.

Jewels & Gems

BY CAROL
THE GOLD LADY

SEMI-PRECIOUS

The term "semi-precious" is, in a way, misleading. It implies that anything in this broad category, which includes any stone other than a diamond, emerald, ruby or sapphire, is less valuable than a "precious" stone. In fact, this is not true. A truly fine aquamarine, topaz or tourmaline can be worth much more than a poor quality ruby or emerald. Just as with precious stones, clarity (where it applies), cut (where it applies), color, size and even history will contribute to the value of a semi-precious stone. While none are as hard as a precious gem, most are certainly hard enough to make fine centers for jewelry and rings. Judge their beauty for yourself.

Many semi-precious stones are birthstones and are quite popular. They are very colorful and make wonderful rings and pendants. Come to CAROL "THE GOLD LADY" at 109 Dalby St., Newton and browse through our store for great ideas even if you're not in the market for something special. We know our diverse selection will attract your eye and make you come back time and again. For those with October birthdays, the opal is a beautiful semi-precious stone. Let us create a piece especially for your loved one. Call us at 332-5935, Tues., Wed., Sat. 10-6; Thurs. & Fri. til 9. Have a happy Columbus Day.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARINGS FOR PROPOSED CHANGES TO THE NEWTON COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT BLOCK GRANT PROGRAM FOR FISCAL YEAR 1985

SUBSTANTIAL CHANGE TO AN EXISTING FY85 PROGRAM:

1) Allen House Rehabilitation — FY85-2(E) — $12,500.

The Allen School and House Preservation Corp. is requesting an additional $12,500 ($13,500 is currently allocated to this project) to cover a funding shortfall due to unexpectedly high bids recently submitted for the rehabilitation of the Allen House.

CANCELLATION OF FY85 PROGRAMS:

10 Historic Housing Rehabilitation Loan Program — FY85-1(D) — $15,000.

The Historic Housing Rehabilitation Loan Program (HHRLP) provided low interest loans and or deferred loans for appropriate home repairs to low and moderate income owners of historically significant properties. Over the past year, only three homeowners have applied for the above mentioned program despite extensive outreach. At a meeting held on 7 February 1985, the Newton Historical Commission voted to support the reallocation of the remaining HHRLP funds as outlined above. Due to the lack of interest in this program, the City is proposing to reprogram these funds to the Community Development Program overall contingency account and amend the guidelines of the NHRF to include a historic rehabilitation component.

The City has committed a $20,000 grant to the Newton-Wellesley-Weston Committee to Establish Residences for the Retarded for the rehabilitation of 40 Orchard road into 6 housing units for the retarded. This project is proposed for cancellation at the request of the NWW Committee, due to the recent funding of 89 Grove Street Housing project which has taken funding priority over the Orchard Road Housing project. The 89 Grove Street Housing Project will provide 6 units for the retarded under the management of NWW Committee.

The Newton Community Development Program Citizen Participation Plan requires that when changes to the Newton Community Development Program proposes changes to its programs, including additions, substantial changes or deletions of programs, the Planning and Development Board must hold a public hearing prior to making recommendations concerning proposed changes.

Comments may be submitted until 1 November 1985 to the Community Development Program, City Hall, 1000 Commonwealth Ave., Newton Centre, Newton, MA 02159.

Tennant recovering from recent stroke

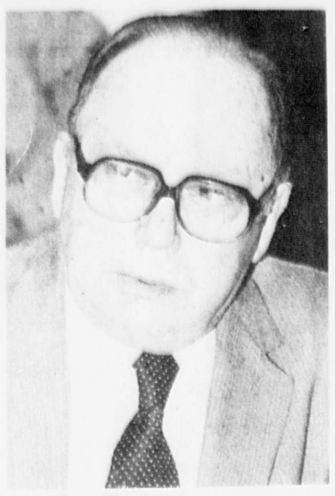

NEWTON — Alderman Louis Irwin has been appointed acting chairman of the Administration & Planning Committee while Ward 3 Alderman-at-Large Robert L. Tennant recovers from a recent stroke.

Board President Carol Ann Shea announced Irwin's interim assignment last night and offered Tennant, a local lawmaker for over two decades, the city's "best wishes for a speedy recovery."

Family members say Tennant is "now out of danger and it is just a matter of rest, recuperation and rehabilitation to bring him back to his old self," according to City Clerk Edward English.

He is currently resting in Newton-Wellesley Hospital, but is not allowed visitors.

It will be several months before Tennant, who lives at 189 Mt. Vernon St., can return to his aldermanic duties, English said.

Deadline extended for ZRC report

NEWTON — Zoning Review Committee (ZRC) Chairman Richard Bullwinkle has received unanimous approval from the Board of Aldermen to extend his committee's Oct. 15 deadline for filing their report to Dec. 9.

The 26-member ZRC is charged with proposing changes in current zoning laws to the board's Land Use Committee, which will in turn make it's recommendation to the full board.

"Things are starting to come together," Bullwinkle said. "We are getting some good by-play on some very complicated matters."

Bullwinkle added his committee is "doing a very good job, especially considering the amount and varying backrounds of the committee's members.

"This is a very intellegent group," he continued. "You have activists, lawyers, developers and aldermen. For the most part, attendance has been pretty good. The people on the committee are really working hard to do a good job.

"I think we will meet our original goal of getting a better handle on the zoning ordinances," he said. "We are putting them together in a more cohesive fashion right now and are shrinking the number of ordinances."

Bullwinkle said one reason for the extension is the detail involved.

"We have looked at every ward and gone through the ordinances line by line. We need to add some things, as well as delete some things. That is why we need more time."

The ZRC, Bullwinkle said, will meet every Tuesday until its job is complete.

Absentee ballots are now available

NEWTON — Residents who plan to be out of town on Nov. 5 can now vote in advance of Election Day by absentee ballot at the Election Commission offices at City Hall, where special weekend voter registration hours will be held.

Even those residents who have not applied for the ballots can do so and vote at the same time by coming to the Commission's City Hall offices.

Residents can also obtain absentee ballots for their sons and daughters who currently live out of state and are not registered to vote.

Saturday registration hours from noon to 8 p.m. are designed to expedite the process for those who cannot make it City Hall during the workday.

Extra registration hours will also occur on Tuesday from 7 to 9 p.m.

The last day to register for the Nov. 5 election is Wednesday, Oct. 16, when the Commission's first floor headquarters will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 10 p.m..

The last hour and day to apply for an absentee ballot is noon on Nov. 4.

Panel named for Bigelow reuse

NEWTON CORNER — The aldermanic Real Property Reuse Committee unanimously approved the appointment of the final seven members to the Joint Advisory Planning Group formed to study the reuse options for Bigelow Jr. High.

The building — which the School Committee decided to close last year because of declining enrollment — will go on the market next June.

The seven aldermanic appointees will join seven other Garden City residents who were appointed by Mayor Theodore D. Mann last month.

Shick is also approaching the beginning of the reuse process with an open mind. "I'm fairly open to what ever the committee might suggest," she said.

The other recent appointees are Tobias Hanks, Ralph Tolbert, Cynthia Shumeman, Judith Abrams, Susan Kaplan and Patricia Rand. Mann's appointees are: Beverly Smith, James Mnookin, John Shorton, Ira K. Gross, Donald Budge, William Melville and alternate Paul Foley.

By Howard Altman, Staff Writer

NEWTON — There was a little bit of old Italy at City Hall last week as Mayor Mann and representatives from the Garden City's Italian-American community welcomed Italian Consul-General Raneiri Fonari.

Whipping out a few phrases from the English-Italian dictionary, Mann hosted a reception honoring the counsul-general, who happens to live in Newton.

"Buon giorno," Mann said to the audience, in his packed office, who came to meet Fonari and extend their solidarity with "the old country."

Fonari joked with the crowd, telling them he came to Newton at the behest of his predecessor.

"The former consul told me how nice a place Newton is," Fonari said. "He said Mayor Mann was a nice person, so I decided to live here, just like the former consul."

Mann gave Fonari the key to the city, which was cast from the bronze of a decomissioned Navy vessel by students from Newton North High School.

To help authenticate the festivities, the Magni Bakery prepared pizza and Italian cookies. In addition, the room was decorated with green and white bunting.

"You should be proud of your Italian-American heritage and remember where you came from," Fonari said. "It is very important for Americans of Italian extraction to remember the language. I'm very happy to see so many young people here who are interested in their heritage."

Fonari was referring to the members of Maria Vallone's Newton North High School Italian class, who came to meet the consul.

"The kids were very excited," Vallone said. "Unfortunately, because of the hurricane, we didn't get word until Monday, otherwise we would have had even more kids here."

After Fonari's speech, Mann jumped in with a quick one-liner.

"The first thing Italians want when they get to Newton," Mann quipped, "is a Jewish gardener." Mann's joke was greeted with enthusiastic laughter and applause.

County divests from South Africa

CAMBRIDGE — This past week, the Middlesex County Commissioners unanimously voted to adopt a resolution requesting the County Retirement Board to examine all investments and to divest any accounts involving the government of South Africa..

The resolution stated that the "South African government's apartheid policies are inhumane" and since investment may encourage the continuation of those policies, the board urged divestiture until such policies are ended. The resolution, offered by commissioner Michael McLaughlin, passed after letters expressing concern about county investments had been sent to County Treasurer William Gustus by Commissioners Thomas Larkin and Newton resident Bill Schmidt.

Whereas: The South African government's apartheid policies are unconstitutional and inhumane;

Whereas: Pension Fund Investments in banks or companies doing business in or with South Africa's support these policies;

Whereas: The Middlesex County Retirement Board's pension funds could have connections to the South Africa public or private sector;

Now, therefore, be it resolved: That the Middlesex County Commission, in formal meeting assembled, adopt this Resolution that the County Retirement Board examine all of their investments and totally divest any and all accounts that deal with the government of South Africa until such time that the deplorable conditions and prejudices that are inherent with apartheid policies are banished.

Warren reuse up for reconsideration

WEST NEWTON — With the issue of a new main library at the corner of Homer and Walnut streets settled for the moment, aldermen are looking to renew their deliberations on the fate of the Warren Junior High School building.

The aldermanic Real Property Reuse Committee has already scheduled three meetings to discuss the future of the abandoned school located just a half mile from bustling West Newton Square.

The sessions will be held on Oct. 22, Nov. 7 and Nov. 14.

The committee has invited Parks & Recreation Commissioner Russell Halloran to the Oct. 22 meeting to discuss his department's intentions for the 462,000 square feet of playgrounds surrounding the building.

The recreational space includes seven tennis courts, two softball/baseball fields, and three football/soccer fields.

Officials from the Engineering and Law Departments have also been invited to the Oct. 22 meeting.

The Main Library Facility Committee has recommended the Warren be sold for the most profitable commercial use possible to help pay for a brand new library, but many aldermen are reluctant to recommend an intensive use for a site completely surrounded by residential homes.

An independent appraisal of the building's worth found that the Warren and the surrounding 90-car parking lot could bring the city $3.6 million if sold for rental office space; $1.78 million if converted into 75 market rate condominiums; $836,700 if reused as a private school; and, $704,000 if sold to a lifecare or hospice group.

Kirk's work crucial

The consensus of the crowd gathered at the Carmen home last week to welcome Democratic National Committee Chairman Paul Kirk home was that the Democratic party, in a troubled time, could not have a more able navigator at the helm.

Kirk told the crowd that he would not, in his attempt to bolster the party's strength against the Republicans, mimic the methods that have won the presidency for the GOP the last five out of six elections. "The last thing this country needs is two Republican parties," he said.

We applaud his sentiments and add that the existence of two, strong political parties is the foundation of our democratic system of government. Regardless of his party affiliation, we encourage Kirk to make his organization a viable contender. The whole country could profit from Kirk's works.

A triumph for CLT

Citizens for Limited Taxation, the public interest organization which put Proposition 2½ over, has scored another major triumph. Surtax repeal is a virtual certainty through the legislative process. That was only part of the initiative petition that applied the hot foot to lawmakers, however.

Focal point for CLT is acceptance of a referendum question in November, 1986, which would also put a cap on the increase in state revenues. The state's take from taxes would be allowed to grow each year at no more than the rate of growth of Massachusetts wages and salaries.

That, in another way, would apply constraints on spending capability to match what was imposed on cities and towns, beginning in 1982. Provision is made to maintain local aid grants to municipalities.

In all fairness to the Legislature, Beacon Hill has been fully supportive in lifting local government grants. Even so, elected officials up there zealously protect spending options. Surtax repeal proposals making their way through the General Court to a consensus by the House and Senate have revenue-producing features that bear watching. Two-thirds of the gain on elimination of the surtax could be wiped out.

As in the case of Proposition 2½, CLT appears to be having little difficulty obtaining the signatures that will assure a ballot test next year.

It is in the Senate where the full benefit of surtax repeal would be sharply diminished. Heretofore an implacable foe, Ways and Means Chairman Patricia McGovern's influence is apparent. The plan passed by the Senate calls for $138 million in new revenue extraction, including a $25 million unitary tax on business.

None of this appeared in the House bill, declared acceptable to CLT. Said the citizens' lobby: "With the House version, the total amount of surtax repeal was given to the taxpayers without a concurrent and rather nasty attack on the business community, whose employees don't deserve it."

Keep a sharp eye on your elected officials. As noted before, those in the Senate are engaged in what looks like the old fiscal shell game.

Newton Graphic Opinions

City gets an 'A' for apathy

By Verne Vance, Jr.

Electoral politics in Newton is in a perilous state. It is no news that interest in running for local public office in Newton is so low that there is not even a contest in the mayoralty race for the first time in many, many years.

One might write off the mayoralty situation to the long and politically strong incumbency of Mayor Theodore Mann and the reluctance of such long time political challengers as Alderman Richard McGrath to give up a present office for an almost certainly futile run at Mayor Mann. There is also, of course, the possibility that Mayor Mann may retire after his next term, thereby opening a door for other mayoral candidates that presently seems closed.

The mayor's race aside, this year Newton faces the dismal fact that a total of only 23 candidates are involved in contested races for alderman at large, ward alderman, and school committee. Of those 23, only 10 are new candidates who have not previously run for office. The total of 23 is down from a total of 26 in 1983, a non-mayoral election year, and 30 in 1981, a mayoral election year, that was the first following the adoption of Proposition 2½. Where have all the candidates gone?

While Newton, with its relatively healthy surplus, does not have to wrestle with the fiscal issues that plague many other Massachusetts municipalities, it is not lacking in significant public issues. Revision of the zoning ordinance and the development of a new main library are two such issues, although to date there has been insufficient public debate on those issues to make them sufficiently clear-cut to generate great public interest.

All candidates support zoning revision generally, but as yet little has surfaced in the way of specific proposals for change that might draw some meaningful battle line for the public to consider. Even the building moratorium issue did not bring out substantial numbers of new candidates.

Most candidates support some form of new main library, whether a new building or a renovated existing building, but, again, the critical issues of the cost and funding plan for the new library are still so murky that battle lines that might generate candidate and public interest have not yet really been drawn.

Within recent memory, the only issues to stir any widespread citizen interest have been the Finnegan revaluation and the dog leash law.

Ald. Verne Vance

So, too, the school committee is not without significant issues. While, hopefully, the matter of school closings is finished for at least the foreseeable future, issues of possible redistricting, fiscal needs of the school and educational programs remain. But these seem to draw litle noticeable discussion from candidates and little interest from the public at large.

A critical problem with the generation of interest in running for public office in Newton is that even if candidates want to raise and discuss issues in public debate, they have no meaningful forum in which to do so. Boston newspsapers and television stations are the dominant media in Newton, and they give precious little space or time to Newton issues. Coverage of those issues by the local Newton newspapers, radio station and cable TV channel does not seem to be effective at stimulating widespread public debate on any issue. Within recent memory the only such issues to stir any widespread citizen interest – at least as measured by attendance at public meetings – have been the Finnegan revaluation and the dog leash law.

Organizations such as the League of Women Voters, the Newton Conservators, the Newton Neighborhood Network and the Newton PTA council have worked hard to organize candidates' nights and other meetings devoted to public issues, but attendance is usually small and seems to include the same limited group of people who take an active interest in Newton's public affairs.

The unhappy reality about local government, at least in Newton, is that in general the only issues that seem to stir up much public interest are very localized traffic, parking, and land-use issues. When each of those issues is resolved – usually in accord with the wishes of the majority of the affected neighborhood – most of the residents who have been involved disappear until the next issue of concern in their neighborhood. Not surprisingly, such localized issues simply do not tend to generate widespread interest in running for local public office.

What is the answer to this problem? There probably is none, at least so long as Newton continues to be fiscally healthy, to provide generally high quality municipal services and to preserve the basic residential character of the city. All we can do is try to choose the best of those few candidates who make themselves available for public office and keep our fingers crossed that at least most of those elected will provide the calibre of public service which Newton, like all municipalities, so badly needs.

Graphically speaking

Another peek behind the scenes

The Democratic City Committee is definitely gearing up for a powerful push in the next couple of elections, and they're not hiding it from anyone. Peg Hennigan, head of the committee, is now being referred to openly as "The Godmother." Indeed, Peg has been well known for a long time as a very persuasive character.

Now we learn that she is bringing along some relative neophytes in the local political arena, no doubt hoping that one of them will be able to carry the baton if and when she decides to pass it along. These apprentices, we have learned, are being referred to openly as "G.I.T.s," short for "Godmothers in Training."

Well, if the very fine party they all just put on at the home of Bill and Beverly Carmen is any indication of the appeals they are planning to pitch your way in the near future, "The Godmother" and her cohorts will, indeed, be making "an offer you can't refuse."

Mayor Ted Mann makes no bones about his strong push for a new main library facility at the corner of Homer and Walnut streets, but he acknowleges there are certain things that are "simply not done."

Asked if he has been leaning on some of the aldermen lately to encourage their approval of $250,000 for preliminary designs, the mayor admitted he had made some phone calls. Asked of the propriety of the chief executive's lobbying members of the legislative branch, Mann commented, "Making phone calls might well be appropriate. Giving out summer jobs would not be."

□

In the midst of Hurricane Gloria's recent onslaught, Glenn's patrol car crossed paths at Chestnut Street with a cruiser driven by officers Charles Edrehi and Ed Sullivan.

"Do you think we can use this in negotiations?" Glenn shouted. "I don't see a teacher out here or a custodian."

Police Chief William F. Quinn came on the police radio at about 2:15 p.m. during the hurricane to tell his men they would be "out of the woods in about an hour and a half."

As trees and branches crumpled to the ground outside his cruiser, Edrehi quietly replied, "We'll be out of the woods in an hour and a half, but there won't be any woods left."

□

Mayor Theodore D. Mann popped in at the recent public hearing to discuss where the new main library should be located.

The mayor raised his hand when Alderman Rodney Barker asked who supported the idea and then disappeared into his office.

In the meantime, FinCom began an open door meeting on another matter. Mann decided to use a side exit from his office and inadvertently slammed the huge wooden door on his way out, sending shockwaves through the FinCom meeting directly across the hall.

"Would you kindly have the doors fixed with all the money you have around here," he joked just before he disappeared again.

Alderman Richard J. McGrath is going to any length to preserve his perfect attendance record at full board roll calls.

One of his closest competitors, Alderman Wendell Bauckman, was caught in the hall outside the main chamber at the start of a recent vote. As Bauckman, hearing the long list of names being read, came dashing toward the rail to be recorded, McGrath could be heard ever so faintly saying, "Telephone call in the next room, Wendell."

The ruse, of course, did not succeed.

□

Forget the contacts, it's the name that counts ... U.S. Rep. Barney Frank recently took a subway ride into Boston on his way for an afternoon workout in a Copley Square gym.

As a harried Frank jumped off the trolley to get in shape, he left a plane ticket to Washington, D.C., behind. The passenger who had been sitting next to him retrieved it.

The story goes that the man did not recognize the slimmer, trimmer and more stylish Frank "without his glasses," but it all came flooding back to him when he picked up the lost document and read the passenger's name: "B. Frank."

The plane ticket was on its way back to Newton in an instant.

With Mayor Theodore Mann out in the hall greeting people, Taglienti jumped into the mayor's tall, leather chair, put his feet on Mann's desk and told the audience he "felt like the Godfather."

□

During a recent School Committee meeting, committee Chairman Leonard Gentile presented a proposal to draft an amendment to the state's open meeting law. Committee member Nancy Mann said she supported the thrust of the proposed amendment because the goal of the committee and other committees like it "is to use our collective wisdoms better." The only person in city who is not affected by the open meeting law, she explained, is Mayor Theodore D. Mann and that's because "his collective wisdom is all in one head."

Subtle differences mark Miss America scandals

By Edward F. King

The Miss America title used to be an honor. With it went fame, fortune, and happiness. Young ladies who won the award often launched careers in movies, public relations, and business.

Not any more. Inexplicably, like a strange and bizarre course, our last two pageant winners have quickly become embroiled in controversy. The 1984 titlist was forced to resign and give up her crown. As of this writing, the new 1985 queen, Susan Akin, is under some pressure to do likewise.

While the cases of the two young women bear a few similarities, the background and circumstances are entirely dissimilar. In fact, there is no comparison at all.

Miss America of 1984, Vanessa Williams, resigned her title after publication of some astonishing photographs for which she had posed. To this day, practically every news story that refers to her says that she resigned because she had posed for "nude" photos."

Nothing could be a more clever disguise of real truth. Oh, she was nude to be sure. But what really shocked the nation was that the photographs showed her in explicit lesbian love scenes with another female. The illustrations, in living color, left nothing to the imagination.

Susan Akin's case is entirely different. It has come to light that her father and grandfather are alleged to have been associated with the hooded cowards of the Ku Klux Klan. They were both indicted for alleged complicity in the vicious murders of civil rights workers in the 1960's. Her father has since been convicted of threatening to murder his second wife. Nice fellow.

But surely any fair-minded person can see the difference from the Williams case. Susan Akin made no choices. She was not involved. No evidence has been presented to indicate that she has racist sentiments or that she condones violence or coercion. She probably had not even been born when some of the allegations are supposed to have occured.

To his credit and to his organization's credit, Dr. Aaron Henry, head of the Mississippi branch of the NAACP, has sprung to Susan's defense. He correctly pointed out that the sins, real or imagined, of the father do not corrupt or stain the daughter. Only her own actions could do that.

Susan Akin has learned a hard lesson. Being in the public eye makes you open season for the sharks of the media, whose only goals are sensationalism and profit. And kudos to Dr. Henry for his open and fair mind.

Many seats vacant in the Statehouse

By George B. Merry

If Massachusetts government ever again becomes financially strapped, it might want to consider going into the chair rental business.

Certainly there are plenty of chairs - many now rarely used - under the golden dome, especially in the House and Senate chambers.

While none of the 200 lawmaking seats is technically vacant, some of them are so seldom sat in that they could easily pass for new.

For reasons known best to individual senators and representatives, few seem to find the time to pay close attention to what is going on in their lawmaking chambers.

Not infrequently measures of major import to the commonwealth glide through these chambers with nary a whisper of debate. And often when such verbal action does take place, it is before a sea of empty seats, with many of those on hand either roaming about or chatting with colleagues.

But, alas, when a roll call is ordered, the missing lawmakers rush in, vote, and then hurry off again, presumably to more important pursuits.

Such was the case on Sept. 24 during the lengthy Senate debate that preceded passage of legislation to wipe out the income-tax surcharge and institute a graduated system of personal-income tax deductions.

Although this situation is not new, absenteeism has increased markedly in recent years, especially since lawmakers provided themselves with private office space outside the House and Senate.

Clearly, many senators and representatives find it more convenient to stay in their offices and, in the case of the House members at least, listen to the proceedings broadcast from their lawmaking chamber, or perhaps watch it on television.

Even that arrangement, however, is less than ideal and is hardly fair to those colleagues who stay in the chamber and are frequently kept waiting while absentees drift in to vote.

With most members on hand during every sitting, things could move more expeditiously, since it would not be necessary to interrupt debate and wait for missing legislators to answer the call when the presence of a quorum is doubted.

"What's my vote?" has become an all-too-familiar question. Late-arriving legislators sometimes haven't the foggiest idea of what the roll call is about. And it is often necessary for a senator or representative to rely on a party floor leader or some trusted colleague.

Well attended House and Senate sittings would certainly look better and perhaps produce better laws, since those who currently rely on others to tell them what to do would be able to decide for themselves. That is especially important since neither party nor the majority or minority legislative leadership has a corner on all the good ideas.

Certainly a lot more votes should be based on a proposal's merit rather than on whether it is supported or opposed by either the legislative power structure or others in positions of influence.

Although their approach and priorities may be different, Democratic and Repbulican lawmakers could hardly want less than the best for the Bay State.

But the habit of spending little time in the legislative chamber, except to make one's lawmaking record look good or when there is a roll call to answer is certainly not a matter of partisan politics. And it may contribute to a less than well-informed vote.

If attendance does not improve greatly in the coming months, it might be half-seriously suggested that the powers that be move the now 160-member House back into the 40-seat Senate chamber. The latter lawmaking branch then could relocate into one of the legislative hearing rooms, which would have plenty of chairs, around a much smaller horse-shoe desk, for those senators interested in having more than a "rubber stamnp" part in the supposedly deliberative proceedings.

The current large House chamber with its very comfortable leather swivel chairs might then be rented out for special functions or even leased as a movie theater.

Obviously such possible changes are offered in jest. But a sound move, in the interest of strengthening the legislature, might be tougher rules requiring a senator or representative to answer a roll call within two minutes, from the second it is ordered, or be automatically recorded as "missing" on that vote.

In that way lawmakers' constituents would know how well their elected legislators are tending the legislative store.

Those senators and representatives who like the pay and the prestige of their office but have little time to listen to or participate in debate of key measures might do both themselves and the commonwealth a favor by leaving the legislature at term's end.

35 lbs. Lost In 6 Weeks!

ELIZABETH KELLEY RECENTLY LOST 35 LBS. IN 6 WEEKS AT A MICHELLE DYAN HYPNOSIS STUDIO

"Not only have I lost 35 lbs. but I was taught how to enhance my concentration and use my mind to keep me slim forever! No more sweets or junk food for me. I just don't want them! I do not pick between meals either. I eat only nutritious food and I'm perfectly satisfied."

If you are fed up with not having the shape you want, do something now. Don't wait until Christmas to get started. The average loss is 6-8 lbs. the first week.

Judy Walsh, owner of the Norwood Studio, explained that most clients are losing between 15 & 25 lbs. in four weeks by simply managing their own diet and using the Audio Conscious Hypnosis method to control their eating habits.

Other programs offered through Michelle Dyan Studio are: smoking cessation, stress management, insomnia, nail biting, hair twirling, memory retention, sales motivation, and sports concentration.

Presently in the Norwood Studio, 182 smokers have used the Audio Conscious Hypnosis method and 148 have quit. There have been 137 weight clients with only four having difficulty in achieving their goals.

Not all Church women angry

The Sept. 25 Newton Graphic, in an account of a meeting of Catholic women at Aquinas Junior College, included the statement of one of the participants: "Almost every woman who is still in the Catholic Church is angry." A little belatedly, I would like to reply, since I think that this statement is much too sweeping.

I am a Catholic woman and I am not angry. I believe that I know others who are not angry, but obviously I can only speak for myself. In my view it is a troubling situation, and one which naturally gives rise to anger, when the church is seen as a kind of extension of civil society, with political rights that have to be fought for.

We all need more laughter

If I have heard it once, I have heard it said a thousand times — and we all agree on one thing. "There are no more smiles being used by anyone — anyplace — anywhere — anymore!" The question of why has come up more than once also. Everyone involved seems to have some kind of answer, but to my way of thinking, it doesn't suffice. Why is it though, that too few of us are finding humor, accompanied by spontaneous laughter, a really gut-wrenching, belly-laugh type of uninhibited gales of happy laughing until the tears roll down one's cheeks? It's a gift towards inducing good health and an unheard of wonderful commodity today!

In our day-to-day stuggle with life, a black cloud of pessimism has infiltrated instead, erroding the fabric of vitality and turning it around into a lacklustre existence. The culprit is the sword of Damocles, 1985 vintage; the negative publicity surrounding the atomic bomb and a possible ensuing holocaust. It has forced the juices of ambition and expectations to dry up somewhat and a "live now — for who knows what tomorrow may bring" attitude has soured the atmosphere!

I consider myself an insightful person, and one who can reason with life's inconsistencies, therefore, after trying on different sizes of thought, I've come to the conclusion "so what?'

"So what, what?", you ask.

What, I mean is just this: There has never been a time in history when "fear" was not an enemy. In prehistoric times, man could not emerge from his cave with a certainty of return, but he did, at least some found their way back. Not only did they survive, but learned to stand up from "all fours" and evolutionized.

He waged war with his counterparts, more often than not, and progressed to a "civilized" state of sophisticated weaponry. In all, the human species has been subjected to one catastrophic event after another — in the form of natural disasters such as earthquakes, tornadoes, tidal waves, flash floods, — to some degree. They are all very destructive forces! Each in itself, or maybe a combination of some, afflict the world, but the earth always recovers, while Mother Nature retreats to repair her wounds.

Isn't it a balance, a sort of yin and yang, good and bad energies! It must be designed to keep us sober, ever thoughtful and on our toes, to make sure the times between are but the best of times, in terms of health, production, self-sustenance, an encourgagement to be helpful and mindful of others — to appreciate and enjoy all that we can while are able, and not to close the gaps between misfortunes with a self-destruction type of existence, such as drug addiction and alcoholism.

There is much that is beautiful and awesome — a change of season with all its surprises, a fresh coat of paint can do wonders for the eye, the aroma of freshly baked bread, a kitten playing with a child, a sail in the sunset, a walk in the woods, a portrait by an artist, a poem that inspires, the rainbow after the storm, a waterfall, the mountains that never change, but mostly...

A carnation to the one who said, "They felt so sorry for the person who passed them that didn't own a smile that they stopped and felt compelled to give them theirs!"

1983 referendum was ignored

By a 60 percent margin, the people of Newton voted for no new taxes for a new library in November, 1983. At that time the Newton Taxpayers Association supported an improved library using the Warren Junior High School Building. We presented a six-point plan to finance the library at Warren without any new taxes.

What have the bureaucrats done during the past two years? They set up a "stacked" committee to select a new library site. The majority of the members of that committee were the same people who were out pushing for an over-ride of Proposition 2½ in 1983 so that they could build a new library at Homer and Walnut Street.

What do we have now? The almost certainty of a new building at — you guessed it — Homer and Walnut Street. In 1983 this proposed building was estimated to cost $10 million. Now they're talking $12 million. How will this be any diffrent from Newton North which began at $9 million and wound up in the $20 millions? What new buildings do these bureaucrats ever put up at close to what they tell the taxpayers will be the cost? In order to finance this new building they are going to assess additional hotel occupancy taxes and sell off surplus property around the city, assets to Newton which could be used for other purposes.

We do not have to have this enormous new expenditure. We can have a great library at Warren for half the cost or less. Why won't our elected officials listen to our vote?

A letter would mean so much

I'm an inmate at Westville Correctional Center. My life is filled with so much loneliness, sadness, and confusion. I haven't received one letter since I've been here because no one seem's to care enough to write me.

I get so depressed and lonely when I see other inmates receive letters from their families and friends. I sometimes cry because it really hurts feeling so alone! If I could just receive one letter it would be worth a million to me. I have no money to pay for this letter to be published in your paper, but I would appreciate it dearly if you would be kind enough to publish it for me out of the kindness of your heart. Words could never thank you enough.

Her effort has had such a low profile that she recently penned a strongly-worded letter to her constituents in an attempt to derail rumors that her heart was not in the race.

"I am writing this letter to make clear to all of you that I definitely am a candidate for ward aldermen for Ward 4 and that I intend to fight this campaign all the way through Election Day ... I intend to be re-elected and expect to continue to give this ward the responsive and effective service I have given it for 10 years," Shea wrote.

Shea's letter also indicated her belief that a vote for Bryson would be a vote "for someone whose ability to deliver for Ward 4 on the Board of Aldermen is untested and unproven."

"I have the same experience (Bryson) has in the community for more years. There has never been an instance when I've voted against the people of Ward 4," she added recently.

Both women have headed the Auburndale Community Association, the city's oldest neighborhood group, and have been members in other community groups, but Bryson claims Shea is "unresponsive" and "out of touch" with concerns of Ward 4 residents.

Among those Shea lists as her supporters are former State Rep. David Mofenson, current State Rep. Susan D. Schur and Ward 4 School Committee member Susan Silbey.

Backing Bryson's effort to unseat her, however, is Ward 4 Alderman-at-Large Richard J. McGrath, the "favorite son" of the area and the top vote-getter in the 1983 aldermanic election.

McGrath has been Shea's bitter foe since she dethroned his colleague Alderman Matthew Jefferson as board president and subsequently ousted McGrath as chairman of the Public Facilities Committee.

If the private concessions of her other colleagues on the board are any indication, Shea is in the midst of an uphill fight for her political life.

Storm costs threaten budget

"I don't want to prejudge anything," Horak said when asked about the likelihood of federal emergency assistance.

"We are trying our best to get state officials to recognize the tremendous impact this storm has had on our resources, not only in financial terms, but also in terms of human suffering and inconvenience," Mann said.

He said the clean-up and damage costs will "substantially deplete" the city's contingency reserve fund of $1.5 million, which is typically set aside in the event of a major winter storm. This year's contingency fund also includes money earmarked to cover liability claims against the city.

The remaining items on the mayor's fiscal 1986 Supplemental Capital Budget may also be in jeopardy.

The proposed supplemental budget, which is funded with part of the city's record free cash, calls for total spending of $2.9 million, but over $900,000 for public works items has already been appropriated by the Board of Aldermen.

That leaves approximately $2 million in unspent free cash which may be diverted to help pay for the clean-up effort.

The city's planned expenditures for street and sidewalk reconstruction projects may also have to be diverted and snow removal funds budgeted in the Department of Public Works could become available to recoup the city's losses if last year's mild winter repeats itself, Mann said.

But the mayor reiterated his intention to repair the storm's massive damage to streets and sidewalks, especially on school routes, before the winter season.

"Fortunately, we don't have one single incident where anybody has been seriously hurt," he added.

'Hyde pride' still alive for many in Highlands funding for the construction of two new classrooms on Mason-Rice and another $80,000 for additions on three other schools receiving Highlands students.

In addition, said Highlands resident and Alderman George Mansfield, "We know we'll have to spend money at Countryside," another receiver school.

Further, said Highlands resident Pamela Scantalides, the overcrowding situation has forced Mason-Rice elementary school to relegate art and music lessons to pushcarts to make room for regular classrooms. In addition, she said, Bowen school lost two nursery school rooms due to overcrowding problem.

Highlands resident Gilbert Marcy, whose children attended Hyde in the 1960s, further argues that money spent on busing children to receiver schools would be better spent on education.

And based on what he heard at a recent School Committee candidates function, Highlands parent Robert Cleveland said that "it sounds like people are not even willing to acknowledge the overcrowding issue exists."

What many Highlands residents would really like would be for the city to reopen the school, said resident Paul Croce.

In fact, said Mansfield, "if the issue were reopened, I feel there would be a lot of support." Other community residents made similar statements during interviews this week.

Referendum voters struggled with two issues in casting their votes, he said — whether it was worth fixing the damaged building for the school to remain open, and, if it were left open, whether their neighborhood school would be closed.

It "didn't occur" to Highlands residents the city would choose to close the Hyde School, said Barker. "To close the school in the part of town with the most children doesn't make any sense."

And, she continued, "(the School Committee) didn't open their minds to just getting rid of the damaged building" when it was proposed at the end of the debate, she said.

Now, the Highlands community and others have realized "We don't need to spend money to rebuild classrooms (in the burnt section of) Hyde in order to use classrooms there now," said Mansfield. And "we don't need to close another school in the city."

But in order for Hyde School to be reopened, "Somebody (in the city's administration or school committee) has to admit they were wrong (to close Hyde)," according to Scantalides. Somebody has to "publicly state they would be in favor of reopening the issue."

"Let's start fresh," said Barker. "The solution to the burnt building has been found. The problem of dropping enrollment does not exist. Here's an empty building in sound condition where the greatest concentration of children are located."

DNC's Kirk promises Democratic comeback

The homecoming reception for Kirk, which was arranged by Democratic City Committee Chairwoman Margaret "Peg" Hannigan and Ward 2 Committee Chairwoman Martina Jackson, represented one of the first significant gatherings of local Democrats in many years.

Party boosters from every level of area politics — state representatives, aldermen, aspiring politicians and new recruits alike — crowded around Kirk as he made his way through his hosts' spacious Dartmouth Street home.

"This is like old times. Tonight, I have seen so many people I haven't seen in a long time. I think it's an indication that we're going to get it together to make the Democratic Party number one again," said Hannigan, who described the party chairman as "one of our lads."

She showed the city committee's appreciation for Kirk's unifying tactics by presenting him with a tee-shirt emblazoned with the slogan "Newton's Capt. Kirk" — a reference to the daring starship commander in the TV series "Star Trek."

Jackson jokingly told Kirk he owed past dues with interest to the Ward 2 committee that started him on his way up the political ladder.

Kirk took time out to present the Carmens with a joint citation from the national and city committees thanking the couple "for their many years of dedicated service" to the party.

The highlight of the evening, however, was his rousing call to arms.

Noting that many political pundits began writing the Democratic Party's epitaph after the national ticket's landslide loss last November, Kirk said, "I reject that. I think we're on the way back."

When he became chairman of the Democratic party earlier this year, many advisors told him his party needed to become more like the Republicans to survive.

"I think the last thing this country needs is two Republican parties and this chairman rejects that advice," he said.

Kirk acknowledged, however, that the party "needs a broader base," must approach their goals with "mutual trust" and should not be "divided over single issues."

The stakes are high during the upcoming elections because of numerous upcoming Supreme Court vacancies, a $200 billion budget deficit, a $150 billion trade deficit and defense spending increases to "buy more toilet seats for 'Cap' Weinberger," he said.

Although Kirk believes in taking "a first things first" approach, he did say he thinks the Democrats have "a real chance" to win back control of the White House in 1988.

For the short term, however, Kirk received a strong ovation for his prediction that "it's a near certainty the Democrats are going to get the Senate back in 1986."

He said Democratic rebound should not be structured around the troubles afflicting their Republican foes, but should focus on the "work here at the grassroots level" that has long served as the party's traditional base of support.

"That's where we can pull it together," Kirk said.

"During the coming months, I promise to travel the length and breadth of this country to do everything I can not to let my friends in Newton down.

"I pledge to work tirelessly to make your cause the winning cause in 1986 and 1988," Kirk concluded, drawing sustained and warm applause from the appreciative crowd gathered in the Carmen's living room.

His concluding remarks in Cambridge, ironically delivered at the school named for his political mentor, earned Kirk a similarly positive reaction.

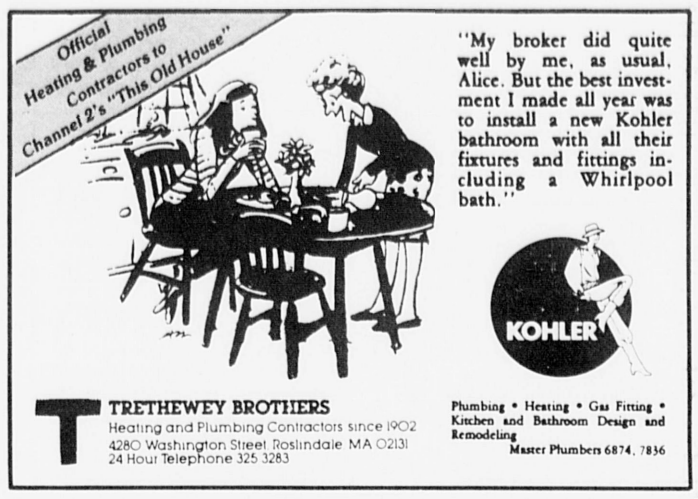

"We Democrats will continue to go quietly about the business of winning back the political respect of the American people, preparing to reclaim the mantle of national leadership that looks to the future and that has been our heritage — a heritage that has made us feel proud of ourselves, proud of our party and proud of our country," he said.

North swim registration set for Oct. 12

NEWTON — The Newton Parks and Recreation Department announces the swim registration for the Newton North High Indoor Complex will be held on Thursday, Oct. 10 from 7 to 9 p.m., and Saturday, Oct. 12 from 10 a.m. to noon at Newton North High School.

Registration for the Newton Swim Team will be held on Wednesday, Sept. 25 from 7 to 9 p.m. at Newton North High School. The Swim Team will start on Oct. 15.

Everyone using the North indoor complex must have a recreation identification card and pay the user fee for 1985-86.

THANK-YOU!

For helping us GROW!

MICHAEL M. BARSAMIAN
FOUNDER OF LORD'S & LADY'S

Remember our original location at 450 Belgrade Ave., West Roxbury?

WHERE IT ALL STARTED!!!

Over 13 years ago, Michael M. Barsamian, a West Roxbury native, and his wife "Kaye" opened their first Lord's & Lady's Hair Salon in West Roxbury. Lord's & Lady's offers Professional Hair Styling at Affordable Prices. This is the philosophy that has inspired Mike Barsamian to expand his business to a total of 24 salons by the end of 1985.

In addition to operating the Lord's & Lady's chain, Mike has developed a new chain of salons. Hair Show Cutting Salons offers "Star Quality at Popular Prices." The chain is geared to the "value priced" budget conscious market.

Both salon chains are comprised of company-owned salons and franchise-owned salons. In order to obtain his goal of being an outstanding chain in New England and eventually the United States, Mike has greatly added to his corporate staff. One of these additions is Harry G. Mitchell, C.P.A., who serves as Executive Vice President of the Companies.

As Lord's & Lady's continues to grow, we want to say "Thank You" to all of our customers. You have helped us get where we are today! Watch what we do in the next thirteen years.

Long way to go for library plan

The Board of Aldermen Monday night cleared the way for the two groups' participation by approving a $250,000 appropriation to fund the initial design phase for the library.

Cameron said he is confident the committees will play an integral role in the success of one of the most ambitious city construction projects in recent memory.

Both groups are comprised of residents with extensive experience in construction-related fields ranging from electrical engineering to landscaping. Their most recent work involved coordinating the plans for renovations to the garage facilities at the Crafts Streets Public Works Yard.

Meanwhile, the administration's request for a $30,000 appropriation from surplus to hire a project manager to coordinate every aspect of the library effort will be brought back to aldermen once the job's responsibilities are more clearly defined and the city has a better sense of the time needed to build the facility, Chief Administrator Richard Kelliher said.

Although "the basic plan" to pay for the estimated $12-million facility has already been worked out by the Main Library Facility Committee, the city will submit a more detailed financing approach at "the appropriate juncture," Kelliher said.

No decision has been reached on whether a geological study of the Homer/Walnut site will be performed independently or by Engineering Department staffers.

Cameron said the first step in the library design process is the creation of a "Request For Proposals" (RFP), which serves to outline the scope of work that would be required of interested architectural firms.

The RFP will be reviewed by the eight-member Designer Selection Committee, chaired by Joseph Michaelson, and then advertised with a specific deadline for submissions.

Cameron estimated it would take "somewhere between six and 10 weeks" before the city begins the Designer Selection process because the RFP must be written, approved and then advertised for at least three weeks.

When the RFP is completed, city officials estimate it will take another eight to 10 months before the actual preliminary drawings of the new library are ready.

"When the closing date for responses to the RFP arrives, we package the offers, forward them to each member of Designer Selection and set up a date for them to meet to discuss the proposals," according to Cameron.

The selection committee will then whittle down the offers to a small group that best meet the needs outlined in the RFP and invite officials from those firms in for interviews.

Based on those meetings, the group will recommend to Mayor Theodore D. Mann the names of at least three firms which should be considered for the library design project.

Once the mayor makes his selection, it will be up to the 11-member Design Review Committee, chaired by Sidney Shuman, to help develop a formal contract with the architect.

The review group will also create a step-by-step design schedule for the library project, Cameron said.

Since only enough money for the preliminary design phase has been appropriated, actual construction documents will not be included in the process until the initial plans and additional funds are approved, he added.

For the sake of consistency, the architect chosen to create the preliminary library plans will most likely be the one chosen to completely design the city's new facility, according to Cameron.

"Generally, it works that way. If they didn't get the job, the new firm coming in would have to start all over again," he said.

Frank on Heckler promotion

NEWTON — Former Health & Human Services Secretary Margaret Heckler was "treated somewhat unfairly by the administration," but that is all U.S. Rep. Barney Frank will say about his former opponent's recent fall from grace.

Citing his sometimes bitter redistricting campaign against her in 1982, he said he is "clearly not the best person" to evaluate the circumstances behind what the Reagan administration is painting as an elevation to the post of ambassador to Ireland.

Frank did say he thought Heckler's 16 years in the House of Representatives, where she impressed some of her colleagues on foreign policy issues, made her well qualified for the slot.

The redistricting fight three years ago saw Garden City voters stay solid behind Frank, who beat Heckler in his hometown by 19,000 votes.

Coletti criticized Barker's move, saying, "Unfortunately, the cards of some individuals are being played in a way that disturbs the process."

After board President Carol Ann Shea urged members to "get on with it," Coletti outlined his opposition to Homer/Walnut, claiming other potential sites had been ignored, a library near city hall would over-intensify the area's municipal use and cause parking problems.

Carmichael said Barker's request for no action on the resolution, coming after a well-attended public hearing on the issue, would "throw out the window" all the work put in by library proponents and undermine the "credibility" of the board.

Alderman Richard McGrath called the Homer/Walnut resolution "strategically stupid," arguing that the board would be committed to construction on the site anyway if the preliminary design study revealed no significant problems.

The 15-7 tally that killed the resolution saw the item's four original sponsors — Aldermen Barker, Cynthia Creem, W. Arthur Reilly and Sondra Shick — all come down on the prevailing side.

Earlier, the board defeated by a 18-4 vote Marini's request that the appropriation be reduced to $50,000 for an in-house study of Homer/Walnut's geological suitability.

Marini cited a 1983 study showing groundwater seven feet underground at the site, but both Coletti and Alderman Michael Malec later noted that the same study concluded a three-story library could "easily" be built there.

Bullwinkle, who asked that the issue be taken directly to residents, revived the results of the 1983 referendum to support his argument against the appropriation.

He said the referendum asking voters if the city should override Proposition 2½ to pay for a library effort failed because a majority of citizens "did not want to expend funds a new library."

But Reilly contended the appropriation would produce the hard facts needed for residents to make an intelligent decision about the Homer/Walnut site.

Barker disputed Bullwinkle's interpretation of the referendum results, arguing that residents killed the override because they did not want their tax rates to increase.

Carmichael, who said he could not think of "a worse site" than Homer/Walnut, and Alderman Elaine Gentile, who recalled the expensive construction problems that continue to plague Newton North High School, both hinted that some residents may mount a petition drive to get a library question back on the ballot next year.

Although she claimed the administration forced the library issue by not spending any money for capital improvements on the existing Newton Centre facility, Gentile grudgingly supported the appropriation.

"I honestly feel we have to get the issue off-center in some way, shape or form," she said.

Alderman William Shaevel said he favored Homer/Walnut because it is geographically central location would give the city's villages a "cohesive" focus.

McGrath called the library issue "a political football" and said he would support the appropriation because his instincts tell him a main library will not work at Homer/Walnut.

"Instinctively, I know the Homer/Walnut site is the wrong site for a library. The data supports the site, but my instincts don't. If the site doesn't support a library, we can cut bait and go somewhere else because I don't want another Newton North High School in this city," he said.

McGrath spurred the resolution supporters to abandon their endorsement attempt by saying he would vote against the funding request if he was forced to commit himself for or against the Homer/Walnut site.

A novel approach to earning a living

By Howard Altman
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Sitting at the terminal of his Franklin Ace personal computer and holding up a Russian antique, author Richard Lourie reflects on what he sees as the difference in culture between the United States and the Soviet Union.

"You see this icon?," he asks — grinning the grin of a cat burglar — "I traded a pair of blue jeans for it. It is probably a couple hundred years old, but things like this aren't a big deal in Russia. Blue jeans are. The kid I traded them to probably stole the icon from his grandmother or something."

Lourie's interest in things Russian is no accident. The author of "First Loyalty" — a spy story about a Russian poet who hoodwinks the American media into believing he is something he isn't — credits, in part, a Russian blacksmith named Nathan for his success.

"If it weren't for my grandfather Nathan's decision to come to this country," Lourie says, puffing on a Players cigarette, "I would probably have wound up in the gas chamber or in Siberia. But all that changed, and I grew up in Boston eating hot dogs and rooting for the Red Sox."

His interest in espionage and intrigue is an offshoot of a "hobby" — translating letters smuggled from Russia into English.

"In Russia," Lourie explains, "if you want to get something out of the country without it being read, you have to find another way besides the mail. I get a lot of letters to be translated. I don't know how they get here and I don't want to know."

People, Lourie says, trust him because he does not ask too many questions. In addition, Lourie says he acts as a "communications link" between Russian citizens and American society.

"I have good connections in the media here," he says, "so people get in touch with me."

Sometimes, Lourie says he wonders if the wrong people are trying to get in touch with him. Because of his "hobby," he is reluctant to talk about important things relating to it over the phone. He alludes to Russian surveillance technology as a reason.

"The Russians have sophisticated microwave bugging devices in New York, San Francisco and Washington, D.C. They're probably not bugging me, but you never know."

Lourie adds that he will play it safe. Although he had few problems the last time he visited Russia in 1972, he says he will not take any chances should he visit there again.

"I wonder just how detailed their records of me are," Lourie reflects. "If I do go back, I will be exceedingly careful. I would be putting myself in jeopardy if I got caught. If they do have any records on me, they could make my life miserable. As a result, I won't bring anything into the country that I'm not supposed to, and I won't take anything out of the country that I'm not supposed to. I'd feel too vulnerable."

'To me, being a master would mean earning enough from writing to stay alive.' Author Richard Lourie

Lourie was a 17-year-old student at Newton High School when he discovered his passion for writing. After two years at Boston University, Lourie packed his things and traveled west to Berkeley, Calif. It was the early '60s — heyday of the "beat" generation.

"It was a time capsule," Lourie recalls. "It was a time when we thought we could transform the world into a wonderful place. We were into coffee houses, beards and berets."

It was, for Lourie, also a time to explore other cultures.

"A Polish poet named Czeslaw Milosz got me interested in Polish," Lourie, a Ph.D. in Russian Literature, says. In addition, Lourie picked up French and Italian along the way as well.

He was 31 when he sold his first book — "Sagittarius in Warsaw." Lourie says looking back at that piece is like "reading something my kid brother wrote."

Pulling the story from a real-life experience he had in Russia, Lourie says he is surprised at the book's quality.

"When I read something like that," he says, lighting up another Players, "I am surprised at how good my 'kid brother' was back then."

As in the others, Lourie calls upon his own background in his current book. Many of his characters, like himself, are Jewish. One of them, New York City Police Detective Solly Altheim, has the same attitude toward his religion.

"I would say that I'm religious, but not observant," Lourie notes. "The same, I guess, could be said for Solly. While he is not religious, he does feel guilty for never having said Kaddish (the Jewish prayer of mourning) for his father."

"I have to feel the character inside me," he says, "like someone I know. I have to know how he would do everything. Does he smoke? Does he drink? How does he relate to women? How does he dress? Even if I don't use all the details, I still have to know, so the character can seem real."

Because of the empathy he has toward the characters in print, Lourie says he will not pen another "spy" novel.

"In most spy novels," he says, "the characters are not interesting. I'm basically a writer who likes to play around with different forms. A genre writer like John LeCarre is a spy writer who occasionally likes to do something different."

With the sale of "First Loyalty," Lourie says he is moving up in the world. Though it's his third book, the 45-year-old Dosteyevsky look-alike says he isn't quite ready to light his cigarettes with hundred-dollar bills. The bulk of his income, he says, is still derived mainly from translating Russian and Polish documents into English.

"Right now, I don't make as much money from writing as I do from translating," Lourie says. "It depends on how well the book is doing. This one is doing pretty well. If it does really well, I could cut down on the translating."

He is optimistic, though. There have been nibbles from the film industry to translate his work onto celluloid.

"Someone I know is trying to interest Roman Polanski," Lourie says. "He would be the perfect person to direct the film. The only problem is that he can't get back into this country because of a morals charge."

With the luxury of a man who is about to break it big, Lourie looks back at the lean days and talks of the odds against him and others in his field.

"The economy is against the development of the arts," says Lourie, whose wife Jod is a professional sculptor. "You need a long gestation period to fully develop your craft, but you also need to do something to put food on the table."

He compares his craft to that of a 14th-century tradesmen.

"It's really quite medieval," Lourie hypothisizes about making a living as a writer. "You start off as an apprentice. After a few years, you get to be a journeyman, but you still have a way to go. Twenty years and thousands of words later, you finally get to be a master. To me, being a master would mean earning enough from writing to stay alive."

Hotel excise tax will take effect November 1

By Edward Cafasso
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Newton Monday night became the third city to take maximum advantage of the state's two-month-old hotel/motel excise tax.

The Board of Aldermen voted 17-2 to impose the 4-percent surcharge allowed by the historic legislation, which gave communities their first chance to raise revenue outside of property taxes since the adoption of Proposition 2½ four years ago.

The board's move, which takes effect on Nov. 1, will increase the price of a night's stay in the city's four hotels by anywhere from $1.59 to $4.80, but will also bring more than $70,000 a month into the city's coffers.

Prior to the board's action, only Boston and Waltham had imposed the highest allowable surcharge, but a number of other communities are already considering following suit.

Alderman Richard J. McGrath voted against the new funding source, arguing that there is "something incorrect" about creating a new tax on business and not using the city's record surplus to reduce the tax burden of residents.

Alderman Bruce Carmichael opposed the move on behalf of Alderman Robert Tennant, the staunch business advocate who could not be present because of illness.

There was no other debate on the item.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann proposed a hotel/motel tax several years ago, but state lawmakers did not approve the local option legislation until Boston Mayor Ray Flynn got behind the idea as a way to help bail out the Hub.

A last-minute wording change suggested by the Law Department insures that any amendments to the hotel/motel legislation which occur on the state level cannot take effect here unless approved by the full board.

The Department of Revenue will collect the money generated by the surcharge and redistribute it on a semi-annual basis to the cities and towns that have adopted the idea.

City officials say the new tax will also apply to the room rates at licensed lodging houses, but did not figure those potential funds into their revenue calculations.

Mann intends to use the first two years' worth of hotel/motel money, which amounts to approximately $1.7 million, to help defray the cost of building a new main library.

After that, the more than $840,000 a year expected to be raised by the tax will help offset the planned elimination of the federal revenue sharing program.

New "Energy Pill" Gives Fast Lift Without Worry
All Natural Pepper Upper Sweeping The Country!

BEVERLY HILLS, CA—A dynamic and innovative company in Beverly Hills has just developed and perfected what many people are describing as the "most sensational energy pill ever available!" It's called Energene/500 and it's dynamite!

Imagine a pill so remarkable, so powerful, so awesome in its ability to deliver quick and natural energy that people have actually said they felt so good they thought the pill had to be illegal! But it's not! Energene/500 contains only natural ingredients! And...the ingredients are non-addictive and non-toxic. A real breakthrough for health minded people.

Exotic Ingredients Insure Quick Results

What is this fantastic tablet? How is all this possible? It's really quite extraordinary! The primary ingredient of Energene/500 is Guarana, a potent plant extract, that has been used by the Satere-Mawe Indians of the Amazon Jungle for centuries! They say Guarana provides quick and almost endless energy! In fact, to the Mawes, Guarana is revered as a gift from the gods! And...although never verified, Guarana is thought by many to actually energize and markedly improve their sex lives.

But there's more! Energene/500 also contains one hundred percent pure Chinese Gotu-Kola, known for its super energizing powers, plus an exact amount of vitamins and minerals, in perfect balance, to deliver what countless people are describing as "the best feeling they've ever had!"

It's no wonder Energene/500 is already being used by people from all walks of life who now swear by it. In fact, Energene/500 is the new "Hot Pill" for the executive class. The very people who need instant energy without stress. And who can disagree! Don't we all need an occasional lift, an occasional good feeling for those times when life becomes a bit too much? So why not choose something natural, something legal, even something healthy!

Extraordinary Guarantee

Energene/500 is now available direct from Bio-Force Industries and it comes with an incredible guarantee. One that would be impossible to make if there were even a single doubt about its remarkable effectiveness.

Take Energene/500 anytime you are in need of extra energy. If after 15 minutes you don't feel your energy soaring, if you don't feel completely alert, awake and revitalized, in fact if you don't feel better than you've felt in a long, long time, then simply return the container and Bio-Force Industries will refund your entire purchase price. No questions asked!

Best of all...ordering Energene/500 is simple, fast, and reliable! Simply call Bio-Force Industries, Toll Free. Dial (1-800-453-5400) Ext. 901, and order with your credit card. If you don't have a credit card Bio-Force Industries will also accept C.O.D. orders right over the phone! All orders are shipped immediately by UPS which means no delay and no orders lost in the mail!

$14.95—60 tablets, or $25.95—120 tablets. Operators are standing by and will be glad to take your order. You can order 24 hrs. a day, 7 days a week! Please don't wait to call. Police, court briefs

Seven false prescription charges filed

NEWTON — Marie Olivelli, 31, pleaded not guilty in Newton District Court Monday at her arraignment on seven counts of uttering false prescriptions. She was arrested by State Police during the weekend. She was being held in MCI Framingham in lieu of $50,000 or $5,000 cash bail. Her case was continued to Oct. 15.

Burglary try on Byrd Avenue reported

WEST NEWTON — Police received a report of an attempted burglary in a Byrd Avenue home shortly after midnight Sunday. A woman living in the home told police she came home Saturday night and saw a light on that had not been on when she left the house. She went to a friend's house and several hours later, called the police. A screen was found cut out of one window and a lawn chair had been placed under another window. However, nothing was reported missing.

Teen enters plea in stolen property case

NEWTON — Christopher Stasio, 18, of Winthrop, pleaded not guilty Monday in Newton District Court at his arraignment on a charge of receiving stolen property less than $100. The offense allegedly occurred on Aug. 28. The case was continued to Oct. 31.

Man found guilty for false prescription

NEWTON — James J. Walsh Jr., 60, of Brookline, was found guilty Monday in Newton District Court on a charge of uttering a false prescription. He was placed on probation for one year and ordered to pay $15 into the Victim-Witness Fund. He was arrested Sept. 30 by Newton Police after he allegedly tried to have the prescription filled in Hubbard's Drug Store in Newton Corner.

Moped taken from Chestnut Hill MBTA

CHESTNUT HILL — An orange Motobecane moped worth $350 was stolen from the Chestnut Hill MBTA station Saturday, according to police. The crime was reported to police at 11 a.m. Sunday.

Rock breaks car window, wallet stolen

NEWTON CORNER — A car parked on Chapel Street was broken into Sunday, according to police. A rock was thrown through a window of the 1976 Chrysler LeBaron and a wallet containing credit cards and driver's license was stolen. Also taken was a brown bag containing business papers, said police.

Coffee Connection window smashed

NEWTON CENTRE — A hole was smashed into a window of the Coffee Connection III on Union Street, according to police, who said the crime occurred last week.

City-owned saw taken from pickup truck

NEWTONVILLE A private contractor working in the city's hurricane cleanup effort had a city-owned red Homelite chainsaw stolen from the back of his pickup truck while it was parked near the corner of Crafts and Linwood streets, according to police. A white male wearing a white T-shirt and beard was seen taking the saw out of the truck and walking down the street with it.

Wallet containing $275 missing at mall

CHESTNUT HILL — A Brookline man told police last week his wallet was stolen or lost while he was shopping in Louis Monday in the Chestnut Hill Mall. The wallet contained $275 in cash, credit cards and personal papers, said police.

Vandals, thieves strike numerous cars

NEWTON — Cars were the targets of criminals in the early last week, as 11 were either broken into, stolen or damaged, according to reports received by police last Wednesday.

Hardest hit was Freeman Street in Auburndale, where four cars were tampered with. The upholstery and convertible roof of a 1967 Corvette were slashed and the paint was scratched on the car. At the same address, a 1984 Oldsmobile and a 1981 Datsun were broken into, their glove compartments ransacked and registration certificates were taken.

Several houses up the street, another car, parked in a driveway, was broken into. Two tapes and two mirrors were stolen, and the door was damaged.

Three cars parked at the Woodland MBTA station were broken into. A 1982 Ford Escort had its windshield smashed, but nothing was taken. A 1980 Chevrolet Caprice and a 1980 Cadillac Coupe deVille were also broken into. Their ignitions were popped, but nothing was reported missing from either car.

A red 1985 Pontiac Fiero was reported stolen from the rear of the Charles River Country Club. Police said the theft occurred between 4 p.m. and 5:20 p.m. Wednesday.

On Hammond Street, a 1984 Saab 900S was broken into and an AM-FM radio was ripped from the dash. The car was parked near the Longwood Cricket Club.

A 1984 BMW parked on Milo Street had its rear left window smashed and a Blaupunkt stereo was stolen. The theft occurred Tuesday night, according to police.

A 1976 Chevrolet parked at Newton North High School was broken into Wednesday and some stereo equipment, including an Alpine stereo, was stolen.

Defends hiring now-indicted worker

By John Ombelets
Staff Writer

WATERTOWN — Watertown's community development director last week defended the hiring of a former housing rehabilitation employee now under federal indictment for allegedly extorting more than $10,000 through the program. Department head Gerald Marquis said Newton resident James P. Pepicelli was hired in late 1981 after he received "glowing recommendations" from Cambridge city officials, where Pepicelli had worked in a similar position for five years.

Marquis displayed letters of reference from Cambridge Redevelopment Authority officials attesting to Pepicelli's ability and work habits while employed by that city's community development department from 1977 to 1981.

"We hired him on the basis of those references," Marquis said. "He was not our first choice, but he was virtually even with our first choice."

But during the course of the federal investigation into Pepicelli's work in Watertown, Marquis said he learned that Cambridge officials had not been satisfied with the rehab specialist's job performance.

However, Cambridge Community Development Department spokeswoman Mary Flynn said she was "not aware of instances in which Pepicelli's conduct on the job was called into question" while he was employed in Cambridge.

Pepicelli was laid off in 1981, she said, due to cutbacks in the Section 312 housing program, not because of problems with his work. "He was the last individual hired in the program, and we made the cuts based on seniority," she said.

Nevertheless, a source said federal investigators are now looking into Pepicelli's activities in both Cambridge and Maynard, where he went to work after leaving Watertown in October, 1984.

Pepicelli is charged with extorting money from four contractors, allegedly requiring them to pay him in order to get jobs in Watertown's federally-funded Home Improvement Program. He has pleaded innocent to all charges and also faces 28 counts of bid-rigging.

FBI spokesman John Cloherty said the investigation is "ongoing," but referred all further questions to the US Attorney's office in Boston. Assistant US Attorney Thomas Curley declined to comment on the probe.

Maynard community development director Bernard Lynch confirmed that federal investigators had questioned him this summer about Pepicelli's work for the town's $225,000 Small Cities housing program.

"We cooperated with the US Attorney's office, and we checked our records carefully," Lynch said. "We're satisfied that he (Pepicelli) did nothing questionable here."

But Pepicelli was fired about three weeks ago, Lynch said, after the program coordinator installed new procedures to monitor Pepicelli's work more closely.

"He challenged his supervisor's authority and ability, so we let him go," said Lynch.

Richard Dahlen, Pepicelli's attorney, declined to comment on any aspect of the case, except to say that he is "skeptical" that investigators are widening their probe beyond Watertown.

Meanwhile, Marquis said his office has instituted some new procedures in the Home Improvement Program to try to prevent the abuses Pepicelli is charged with.

The program offers small grants and loans — normally no more than $6,500 — to enable low and moderate-income property owners to bring their homes into compliance with the state building code.

Marquis said his office now gets copies of the building permits and bills before payments are made to contractors. "We also have someone independent of the program signing off on bids when they're awarded," he said.

Indicted for murdering girlfriend's mother

By Gary Dorian
County News Service

CAMBRIDGE — A Middlesex County grand jury has indicted a Salem man and his Newton girlfriend in connection with the brutal stabbing of her 78-year-old mother Sept. 13.

Charged with first degree murder in indictments returned Friday was Tyrone M. O'Neil, also known as Mark Lupo, of Essex Street. Indicted as an accessory after the fact to murder was 37-year-old Susan Aldrich.

The victim, Emily (Littlefield) Aldrich, of 25 Oak Terrace, was found by her daughter in her second floor bedroom stabbed at least five times in the chest and neck, according to police accounts. The victim reportedly also had a slash on her hand.

O'Neil was also indicted in connection with an apparent unrelated incident, involving an attack on a woman on Sept. 1. He was charged by the grand jury with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon, an unknown sharp instrument, and with armed assault with intent to murder Rebekah G. Wells. It is alleged that that attack occurred as she was walking in a park in Newton, said Assistant Middlesex County District Attorney Thomas Brennan.

According to Brennan, it is alleged that Susan Aldrich "covered up" for O'Neil by trying to provide him with an alibi and giving an allegedly phony story to police. Brennan indicated the state is claiming that Aldrich lied when she told police she and O'Neil had been together from 8 p.m. on the evening prior to the slaying to just a little while before she found her mother's body about 10:30 the following morning.

Brennan declined to say whether or not O'Neil has made any admissions to police during an interrogation at the Aldrich home.

Brennan said no motive for the killing has been established "aside from the bad feeling that existed between him and the victim."

O'Neil was called to the scene by Miss Aldrich and investigators reportedly questioned the couple inside the home for more than three hours before arresting him. O'Neil was a caretaker at the Newton Cemetery on Walnut Street.

According to police accounts, a butcher knife in the kitchen may have been the weapon used in the slaying. The assailant, police believed, entered the house through a rear window.

Abstract artist's 'New Works' exhibits memories

While some artists create large bodies of works that express every emotion and situation that has ever occurred in their lives, others are inspired by a specific mood, feeling or moment in time. That is the case for West Newton artist Ruth Fields, whose "New Works on Paper" exhibit opened recently at the Chapel Gallery on Highland Street in West Newton.

In a statement about the 31 works on display at the gallery, Fields writes that these are a "series of works based on the memories and dreams of my Southern childhood." Most of the drawings are similar in style and texture, coloring and light. And, because they are abstracts, they even appear similar in design and structure. But that's where the similarities end. Upon closer inspection, one realizes that each piece is very different — each moving and pensive.

Fields creates her works by using charcoal, graphite, pencil, gouache, and pastels on paper. Most of these works are massive in size and scope. Her variations of line thickness and shape make her works unique. And because they are all based upon the same theme, they seem to tell a story. We witness her memories about her grandmother's backyard; her days of climbing trees and running through the brush in the hot haze of a weekend afternoon. We see the smokehouse, the wash house and the pump house — strange configurations for born and bred New Englanders to relate to, but new and challenging to our imaginations.

Fields remembers that "there were cauldrons for boiling clothes, tools and containers of all kinds." She points out that the containers have become places in which she can store her memories, as opposed to a depository for various objects collected as a child. The visions she has created depict her life. They project the sincerity and thoughtfulness attributed to a happy, but not easy, childhood. Many of her drawings are about containers, vessels, towers — places where memories can be stored away. It's her way of saving these memories without particularly dwelling on them.

Many of the drawings are innately Southern in style and content. The hams hanging quietly and the smokehouse are scenes right out of Alice Walker's Pulitzer Prize winning book, "The Color Purple." We see faces, animals, rage and pathos in these scenes.

Fields' works are quite moving. They will be on display at the Chapel Gallery through Oct. 27.

J.A. Lukas will speak on 'Common Ground'

"What is going on here?" Lukas wondered, when Ted Kennedy was forced off a platform in front of Boston's City Hall Plaza by a hostile anti-busing crowd of hecklers in September of 1974. Today, 11 years later, Pulitzer Prize winning journalist and author J. Anthony Lukas provides insight into this incident and others in his highly-acclaimed new book, Common Ground: A Turbulent Decade in the Lives of Three American Families.

On Tuesday, Oct. 22, at 7:30 p.m., Lukas will discuss this book and the issues behind it at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner. Joan and Colin Diver, one of the three families featured in Common Ground, will also be present at the library to participate in the discussion.

As former South End residents who now live in Newton, much of the Diver's story revolves around the hopes and commitments that led them to move to the edge of downtown Boston, the realities that impelled them to leave in the mid-1970's, and the emotional impact of this decision.

Having turned down a job offer from a prestigious Washington D.C. law firm to devote his Harvard Law School training to urban and social issues, Colin and his wife Joan moved to the South End bound with, as J. Anthony Lukas writes, "a passionate commitment to racial and social integration, a determination to raise their children in a truly heterogeneous community." And for a while they were not disappointed with this community of wide economic, social and racial diversity. "We liked the vibrancy and the lifestyle," says Joan, who at the time was, and still is, executive director of the Hyams Trust, which disperses money for social services and community development.

But as Boston's racial tensions intensified during the school desegragation crisis of the late 1970's, new social tensions crept into the Diver's South End neighborhood. Soon the streets that were filled with "local color" became streets filled with crime. Areas which their children once played in became unsafe to walk in after dark.

At first the Divers optimistically hoped to resolve these tensions. But as their home became the center of a neighborhood "crime watch" they soon "knew so much that it became intolerable," they said.

It was hard to leave the South End neighborhood and the close friends they had made. Having become models for other neighbors who shared their dreams of city living, they associated leaving the South End with "giving up" on those dreams. "What do our friends think of us?," wondered Joan at the time they moved to Newton in 1978, which was about the same time they were approached by author Lukas.

Now a professor and administrator at Boston University's Law School and Chairman of the Massachusetts Ethics Commission, Colin says he is delighted to live in Newton. Describing it as a safe, friendly community with good schools and good facilities, the Divers feel that Newton, as a community, satisfies all their requirements.

Eight years after their move, the Diver family has only praise for Lukas' protrayal of their story and look back on their experiences with new enlightenment. "Tony wanted it (the book) to be a learning experience for all of us," says Joan. Common Ground and the publicity surrounding it has made me rethink and redefine my own values." Lukas, she adds, has an "extraordinary gift — he gets us in the heads of whoever he writes about, and we understand why others may have behaved the way they did."

For Colin Diver, the book was also a chance to reminisce and "take stock." But as he recalls the segmentation and tension of the 1970's he realizes that the book "helps focus people's attention on the commonness of our experience."

The Newton Free Library will provide a forum for J. Anthony Lukas and the Diver family to discuss the book and the larger issues it raises. The program is sponsored by the Friends of the Library. A reception will follow the discussion. Call 552-7145 for more information.

Priscilla Ritter, Chestnut Hill resident and archivist for the City of Newton, has been appointed by the board of the All Newton Music School as archival consultant. A permanent records collection is being established in preparation for the music school's 75th anniversary celebration. Frances Ziegler, long-time Waban resident and former president of the ANMS Board will act as volunteer project director.

All Newton Music School was founded in 1911 under the name of the West Newton Settlement School. In its 75-year history, the music school has established itself as an important component in the historical and cultural fabric of the City of Newton. The archives preserve community items which reflect the school's growth and significance to the city.

The All Newton Music School wishes to obtain memorabilia and papers concerning past events and people involved with the school. Old photos, letters, programs, newspaper clippings, posters, etc. are needed to complete the collection.

The collection will be ready for presentation in the early fall of this year. Anyone wishing to donate or loan memorabilia to the All Newton Music School should call the office of the music school at 527-4553.

Dr. Diana Chapman Walsh of Newton has been appointed associate director of the Health Policy Institute at Boston University.

A native of Philadelphia, Pa., Walsh has been with the Institute since 1977 and has played a central role in the creation and expansion of its Center for Industry and Health Care. Also, she is associate professor of social and behavioral sciences and health systems at Boston University's School of Public Health. She is a published author, known for her work on employee assistance programs, physicians in corporations and corporate smoking policies.

Donald E. Carey, a resident of Newton, received the Robert F. Kennedy Action Corps' highest award, the Distinguished Service Citation, at the Agency's sixteenth anniversary Commemorative Breakfast held at the Parker House in Boston. The Action Corps is a nonpartisan, nonpolitical citizen's memorial to the late Robert F. Kennedy, which operates residential treatment programs for troubled and delinquent children in the state.

Carey was honored in the presence of Senator John F. Kerry, Secretary of Human Services Philip W. Johnston, Patrick and Ted Kennedy, Jr., sons of Senator Edward M. Kennedy, and over 350 state and civic leaders. Carey joined the staff of the Action Corps in 1971 and has served as its Executive Director since 1976. He is leaving his post to pursue other career interests.

Mr. Carey was cited for his outstanding dedication, service and leadership to the agency and service to the children of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

New traditionalism in interior design

By Melissa Sones
UPI Fashion Writer

NEW YORK — As Americans return to traditional values in their personal lives, their tastes in interior design are following suit.

According to Richard Knapple, Bloomingdale's vice president of interior design, this traditionalism is not, however, of the usual country French or Louis XIV ilk.

"It's a return to traditional but (with furniture) used in totally different ways than ever before," said Knapple. "I'm talking about rooms that have no set period. You wouldn't work in all Louis XIV or all Chippendale. Instead you're going to find these things mixed in very different ways."

"Of say 12 pieces of furniture, it's quite possible only three are of the same period. I recently did a room that had contemporary upholstery, the sofa was sort of Euro style — soft, over-upholstered and very inviting.

"Then there was a Japanese chest, a pair of Victorian wicker chairs, two Empire chairs, and art pieces — in this case a console table made by a sculptor — a post-modern coffee table, a Palladian bookcase, a '30s table and a suggestion of a classical drapery treatment."

The new look is relaxed, comfortable and somewhat formal. "It's not the stiff form of traditionalism," stressed Knapple. "It's almost non-decorator looking."

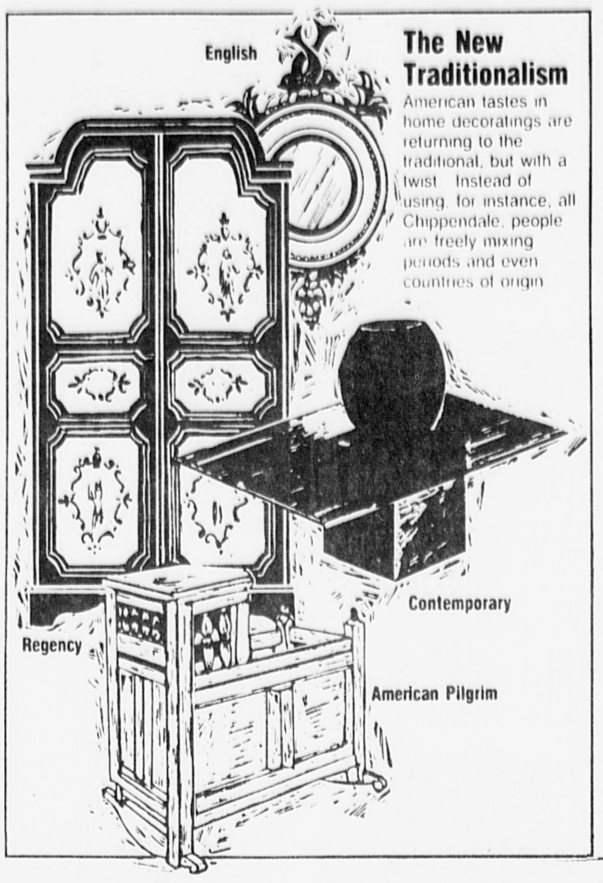

Use of stone

One important element in the new traditionalism is increased use of stone, especially marble, granite, fossil and sandstone in tables, floors, and walls. Continuing an already popular trend, people are painting stone finishes, especially faux granite and marble, on walls and small pieces of furniture.

The new traditionalism is also characterized by increased use of metal, although it is no longer the high-tech favorites — brass and polished chrome. "Now it's weatherized, hammered iron, and metal that has patina to it," said Knapple.

"The effect is to walk into a room that doesn't look like it's just been done but that has evolved over years," he said. "It could be a cocktail table with a metal base and granite top. It could be an etagere that would be sort of hammered wrought iron with maybe glass shelves."

Along with metal, there is renewed interest in wooden furniture and less emphasis on shiny laquered surfaces. "I think woods are going to become lighter and more exotic," said Knapple, citing new interest in zebrawood, a hard striped wood native to the Guiana region of South America.

The New Traditionalism
American tastes in home decoratings are returning to the traditional, but with a twist. Instead of using, for instance, all Chippendale, people are freely mixing periods and even countries of origin.

So with lacquered surfaces and chrome on the wane, is high-tech gone? "I think it's gone but that doesn't mean a remnant couldn't be used in what I'm talking about," said Knapple. "You might have a table just next to a very traditional sofa but that cold sleek look is totally gone."

Classical trend

In furniture, the trend is to the classical. Bloomingdale's current bestseller is the Baker Palladian collection. Based on the designs of 18th century Italian architect Andrea Palladio, bookcases, dining table legs and coffee tables are distinguished by pediments, tilasters, columns and cornices and "other strictly architectural details."

"It's very architectural," said Knapple. "It's neo-classical but it's a totally new look. It sort of began with the new post-modern architecture that has its roots in classical architecture, as in the pedimented AT&T building," said Knapple.

No matter what furniture one owns or buys, though, the overall effect must be non-decorator and unique. As such, it is more difficult to achieve than previous looks dictated by formula. "It has to be done very cleverly," said Kanpple. "You just cannot go in and throw it together."

Common denominator

His advice is to start as he does, by asking how the room is going to function, how many people you plan to sit comfortably, whether you plan to include a stereo, books, a place to eat. Then collect photographs of rooms that appeal to you, looking for a common denominator.

Finally, "try to use as many basic styles as possible." In selecting them, look for very simple clean lines "that have almost no period. There are classics all through the '20s, '30s, and '40s. Even now we're starting to see classics from the '50s that always work," Knapple said.

Put "your punch" into a few additional pieces that can be sacrificed in 10 years. And even if you can't afford an interior designer, Knapple strongly suggests at least splurging on a consultation.

Cold weather boosts the risk of home fire

By Steve Hurtado
Copley News Service

Residential fires kill about 4,000 people in the United States every year. Many of these fires can be traced to overworked furnaces and space heaters and user carelessness, according the the Insurance Information Institute.

Central heating systems that have been checked and serviced are the safest form of heating in extremely cold weather, according to the institute. And central heating systems should be used at night when people are sleeping.

Kerosene heaters, electric space heaters and wood stoves need to be watched at all times. They aren't designed for use while people are sleeping, the institute cautioned.

Kerosene heaters have potential dangers such as fire or explosion, burns, asphyxiation and indoor air pollution.

Portable electric heaters don't have the pollution or explosion problems associated with fueled heaters, but some tip over easily and so shouldn't be left unattended, the institute said.

Although wood-burning stoves generally are made well, they are dangerous if not properly cared for and cleaned.

All heating devices, although potentially dangerous, are useful and practical if operated properly.

Families can lessen the risks with portable heaters and wood stoves by following safety tips, holding fire drills and developing a family escape plan.

Family fire safety involves:

— Eliminating potential fire hazards.

— Installing and maintaining smoke detectors.

— Developing and practicing a family escape plan.

The institute recommends that a smoke detector be installed in any hallway leading to bedrooms — homes with more than one level or hallway should have several detectors. Check the batteries often.

A family escape plan includes sketching the layout of each floor and making sure everyone is familiar with the layout. There should be frequent fire drills, including some at night, and everyone should assemble at a designated meeting place outside the home.

To help prevent fires, the institute is offering a free packet of "Be Fire Smart" leaflets. They include tips on kerosene heaters, wood stoves and fire safety for home owners, renters and high-rise apartment dwellers. Single packets are available free by calling toll-free 1-800-221-4954.

Check level of humidity in winter

By Karen Caldwell
Copley News Service

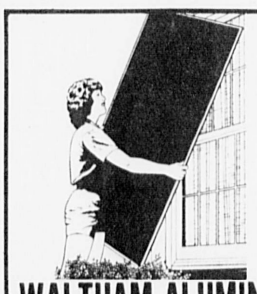

If your thermostat is set at 68 F and family members complain that they're cold, don't automatically turn up the thermostat. Instead, check the level of humidity in your home.

A room temperature of 68 F can be a comfortable setting during cold months — if indoor relative humidity is maintained at a proper level, according to Floyd Carlstrom, spokesman for Research Products Corp., a manfacturer of humidifiers and air purification devices.

If a home doesn't have proper humidity, dry air steals moisture from everything in it, so glued joints in furniture become loose, walls and ceilings crack, excessive static electricity develops and wood framing around doors and windows shrink.

Dry air also evaporates moisture from skin, a cooling process that makes people feel chilly even at high thermostat settings.

Stage set for homemakers

Transcript Newspapers is again inviting local residents to attend their 4th Annual Homemakers Show and Cooking School on Friday evening, Nov. 8, at Norwood Junior High School, South Norwood.

Admission to the show is free, but tickets must be obtained in advance from Transcript Newspapers.

The prior three Transcript Homemakers Shows have been "sell-outs," and audiences have given both shows good reviews. The stage of the junior high school will be transformed into a modern kitchen with electric ranges, ovens, microwave oven, refrigerator, food processor and everything else needed by home economist Diane Gryger White.

She will be demonstrating a dozen recipes, and all food prepared will be given away as door prizes at the end of the show.

Appliances on stage are being supplied by Poirier Sales & Service, 1015 Washington St., Norwood, one of the area's oldest and most respected appliance sales and service organizations. Commenting on the show, Bob Poirier said,

Diane Gryger White

"The Homemaker Show is an ideal opportunity for us to show off our quality products in an atmosphere of live action and audience interest. We're proud to work with Transcript Newspapers in this informative and fun show."

Professional home economist Diane Gryger White will be showing new techniques, hints and tips that will make cooking, baking and kitchen work more fun for everyone.

Free coupons, special door prize opportunities and a copy of the 1985 Homemakers School Cookbook will be given to everyone attending the show.

Transcript Newspapers' show is one of 300 locations selected from 48 states to be included in the Homemakers Show schedule. Diane Gryger White is the Northeast representative for Homemakers Schools of Madison, Wis., the largest producer of homemaker-oriented presentations. She drives 40,000 to 50,000 miles per year covering the 11 Northeast states doing two to three shows per week during the fall, winter and spring seasons.

There is plenty of free parking at Norwood Junior High School. Doors open at 6:30 p.m., and show time is 7:30 p.m. Seating is on a first-come basis.

Admission tickets may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to any one of Transcript's three offices: Homemakers Show, Transcript Newspapers, P.O. Box 70, Dedham, MA 02026; P.O. Box 69, Waltham, MA 02254; or P.O. Box 9, Norwood, MA 02062.

There is a limit of two tickets per request so that there may be as even a distribution as possible.

Diet Pills Sweeping U.S.

Doctor Study Says New 'Hi-Tech' Pills Give You "3 Times" Faster Weight Loss

No Dieting—Eat Normally Diet Pills Do All the Work

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special)—Good news for people who want to lose weight. In a recent highly successful clinical weight loss study, ALL people tested lost weight using an amazing new "hi-tech" diet pill program. The study was conducted by a panel of medical doctors in California on several groups of overweight people and the results proved conclusively that the new hi-tech pills test group lost weight almost "3 times faster" than the group tested using the famous grapefruit pill diet.

All Lost up to 1 lb. Per Day

Best of all, the pills allow you to "continue to eat all of your favorite foods without changing your normal eating or exercising habits and still lose weight easier and faster than ever before, starting immediately." Remarkably, ALL people in the new 'hi-tech' pills clinical test group lost weight (an average of ½ lb. per day up to 1 lb. per day.) It also helps eliminate bloat and puffiness.

"Pills Do All the Work"

According to the clinical study, "the pills alone do all the work while you quickly lose weight with NO starvation "diet menus" to follow, NO calorie counting, NO special exercise, and NO hunger pangs." You simply take the pills with a glass of water before meals.

Powerful Appetite Suppressants

The new pills contain a powerful clinically proven appetite suppressant that an advisory panel of doctors have determined to be "safe and effective for weight loss."

In addition, the pills also contain a remarkable calorie-free dietary fiber that expands in your stomach and tends to give you a partially satisfied feeling before you eat. Thus, the new combination of ingredients in the pills act 2 ways to aid in curbing your appetite, causing you to eat less, take in less calories, and lose weight without feeling deprived or hungry.

Pills Contain ALL Daily Vitamins

No need to take any vitamins to maintain your good health and energy because the pills are fortified with ALL (100%) of the U.S. Government USRDA recommended daily vitamin requirements.

The amazing 'hi-tech' diet pills are already sweeping the country with glowing reports of easy and fast weight loss from formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Now Available to Public

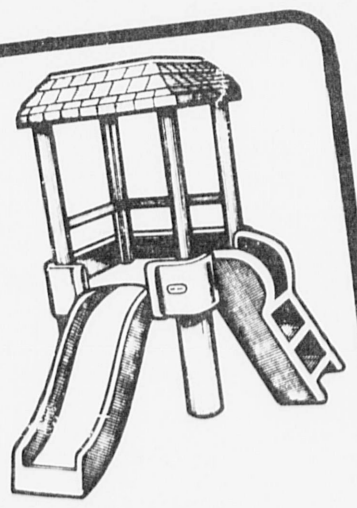

You can order your supply of these new highly successful 'hi-tech' diet pills (now available directly from the manufacturer by mail or phone order only) by sending $14 for a 15-day supply (or $20 for a 30-day supply, or $35 for a 60-day supply) cash, check or money order to: HI-TECH Products, 717 Central Ave., Dept. W14 Kansas City, Kansas 66101. (30 day unconditional money-back guarantee if not 100% satisfied.) Visa, MasterCard, and Amer. Express OK. (Send card number, expiration date, and signature.) For fastest service for credit card orders ONLY call anytime 24 hrs. TOLL FREE 1-(800) 222-9969 ext. W14

You should consult a physician before going on any diet and carefully read label warnings. (C) Copyright 1985 Hi-Tech Products

Katharine L. Howard, 90

Worked for Newton Recreation Dept.

AUBURNDALE — A memorial service for Katharine L. Howard, 90, of Auburndale, was held in the Newton Cemetery Chapel, Walnut Street, Newton Centre, Friday. Burial was in Vermont.

Miss Howard died Wednesday in Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

Born in Bradford, Vt., Miss Howard had been a resident of Auburndale for most of her life.

Miss Howard was one of the oldest living former employees of the Newton Recreation Department, where she had been employed for many years until her retirement. Until recently, she had attended many of the functions of the department.

She leaves her nephews, Frank Howard of Garland, Tex., Gordon Howard of Toledo, Ohio, and Jack Howard of Saginaw, Mich.; her sister-in-law, Elizabeth Howard of Toledo, Ohio; several grand nieces and grand nephews; her friend, Dorothy Harvey of Auburndale. She was also a friend of late Kathleen Fairweather.

Santina Geraci, formerly of Newton

NEEDHAM — A funeral mass was celebrated Monday morning at St. Joseph's Church in Needham for Santina (Geraci) Geraci, 76.

Formerly of Newton Centre, she was a resident of Needham for 19 years. Born in Italy, she was a member of the Needham Senior Citizens.

She was the wife of the late John, the mother of Frank A. and Catherine Mancini, both of Needham, and John M. of Providence, R.I. She is also survived by eight grandchildren.

Samuel E. Angoff, 78

Former state racing commissioner

HOLLYWOOD, FLA. — A graveside service was held Sunday in the Star of David Memorial Park, Hollywood, Fla., for Samuel E. Angoff, 78, of Hollywood, former Massachusetts racing commissioner under Gov. Francis Sargent, and one of the early figures in the establishment of the Boston chapter of the Newspaper Guild.

A retired partner in the former Boston law firm of Angoff, Goldman, Manning and Pyle, Mr. Angoff was named to the state Racing Commission in 1971.

Mr. Angoff was honored in May, 1971, by the Jewish Labor Committee Trade Union Council, when he received the Human Rights Award for 40 years in which "he dedicated himself to winning the basic rights of economic security and dignity for working people" at the Sidney Hill Country Club in Chestnut Hill.

Other testimonials honoring his "pioneering work in labor law," were held at the Charles River Park Synagogue in May, 1976, and by the Israel Histadrut also held at the Sidney Hill Country Club in 1979.

Born in Boston, Mr. Angoff was a graduate of Boston University Law School.

In his youth, he had been involved with the old sulky racing at Franklin Field in Dorchester and he had been an early organizer of the Newspaper Guild, which he helped charter in 1934.

Among his clients were such unions as the Newspaper Guild, the International Union of Electrical Workers and the United Steelworkers of America.

Closely associated with Democratic politics, he was involved in the presidential campaign of John F. Kennedy and attended the inaugural in 1961.

He had been a member of the National Labor Relations Board, federal courts and the Massachusetts and the Federal Bar associations and had often lectured on labor law at various New England forums.

He leaves four sisters, Frances Krause, Esther Angoff, Judy Angoff, Lillian Angoff, all of Brookline; a brother, Alan of New Jersey.

Dorothy M. Kelly, 80

Taught at Mason-Rice School in Newton

NEEDHAM — A funeral mass was celebrated Tuesday morning at St. Joseph's Church in Needham for Dorothy M. (Hughes) Kelly, 80.

Born in Waltham, she was a resident of Needham for 48 years. She was a retired third-grade teacher from the Mason-Rice School in Newton, where she taught for 38 years. She was a graduate of Framingham State Teachers College, a member of the Massachusetts Teachers' Association, and a former member of St. Joseph's Guild.

She was the wife of the late Michael, and the sister of the late Henry, Harold and Helen Robinson. She was the aunt of Mrs. Anthony J. (Joanne) Fraini and Mrs. Paul A. (Kathleen) Martin, both of Needham. She was the great-aunt of Michael A. Friani and David P. Martin, both of Needham.

C. Ronald Stevens, 83

Was Frost Motors salesman

NEEDHAM — A funeral service was held Friday morning in Christ Episcopal Church Chapel, Needham, for C. Ronald Stevens, 83, of Needham.

Born in Pittsburgh, he had lived in Needham for 21 years and was a retired automobile salesman with Frost Motors in Newton.

Mr. Stevens attended Worcester Academy and was employed by many local dealerships before joining Frost Motors, where he worked for 15 years.

He was a member of the Retired Men's Club in Needham.

He is survived by his wife, Virginia (Wakefield); a son, Ronald E. of Centerville; a daughter, Carolyn Sperry of Woodbridge, Conn.; a sister, Margaret Schneider of Walpole; nine grandchildren.

Atty. Estelle Sykes, 79

NORWOOD — A funeral mass will be said Thursday at St. George Catholic Church in Norwood at 10 a.m., for Attorney Estelle (Randelunas) Sykes, 79. Burial will be in Highland Cemetery, Norwood.

Mrs. Sykes died at her home on Monday after a long illness.

Locally she leaves her grandson, John K. Sykes of Chestnut Hill. She aiso is survived by her husband, Atty. Benjamin G. Sykes; her children, Atty. Bernard G. Sykes Jr. of Walpole, Atty. Kenneth Sykes of Pembroke; her brother, John Roudels of Walpole; and four other grandchildren, Bernard G. III of Walpole, Deborah T. Bellingham of Cambridge, Heather of Medfield and Penny of Boston. She was the mother of the late Gerald P. Sykes.

A resident of Norwood for 60 years, Atty. Sykes was born in Lithuania and was a graduate of Brighton High School and of the Portia Law School in Boston.

Helen E. (Lenaerts) Hall, 82

AUBURNDALE — A private funeral service for Helen E. (Lenaerts) Hall, 82, of Auburndale, will be held at the Wentworth Chapel, 30 Prospect St., Waltham. Burial will be in Forest Hills Cemetery, Jamaica Plain.

Born in Roslindale, she had lived in Auburndale for 60 years. She was a member of the Christian Science Mother Church of Boston and a member of the Palestine Chapter, OES of Newtonville and the Auburndale Women's Club.

She was the wife of Asa R. Hall. She leaves a daughter, Elizabeth Garner of Hopkinton; two sons, Read Hall of Auburndale and Frederick Hall of North Andover; eight grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

James B. Augusta, 10

WEST ROXBURY — A funeral mass was celebrated last week in Holy Name Church, West Roxbury, for James Brian Augusta, 10, of Roslindale, who died in Children's Hospital from injuries he suffered after being struck by a truck Sunday on Belgrade Avenue in Roslindale.

Born in Boston, he lived in Roslindale all his life.

Locally, he is survived by two aunts, Virginia Courtney of Newton, Mary O' Neill of Watertown. He also is survived by his parents, Thomas R. and Anne M. (O'Neill) Augusta; a brother and two sisters, Jeffrey Augusta, Julie Anne Augusta and Christine E. Augusta, all of Roslindale; his grandparents, Robert and Eleanor Augusta of Roslindale; his uncles, Robert O'Neill of Missouri, John O'Neill of Mansfield, Richard O'Neill of Acton, Robert Augusta, Jr. of West Roxbury, John Augusta of Walpole, Raymond Augusta of Hyde Park; five other aunts, Barbara Callahan of N. H., Catherine O'Neill of Easton, Carol Meehan of West Roxbury, Susan Meikelham of Cohasset, Diane Scarramuzzo of Norwood, Kimberly Augusta of Roslindale and 13 cousins. He was the grandson of the late Victor and Virginia O'Neill.

A. Ruth Toombs, 90

NEWTON CENTRE — A. Ruth Toombs, 90, of Idaho Falls, Idaho, a retired teacher who taught in the Waltham public school system for more than 23 years, died Sept. 24 at the Bay Front Medical Center in Idaho Falls. Following cremation the burial of her ashes will be in the Toombs family plot in Newton Cemetery, Newton Centre. No funeral services are planned.

Born in West Newton, she was baptized in the Second Congregational Church.

A graduate of Framingham Normal School, she had been a teacher in Massachusetts for 46 years.

The daughter of the late John Henry Toombs and Alice Rachel (Smith), she leaves her niece, Donna Ruth Stone of Idaho Falls, Idaho, one grand niece and a nephew, also of Idaho Falls.

Jermaine C. Neary, sister of Newton

WALTHAM — The funeral of Jermaine C. (Gurney) Neary, 58, of Waltham, was held from the Francis J. Joyce & Son Funeral Home, 245 Main St., Waltham, Saturday, followed by a funeral mass in St. Charles Church. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery, Waltham.

Mrs. Neary died last week at WalthamWeston Hospital, following a lengthy illness.

Born in Worcester, Mrs. Neary had lived in Waltham for most of her life and had been employed by the Canteen Corp. and by the Raytheon Company for many years.

The daughter of the late Arthur Gurney and the sister of the late Lena Myers and Grace White, she leaves her husband Gerald J. Neary; her children, Stephen G. of Waltham, Joanne Brasco of Dunedin, Fla. and Paula J. Grant of Abington; her mother, Mary (McIsaac) Gurney of Waltham; her brothers and sisters, Arthur Gurney, William Gurney, Yvonne Coye, Katherine Leone, Mary Ellen Hyson, all of Waltham, Florence Russo of Newton; four grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

Mary F. Driscoll, son of Newton

BROCKTON — A funeral mass was celebrated Saturday morning in St. Gregory's Church, Dorchester, for Mary F. (Moore) Driscoll, 82, of Brockton.

Locally she leaves a son, Michael J. Driscoll of Newton. She also is survived by another son, Kevin J. Driscoll of Calif.; four daughters, Patricia M. Rielly of Brockton, Barbara A. Pobolsky and Cathleen F. Bishop, both of Sharon, Eileen M. Feeney of Milton; four brothers, James Moore and Walter Moore, both of Everett, Edward Moore of New Hampshire, Joseph Moore of Texas; two sisters, Elizabeth Moore and Gertrude More; 14 grandchildren. She was the wife of the late Patrick J. Driscoll.

Born in Everett, Mrs. Driscoll had lived in Dorchester before moving to Brockton.

Gertrude Lanman, born in Newton

DUXBURY — A memorial service was held last week in the Unitarian-Universalist Church, Duxbury, for Gertrude (Bradlee) Lanman, 86, of Duxbury, formerly of Chestnut Hill. Burial was in Mayflower Cemetery, Duxbury.

Born in Newton, Mrs. Lanman had been a resident of Chestnut Hill, prior to her moving to Duxbury 25 years ago. She was a graduate of the former Winsor School, Boston.

A member of the Newton Visiting Nurse Association, she was the first woman director of the American Cancer Society.

During World War I, Mrs. Lanman was a nurse's aide at Massachusetts General Hospital and served in Labrador with the Grenfell Mission. She was a volunteer for many years at Jordan Hospital, Plymouth, and at Children's Hospital Medical Center, where her late husband Dr. Thomas H. Lanman was a pediatric surgeon.

She was a board manager of Vincent Hospital, formerly part of Massachusetts General Hospital, and was a member of the Duxbury Yacht Club.

She leaves a son, Thomas H. Lanman, Jr. of Duxbury; two daughters, Gertrude Lanman of Newton, Mrs. Lewis H. Brown of Boothbay, Me.; eight grandchildren.

Mary (Joyce) Bird, formerly of Newton

SUDBURY — The funeral of Mary F. (Joyce) Bird, 90, in Marlboro, formerly of West Newton, was held from the William R. Duckett Funeral Home, 656 Boston Post Rd. (Route 20), Sudbury, Wednesday, followed by a funeral mass in St. Matthias Church, Marlboro. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery, Waltham.

Mrs. Bird died Sunday at Braemore East Nursing Home.

Born in Boston, she was a former member of St. Bernard's Parish in Newton, and had been an active political worker in the Republican party.

She was a late member of the Pomeroy House of Newton and the Rebecca Lodge of Newton, the Ladies Auxiliary of the Waltham American Legion, the Grange and Pamona in Waltham.

Martin A. Thyne, brother of Chestnut Hill

JAMAICA PLAIN — A funeral mass was held last week in St. Thomas Aquinas Church, Jamaica Plain, for Martin A. Thyne, 86, of Jamaica Plain and Mashnee Village.

Locally he is survived by a brother, Rudolph Thyne of Chestnut Hill. He also is survived by another brother, Joseph Thyne of West Roxbury; a sister, Mary Thyne of Jamaica Plain; a daughter, Josephine Murphy of Jamaica Plain.

A member of the Carmen's Union Local 589, Mr. Thyne had received a plaque presented to the Thyne family in recognition of the family's 30 years of service to the MBTA.

Born in Arlington, he had lived most of his life in Jamaica Plain, spending his summers in Mashnee.

George Krozy

NEWTON HIGHLANDS — Funeral services were held Friday at the Stanetsky Memorial Chapels, Brookline, for George I. Krozy of Newton Highlands.

He was the father of Susan Smith of Needham.

74 years of golf for Marty Terr of Woodland GC

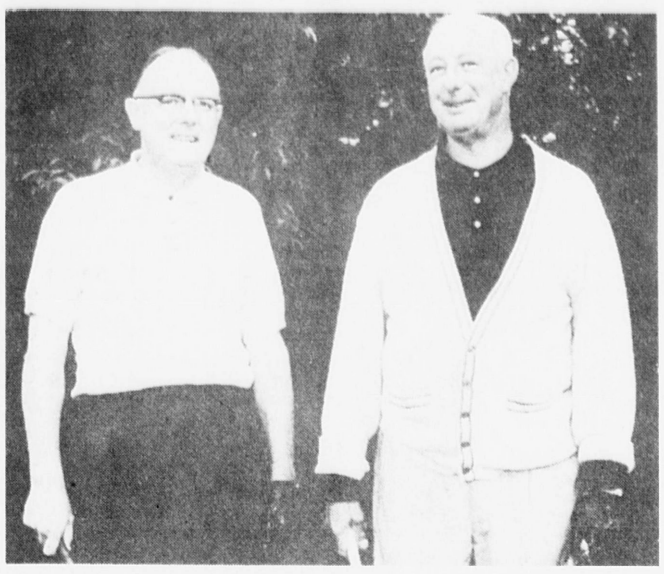

By Tom Murphy, Senior Editor

Woodland Golf Club in Auburndale, home of three former national champions, has yet another distinction in the person of Martin A. Terr, longtime resident of Newton. Marty has been playing golf for 74 years and is still swinging as vigorously as ever.

On Sunday, Oct. 20, Woodland will be celebrating his 85th birthday with a shotgun tournament and reception. Terr joined the club in 1938 when Francis Ouimet, Jesse Guilford and Ted Bishop, who gained U.S. Amateur fame, were fellow members.

He played with all three of them, once possessing a 6 handicap that made him a factor in member-guest tournament competition with Ted's brother, Leon, veteran Thorny Lea standout. Today, the Terr drives don't go as far and putts don't drop as regularly, but scoring within his handicap makes him a weekend money winner.

Marty Terr's involvement in golf began as an 11-year-old caddying at Franklin Park, two or three mashie shots from his Dorchester home. He describes it as being a "lush and mighty fine" course to which lots of big wheels came in chauffeur-driven cars to play. "Bob Jones traveled from Harvard for practice rounds," he remembers.

Another reminiscence. "They never cut the grass at Franklin Park. Sheep were used. The sheep went this way and that way when the players came through. No one seemed to mind. There were a lot of caddie tournaments and I played a lot."

As old-timers recall, Woodland was a far different course before World War II. With no watering system and a lack of equipment like that of today, burned out fairways, jungle-like rough, pockets of dust and peat bog fires which flared off the 8th fairway made the going rugged.

Lean and limber, then and now, Marty had a golf swing that hasn't changed much. "Keep your head down, your left arm stiff and follow through," is the advice he got at the start. He says professionals are still saying the same thing except for a "lot more of this and that."

He is an ambassador of good will within the club and has a host of friends outside, notably in the Newton and Waltham city governments. Numbered among them are Waltham Mayor Arthur J. Clark, a longtime Woodland member, DPW Director Ed Delaney and City Purchasing Agent Rusty Mula.

Marty Terr retired partially 30 years ago to do as "little as possible" in his detergent sales business and play as much golf as possible. A great recipe for longevity.

Newton South defense notches second shutout

By Mike Stoller
Sports Correspondent

ROXBURY — Near the end of August when the Newton South Lions were gearing up for the 1985 football campaign, it wouldn't have taken a genius to convince you that Murphy's Law was destined to take its toll on this young team.

But so far the Lions have effectively turned the rule around: For the third consecutive game, anything that could go right for South did.

Indeed, Newton looked sharp in posting a stunning 20-0 shutout over the Madison Park High School Cardinals Saturday afternoon in the pouring rain.

So sharp that even South coach Art Kojoyian had to admit his team didn't do much wrong.

"I don't think we made many mistakes today," the skipper said. "It's hard work for the kids, but winning makes it a lot better. They've responded well to what's been asked of them.

The coach will get no argument there. After all, what more could you ask for from a group that has whizzed off three straight victories, including back-to-back shutouts in the last two contests (the other coming against Keefe Technical last Monday)?

But what made Saturday's win even more impressive was that Newton showed its offensive strength right from the start against a much bigger and more physical ball club.

In fact, the Lions were off and running on their first possession. South star tailback Kevin Rollins (88 yards on 16 carries, including a touchdown), gave the visitors a first down on a nine-yard dash to mid-field. On the next play, quarterback Ben Burlingame was thrown for a one-yard loss, but the sophomore signal caller, showing all the confidence of a senior, got right back up and executed a perfect option play, taking the ball himself for an 18-yard gain and a first down to the Cardinal 33. Three plays and one first down later, the Lion QB rolled right before pitching to Rollins, who sprung loose for another 10-yarder and brought the ball to the Madison eight. Then, after plowing his way through for five more, Rollins promptly scored on a three-yard breakthrough and added the conversion to give South an 8-0 advantage. Little did the Lions know, the 61-yard drive was all they needed on this day.

The Newton defense wasn't on the field very much, but when it was, it it was equal to the task, allowing Madison just five first downs all afternoon.

"Defensively, we're still growing," Kojoyian said, "but we're jelling a little better...I'm pleased with their (the defense) performance."

And he had reason to be. Although South's offense was held in check for the rest of the first half, the Cardinals hardly posed any offensive threats themselves. Madison controlled the ball only twice before the break and had to boot it away both times.

So despite a rather dismal afternoon weatherwise, football-wise things really were looking as bright as the sun for the Lions. And they began to look even brighter once the third quarter got underway.

After South's stingy "D" forced the Cardinals to punt once again, Newton running back Dave Mosby (54 yards on 13 carries, including two touchdowns) took charge of the Lion offense, rushing for 26 yards on five carries and capping a 53-yard drive on a one-yard plunge to make the score 14-0. The pass conversion failed.

Then, South's Seth Oliver recovered a Cardinal fumble on the ensuing kickoff before Newton's potent offense expanded the margin to 20-0 early in the final frame. Mosby jostled his way up the middle for a five-yard TD run to finish off a 35-yard drive and close out the scoring.

"Mosby did a helluva job," Kojoyian said, noting that the entire Lion offense executed very well. "The wishbone offense is a great offense for us." The coach also cited Rollins, John Morgan and John Hillis as playing well throughout the game.

With over six minutes left in the contest, the rest of the way was what sports fans like to call garbage time. The Lions went with their second team, but the only attack the Cardinals could muster up was a 14-yard pass play from quarterback Chester Robinson to flanker Robert Askew. Needless to say, it was too little too late.

North outlasts Brookline in volleyball

NEWTON — Brookline gave Newton North a real duel on Friday, but the Tigers finally came out on top in a 15-9, 9-15, 15-10 volleyball match at North.

The match was dead even going into the final game, even down to the scores of the first two.

But that changed in game three, as the Tigers finally took charge down the stretch. A big block by Niki cradle helped turn things around, as did good setting by senior Tessa Forbes.

Joanna Giddon put down a couple of terrific spikes, and Nancy Sullivan was her usual consistent self.

North also got a boost from freshman outside hitter Jodi Rogers, who served very well, nailing a couple of aces during her stint.

Now 7-1, the Tigers host Waltham on Wednesday.

Waltham lost in two straight to a solid Boston Latin club, 15-7, 15-10, at Latin on Friday.

Tiger booters blank Cantabs

NEWTON — Another test and another passing grade for the Newton North boys' soccer team. The Tigers put the offense and defense together for another 80 minutes to defeat Suburban League rival Cambridge Rindge and Latin on Thursday, 4-1, at North.

Peter Bourland stayed right on track for the Tigers, scoring his team's last three goals, giving him 18 in six games.

Just as important in this one was the defense of Zofar Kahn. He had the unenviable task of shadowing top Cantab gunner Nemesio Braz, and "did a great job," according to North coach Roger Brown. "That was a key early."

Braz did score once, at the 14-minute mark of the second half on a cross from Keith Meszoli, but by that time Newton had built a three-goal lead.

Within nine minutes, Bourland had nullified Braz' score with his third goal of the afternoon.

That score was assisted by co-captain Ed O'Brien, in his second game back from a preseason injury.

North's other defensive stalwart was goalkeeper Adam Aronson, who kept Cambridge from getting back into the game with a couple of brilliant stops in the second half.

Midway through the half, he came up with two point-blank saves on Braz, one a deflection, the other a kick saves. Later he made a super save on a direct kick from 20 yards out.

With the defense holding Braz at bay, the offense built a three-goal lead by the half.

Josh Albert started it at the 19-minute mark. Ken Kazarosian's throw in went to Jeff Swett. He beat two defenders and slid the ball forward to Albert, who banged in a nice left-footed shot from 18 yards out.

Thirteen minutes later Bourland took over his usual duties, taking a pass at midfield from Eric Constantino, dribbling through two defenders and beating the goalie from 10 yards out.

"Zofar played an outstanding game," said Brown. The coach also praised Brian Scales and Stuart Jackson for their efforts on defense.

Offensively, Brown is happy with the way the passing game is developing: "we're doing better with our short game. They're playing extremely well," said Brown.

North girls outrun Waltham

NEWTON — Depth was the difference on Wednesday as Newton North took a 27-30 girls' cross country victory over Waltham at Cold Springs Park. North's Magda Kornitzer took first, Waltham grabbed three of the next four places, but then the Tigers took over. The Hawks were able to take only one of places 6-10.

"It was a good, heated battle," said Hawk coach Joe Tranchita. "Our lack of depth caught up with us."

In a duel of sophomores, Kornitzer held off Waltham's Precious Hill over the 3.1-mile course. Kornitzer finished at 19:49, with Hill nine seconds back. Lisa Giovanetti of the Hawks grabbed third at 20:43, only three seconds ahead of Tara Feeney (Newton North).

Judith Linnehan of Waltham was fifth at 21:04.

Only Karen Feeley was able to crack Newton's domination in the second five. The Hawk captain took eighth.

North coach Peter Martin agreed that it was the depth that was the difference, calling this "a race that was won by the team. It was our ability to put nine people in before his (Tranchita) fifth runner came in."

Kornitzer's time will stand as the course record, since it was the first time on that course for the Tigers.

Another runner Martin was very happy with was team captain Erin O'Leary.

"She ran the best race of her life," said the coach. O'Leary took sixth behind Linnehan in 21:43.

It might have been a bit of an off-day for Linnehan, though she, like many of the girls on both teams, gears her training toward the post-season meets.

"Our expectations are very high," said Tranchita. "Her training is geared for the end of the season, not for the dual meets. It's largely unfair to put her in that situation (but) we were 2-0 going in and had to go for it. She wasn't ready for a head-to-head confrontation.

Tranchita was still pleased with the way some of his girls ran, particularly Hill and Giovanetti.

"It was a good learning race for Precious even though she was beaten," said Tranchita. "The experience was valuable for her."

Feeley also did well in her first serious competition since a stress fracture at the end of the 1984 season.

Waltham, 2-1, hosts Brookline on Tuesday, while North, 1-0, duels North Quincy on the same day, again at Cold Springs Park. That meet will probably decide the Suburban League championship, since it's unlikely that a healthy Newton North or North Quincy squad will lose to anyone else.

The summary:

Newton North 27, Waltham 30

1.Kornitzer (NN) 19:49. 2.Hill (W). 3.Giovanetti (W). 4.Feeney (NN). 5.Linnehan (W). 6.O'Leary (NN). 7.O'Reilly (NN). 8.Feeley (W). 9.Siegal (NN). 10.Mosher (NN).

Tigers take it out on Cambridge

By Roy LeBlanc
Staff Writer

BRIGHTON — The improvement, particularly on defense, began against Brockton. Saturday, Newton North (frustrated a bit after playing two of the best teams in the state) showed that effort wasn't a fluke by wiping out Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 29-0, at Daley Field.

No, Cambridge isn't isn't going to contend for any Super Bowls or league championships this fall. But the Warriors scored five touchdowns in their first two games (1-1) and they are a noticeably improved football team over their recent editions.

But against the Tigers (now 1-2), the Cantab offense was simply nonexistent. North held the home club to 17 yards rushing and 86 yards of total offense.

Fourteen of the 32 Cambridge rushing attempts were stopped behind the line of scrimmage.

"We played with a lot of emotion," said North coach Peter Capodilupo. "Defensively I was very pleased. Scott Lancilotti at defensive end has been our most consistent player for the first three games. Chris Rutan had two interceptions and a fumble recovery, which is a lot to ask for someone playing fulltime on offense. ... John Flynn played an excellent game at noseguard."

On the other side of the ball, there's good news and bad news, both contained in the knowledge that this game could have been 40-0. The Tigers were able to move the ball, and boasted a balanced attack which featured 172 yards on the ground and 164 through the air.

But they gave the ball away too often. They coughed the ball up three times via fumbles and another on an interception. Worse, two of those turnovers came in the Cambridge end zone and another was on the Warrior 11.

"The mistakes may make us better in the long run," Capodilupo said. "We know we still have to work to improve."

Despite those miscues, the Tigers hit paydirt four times. The most encouraging aspect of all for Newton fans had to be the Ryan connection. Quarterback Mike put the ball up only seven times, but five of those were complete for the 164 yards. Britt Ryan was on the receiving end four times, twice for touchdowns, as he accounted for 138 yards in receptions. It was precisely the kind of confidence-builder a quarterback needs after facing Natick and Brockton.

"Mike Ryan really took charge," said the coach. "He did a nice job with the automatics, reading the defense."

The duo began clicking in the second period, when the Tigers rolled up 22 points. The first score of the day came on the first play of the period, a two-yard run by Mark Adams, the game's leading ground-gainer with 73 yards on 14 carries. The play that set up the score, however, was a 44-yard strike from Ryan to Ryan, getting the ball down to the two.

On Newton's next possession, the pair was at it again, this time taking it all the way. After Chris Rutan picked off an Aram Dotten pass and returned it to the North 35, Mike rolled left and found Britt wide open down the sideline. When Dave Redmond added the kick, it was 14-0 with two minutes gone in the period.

The Tigers wasted another golden opportunity the next time around after Brian Claflin pounced on Lance Dottin's fumble at the Cambridge 20. Mike Ryan immediately ran it down to the one, but a personal foul marched it back 15 yards, and on fourth down Jesse Turtle wound up intercepting a pass in the end zone.

The reprieve for the Warriors was only temporary. A great punt return by Adams gave the Tigers field position again at the R&L 24 with 40 seconds to play in the half. Nineteen seconds later they were in the end zone when the Ryans hooked up again for 10 yards. This time North went for two and got them as Ryan threw to Adams for the conversion, giving the Tigers a 22-0 bulge at intermission.

The second half would probably be better forgotten by the offense, though the second team did push in another score as time was running out. Sophomore Milt Britton danced 14 yards to account for that one with 10 seconds to go.

But the other three possessions of the half ended in the only North punt of the day followed by three fumbles.

Fortunately, the Warriors didn't do any better. They turned the ball over three times in the second half alone, five times in the game. The best they could do in the second half was to get within 35 and then 32 yards of the end zone. The first time another Rutan interception ended the threat, and on their second chance, the Warriors killed themselves with a clipping penalty.

In the first half, the Tiger D was even tougher, as Cambridge crossed midfield only once, on a 23-yard pass from Dotten to David Frasier (the only catch of the day for the dangerous wideout). Rutan's first interception terminated that incursion.

Having played the perennial winners and now the perennial loser, the Tigers may find out just where they stand on Saturday when they host North Quincy.

Lancer girls hold on to first place

NEWTON — First place in the Suburban Catholic League South volleyball standings still belongs to Newton Catholic, but it took a struggle in Thursday's match against Ursuline to keep it that way. The Lancers lost the first game, 14-11, before bouncing back to take the next two, 15-8, 15-7, to run their record to 4-0 in the league (4-1 overall).

Mary Holland helped provide the spark in the deciding game. She picked up points 9-12, a key juncture. Linda Leary and Angela Canty played very well up front during that third game, according to Coach Rose Bertucci.

Ann Kling served well, including the winner.

In the first game, the Lancers just came out cold and quickly went down, 14-3. They came back to turn it into a relatively close game before Ursuline put it away.

Cheryl Chagnon helped spark the comeback.

Champs again

North's depth sinks Waltham

NEWTON — Superior depth was the difference as Newton North took a 5-0 triumph over Waltham in Suburban League girls' soccer action at North on Monday. Five different girls scored for North, which simply wore down Waltham over the course of the 80 minutes.

Carolyn Natale started the scoring for the Tigers, finishing off a nice passing play from Angie McKenna and Amy Satter 10 minutes into the game.

That was enough for North, but the Tigers didn't stop there.

With three minutes to play in the half, Diane Tormey passed to Natale, who got it back to Carol Ventura at the edge of the penalty area. A blistering shot into the top corner made it 2-0 at the half.

Eleven minutes after the intermission, McKenna upped the bulge to three. Becca Locke started the play, getting the fall to Natale, who fed McKenna at the side of the net.

Seven minutes later Missy Green was in the right place at the right time. Kristen Hughes crossed to Janet Burke, who rifled one toward the far corner. The ball was going wide, but Green came charging in to put it home.

It hasn't been as good a year as Newton South expected, but the Lions took out some of their frustrations in a 10-1 win over Boston Latin on Monday at South.

These guys want you to stop wasting your tax dollars.

Wildfires in our country are a terrible waste. A waste of natural resources. A waste of natural beauty. A waste of money.
Yet every single year, over one billion in tax dollars goes up in smoke. That's what it costs to protect our nation's resources and fight wildfires.
So, think of these famous faces next time you're in the great outdoors. And remember, only you can prevent forest fires.

National Merit semi-finalists

NEWTON — The National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC) has announced 12 Newton South students and 14 from Newton North who qualified as semifinalists for National Merit Scholarships.

The city's 26 semifinalists became eligible on the basis of a test they took in their junior year. The NMSC chooses students on a state representation basis which is prorated according to the percentage of the students in national senior classes.

The semifinalist designation, the NMSC says, is not a reflection of a particular school system, but rather a student's exceptional performance and the potential for future success.

Started in 1955, the Merit Scholarship program is independently supported by more than 600 organizations which share the program's goals and annually underwrite the scholarships. To date, more than 24 million students have entered the competition for scholarships while only 90,500 have gained the status of Merit Scholarship finalist. Since its conception, the corporation has given $265 million to these finalists for furthering their education. This year the corporation expects to give out 5,800 Merit Scholarships worth more than $21 million.

To be considered as finalists, semifinalists must fulfill several additional requirements which include documenting high academic performance at the secondary school level, being fully endorsed and recommended by their high school principals and earning scores on their SATs equivalent to the scores which allowed them to become semifinalists.

The list of Merit Scholars semifinalists at Newton South includes David S. Cuthberth, Michele S. Fialer, Jason R. Glasgow, Benjamin E. Lanckton, Micah D. Lowenthal, Robert P. Mahnke, Peter G. Neisuler, Daniel C. Proskauer, Linda D. Rottenberg, Steven T. Sigel, Lawrence M. Solomon and Ashley S. Timmer.

Newton North Merit Scholars include Joseph W. Bermann, Mark S. Chao, Suzanne L. Cohen, Edward P. Faith, Deborah A. Fineman, David Greenberg, Jonathan D. Greenberg, Alan P. Kaufman, Brain D. McCabe, Jocelyn Mini, Michael J. O'Donnell, Lucy B. Rinehart, Elizabeth Scott and Marjorie E. Zhon.

Texas Exes group meet in Andover

Mrs. Andrew F. (Margo Wiley) Lane of 43 Otis St., Newton, and Dr. Cal and Dr. Alice Valle of 63 Nathan Road, Newton Centre, have recently attended a meeting in Andover of the Boston Texas Exes Planning Committee.

The committee meets twice annually to plan events in which the more than 500 Boston area alumni of the University of Texas in Austin and their friends are invited to participate.

Another concern of the University of Texas alumni group is a $1,000 scholarship available every year to a qualified freshman or transfer student just entering the University at Austin. Mrs. Lane and Dr. and Mrs. Valle welcome questions about the scholarship or any other Texas Exes activities.

A horrid vacation could be an award winner

Natalie Maier of Oradell, N.J., thought it would be a dream vacation, but instead her nightmare cruise to the Yucatan was horrific enough to win this year's Frankenstein Travel Award.

The award is the brainchild of Charles Reilly, a true American road warrior who travels about 200 days a year as chairman of The Executive Communications Group.

Reilly has suffered almost every possible embarrassment, indignity and humiliation available to the traveler. His luggage has been lost, his reservations canceled, his shoes eaten by a large animal, and once, in an Atlanta elevator, he was bitten on the leg by a small boy.

The Frankenstein Travel Award allows victims to vent their frustrations and win a prize for the most horrible vacation experience.

"Maier's account of a nightmare cruise to the Yucatan was the hands-down winner this year," Reilly says.

Maier endured a snow storm, a canceled airline flight, rancid clothes, seasickness, third degree burns, rainstorms, food sickness, 40-foot ocean swells and a screaming stewardess to become the big winner.

Here is her horrible tale:

Maier's woes began on an icy day in February as she and two friends were preparing to fly to Miami, where they would board a cruise ship for a tour of three balmy ports in the Caribbean and Yucatan.

On the day before her departure, a blizzard dumped 23 inches of snow on New Jersey. It took 13 hours to shovel Maier's car out of the driveway for the trip to Newark airport. When they got to the airport, they learned their flight had been canceled. They jumped on a flight to Charlotte, N.C., and another to Atlanta, where they located a flight to Miami.

A cruise representative met them at the airport, and told them the ship was being held for them. They made it to the ship, but the luggage did not catch up for four days. Scruffy and somewhat rancid, they cut a conspicuous figure at the Captain's Dinner.

The first day at sea, Maier became violently seasick. Unable to eat, sleep or even stand, she collapsed in a deck chair and remained there all day. By the end of the day she had third degree burns from the sun.

Next up was picnic day, except it rained. The picnic was held under a shelter, but the dining was somewhat less than elegant since the shelter had been erected adjacent to the toilets. There was a monsoon during the raft ride back to the boat.

In Cozumel, where the ladies had hoped to buy some clothes, all the shops were closed. Instead, they were driven to a hotel for drinks and a show. The show was uninspired, the drinks were warm, the food was cold and stale. Everyone became ill.

Two days later the ship docked at Grand Cayman Island and everyone rushed ashore to take advantage of the fabulous bargains to be found in the legendary shops. Of course, the shops were closed.

As an alternative, passengers were bused to a nearby beach for a swim in tropical paradise. But no one was permitted to go near the water; 17 people had recently been bitten by Portuguese Men O'War. Everyone was given an exotic lunch of turtleburgers. The tourists were assured the turtles would taste like chicken. They didn't. They tasted like turtle — old turtle.

At Ocho Rios, Jamaica, passengers were told if they walked a mile down the beach they would find a hotel which served the world's most perfect banana dacquiri. But they found no electricity, no blenders, no dacquiris. It rained during the walk back.

That night, the final night at sea, no one slept. It was a gala night of champagne and dancing, marking the end of an epic voyage. It was also a night of 40-foot swells pounding the cruise ship. Everyone became ill again.

During the flight back home, Maier and friends were drained by fatigue and illness. They slept soon after takeoff, but not for long. Ten minutes into the flight they were awakened by shrill screams. A stewardess had spilled some hot soup on the legs of a young passenger, sending her into shock. The ensuing commotion lasted the rest of the trip and when the plane landed in Newark police cars and ambulances lined the runway. It was, says Maier, a fitting end to a dream vacation trip.

Convenience stores replacing repair bays

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Convenience stores have replaced repair and service bays at many former full-service gas stations, and rising labor and real estate costs are forcing more changes for motorists, an oil industry analyst says.

Although many full-service stations have switched to self-service pumps, many conventional stations are doing "bigger business than ever," Dan Lundberg said in his weekly newsletter Sunday.

While convenience stores have helped cut costs for gasoline station owners, overall automotive service and parts outlets have declined. That, coupled with longer new car warranties, have forced car owners to rely more on dealers for service, repairs and parts.

Motorists now are looking for one-stop automobile service centers that will enable them to do more of their own repairs.

"The motorist is now self-conditioned: to save, to watch wear and tear, to be cautious, doing it personally where possible, and to get it all transacted in a single stop whenever possible," a major oil company supervisor told Lundberg.

Motorists are looking for convenience stores not only to stock a wide range of supermarket products, but also motor oil, filters, automobile accessories and parts, the supervisor said.

"The essence of this new type (of gas station) is that it should be small enough that one stop is not a hiking tour," he said. "It's a compact quick fill-up, shop-up, walk-through facility."

Motorists do not have time to drive all over town to maintain their automobile, Lundberg said.

"What is probably just beyond the horizon is a motoring public ... seeking self-serve gasoline, a convenience store, and a small parts and accessories shop for do-it-yourself items, and a work bay for fee jobs — all available in a one-stop fast walk-through visit," Lundberg said.

Concerned over future of Judaism

By Kevin C. Kennedy, News Editor

NEWTON CENTRE — Dr. Eli Grad, 57, president of Hebrew College in Brookline, will be retiring on February 1, but he does not like the idea at all.

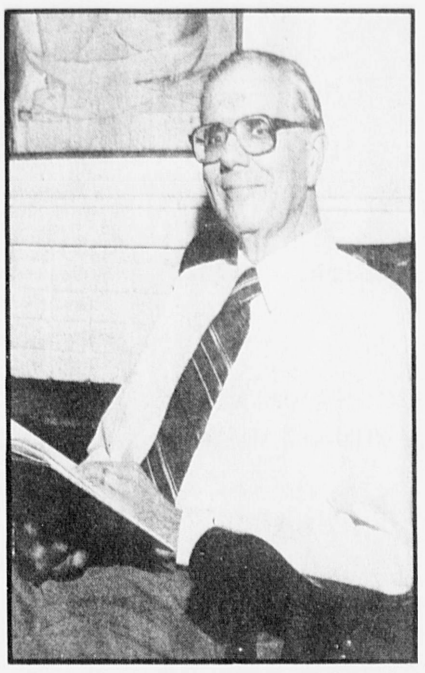

In retirement, he can look forward to a more relaxed lifestyle — one more fitting a man with a very touchy heart condition, and he can anticipate more time to devote to writing, philately, numismatics, photography and music. But the man who has alternately chosen engineering, sociology and finally religion as the means for fulfilling what he sees as his "mission" on this earth would like very much to keep working.

After all, there is much work to be done.

"This was never a job to me," he said last week of his work at Hebrew College. "For 15 years, it has been a mission. I was going to go as long as possible and go with my boots on." A "massive" heart attack made him change his plans, even though his sense of purpose makes him reluctant to do so.

He can still do the work. ("Work is the effort we put out to achieve meaningful objectives.") He can no longer take the stress. ("Stress comes when, no matter what you do, things never change. I consistently set up for myself objectives that possibly weren't do-able.")

A listener is in for a long stint when Dr. Grad attempts to describe his mission. The author of three books who could put half the alphabet after his name to represent the degrees he has attained does not really ramble. Rather, his mission is a huge, complicated one, and his approach to it is that of a philosopher, rather than an adminstrator; and he does not want to leave out one single premise for fear that his conclusions might be less than self-evident.

'The future of Jews is not in question, but their security puts Judaism's future at risk.'

Rape probe completed

2 police suspended

By David Weber, Staff Writer

NEWTON — Police Chief William F. Quinn last week announced disciplinary action against two Newton Police officers alleged to have been involved in the rape of a woman on July 17 while they were off duty.

Thomas M. Cloonan Jr. and Robert Keefe Jr. were given suspensions without pay as a result of an intradepartmental investigation conducted by Lt. Paul Robinson over the last couple months.

Cloonan received a six-month suspension without pay or benefits, which took effect last week. He was found to be in violation of department regulations on two counts.

A prepared statement by Robinson said, "Officer Cloonan, while off duty and while in partial uniform, did consume alcoholic beverages in public view or in a place accessible to the public..."

The statement also said, "Officer Cloonan did fail to properly secure his firearm while off duty and not under his direct control..."

Keefe was suspended without pay for one month, effective Oct. 16. He will also be barred from working any paid details for one month following the suspension.

Keefe was found to be in violation of one of the department regulations, according to the statement, which said, "While Officer Keefe was on injury leave status pursuant to General Laws chapter 41, section 111F, he did leave his home without receiving approval to so leave..."

Quinn said the disciplinary action was agreed to by the department and the two officers and that there would be no appeal.

Neither Keefe nor Cloonan could be reached for comment yesterday.

Quinn was reluctant to further discuss the matter, saying, "The case is over. There will be no more comments. There has already been enough stories written about this. It's like beating a dead horse."

'Gloria' still burning issue

NEWTON — The Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE) Tuesday afternoon ordered the city to stop all burning at the Rumford Avenue landfill. The mountains of hurricane Gloria debris piled up there will have to be moved to another site for burning or disposed of in another manner.

The city's Chief Administrative Officer, Richard Kelliher said late Tuesday that several alternative courses of action are being contemplated, including burying the debris or moving it to another location in the area. Kelliher added that he is still looking forward to some help from the DEQE, help he hoped would come from Tuesday's meeting.

"We still need to talk to those people," Kelliher said. "DEQE is still part of the solution."

Kelliher complained that the DEQE would be acting irresponsibly if it simply laid down a hard and fast rule and did nothing about helping the city to adhere to it. "The state has to be part of the solution," he said. "They can't just walk away from this. They've got to continue to show flexibility."

Vic Karaian, a supervisory sanitary engineer with the DEQE, failed to show much flexibility in the matter late Tuesday. "We're willing to look at another location if it's suggested to us," he said, "but it cannot be done at the landfill."

"Because of the nature of neighborhood, (Rumford Avenue) is not best place. The proximity of the residential land

Program dissolves fear of handicaps

By John Moroney, Staff Writer

NEWTON — There is a six-year-old program in the elementary schools which — given enough time — has the potential of shattering the fears and misinformation associated with persons who suffer from physical and emotional disabilitities.

Understanding Handicaps teaches elementary students what it feels like to be disabled by giving them accurate information about causes and visible effects. "The program opens up questions for kids which they never thought to ask before," according to Laurie Swett, co-president of the program. The focus is on similarities not differences between people, she added.

Understanding Handicaps evolved during the 1978-79 school year when a group of parents with handicapped children sought to introduce other children, parents and teachers to students with special needs. Parents were attracted to the program which uses as its philosophy the feelings described by Susan Bookbinder in her book,

Dr. Lown wins Nobel

OSLO, NORWAY — The International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War, founded by Newton's Dr. Bernard Lown and a Soviet, won the 1985 Nobel Peace Prize, the Norwegian Nobel Committee announced last week.

The International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War was established in 1980 by Dr. Lown and Soviet Dr. Eugene Shazow, who share the role as president of the Brookline-based organization.

The group, which seeks to work as a bridge-builder between Eastern and Western nations and spread knowledge about the medical effects of nuclear war, comprises more than 145,000 doctors from 41 countries.

It was the 12th time an organization won the Nobel Peace Prize, awarded since 1901. The last time the coveted award went to an organization was in 1981 when it was given to the office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees in Geneva.

Nobel committee chairman Egil Aarvik said the International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War "has done a very important job in spreading factual information and knowledge about the catastrophic effects of a nuclear war."

"This contributes to increasing public pressure on the nuclear arms race and to a shift of resources from military to health and other development aims," Aarvik said in reading the citation of the awards committee.

He said the work by the group could help "give new perspectives to and increase the seriousness in the ongoing disarmament talks."

Women climbing to the top of Beacon Hill

By Lauren McFalls, Assistant News Editor

NEWTON HIGHLANDS — State Representative Susan Schur says she "didn't go in (to the Statehouse) as a feminist;" but her experiences on Beacon Hill have led her to become exactly that.

When she entered her post as a representative from Newton five years ago, she said her major interests were housing and anti-poverty issues.

But upon taking her post, she received numerous phone calls from women across the state concerning a broad spectrum of issues, including problems with the court system, divorce procedures, and child care.

As she became aware of these problems — through the phone calls and through meetings with women's organizations — she became more involved in trying to solve them.

In order to follow these and other issues of concern to women, and for support from other women representatives in the Statehouse, she joined the state legislature's Women's Caucus.

This year is her turn to serve as chairman of the group, a responsibilty given to each member of the caucus on a rotating basis.

Under her chairmanship, the group has recently influenced the legislature to increase welfare benefits for women from the originally-proposed four percent increase to an eight percent raise in benefits.

Although this seems a small victory, Schur termed it as "major" because it showed the caucus could "work well together" and accomplish things in a "business-like" manner.

State Rep Susan Schur, now head of the Women's Caucus in the House, finds a moment to relax with her aide, Renee Massimo, in front of Schur's Newton Highlands home. Lauren McFalls photo

The Women's Caucus was started in the early 1970s when there were only three or four women legislators working on Beacon Hill, according to Schur. The purpose of the caucus, then, was to serve as a support group and to focus on the Equal Rights Amendment.

Now the group, which includes a membership of 27 of the total 33 women state representatives and senators, serves less as a support system and more as a means for women legislators to pool their energies to take a stand on issues of common concern.

There has to be a consensus amongst caucus members on which issues to follow. In recent years, the caucus has further limited its focus to mainly economic issues effecting women, with a few health and safety issues thrown in on the side.

Currently, the group is working on bills concerning insurance discrimination, child support, battered women, victim compensation, women in business and welfare payments.

The issue of day care "pervades everything we do," she said. "Welfare, job training, women prisoners" — mothers struggling with these programs have to figure out how to pay for the care of their children during the day.

Involved in the issue is the question of low salaries for day care workers, which diminishes the quality of day care programs. In fact, said Schur, most "people helping" positions, which are traditionally filled by women, are lower paying than other traditionally female-held jobs. In addition to

Notice came 'a little late'

When Gertrude Stout received her registration card for kindergarten from the Newton Public Schools early this week, the 104-year-old resident of a local nursing home commented to her aide, "You better call them up and tell them they're a little late."

So Joan Luthy, administrator for the Stone Institute and Newton Home for Aged People, where Stout resides, called up The Newton Graphic in near-hysterical laughter over receiving the standard note sent out to all parents of school-age children.

A quick check with the school department found that the birthdates used to determine which Newton residents were ready for kindergarten were taken from the Jan. 1, 1985 census of the city.

And probably what happened, said Vincent Silluzio, assistant superintendent for operations and planning, was that "instead of putting down 1881, they keyed in 1981.

"We had a dog one year. We sent a postcard asking whether 'Harriett' is going to enroll in kindergarten," he said.

That person, too, had "called up hysterical" to report the to the school department.

With regard to the current mix-up, however, Silluzio comments with a certain relief, "That's just one fewer student we'll have."

Judaism's future 'at risk'

In his conversation, Grad reveals a compulsion to uncover truth, a compulsion that has forced him to overthrow orthodoxy on occasion, upset complacency on occasion, and penetrate appearances to discover the reality that lies behind them constantly.

The confidence needed to venture into new territory, in the course of his speculations, comes from something he learned in mountain climbing (one example of how Grad synthesizes many disciplines): "Mountain climbing is not dangerous as long as you are firmly anchored to an immovable object." For the doctor, his faith is his immovable object.

Grad, who describes himself as "a sensitive, caring human being who is a Jew," is troubled with the present state of Judaism. This is one of the forces that drove him into religious education, in general, and Hebrew College, in particular.

"Realizing the true understanding of Judaism brought with it the need to transmit it to as many as I could," Grad said of his original commitment to religious education. As an example of his successful term at Hebrew College, he mentions that 15,000 people signed up for classes there in the past year. More than 20 percent of them were non-Jewish, he added. The latter statistic "pleases me because it's continuing evidence of people who are caring and want to understand their neighbors."

Grad finally committed himself to religious education when he "sensed, with great discomfort, a generation of Jews who have substituted activism for values." Grad says he saw Jews doing well — comfortable, free and secure — and Judaism in a dangerous position.

Faith thrived on adversity

"The future of Jews is not in question, but their security puts Judaism's future at risk," according to Grad. "What has been good for Jews has been problematic to Judaism. What advanced Judaism was painful for the Jews."

He sees the greatest problem in the United States, where Jews live in "the freest society ever in history." Living for hundreds of years in the ghetto, life for the Jews was "restrictive, oppressive and uncomfortable, and the philosophy flourished in the midst of severe oppression," according to Grad. Judaism bloomed while the life of each Jew was "at risk."

A new version of Judaism "now has to grow out of American soil, with its university training and its country clubs," Grad suggests. Jews who do not endeavor to understand and see the relevance of their heritage and scriptures "become socially active as a substitute," he says. And he cautions, "If their actions are not rooted in a value system, then we are one generation between knowledgeable commitment and alienation and assimilation.

"We now live in open neighborhoods and attend open schools. Intermarriage in the United States is greater than 40 percent. By the third generation in a free society, intermarriage is 30 percent. It's a natural consequence. Intermarriage is the exercise of freedom," according to Grad.

In the course of exercising their freedom, Jews are losing "the glue" that has held them together for so many centuries, according to Grad. Synagogues are losing their congregations, he contends, in that less than 40 percent of all Jews in this country belong to congregations or temples.

In the course of the assimilation process, new homage is being paid the old maxim: "Be a Jew at home and a human being on the outside," according to Grad. "Ritual has lost its holding power," he says. "They respect it, but they no longer measure their humanity by the execution of ritual."

As to the latest form of activism, contributing a tithe to charitable causes, Grad comments, "Fund drives are selling identity very cheaply. You wrote the check and you feel good. I'm not worried about the here and now; they're OK. I'm worried about their grandchildren. (We need) activism in the name of heritage, instead of as a substitute for it."

It was this realization of the present, imperiled state of Judaism in the U.S. that brought Dr. Grad to Hebrew College 15 years ago; and his work at the college has led him to a three-pronged approach to the problem — to "turning around the community."

Approach to the problem

First, Grad recommends that Jews "should study and understand the covenant which makes (Judaism) a worldwide community." That sense of community is so crucial to the survival of Judaism that Jews pray in the plural instead of the singular, he points out. They use "we" instead of "I." "The community is more important than the individual," he says.

Second, to avoid future "alienation and assimilation" and to more firmly attach themselves to their rich past and their proud heritage, Jews should come to understand "how Judaism changes to adapt to conditions while preserving its essence." It takes study and contemplation to perceive exactly how religious laws that are handed down from 3,000 years ago apply to living in Newton, Massachusetts, in in the year 5,746 (1985 c.e.) "The principals are eternal," Grad explains, "but the vessels in which you carry them change from generation to generation."

Third, Jews need to perceive the true meaning of Jewish historiography, which Grad contends is absolutely unique. The historiography of the Jews, the study of how they developed as a people over thousands of years, contradicts all the principles recognized by historians as being crucial to the survival of a people.

Historian Arnold Toynbee called the Jewish people "a fossil," something left over from a bygone era. Grad says Toynbee, who contended that "a people needs a land or it will disperse," was unable to understand Jewish history "because it didn't fit in with his principles. He missed the essence of Jewish historiography. It's the only one that's different!" according to Grad.

Along with a sense that they had a special connection with God, the sense of what Grad calls "peoplehood" and an age-old attachment to "the homeland" allowed the Jews to be dispersed to every corner of the globe and still have a unified history as a people.

"Peoplehood" allowed them to maintain an integral "worldwide body with no central authority other than the book. They are a people that defied all the lessons of historiography, which said that without a home you can't survive," according to Grad.

While the diaspora settled Jews far afield from their homeland in Jerusalem, a certain "nostalgic attachment" for it had them always leaning toward it, even while they were adapting to the widely varied customs of vastly different societies. "They had a mystical relationship with that barren land at the crossroads of civilization," according to Grad, who adds that he, himself, has "sand in my blood." Referring to Jerusalem as an historical "bridge" between conflicting powers, he says, "There's something mystical about that piece of land and Jews' attachment to it. Jews pray for rain when there are monsoons here because there is a drought in their homeland."

Scripture study the key

The key, of course, to Grad's three-pronged approach to the future of Judaism in America, is study. He complains that not enough Jews want to study the scriptures these days, even though it is that very action which has allowed them to survive and prosper against all odds.

One hour a week, he said, would be a vast improvement over what he sees now. He tells of a recent visit from the director of social planning from a large Jewish philanthropic organization that helps Hebrew College live up to its annual financial commitments. "What do you want?" the man asked Grad, apparently concerned with whatever budgetary supplements the doctor might have in mind for the coming year.

Grad answered that he wanted the man to do "two hours a month, reading any Jewish text. Our community deserves to have a director of social planning who serves as an example .... It would be a more potent contribution to Jewish life."

The man never did what Grad asked him to do. That creates stress for the sensitive doctor, who has committed his life to upgrading the quality of life for Jews in America through education and who is sorely concerned for the plight of the next generation.

He is to retire to his Hobart Street home and study. From there, he can view the world and the good works he has done in it. From there, he can see if any of the thousands of seeds he has sown have fallen on fertile ground, near "living water" ... to "bear fruit that will last.

Neighborhood supports plan for artists' studios at Claflin

By John Moroney
Staff Writer

NEWTON — The Newton Artist Housing Partnership (NAHP) cleared the first hurdle in its attempts to obtain the Claflin School when the Claflin Neighborhood Association Steering Committee voted last week to support the artist's plan for converting the vacant school into 15 low-density, live-in art studios.

"The neighborhood prefers the proposal of the Newton Housing Partnership because the low density of 15 units responds to the concerns regarding the safety of neighborhood residents and building occupants," Nancy Mahony, co-chairperson of the neighborhood committee, said. "We tried to review as many proposals as possible to find out the one which would best balance the concerns of the neighborhood and the city."

In approving the artist's designs, the steering committee urged the aldermanic Reuse Committee to "carefully review and consider" its decision when it reconvenes on Oct. 22 at 7:45 p.m. at City Hall.

Judy Haberl, one of the NAHP's founders, said her group was "thrilled" by the neighborhood's decision.

"I feel very hopeful," she said. "We have received a great deal of support from the neighborhood and the community."

In preparation for a vote at City Hall on Oct. 2, the neighborhood steering committee met on a weekly basis throughout the summer to identify areas of concern and to research possible reuses of the school, Mahony said. Meetings were held with Mayor Theodore D. Mann, the Newton Community Development Foundation, the Planning Department, ward aldermen, Reuse Committee aldermen and the NAHP.

"Our primary concern was that of safety because the access to the Claflin site is very limited," Catherine Farrell, co-chairperson the neighborhood committee, said.

The NAHP presented its designs and offer to buy Claflin for $300,000 at the Newton Arts Center two weeks ago. "The hearing was intended to get feed back from the Claflin community," Haberl said. "We wanted the neighborhood to know we are flexible with regards to what their needs are and what our needs are."

During the hearing the partnership addressed the access problem by telling the neighborhood it plans to eliminate the parking lot behind the school and construct an access road between the building and Craigie Terrace if the residents desire one. The partnership also said it was willing to relinquish a parcel of land which abuts Lowell Avenue for community use. The final decision on that matter, however, is really up to the city, Haberl said.

Two concerns which neighbors expressed during the NAHP's presentation were related to the city's 10 percent housing ordinace and whether the artists planned to declare themselves a "limited-equity cooperative."

According to Haberl, the 14 artists which make up the partnership have voted to become a limited-equity cooperative and plan to set aside at least 10 percent of the building for low and moderate income housing. As a limited-equity cooperative, artists can only sell their studios for 10 percent above the initial down payment plus whatever improvements they made to prevent profiteering. "We talked with several aldermen (about both issues)," Haberl said. "At this point in time, we're trying to figure out how to write it down."

The artist's plans for renovating the school include turning 39,000 square feet of space into " 15 units of very low density," Jerro Nesson, development consultant for the artists, said. The size of each studio, Nesson explained, will vary between 1,500 and 3,500 sq. ft. while the average size of the studio will be 2,300 sq. ft. "I think are plans are quite compatible with the neighborhood," Nesson said.

Haberl said the partnership is "ready to move ahead immediately" with renovation of the building as soon as its gets approval from the aldermanic Reuse Committee, the Board of Aldermen and the mayor. Once the project started, she estimates it will take four to six weeks to before everything is completed.

Mental tests asked for murder suspect

CAMBRIDGE — A judge has ordered Tyrone M. O'Neil, who is accused of the stabbing-murder of an elderly Newton woman, committed to Bridgewater State Hospital for a determination as to whether or not he is a danger to himself or others.

Prior to the 30-day commitment, Superior Court Judge James D. McDaniel, Jr., found that O'Neil, 22, of Salem, is competent to stand trial at present. The judge made the ruling after hearing testimony from Betty Ann MacIntosh, the Cambridge Court psychiatrist.

Doctor MacIntosh testified that, based on her evaluation of O'Neil, she believes O'Neil can assist his lawyer, Andrew Good, that he understood the court proceedings, and that she felt he understood the nature of the charges against him. Doctor MacIntosh testified she felt there was no evidence that O'Neil is showing any acute psychiatric effects at this time, although she noted that he has an "extensive" history of psychiatric hospitalizations dating back to his adolescence.

Doctor MacIntosh testified that O'Neil may represent a danger to himself or to others, telling the court she agrees with an earlier medical opinion in the case that O'Neil's "mental status" is "fragile."

Warren Jr. High reuse meetings set

NEWTON — With the issue of a new main library at the corner of Homer and Walnut streets settled for the moment, aldermen are looking to renew their deliberations on the fate of the Warren Junior High School building.

The aldermanic Real Property Reuse Committee has already scheduled three meetings to discuss the future of the abandoned school located just a half mile from bustling West Newton Square.

The sessions will be held on Oct. 22, Nov. 7 and Nov. 14.

The committee has invited Parks & Recreation Commissioner Russell Halloran to the Oct. 22 meeting to discuss his department's intentions for the 462,000 square feet of playgrounds surrounding the building.

Officials from the Engineering and Law Departments have also been invited to the Oct. 22 meeting.

The Main Library Facility Committee has recommended the Warren be sold for the most profitable commercial use possible to help pay for a brand new library, but many aldermen are reluctant to recommend an intensive use for a site completely surrounded by residential homes.

Warren Jr. High, which has been closed for several years now, is about to reenter the reuse process after having been ruled out as a potential site for a new main library.

'Test tube' baby at Newton-Wellesley

NEWTON — The staff of Newton-Wellesley Hospital last week welcomed their first "test tube" baby.

The parents of the healthy baby girl preferred to remain anonymous, but did express their joy. "We had been trying ever since we got married to get pregnant and for us, in-vitro (fertilization) was our last chance," the mother said. "We are so fortunate to have our new daughter. She is wonderful."

Two more couples who have gone through the in vitro procedure are expecting children, one in mid-November and another in early 1986. Fifteen couples have undergone the technique since January.

Newton-Wellesley Hospital is the only community hospital out of the six New England medical centers to perform the procedure. The technique involves the surgical removal of the mother's eggs from the ovary and uniting them with the father's sperm in a laboratory dish. Two days later, any embryos that have been fertilized are transferred to the mother's uterus to develop and grow. Dr. John Derry and Dr. Peter Martin who jointly founded the in-vitro program at Newton-Wellesley say there is no increased risk of birth defects associated with the procedure.

Board urges progress in arms control

NEWTON — The aldermanic Legislation and Rules Committee (L&R) — after hearing testimony nuclear disarmament is a local issue — has passed a resolution urging President Ronald Reagan and Soviet Secretary General Mikhail Gorbachev to "make real progress in arms control."

The resolution now goes before the full board for a final vote.

Pointing out the Soviets currently target every American city with a population in excess of 25,000 with nuclear missles, Newton Action for Nuclear Disarmament (NAND) President Beverly Droz and other concerned citizens, along with Alderman Louis Irwin, asked the board to adopt the resolution.

Droz backed her stand by offering statistics her organization has compiled that show a majority of Newton residents favor arms control.

"We have knocked on doors and put out surveys," Droz said, "the results of which show us that 80- to 85-percent of the people in the city favor arms control."

Droz added, although the board could only act on a local basis, nuclear disarmament is a local issue.

"With Newton being a target of Russian nuclear weapons," Droz said, "and Raytheon just down the road, the people of Newton are involved. It is not just a national issue."

The resolution, as it reads, asks Reagan and Gorbachev to make "large reductions in the number of nuclear weapons and cessation of testing of Strategic Initiative ('Star Wars') weapons.

Bowen lead paint removal delayed

NEWTON — The School Department does not expect the removal of lead paint from about 10 classrooms at the Bowen Elementary School to begin until next summer.

Delays in stripping the walls at the school have been the result of broken equipment and the lack of interest by contractors, Roy G. Cornelius, the department's director of support services, said.

The Building Department put the job out for contractors early last summer, he said, "but nobody made a bid." Difficulties in getting someone to do the work might be related to the nature of the contract, Cornelius explained. "It's not a common process for one contractor."

The decision to remove the lead paint at Bowen is the result of an inspection conducted by the Health Department last March, Cornelius said. During their tests, the department indentified four Elementary schools — Mason-Rice, Bowen, Pierce and Williams — which had paint that was flaking or peeling, he said.

Paint was removed from three classrooms at Mason-Rice last March by city employees, he said. The process by which paint was removed at the school drew sharp criticism from several parents and the director of support services.

The testing and removal of lead in school buildings across the city has also been hampered by an inoperative machine the Health Department uses to analyze paint for high levels of lead.

Kid power

Open Meeting Law needs more clout

The Open Meeting Law in Massachusetts continues to be an effective instrument for good government after a quarter century on the books, but it can be made better.

Never is there a year where officials in some city or town don't attempt to circumvent it by attempting to transact business behind closed doors.

While such instances are rare, considering the general compliance by elected and appointive persons, the public's right to know has to be protected to the fullest extent. Generally, the cloak of secrecy has been lifted from committee or commission meetings called by all municipal bodies.

It wasn't always so. Before OML came into the picture, a municipal official or a board might exercise arbitrary judgement on open discussion of a sensitive matter. Too often, decisions would be arrived at in a coffee shop rendezvous, or possibly in somebody's living room, with the formal meeting amounting to a rubber stamp act.

Executive sessions were a favorite escape for the timid or wily politician. Minority opinions could get no exposure when privacy took over except through non-meeting statements to the press. In no way were covenants being arrived at openly as our forefathers decreed.

As noted, every now and again a municipal board will still try to get around the law. Usually it is by staging an executive session without justification. Invariably, an appeal to the district attorney or attorney general suffices to open the door. Court review has consistently turned back challenge.

A recent Supreme Judicial Court of Masachusetts ruling held the Middleboro Board of Selectmen in violation. The SJC found that selectmen should not have closed to the public a one-hour meeting with an attorney in December, 1983, to discuss a contract for the town's rubbish proposal.

As in many cases, the local newspaper carried the fight to the court. Citizen appeal has been very much a part of the OML picture, however. Along the way, with broader acceptance, legislative amendments strengthened the law. Yet, no financial penalties are provided. Flawed action can be subject to recall, a slap on the wrist.

Making those responsible for violations liable financially should be a further step to assure compliance. While the news gatherers have legitimate concerns over access, it is the public interest that is foremost in discouraging secrecy.

We urge such action by the General Court.

Fresh face in gov's race?

By Loring Swaim

Does the prospect of another tiresome, bitter grudge "rematch" between Gov. Dukakis and former Gov. King next year appeal to you?

How about livening things up for a change, with some fresh faces, some intelligent debate about relevant issues and some solid campaign fun?

I'm herewith proposing — entirely on my own and without a word of consultation with her — the candidacy of Barbara Anderson for Governor of the Commonwealth!

Not at all; I'm serious.

Think about it. Barbara Anderson has shown remarkable grit already, standing up to the powers that be on Beacon Hill and winning battles for homeowners and taxpayers who constitute most of us voters.

She and Citizens for Limited Taxation found a way five years ago to endrun the political establishment in Massachusetts — and do something essential for property owners. They put Proposition 2½ on the books.

It was the biggest political upset in decades. It stunned the establishment. It got no help whatever from most of our courageous public officials elected to make the tough decisions. (I distinctly recall Dukakis chiding that Bay Staters would be too smart to fall for Proposition 2½!)

Barbara Anderson shouldered the job, did her homework, researched taxes, consulted experts, honed her message, mobilized citizens, collected signatures, enlisted allies, became convincingly articulate — and won.

She went over the heads of the pols directly to the people with an initiative petition that put a curb on local property taxes. In her early 40's, attractive, articulate and from Marblehead, she continues now to challenge governmental chicanery. She combines wit and cunning as she focuses on mal- mis- and non-feasance. Her press releases are models of succinct pungent incisiveness. She follows government intently, has inside informers, keeps the heat on issues, isn't bamboozled by legislator's promises.

CLT's Barbara Anderson

With sufficient signatures, Independents' names go directly before voters on election day. And hey, Anderson practically wrote the book on collecting signatures.

Clearly, a political maverick like Anderson is welcome in neither political party — where one must pay one's dues to a totempole of figureheads. She could never penetrate next year's Democratic nominating convention because it's locked up by Dukakis and his minions — nor the Republican nominating convention because she's under no tribal GOP chieftain's thumb. She appeals to those disenchanted with parties per se.

So why not capitalize on this independence and run as an Independent?

Independents don't have nominating conventions. With sufficient signatures, their names go directly before voters on election day. And hey, Anderson practically wrote the book on collecting signatures.

And Barbara is a woman, like whom we have not seen many in the top echelons of government in Massachusetts, despite outnumberinmg males in the electorate.

Can't you see it now — suave articulate Mike Dukakis debating cool articulate Barbara Anderson who marshals facts with the best? An idea whose time has come?

One tactical asset is that she and CLT are already mounting a second initiative petition drive, this time to curb state spending. They're dropping their other shoe. It and she will get increasing visibility as next November nears.

But what kind of executive/administrator would Barbara make? Could she handle a sprawling administration, a defiant legislature? Is she organized?

Good question; don't really know. She certainly has access to resources in industry and academia from which to draw for a cabinet, etc., etc.

My guess is that Barbara Anderson is not ambitious enough to conceive of herself as a gubernatorial candidate.

But she would certainly go all out if drafted by popular demand.

The changing concerns of women

By Rusty Brown

It was the time of miniskirts and low heels. People were biting their nails reading "The Boston Strangler"; Warren Beatty and Faye Dunaway were "Bonnie and Clyde." Saunas were something new; hospital rooms cost $47 a day.

It was 1967. Hard to believe, that was nearly 20 years ago.

A friend who haunts antique shops brought me a copy of the February 1967 Ladies Home Journal. "You're going to be fascinated with the articles," she said. She was right.

It's difficult to believe how much women have changed and how little the world has changed around them. In the magazine, the recipes, diet and decorating features were as they are today. Yet some of the topics were surprising.

For example, 500 women had written in, telling how they beat boredom as housewives. The letters were in response to an earlier article by a bored housewife asking for help. Most writers encouraged her to develop more interests "within" the home, including reading.

One woman told how she bought a camera and began keeping an elaborate family photo album. "This project can last a lifetime," she wrote, adding that she also sewed hostess gowns. "It doesn't take much money for materials and they provide hours of sewing time."

Another 1967 woman wrote that seldom in the past had the urban wife had so little contact with other adults. "But we can't change society," she continued, "so we have to change ourselves."

And change we did. I don't think I know a single bored housewife today. For one thing, half of them have gone to work. Those who are at home are raising money for the orchestra, going back to school, pumping iron or running for the school board. All while taking care of children and house, of course. Business is in; boredom is out.

A major article in the 1967 magazine was triumphantly titled "The Battle of the Sexes is Over. Who Won? We Did." A somewhat premature judgment, from the hindsight of passing years.

The article begins, "Women never had it so good," and goes on to quote supporting comments of 10 distinguished speakers who participated in a panel on "the role of women."

One was Dr. Bruno Bettelheim, psychiatrist and author, who said employers would have to provide "shorter working days for mothers, a closer working to home, and considerable flexibility of working hours — a flexibility that permits them to absent themselves from work when the child needs them."

His recommendations, however, have been largely ignored by the corporate world. Very few companies make such generous accommodations for today's 20 million working mothers.

Another panelist, attorney Harriet Pilpel, said women were actually "more equal" than men in their legal rights: "They have a legal right to be supported by their husbands and, in case of a divorce, usually get custody and control of the children."

I wonder if she still feels that way, knowing now that 28 percent of divorced mothers receive no child support and another 23 percent get only partial payments — despite court orders.

New federal legislation that goes into effect this month is expected to improve the methods of collecting support from deadbeat dads. But the situation has been a national disgrace.

A panelist with unusual foresight was the director of the Western Behavioral Sciences Institute, Dr. Richard Farson. He predicted that women would become discontent when they saw the discrepancy between what they were doing and what it's possible to do.

He was right. The ratio of discontent rises in direct proportion to the number of working women who are frustrated trying to increase their prominence as well as their affluence and influence in the corporate world.

Farson also emphasized that discontent need not be paralyzing. It can be energizing and motivating. That may account for whatever gains women have made since that Journal article, 18 years ago.

E.B. White had elements of real style

By George R. Plagenz

Brooks Brothers is style. Calvin Klein is fashion.

Fashion, like other fads, is what is "in" today. It is also what may be "out" tomorrow. It is conspicious and unpredictable.

Style, like character, follows patterns of taste and refinement that do not change from one season to the next, though the width of its lapels may vary slightly. It neither copies nor competes. It is conspicious only because it is so rare. It is predictable.

The difference between style and fashion extends beyond clothes. It can be applied to the whole world of ideas and living in general. It applies to writing.

As a writer and essayist, E.B. White, who died recently at the age of 86, was a master of style. He tried to teach us style as well.

His little book (85 pages) entitled, "The Elements of Style," which he co-authored with William Strunk, his old college English teacher from Cornell, is still a classic text in college English classes.

It is found on the desk of many a newspaperman and writer and it is also the indispensable handbook of secretaries everywhere. This pleased White. "Somebody in the office has to know how to write," he said, a wry reference to the lack of language skills of most executives.

As fashion supplanted style in English grammar and usage, White stuck with the old rules laid down by his beloved classroom instructor and added some of his own. He was not a man afraid of rules.

What he said about the importance of rules and discipline in the art of writing could be read with profit and then adapted to their own field of endeavor by those who make it their business to instruct us in the art of living.

In one of his essays White speaks of the "Anything Goes" school which permeated writing and practically everything else. Rules were restricting. Freedom to do and write as one pleased became the fashion. It was liberating and liberation was the watchword.

He quotes the editor of Webster's Third International Dictionary as saying that a dictionary "should have no traffic with artificial notions of correctioness." This approach, said White, struck many people as chaotic and degenerative, "and that's the way it struck me.

"Strunk was a fundamentalist," said White. "He believed in right and wrong and so, in the main, do I. Unless someone is willing to entertain notions of superiority, the English language disintegrates, just as home disintegrates unless someone in the family sets standards of good taste, good conduct and simple justice."

It would be easy to give examples to show that the days of Anything Goes are still upon us. Let someone, looking over the moral landscape, dare suggest applying rules of right and wrong and he will be met with the cry, "Who made thee a judge over us?"

E.B. White was more than a stylist in writing. He was a stylist in living. He loved his farm in Maine and through the years developed a "down Maine' philosophy of rustic wisdom and simplicity.

He once wrote a letter to a friend who was in the throes of despair. He said, "As long as there is one upright man, as long as there is one compassionate woman, the contagion may spread and the scene is not desolate.

"Hope is the thing that is left to us in a bad time. I shall get up tomorrow and wind the clock as a contribution to order and steadfastness.

"Sailors have an expression about the weather. They say, 'The weather is a great bluffer.' I guess the same is true of our human society. Things can look dark, then a break shows in the clouds and all is changed — sometimes rather suddenly.

"Hang on to your hat. Hang on to your hope. And wind the clock, for tomorrow is another day." Now that's style.

(George Plagenz writes for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Death penalty could be a problem for Dukakis

By George B. Merry

Few issues have sparked longer or more heated debate among Massachusetts lawmakers than capital punishment.

Although proponents of the death penalty lost their battle at this year's legislative sitting, they will be back in January with no less fervor. They may be convinced that sending first-degree murderers to the electric chair will make the commonwealth a safer place, but clearly there are not enough state legislators who share that view.

A 'Yes" vote might be within reach in the 160-seat House of Representatives, but capital-punishment boosters are far short of the mark in the Senate. And a two-thirds vote will be needed in both chambers because Gov. Michael S. Dukakis has made it clear he will veto such a statute if it should reach his desk.

Those who suggest that Governor Dukakis might change his stance and either go along with a death-penalty measure or perhaps allow it to become law without his signature are overlooking his long-held philosophical conviction that capital punishment is wrong. He has remained firm throughout his political career on that matter. During his first term as governor, 1975-78, he rejected such legislation. And before then, including his eight years as a state reporesentative from Brookline, he was a staunch foe.

The Senate's 20-to-18 rejection of the latest proposal on Oct. 1 has spared the governor the potentially awkward position of being blamed for thwarting efforts to bring back the electric chair.

His critics, especially would-be challengers for the executive chair in next fall's election, would be delighted to have the governor forced to come to grips with the death-penalty question. A veto might lessen his popularity with many voters, since public-opinion samplings in the Bay State indicate that close to two-thirds of the people favor reinstituting capital punishment.

On the other hand, were Dukakis suddenly to accept the idea, his foes would surely have a field day questioning his motives.

And since 1986 will be a gubernatorial election year, Dukakis critics can be expected to work particularly hard to put a death-penalty bill on his desk early next year so they can get as much political mileage as possible out of placing him in an uncomfortable position.

Instead of wasting their time trying to pass a measure that is all but sure to be vetoed, lawmakers genuinely bent on bringing back the death penalty might be well advised to check out the language of any such proposal with the Massachusetts Supreme Court.

That judicial panel, it should be noted, last October struck down as unconstitutional a two-year-old law that had a similar intent. It would make little sense to enact another capital-punishment statute, with or without gubernatorial approval, without first making sure it would be likely to survive a court challenge.

The legislature has the right to ask the Supreme Court for an advisory opinion on pending legislation, in which a question of constitutionality is involved. Lawmakers pushing for revival of the death penalty, as well intentioned as they may be, are hardly qualified to make such a determination.

Sen. Paul J. Sheehy (D) of Lowell, to his credit, tried to get his colleagues to send the proposal to the high court to make sure it met state constitution standards. The failure of that move cost the senator's support and made possible the legislation's defeat.

This spared the House hours of oratory over the basic question of whether the death penalty would, as its backers contend, prevent murders.

More than a few death-penalty advocates concede, usually quietly however, that were such a measure put back on the books executions would still be few and far between.

Capital-punishment foes, many of whose objections are on moral grounds, question how effective such a measure would be in preventing slayings, since those who commit such crimes do not expect to be caught.

In fairness to both sides of what seems likely to be an ongoing issue in Massahusetts, neither appears to have solid, or at least recent, statistics to support its position. Certainly there is nothing to suggest that the 37 convicted murderers executed in the commonwealth between 1930 and 1947, when the last took place, had any impact on making the state a safer place.

Although capital punishment remained on the books here into the 1970's, six successive governors — members of both parties and of various religious faiths — sidestepped using the electric chair, often instead commuting a murderer's sentence to life imprisonment.

They were simply unconvinced the death penalty was right.

Because 38 other states have death-penalty laws of some type, does not mean Massachusetts should follow suit; and if it did, it would do more than perhaps provide a false sense of accomplishment.

And to assume otherwise seems naive, since passage of any such measure would require the support of two-thirds of the lawmakers in both chambers.

Such gubernatorial action would derail capital-punishment efforts unless backers could manage the two-thirds override support in both legislative houses.

Well deserved praise for Nonantum seniors cookout

The news media leans in the direction of negative subject matter dramatizing controversial sensationalism and somehow loses sight of the positive happenings. The recent senior citizens cookout, sponsored by the Nonantum Children's Christmas Party Association and the co-sponsors, American Legion Nonantum Post 440, Italian American Veterans Post 50, Sons of Italy Lodge 1069, as well as the Saint Mary of Carmen Society, was more deserving of better publicity for this event attended by over 2,000 senior citizens, assisted by 300 volunteers. Our suggestion is "to tell it like it is."

The weather was great as was the food and entertainment. We were there at 6:30 a.m., our guests started to appear at 10:30 a.m. for a 1 p.m. function that ended at 7 p.m. for them.

Senior citizens consumed a ton of chicken plus 2,500 hamburgs, hot dogs with rolls, over 2,500 pieces of delicious corn on the cob, 75 gallons of ice cream, 60 gallons of coffee, 2,500 bags of potato chips, homemade pastries, cantalope, salad, watermelon. People must have been thirsty but 16 barrels of beer, 170 quarts liquor, four cases wine, 16 cylinders of tonic cooled off the atmosphere.

Continuous entertainment all day long was introduced by M.C. Bob Cuniff and Donnie McAdams. Adding to the festivities was the Waltham Legion Band, with Dot Slamin Hill, the U.S. Naval Air Station So. Weymouth Color Guard, joined by the U.S. Air Force Hanscom Color Guard of Bedford. Participating was State Treasurer Robert Crane and "The Treasury Notes" singing group, Nonantum Hobo Band led by John Ratta, Mike Pelligrini and the Legends Band with impersonations of Elvis Presley, Leo Minervini western music, Steve Parks-caller, and the Senior Citizens Square Dancers. The Judith Pearl Dancers did their thing, we were joined by Christopher Columbus. Vinnie Massa of Watertown, something to satisfy interests of everyone, we are grateful for their participation. (additional volunteers).

Transportation provided by Commonwealth Coach Co. and the Brighton Knights of Columbus picking up and returning seniors to 30 different locations in Newton and surrounding areas.

Other support received from the Wills Tent and Awning Co. with vital support from the Comfort Castle Co.

Head chef Peter Doucette and Russel Crosby, food administrator, both of Boston College, organized the preparation and serving by our many waitresses and assistant cooks. Rick Friend of McDonald's helped with hamburgs, etc. Equally supportive was Chaulk Ambulance, Newton Disaster Unit. John Likely and Newton Explorers were in charge of the parking area.

Many organizations should be acknowledged for providing chairs, tables, and equipment, which included our co-sponsors, thanks to Our Lady's Parish, St. Jean's , St. Bernard, the Newton, Brighton, Watertown K of C, Watertown Eagles, Waltham Moose, Hiberian's from Watertown, Newton and Watertown Boys and Girls Clubs, the Nonantum Multi-Service Center, also add City of Newton city workers and the Recreation Dept. Father Sharkey handled the invocation.

Lending support and in attendance Congressman Barney Frank, Representatives William Galvin of Brighton, Rep. Joseph DeNucci, and Alderman Ronald Marini.

A sincere thank you to everybody: cooks, cooks' helpers, waitresses, trash collectors, truck drivers, clean up crew, entertainers, and all the great people that gave up Sunday with their families to show their appreciation to our most important asset "the Senior Citizens." We could not do it without the cooperation of all of you. The expenses exceeded $13,000. Donations were received from merchants, organizations, and private parties, all contributed to this event, we give you our heartfelt thanks.

A lot of preplanning, cooperation, organization and money make it possible. If you want to contribute your donations may be mailed to us: Box 12, Nonantum, MA.

10th ANNIVERSARY SAVINGS!
How to save on contact lenses.
First, find the lowest price for name-brand contacts. Our prices for leading contacts are the lowest they've been in ten years!
Next – don't overpay for a fitting. Our charge for fitting by an eye doctor is just $25 for most daily wear prescriptions, $30 for most extended wear prescriptions.
Finally – guard against add-on costs that can come up after you've bought your lenses. For the health of your eyes, you should have follow-up care. These visits to the eye doctor can cost between $15 and $25 each. And remember, eyeglass supermarkets can't provide these services.
For $25 to $30, depending on your lens type and prescription, our optional Vision Care Plus Program saves you money on follow-up care. When you are fit for contacts by our eye doctor, Vision Care Plus gives you one year of unlimited Progress Evaluation Visits with our eye doctor at no additional cost.
And Vision Care Plus offers other savings – reduced prices on lens replacement; reduced fitting fees if your prescription changes; an extended refund period; plus discounts on your prescription eyeglasses, Ray Ban and designer sunglasses, contact lens solutions, disinfecting systems and heating units. Compared to what you could pay somewhere else, Vision Care Plus is the best protection you could have.
So shop around. Compare. Then save at Cambridge Eye Associates, New England's largest family of eye doctors.
The Eye Doctors
$29.95 & up Single vision eyeglasses. Frames & lenses complete. Add $20 for flat-top bifocal lenses & frames complete.

By Bill Lohmann
UPI Feature Writer

The sleek look of the European-style kitchen, with its nifty nooks and crannies and economical use of space, is taking a firm foothold in the United States.

Kitchens in more and more new homes are being furnished with the European look, and plenty of kitchens in older homes are being remodeled with the fresh — but somewhat costly — style.

"It was greeted with some skepticism at first," said John Farill, a kitchen specialist for House of Denmark retail store in Atlanta. "But now, it is widely accepted."

The sleek look of the European kitchen, with its nifty nooks and cranies and economical use of space, is taking a firm foothold in the U. S. UPI photo.

Clean and crisp

The European look in kitchens is best described as "very clean and very crisp," said Farill.

The frameless cabinetry comes in components and can be relocated, the same as other furniture but unlike conventional cabinets that are built into the kitchen. The European style is almost always slick looking with either a laminate or light wood front and hidden hinges. Bright colors are plentiful, but solid whites and grays are big, too.

However, inside is what really counts.

Myriad of options

A myriad of options — ranging from footstools hidden as drawers to pull-out broom closets to corner cabinets that work as shelving carousels — characterize the European style, give the kitchen a personalized flavor and enable customers to take advantage of all conceivable space. That trend was born in small kitchens in Europe but can be just as easily adapted to large American kitchens.

Interiors utilize laminated furniture board for the adjustable shelves. Once shunned as cheap material, such laminates are becoming more popular because of their versatility and manageability.

"It's very stable and doesn't warp," Farill said of the furniture board. "Solid wood is not very good with temperature changes and is not very practical."

First step

One of the first manufacturers to introduce the European look in kitchens to the United States was Poggenpohl, a West German firm that came to America in 1974.

For Poggenpohl, the first step was a distributer in a Chicago suburb. Since those early days of being eyed with great skepticism, the company has grown into a blossoming business of 150 U.S. dealers and many competitors.

"Business is very good," said Michelle Marin, a spokeswoman for Poggenpohl. "When Poggenpohl came over here, it showed people that kitchens can be luxury items. Before that, it was not believed the kitchen was a place where families would spend a lot of their money. This shows that the Americans do want to invest in their kitchens."

And how.

Prices competitive

Poggenpohl is considered the upper end of the market, but many of its prices are competitive with other European imports and American equivalents. An average Poggenpohl kitchen starts about $10,000 and can travel into the $60,000 neighborhood. It is not far-fetched for customers to spend $150,000 on their kitchens, Marin said.

The American kitchen industry admittedly is playing catch-up with the Europeans. Ralph Frey, owner of the Old Mill Cabinet Shop in suburban Atlanta, has been making cabinetry the old fashioned way for two decades. He recenty added the European style to his repertoire.

"It's gradually taking the country," Frey said. "I didn't even know what it was all that long ago. In the last year, there have been a lot more people making them over here."

While other European kitchen furnishings, such as appliances, have found their way into the homes of only the well-to-do in America, the basic European look is traveling quickly down to the common man.

"People are just accepting the shortcomings of some of the kitchen cabinets and kitchen systems that have been available," Farill said. "Once they see how functional these are, they are not ready to accept the older styles."

Scavengers can turn 'junk' into furnishings

By Karen Timmons
United Press International

The old saying is still right on the mark: "One man's garbage is another man's treasure." When it comes to home furnishings, there is a growing breed of people who will spend days or even months in search of such treasure.

Across the land, they are picking through junkyards and demolition sites, flea markets and antique shops, in search of castoffs that can be turned into just the right touch for an empty corner or a lonely wall.

Call it scavenger chic or salvaged furnishings, but don't call it secondhand. The homes of today's scavengers often reflect an originality that can't be bought in a furniture store.

Salvagable goods such as old mantelpieces, clawfoot tubs and stained glass have long been sought by treasure hunters and antique lovers, but to today's scavenger every conceivable castoff is fair game.

"People will grab anything — stuffed birds, neon tubes, anything. It's unbelievable," says Adam Espinosa, proprietor of Adam's Junk in Los Angeles for nearly 30 years.

"We get a lot of students who come in (from USC and UCLA) and they'll buy oddball pieces of iron to stick in their living room as some kind of sculpture," said Espinosa.

Joseph Hernandez, manager of The Junk Shop in Los Angeles, sees no discernible West Coast trend in scavenging. "There's no latest rage," he said. "Whatever is weird is what seems to sell the fastest."

In Van Nuys, Calif., junk dealer Bill Chazen remembers selling a gun turret meant for a warship to a man who planned to open a snow cone shop and thought the turret would make a perfect igloo. "And it's been amazing how many people come in and buy old Christmas wrap," Chazen said.

In Washington, D.C., tastes among scavengers tend toward the more traditional, if no less innovative. Jeff Yudin, owner of The Canal Co., which specializes in architectural antiques, says stained glass and mantelpieces are still big, although many are now seeking the mantelpieces for use as headbaords.

Yudin's hottest sellers these days, however, are columns or pedestals of any period or size. "Those they use for everything from table bases to plant stands to making a statement ... like two columns in the living room," he said. "Anything that can be used as a pedestal, people are interested in."

The Washington dealer has also spotted "a growing trend" in the popularity of 1940s and '50s lighting fixtures. "They're interested in classic pieces," he said. "If they have a classic 1940s house, they're looking for period lighting fixtures because most of those have been torn out."

Architectural antiques are also in high demand among Texas scavengers.

At Orr-Reed Wrecking, the oldest and largest such salvage operation in North Texas, the biggest sales are in architectural pieces such as gargoyles, stained glass windows and ornamentally carved stairways. Ironwork always sells well, according to owner Charles Orr.

to the burn site may be inappropriate," according to Weiskopf Kelly, the DEQE's chief enforcement officer.

The original memo DEQE sent out to all municipalities following the storm authorized "controlled burning" but explicitly prohibited any burning on a landfill. City officials contended that the burning was taking place on a solid driveway section of the area.

When questioned last week about the city's conforming with the DEQE's guidelines, Chief Administrative Officer Richard Kelliher commented that the DEQE rules only referred to "active landfills." The fact that the city was burning at Rumford Avenue meant that it was all right to do it, Kelliher said.

City officials were cited later last week for violating environmental regulations when almost an acre of broken branches and trees raged out of control for more than a day.

Alderman Richard McGrath said the Public Works Department's handling of the problem is his biggest concern. "The biggest safety hazard I've found in this whole experience is the people who are making the judgments and decisions. It was our expertise that was the hazard, not the burning. It's pretty hard to alibi their performance over the last week or so," he said.

Although Paul D. Moan, the city's environmental health coordinator, promised residents he would make the city stop open burning last Wednesday night, he said little at a meeting in the mayor's office the next day, according aldermen who attended it.

Moan "hardly spoke" because his previous statements embarassed city administrators, according to McGrath, who attended the meeting in the mayor's office.

Moan's superior, Health Commissioner Bernice Joyal, was told to attend the meeting to "divert jurisdiction" away from Moan, he added.

Malec described Moan as "relatively quiet" and said "most questions on health-related issues were answered" by Joyal.

"She didn't seem to feel the burning constituted as severe a health hazard as Moan had indicated. She also seemed to indicate that the Health Department really does not know what is underneath the burn site," he said.

Mary Clossy, who lives near the landfill, complained about the mess of smoke and soot that descended on the neighborhood during the burning and added that she is now afraid someone will put a match to the mountain of debris before the city can figure out what to do with it.

"Instead of cleaning it up," she said, "someone's going to put a match to it. It won't be the neighborhood. It'll be someone who doesn't want to clean it up. It's not only my fear. Its a fear of the neighborhood."

ZBA criticized for poor attendance

NEWTON — Aldermen are considering asking the Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) for its attendance records after learning that the ZBA's Sept. 26 meeting had to be called off because not enough members showed up.

The lack of a quorum may have caused one of the petitions, which requests a variance for a home's rear lot line setback, to have been approved automatically because the ZBA failed to meet its statutory deadline for action on the item.

Only three of the ZBA's five full members appeared at the Sept. 26 eting, one short of the number needed for a legal working session, according to ZBA Clerk Paul Foley.

It was the second time in a little more than a year that a lack of a quorum forced the board to call a special meeting.

The gaff has renewed the smoldering skepticism some aldermen harbor for the ZBA's professionalism.

In Gloria's wake

Acres of debris from Hurricane Gloria burned out of control at the Rumford Avenue landfill late last week as the city attempted to implement its "controlled burning" policy. Smoke and soot covered much of Auburndale and Waltham before state environmental officials ordered the city to stop burning until it could achieve better control over the situation.

Lown wins Nobel

"It is especially signifiant that the organization was launched following a common initiative by Soviet and American doctors and has drawn the active participation of doctors in more than 40 countries on all continents," the citation said.

Aarvik said the commmmittee would invite Lown and Shazow to receive the prize at the Dec. 10 awards ceremony in Oslo. The Nobel prize this year fetches $225,000, the largest amount ever awarded for the prize.

Lown, a protessor of the Harvard School of Public Health, and Shazow, who works at the U.S.S.R. cardiological institute and has been personal physician for the last three Soviet leaders, founded the physicians organization in Geneva in December, 1980.

It has held annual world conventions since 1981.

The physicians organization was selected from among a record 99 nominees that included 65 individuals and 34 organizations.

The group was founded with the viewpoint that doctors stand helpless in the face of an atomic holocaust and that the only thing they can do is to help prevent nuclear war from breaking out, a group spokesman said.

'It's a miracle that we are alive today.'

Bernard Lown

"It is an illusion to believe that doctors in their hoispitals can do anything if a huge atomic war breaks out," said Odd Steffan Dalgard, head of the Norwegian branch of the prize-winning organization.

Lown and Shazow, in Geneva, Switzerland, for a fifth anniversary celebration of the founding of the group, said they were "delighted and overjoyed" that it was awarded the Nobel prize.

"But an even greater prize for us and humanity as a whole would be if everybody stopped nuclear explosions," Lown said. Shazow nodded in agreement.

Lown said that because of nuclear testing it is "a miracle that we are alive today."

New Japanese 'Super Pill' Insures Rapid Weight-Loss

No Dieting — Eat All You Want, Pill Does All The Work

BEVERLY HILLS, CA — An exciting new "all natural" weight-loss "Super" Pill developed by the JMA (Japanese Medical Association) has just been approved for distribution in the United States. Reportedly, it can guarantee that you will lose more than a pound a day without dieting, from the very first day until you reach your ideal weight and figure. News of this "Super Pill" is literally sweeping the country. It's called Amitol and there has never been anything quite like it before.

"Flushes Calories Right Out Of Your Body"

What makes Amitol so thrilling and unique is its reported ability to flush calories right out of your body. Amitol is completely safe, it contains no drugs whatsoever. Its ingredients are derived solely from the Konjac root which grows primarily in Northern Japan.

Why the Konjac root? It has been used in Japan for over 1600 years to produce rapid and natural weight-loss!

Japanese studies verify that Konjac root actually prevents fat producing calories from being absorbed into your system. They say it does this by surrounding much of the fats, proteins and carbohydrates you have eaten with a protective viscous coating which is then gently flushed out of your system. And according to Japanese research this produces absolutely amazing results.

And who can disagree! Amitol (although brand new to this country) is already being called by many people, "the most exciting weight-loss breakthrough of the century." In fact, everywhere there are reports of easy and fast weight-loss from formerly overweight people (in all walks of life) who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Company Offers Extraordinary Guarantee

You now can purchase Amitol direct from the North American distributor, and it comes with an extraordinary guarantee.

If you place your order now and then follow the simple instructions for a period of 30 days, you must be completely satisfied with the dramatic visible results or just return the empty container and Dyna Labs will immediately send back your entire purchase price. This guarantee applies regardless of your age or current weight level. What could be better than that! It's just that simple. If you've tried to lose weight before and failed you no longer have an excuse. Amitol is available, it's easy and it works without dieting!

Best of all, ordering Amitol is simple, fast, and reliable! Simply call Dyna Labs Toll Free: (1-800-441-5454) Ext. 901, and order with your credit card. If you don't have a credit card Dyna Labs will also accept C.O.D. orders right over the phone! All orders are shipped immediately by UPS, which means no delay and no orders lost in the mail!

$19.95—30 day supply, or $35.95—60 day supply. Operators are standing by and will be glad to take your order. You can order 24 hrs. a day, 7 days a week! Please don't wait to call. You really do deserve to be thin!

day care, these positions include workers in shelters for battered women and programs for victims, like rape counseling.

These are the issues "big-time politicians" on Beacon Hill "can't imagine to be very exciting," meaning they won't spend their time working on them. "If we don't focus on women's issues, nobody will," said Schur.

In fact, when the speaker of the house changed his mind on the percentage of increase for women welfare recipients, some men in the house saw the women's actions as "threatening" and acted as if getting the speaker to reverse his point of view had "never been done before."

In reality, "it happens all the time," although usually only when men serve as the persuasive powers.

Indeed, the major "cliques of power" within the legislature tend to be all male, said Schur. But women are making inroads into the network in some ways.

"We've begun to have beer with the boys," she explained, but not to the extent that they're taking part in the poker games, she added.

Besides, according to Schur, "most of the interaction (on the status of bills and other political maneuvers) occurs on the floor of the house."

And women have been gaining strength in numbers — with 28 in the house now versus 13 in 1981 — and have been getting appointed to positions of leadership, especially in the senate.

Further, women legislators are now full participants on house floor discussions, whereas when Schur first arrived at the state capital, "women were not talking on the floor very much at all."

> 'We've begun to have beer with the boys.'
> Susan Schur

"We're very serious in our purpose," said Schur. In fact, "women, as a whole, take things more seriously than men as a whole." In explanation, she continues that "Women came to the state house with 10 years experience, minimum, taking responsibility seriously and expecting government to work in a business-like manner."

She said most of the women there think they "ought to be able to schedule more" but "that's not the way the place works."

"Everything pops up," she said. "You may know that (a certain bill) is coming, but you may not know until that day."

The legislature can sometimes be working on 9,000 bills at once and many will sometimes "bubble up all in one morning."

"If you're concerned about a bill, you have to play vigilante and make sure you're there when they bring it up," said Schur.

The purpose of the Women's Caucus, said Schur, is "to stay on top of issues we care about" through following the bills through the complicated legislative processes.

Senior discounts

NEWTON — Howard Lipton, Newton's director of Human Services, advises Newton senior citizens that they may now sign up for the Silver Savers' Discount Program at several locations in the city. There are two components to the discount program.

The Silver Savers' Passport is an identification card discount program. The Silver Pages Senior Citizens Discount Directory.

The Silver Pages Senior Citizens Discount Directory will be mailed to all participating seniors sometime in December.

Sign up at the following Newton locations: Department of Human Services, Newton City Hall; Newton Senior Citizens, Newtonville Library, 345 Walnut St., Newtonville; Newton Corner Drop-In Center, Lincoln-Eliot School, 191 Pearl St.; Nonantum Multi-Service Center, 48 Silver Lake Ave.

Applicants must show proof of age when signing up in person by presenting a drivers' license, birth certificate or other legal document.

Program dissolves fear of handicaps

"Mainstreaming: What Every Child Needs to Know About Handicaps."

In January 1979, the program started at the Burr School and has spread to all of the elementary schools. Swett said the program has become so popular that the curriculum guide -- written by parental volunteers — is now up to 390 pages. "A lot of things, we've learned by experience," Swett said.

The program consists of five teaching units: blindness, hearing impairment, physical limitations, mental retardation and special medical problems such as asthma, diabetes and epilepsy.

These subjects are addressed at the fourth grade level. Volunteers spend 20 hours, over a five-week period, explaining to 600 students the difficulties handicapped persons face as a result of their special needs. The fourth grade was picked by program coordinators because "they seem less self-conscious about the subject," Linda Hiller, vice-president of the program, said. "We ask the kids to think about disabilities from the perspective of the persons who have them," she added.

Most of the 350 volunteers with the program are not professionals, according to Swett. "There's not much of a difference between us and the kids, except that we've (the volunteers) sensitized ourselves to the subject," she said.

Sensitizing the feelings of "future decision makers" to the needs of handicapped persons is the goal of the program, Swett's counterpart, Marge Birnbaum, said. "It's important for them to understand that we're all quite different, but that each of us has something different to offer one another."

During the final stages of the program and after students have studied a particular handicap, a person afflicted with a physical or emotional disability visits the classroom to meet and answer questions from the students.

Birnbaum said the informal get-togethers are a big success for all involved. "The kids aren't as fearful of persons with handicaps as a result of the program," she said. "If guest speakers live in Newton — and many of them do — the kids go right up to them if they see them on the street like they're an old friend."

In addition, the program has encouraged students who suffer from emotional or physical disabilities to open up to their peers. Hiller said there was a girl at Cabot several years ago who had epilepsy and was able "to tell the other kids in the class" about her condition through the program.

The material and equipment used by volunteers in the program include wheelchairs, canes and books printed in braille, Swett said. The co-ordinators also work closely with members of the Recreation Department, she added.

Swett said she hoped to expand the program, but that would depend on the ongoing support and the participation from members of the community. The program is currently funded with help from the School Department, the State Department of Education, city-wide PTAs and the local business community, she said.

The program has been so successful, similar programs are now in use or being planned in eastern Massachusetts communities as well as other parts of the country, Swett said.

City set for affirmative action

By Edward Cafasso
Staff Writer

NEWTON — The consultant working to revamp the city's minority hiring policies believes the key to an effective affirmative action program in city government is the person hired to implement it.

"The money (for recruiting minority job candidates) could be a problem if the person hired to do the job just wanted to sit around and push buttons to make it happen. A lot of your success will depend on the experience of the affirmative action officer," according to resident Leon A. Brathwaite II.

Brathwaite, a civil rights investigator and the former commissioner of the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination (MCAD), hopes to have a new AA officer and a new five-year hiring program in place by the beginning of 1986.

The city has been without a permanent affirmative action officer since April 1984, when a Newton Graphic investigation found the city had fallen far behind in its efforts to increase minority staffing levels in all departments.

Personnel records at the time showed minorities made up only 1.8 percent of the city's workforce, a figure far short of the 8.6 percent target goal the MCAD used as a standard. The city's current goal is a 10 percent minority staffing level.

In the aftermath of the story, the city's affirmative action officer at the time of the findings, who openly questioned the city's commitment to minority hiring and claimed her recruiting budget had been cut to "an almost unworkable size," resigned for "personal reasons."

Since then, the program has been undergoing review at a number of levels and the city's efforts to find a full-time officer have proven fruitless.

Leon A. Brathwaite

In one instance, a black applicant was close to taking the job, but turned it down when she received a better paying job in private industry.

Earlier this year, Brathwaite said, a routine MCAD review of the city's affirmative action policies found an uneven application of the Minority Business Enterprise (MBE) program, which is designed to encourage minority businesses to bid on city projects.

Although Community Development officials had followed MBE guidelines whenever state or federal money was involved in a project, other departments were under the impression MBE goals did not apply to city-funded projects, he said.

Brathwaite's goals are to make the MBE program part of the bidding procedures used by every department and to help develop a network of routine communication with agencies like the state's Office of Minority Business Assistance.

"I want to make it part of everyday business and work it into normal advertising. It is my hope that the city will develop a minority hiring list of its own," he said.

Brathwaite has also found women are "not being utilized in the higher level of jobs" available in city government and hopes to open up "promotional tracks" to them.

There is also a shortage of minorities holding professional managerial positions. Most in the city's employ can only be found in the fire, police and public works departments.

Slow turnover in upper level positions is one of the uncontrollable factors creating the problem, according to Brathwaite.

"We're going to be looking at where the blacks are working in city government right now. Clearly, one of our objectives is to improve their representation within all city departments," he said.

Although pay scales in private industry typically far exceed those found in the public sector, he believes the city can emphasize advantages like long-range benefits and job security to attract minority applicants.

Brathwaite's main task at this point is to "examine what really has been happening with the affirmative action program over the last five years. What has worked and what hasn't.

"We really have to examine what have been the hiring practices and patterns within the city and the city's efforts in the area of affirmative action outreach. That will include a breakdown of all the employees hired and terminated by department," he said.

A key part of this "utilization analysis" phase, which is set to hit full stride next month, will include one-on-one meetings between Brathwaite and all department heads.

Despite some of the problems he has uncovered, Brathwaite, whose wife, Brenda, works as an English teacher at Brown Junior High School, believes the city is genuinely committed to creating a sound and comprehensive affirmative action program.

"Everyone has been really supportive. I think Mayor Mann really wants to do something to get things on track," he said.

Asked if he was relieved that the case was finally over, he simply said, "Yes. There will be no further comment."

When news of the alleged rape hit the streets in July, a pall was cast over the Police Department. Rumors were rife throughout the department and the city.

The Middlesex County District Attorney's office began investigating the case shortly after July 17, but released little information to the public for about three weeks.

On Aug. 6, a grand jury refused to issue indictments against one of the officers for rape or indecent assault and battery. The district attorney's office decided against taking the other officer's case before a grand jury. Reluctance by the alleged rape victim to testify in court was seen as a major reason for the grand jury's decision.

Around that same time, Quinn announced that his department would conduct its own investigation as to whether department rules and regulations had been broken by the two men.

Interviews of the officers, the alleged victim and witnesses were completed by last month, but it took some time for the officers and the department to reach agreement over the terms of the disciplinary action. Both men were represented by independent attorneys, according to Quinn.

When the two officers were cleared of criminal charges by the grand jury, Paul Richardson, a spokesman for the district attorney's office, said, "Based on what (the alleged victim) told us, on the physical evidence and what others told us, we were satisfied there was sufficient evidence to go before the grand jury; but we needed her cooperation to go forward with it.

"From the beginning, the victim had expressed strong reluctance to go forward to grand jury or trial. For the deepest personal reasons, she didn't feel she could go forward. It's critical to have the testimony of the victim. Without her testimony, there's not a whole lot we can prove."

Richardson added, "...unless she changes her mind, we are not in a position to pursue the matter. We would need cooperation of the victim. We're not going to pressure the victim to testify. If there is sufficient proof of tampering, we'll take a long look at it."

JUST BETWEEN US

THE WALTHAMWESTON HOSPITAL & MEDICAL CENTER IS THE MOST COMPLETE CANCER MANAGEMENT FACILITY BETWEEN WORCESTER AND BOSTON.

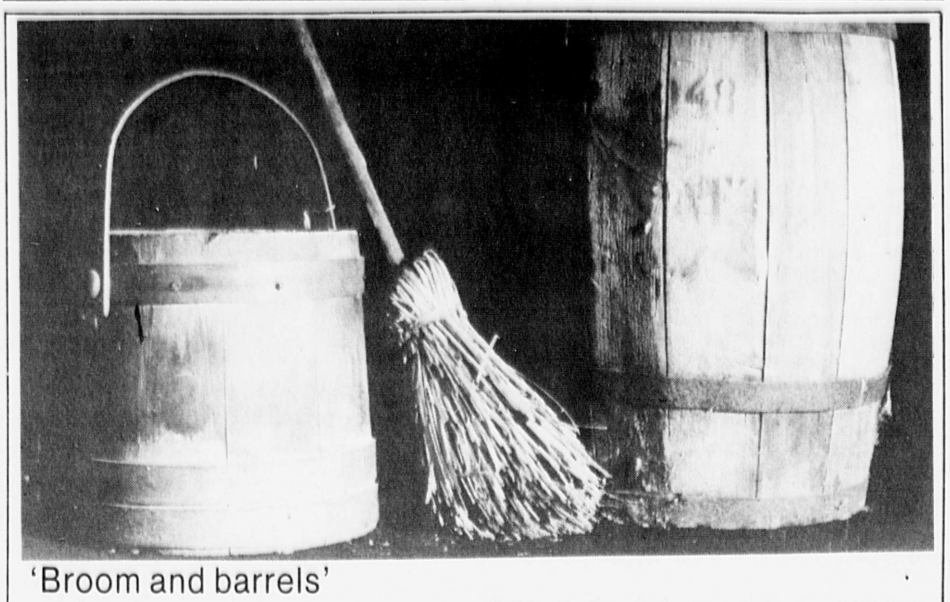

It's no secret that in the past, the only place for residents of the western suburbs to receive complete cancer management care was either Boston or Worcester. Just between us though, this is no longer the case. The WalthamWeston Hospital & Medical Center is fully equipped to handle every aspect of cancer management so patients don't have to travel for the specialized care they need. From the prevention of cancer, to its detection and treatment, it's the only regional facility of this kind located between Boston and Worcester. The best cancer specialists from Boston practice at WalthamWeston. The latest state-of-the-art technology, such as a CT scanner for early detection, cobalt radiation equipment, and the recently acquired linear accelerator as well as our chemotherapy program provide the most up-to-date therapy available. All of this, along with lifestyle programs offering information on the benefits of exercise, stress management, non-smoking and diet, has made this regional cancer management program so complete that the WalthamWeston Hospital & Medical Center is one of fewer than 10 percent of community hospitals in the United States to have been accredited by The Commission on Cancer of the American College of Surgeons.

The WalthamWeston Hospital & Medical Center is ready and able to help, a little bit closer to home. For more information, call today at (617) 647-6539.

'Broom and barrels'

Newton resident Diane Griliches won first prize in the Boston Camera Club's October competition with an entry called "Broom and barrels" at the very first meeting she ever attended. Griliches, who is active in several theater production companies in the area, has been involved with darkroom photography for more than four years, but she received her only formal instruction this past summer at the Boston Center for Adult Education.

'Harvest Moon' dance October 19

NEWTON — The second special Saturday night dance of the season, "Harvest Moon," will be hosted by the Great Plain Squares Saturday, Oct. 19. It will be held at the Bishop MacKenzie Center (Sacred Heart Church), 1325 Centre St., Newton Centre at 8 p.m.

Art Nurse, the club's weekly caller, will be the guest caller for the evening. Lou Toth, a popular round dance cuer on the North Shore, will be the guest cuer for the many round dancers. Dancing will be at mainstream level.

The gym will be decorated in autumn colors, and sandwiches and sweets will be available at intermission.

In addition, the Waltham Twirlers will be visiting with two squares or more to "capture" the club's banner.

Club-level dancers are cordially invited to attend the dance. For more information, please call George or Lillian Thissell at 444-0074.

Mozart concert at museum

NEWTON — On Sunday, Oct. 20 at 4 p.m. the de Camera Chamber Players led by Mr. Robert Koff will perform an All Mozart Program at the Jackson Homestead Historical Museum which is located at 527 Washington St., Newton. The Players are Mr. Robert Koff, recent Woodrow Wilson Foundation Fellow in Music, or violin, Rosalind Koff, forte piano, Paulette Bowes, Associate Director of All Newton Music School, on clarinet, and Susan Klebanow, voice.

This program scheduled is in conjunction with an ongoing exhibit at the Homestead entitled "Universal Language" featuring the History of the All Newton Music School which is celebrating its 75th Anniversary this year.

Tickets are free and the public is cordially invited. For information, call 527-4553.

Robert Koff, the first musician to ever be appointed by the Woodrow Wilson Foundation as a fellow, is a graduate from the Oberlin Conservatory and from the Juilliard Graduate School of Music. He was a founding member of the famed Juilliard String Quartet and a faculty member there for 11 years.

Koff, now professor emeritus at Brandeis University, was artist-in-residence and chairman of the department of music there for many years. He was also a visiting professor at Harvard University and the Institute of Advanced Studies in Tel Aviv.

After "retiring" from academia, Koff continues to teach and perform for the All Newton Music School.

One of the pioneers in bringing early music performances on period instruments to Boston, Koff continues to be active on the concert scene. His plans for the current year include his first assignment, together with his wife Rosalind, as Woodrow Wilson Fellows in residence at Regis College, Colorado, and Furman University, South Carolina, to be followed in May with a two-month vacation when he and his wife will tour France via folding bicycles and canal boats returning in July to prepare for the next busy season.

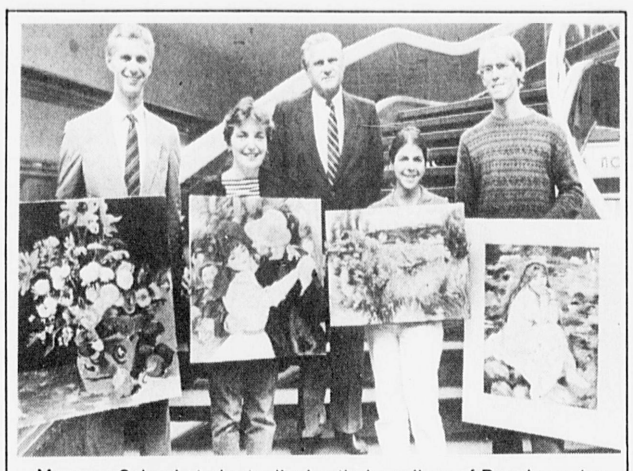

Mums the word

NEWTON — Oriental gardens return to the Mall at Chestnut Hill in mid-October when hundreds of rare hanging Japanese chrysanthemums cascade from the 70 foot skylights in a dazzling salute to autumn. For the fourth consecutive year, the rare chrysanthemum collection of Allen C. Haskell will be on exhibit.

Consistent winner of awards from horticultural and garden shows throughout the country, Haskell will display many new varieties of cascade and Fuji mums in an incredible assortment of colors ranging from peach, royal purple, orange, yellow, white, scarlet, pink and lavender. This year he plans to introduce a large, round topiary mum called a Lollipop.

A number of these rare new varieties have only recently been raised before on the east coast. To do so, Haskell imported cuttings from Tokyo and from one Japanese family of chrysanthemum growers in California. The plants have been growing for months under black linen to control their blooming.

Located at the junction of Route 9 and Hammond Pond Parkway, the Mall at Chestnut Hill often features exotic indoor gardens while providing a showcase for the area's performing arts and cultural activities.

BayBank manager Ann Marie Foley has been promoted to Assistant Vice President by the Board of Directors of BayBank Middlesex. She is responsible for management of the bank's Waban branch office at 466 Woodward St.

Mrs. Foley joined BayBank in 1978, and is an alumna of Boston College.

Mary Ellen Shorey has been elected Assistant Vice President and Banking Manager by the Board of Directors of BayBank Middlesex. She is responsible for management of the bank's North Waltham branch at 1065 Lexington St. Ms. Shorey, who has been with BayBank since 1976, is an Aquinas Junior College graduate.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Cronin of Newton.

Newton-based artists Jody W. Klein of Waban, Wendy Bedenbaugh of Newton and Laurie Kaplowitz of Auburndale, won finalist prizes in a competition sponsored by The Artists Foundation, Inc. The Artists Fellowship Program awarded 27 $7,500 grants and 38 $500 finalist prizes to Massachusetts artists. The 27 Fellows and 38 Finalists were selected from a field of 2,404 applicants.

Sumner and Esther Feldberg of Chestnut Hill, long-time philanthropic and communal leaders, have been named Chairmen of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies 90th Anniversary Annual Meeting which was held Sept. 22, at the Westin Hotel.

Mr. Feldberg is one of the founders of the Zayre Corporation and is Chairman of the Board. Long active in communal affairs, he is a trustee of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies and Beth Israel Hospital and has served as a CJP Vice President.

Mrs. Feldberg is President of the Women's Auxiliary, Beth Israel Hospital, and has served as a Vice President of the CJP's Women's Division and as Co-Chairman of its Big Gifts Division. She was a Special Gifts Chairman for Boston Hadassah Donor Luncheon.

Cynthia M. Vasil

Cynthia M. Vasil of Newton has been promoted to the position of manager/accounting at Guaranty-First Bank, as announced by Bernard A. Scafidi, vice-president and director of human resources.

Prior to her appointment, Vasil was an assistant manager/accounting at the bank's main office.

A graduate of Guaranty-First Bank's management training program, Vasil joined the bank in October 1982 and received her bank training in the Main Office and Newton Centre Office.

Esther and Sumner Feldberg

The Rev. Marjorie Lain Marsh has been appointed director of public relations and publications at Andover Newton Theological School, effective Sept. 1, 1985.

Marsh has been with Andover Newton's public relations office since May 1984 as public relations assistant and associate editor of Today's Ministry. She received her M. Div. degree from Andover Newton in 1984 and was ordained in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) in April 1985. Prior to her affiliation with Andover Newton, Marsh directed the community services unit of the Capital District Psychiatric Center in Albany, and worked for Albany Medical College where she was responsible for public relations, political/legislative work, multi-media productions, community education and communications. She has extensive experience in church and community organization, and helped run several political campaigns in Albany.

Newton resident Rita A. Blanchard, M.D., assistant professor of medicine and biochemistry at Boston University School of Medicine (BUSM), was recently awarded a $36,000 grant by the Whitaker Health Sciences Fund of Cambridge.

Blanchard received the grant for her project "The Use of Anti-Idiotypic Antibodies to Investigate the Membrane Binding Properties of Protein C."

Protein C, when activated by Thrombomodulin (TM), another protein produced by the body, prevents blood clotting. The research may help in the treatment of stroke.

The project is one of six collaborative biomedical research projects totalling $270,000 to be conducted jointly by faculty at BUSM and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Blanchard, a graduate of Vassar College, received her M.D. degree from Cornell University. She lives in the Garden City with her husband Kenneth, an endocrinologist at Newton-Wellesley Hospital, and their two sons.

Takin' care of BUSINESS

By Jeff Peterson
In Focus Editor

"The boys in the boardroom" listen intently during briefing on insurance costs Jeff Peterson photos

Since the beginning of time it has been regarded as a recipe for success.

Start with a good idea, stir in a shot of investment, add equal parts of ambition, desire and drive, and over it all sprinkle a healthy dose of hard work.

Presto — a successful business.

Unfortunately, it seldom works that way. At least according to those who have been there and survived.

"Ninety percent of new companies go bankrupt within two years," says Milton Grahm of Newton. "And in almost 100 percent of the cases it's a lack of management skills."

Grahm, 75, the founder and first president of Boston's Grahm Junior College, speaks as a volunteer for the Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE).

Sponsored by the federal Small Business Administration, SCORE offers to individuals seeking advice on business matters the expertise of some 60 retired executives. It was founded in Boston 20 years ago and now has chapters in cities across the country.

"I think it's a wonderful example of people who get on in years — older than four-score — and are still active," says Leon Margolis of Chestnut Hill.

Margolis ought to know. The 77-year-old former merchandise manager for Filene's has been with SCORE for 20 years this fall. And he is not shy about telling novices to the field that owning a business is no cakewalk.

"A lot of people have great visions about what they'd like to do, but they have no practical experience," Margolis says. "We make as great a contribution in keeping people out of business as we do in helping after they get started."

This theme is hammered home again and again at small business workshops staged by SCORE twice each month at the J.F.K. Federal Building in Boston. The workshops, which cost a paltry $6 to attend, consist of a series of lectures, consultations and discussions by local business leaders and individual SCORE counselors.

A typical "class" is comprised of about 45 clients ranging in age from the late teens to mid-50s. Some wear business suits and ties. Others wear jeans and flannel. At least half are women.

"We tend to get a lot of younger people who want to do their own thing," observes Melvin Hoostein, 60, of West Newton, a former clothing manufacturer. "But they all have one thing in common: they want to accomplish the all-American dream of starting their own business."

The first lecturer is Jason Miller, vice president of the Quincy Savings Bank, who speaks on various financin options. Miller briefs the SCORE clients on what banks look for when considering loan applications.

"Banks are not in the risk business. We are in the money lending business," Miller says. "If you approach a bank with a vague request about vague amounts they tend to get a vague feeling about being repaid."

Ralph Rosenbaum, 75, of West Newton, who operated an import-export business before retiring a decade ago, agrees.

"It takes good seed to grow good grain," he tells the aspiring businessmen. "In today's language: It takes money to make money."

Maureen Peterson, a 26-year-old expectant mother from Milton, is one of those listening intently to Miller's comments. A second-grade teacher, she is attending the workshop in anticipation of starting a small in-home business after her baby is born.

"I'm not sure yet exactly what kind of business I'd want," Peterson says, mentioning a word processing service is one possibility.

Peterson is accompanied at the workshop by Maureen Newman, 36, of Duxbury, who is considering opening a stationary business at home.

"I know I'd be successful," she says confidently.

Newman's optomism is blunted considerably as the next lecturer, Edward Kerr, takes the podium. A management consultant and lecturer at Bunker Hill Community College, Kerr points out only 5 percent of starter businesses survive for five years.

"So why do you want to start a business?" Kerr demands, jabbing a finger at the class.

"To have independence," a young woman answers.

"Then go to Missouri," Kerr shoots back.

"So I can retire early," says another.

"That's right, you'll probably kill yourself," Kerr retorts.

In general, Kerr does little to reassure the students who, only two hours earlier, were flushed with the possibility of owning their own company.

"If you're 'the type' you can make any business go," he says. "If you're not the type you'll run any good idea into the ground."

Kerr is not alone.

"If we do our job right, when someone tells us they want to go into business our reply should be 'sucker!' because the odds are stacked against them," says Wade Jones, 71, a former sales and management consultant from Watertown.

And Milton Grahm characterizes his role with SCORE as, in addition to advising people about the pitfalls, "realizing when they're not qualified to start a company, and gently discouraging them from doing it."

During a break for lunch, however, Leon Margolis admits ambition and determination can compensate for a certain lack of practical business knowledge.

"I never say 'no' to clients," says Margolis, a former chaper chairman. "Hard work can make up for a hell of a lot. But I do try to point out the pitfalls."

Following lunch, the workshop breaks down into discussion groups. Individuals interested in specific businesses are paired with counselors expereinced in those areas.

"If they need a marketing man we'll pair them with one," explains chapter chairman Joseph Mason of Wellesley. "The same if they need an insurance man."

Mason says clients seeking additional advice from SCORE counselors are welcome to stop by the organization's offices, located at 150 Causeway St. in Boston. No appointments, or additional fees, are required.

"If people have the capital to go into business we will continue to advise them on an ongoing basis," says Bernard Perlmuter, 84, of Newton Centre, who worked in the furniture business until his retirement in 1978.

It is this kind of commitment which Kerr says makes SCORE invaluable.

"They have the experience," he barks. "Why should you come to a guy like me for help at $60-an-hour when you can get it for free?"

Why indeed?

SCORE counselors offer the same expertise, give the same advice, and present the same gloomy scenarios as any high-priced consultant. What they cannot provide is the motivation and drive needed to operate a sucessful business.

According to Grahm, who in 1951 took over a "bankrupt secreterial school with nine students" and in 20 years built it into a non-profit, degree-granting institution of 1350, there is only one true motivation.

"I always hear people say they want to go into business to make money," he says. "That's the wrong reason. You go into business because you love what you're doing."

And Grahm still loves what he is doing. Part of the beauty of the SCORE program is that each party gets something out of the relationship. Clients get practical advice on business matters. SCORE counselors get the chance to remain active in their retirement and the satisfaction of helping others.

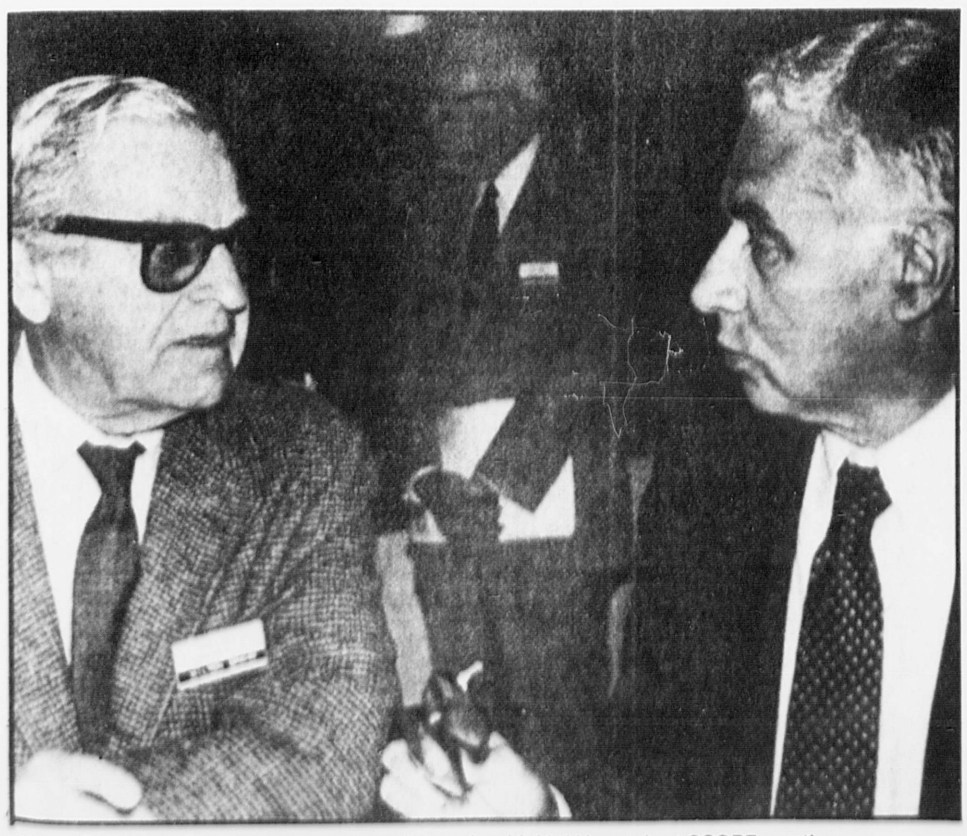

"I've found it a very good experience," says Wade Jones. "I enjoy being able to pass on what I've learned."

"I'm busier now than before I retired," adds Sam Moshcovitz of Chestnut Hill, a 78-year-old former CPA. "I think dealing with younger people keeps me young."

Rachel Mallalieu and Stephen Rubin

Rachel Mallalieu weds Mr. Stephen M. Rubin

The ITAM Lodge on Lake Pontoosuc in Pittsfield was the setting for the August wedding of Rachel Kingsley Mallalieu and Stephen Marshall Rubin.

The beautiful outdoor ceremony was performed by Judge Rudolph A. Sacco and included a recitation of the Apache Wedding Blessing by the bride's father.

The bride, daughter of Dale M. Williams, New York, N.Y., and John W. Mallalieu, Branford, Ct., attended the University of Nevada-Reno and is a freelance artist.

The bridegroom, son of Mrs. William Rubin of Newton Centre and the late Mr. Rubin, is a graduate of Northeastern University and is a computer systems design engineer for Digital Techniques in Burlington.

The maid of honor was Julie Mallalieu, sister of the bride. The bridesmaids were Judy Krol, Katya Edwards, Diane Copensky, Justine Johnson, Theresa Zukowski and Kellie O'Brien. Jamie LaPearle was the flower girl.

Laurence Mark (Larry) Rubin, brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were Hugh and Raoul Mallalieu, brothers of the bride, Steven Shaer, Howard (Smitty) Kirsten, David Weisman and Scott Bishop.

Following a wedding trip to California, the couple will reside in Jamaica Plain.

Pamela Faria weds Paul Dangelo

Miss Pamela Arlyne Faria, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis R. Faria of Watertown will wed Mr. Paul Edmund Dangelo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund J. Dangelo of Newton. The ceremony will be held at Our Lady Help of Christians Church in Newton. A reception will follow at the Sheraton Tara in Framingham. A Valentines Day wedding is planned.

League is sponsoring candidates debates

The League of Women Voters Newton will sponsor "Meet the Candidates" debates before the Nov. 5 elections for school committee and alderman.

The School Committee debate, co-sponsored with the PTA Council, will be on Oct. 24, at Brown Junior High School from 8-10 p.m. Written questions from the audience will follow opening statements from the candidates. Cider and donuts will be served after the debates to give citizens a chance to mingle informally with the candidates and ask any further questions they might have. Both unopposed candidates and those facing races will attend.

The aldermanic debate will be on Oct. 31 from 8-10 p.m. at the War Memorial Auditorium in City Hall. Cider, coffee, and donuts will be available during the debate. Each of the 15 opposed candidates will give a statement, followed by written questions from the audience. The unopposed candidates will comment after the question period on issues of particular interest.

The debates will be cablecast live and re-broadcast before the election. Check Channel 3 local newspapaer listing for re-broadcast times. Election night results will be live on cable.

Gardeners unite for flower arrangment lecture

The Putterham Garden Club of Brookline is combining with Temple Beth Shalom Garden Club of Needham and the Temple Emanuel Garden Club of Newton to present the talent and expertise of Mrs. Margaret Sharpley of Taunton, England. Since 1976, Mrs. Sharpley has made six annual visits to the east coast of the United States demonstrating and lecturing on British methods of flower arranging. She has been invited to serve on the panel of judges for the Womens' Exhibition Committee Gardens at the Massachusetts Horticultural Society's New England Spring Garden and Flower Show.

The meeting will take place on Friday, Oct. 18, at Temple Beth Shalom, 670 Highland Ave., Needham, at 9:30 a.m. At 10:30 a.m. Mrs. Sharpley will present her program entitled "English Gardens."

Pair of teachers to marry

Harold and Lucinda Denton of Rockville, Md. have announced the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth Glass, to Gary Ward Baird, son of Victor and Susanne Baird of Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla.

Elizabeth is a 1979 graduate of Stone Ridge Country Day School of the Sacred Heart in Bethesda, Md. and now teaches science at the Newton Country Day School of the Sacred Heart. She received her B.S. degree from Salem College in Winston-Salem, N.C. in 1983. The bride-elect represented North Carolina as Cherry Blossom Princess at the Washington, D.C. festival in 1982.

Gary graduated from the University of Northern Colorado and received his master's degree in education communications from the University of Washington in Seattle. He teaches English and social studies at Day Junior High School in Newtonville.

The wedding is planned for Nov. 30, 1985 in the Stone Ridge Chapel in Maryland.

Julie Gail Morse

Julie Gail Morse of Newtonville marries Brad Ford Pogachefsky

Ms. Julie Gail Morse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Morse, Newtonville, was married at a candlelight ceremony at Boston's Copley Plaza Hotel on Saturday, Sept. 28, to Mr. Brad Ford Pogachefsky, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Pogachefsky, Elkins Park, Penn.

Rabbi Murray I. Rothman of Temple Shalom of Newton officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Sunset tapers were lit by the bride's cousins, Sharon Hurwitz and Bruce Karten. Maid of honor was Ms. Susan Karten, cousin of the bride. Matron of honor was Mrs. David Hill. Mr. Pogachefsky's best man was the bride's brother, Mr. Peter Morse.

Bridal attendants were Ms. Linda Hurwitz, cousin of the bride, and the groom's sisters, Mrs. Brian Melamed, Mrs. Robert Nichols and Mrs. Herbert Schwartz. The bridegroom's attendants were Mr. Ronald Pearlstein, as well as the bridegroom's brothers-in-law, Dr. Brian Melamed, Mr. Robert Nichols and Mr. Herbert Schwartz.

In addition to their parents, the bride and bridegroom had in their procession Mrs. David Weinstein, escorted by her grandson Louis Karten, Mr. and Mrs. Max Morse, grandparents of the bride; and Mrs. Rose Brandow, the bridegroom's grandmother, who was escorted by Mr. Schwartz.

The bride's Ada Athenasiou white silk taffeta gown featured a gathered bodice, enhancing tear drop pearl-accented puff sleeves, set at shoulders' edge and highlighted by silk appliqued roses. Her headpiece was rimmed by a half-crown of appliqued roses and seed pearls, set upon French tulling. The full-length gown was styled with an assymetrical skirt, floor-length in front, with a longer petalshaped train following. The bride's attendants wore white lace tea-length gowns.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Pogachefsky received their Bachelor of Science degrees from Boston University School of Management. Following a honeymoon in Marbella, the couple will reside in Sommerspoint, N.J., neighboring the West Atlantic City locale, where Mr. Pogachefsky is president of Bradford Buick.

Claire Plow and Arthur Margolis

Claire D. Plow is married to Mr. Arthur S. Margolis

Claire D. Plow of Revere and Arthur S. Margolis of Newton were married Sept. 1 at the Hillview Country Club in North Reading.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Plow of Revere. She is a graduate of Fisher Jr. College and is the In-Vitro Fertilization Program Coordinator at Beth Israel Hospital. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jon. B. Margolis of Newton. He is a graduate of Mass College of Pharmacy. He is a registered pharmacist for CVS.

The couple now reside in Newton.

Reaching out while on the road

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — You're a salesman, an attorney, a doctor. You have deadlines to meet, money to make, promises to keep. Valuable time is sliding away creeping along those Southern California freeways.

Can't be pulling off choked roadways looking for a gas station pay phone to check those messages or close that deal.

Solution: the car phone.

"Without it, life would hardly be possible," said Jim Wolley, a Santa Monica atheletic supply salesman, enjoying the overstatement. "You know, it really makes you sound impressive with your customers."

"I can talk to my girlfriend all the way to work if I want to," said Randy Phillips, who each day makes a 45-minute shuttle between Pacific Palisades to downtown Los Angeles.

"It's really kind of a kick to have. You can call up the sports lines, a friend, or anything, right in your own car."

"It's a prestige thing," Merry Moore, a customer service representative at Communications Signalling in North Hollywood, said. "For a lot of people, it's a great toy, but for others it makes them money too. And it can do that."

Wolley reported a 25 percent increase in sales since he purchased his mobile phone a little over a year ago.

The car phone has come along way since the first primitive one, the Phone Patch, was produced commercially in St. Louis in 1946.

Then, it was a product exclusively for the rich and famous. Until the late 1960s and early 70s, the mobile phone remained an unnecessary luxury, a contrivance for the wealthy.

Today, they are a hot item, right up there with garage door openers, a burgeoning technological necessity in many time-conscious minds that have wired themselves into about 100,000 automobiles in the Los Angeles area — almost 75 percent more than there were a year ago.

The advent in 1984 of the cellular telephone is the primary reason for the rapid sales increase.

Unlike the mobile phones of the recent past, the cellular phone can handle many more calls with greater efficiency. It doesn't fade out driving down an alleyway as much as anymore.

And with 23 celluar antennaes now in place throughout Southern California, calls can be made virtually from Santa Barbara to San Diego, Moore said.

"You can call Sri Lanka as long as your within a cellular site area," Moore said. "But cellular phones are a long way from going nationwide. And to my mind it will never be everywhere. I certainly don't see them building (a cellular antenna) in Horsebreath, Ark."

Several years ago, the car phone cost as much as $3,000 to install. Now, a good system can be put in for as little as $800 to $1,000 and it takes less than a half day, said Walter Ryan, manager of Cellular Car Telephones in Burbank.

With a basic service charge of $45 a month and 45 cents a minute between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. (it's 27 cents the rest of the time), the average phone bill of mobile phone users runs about $130 a month, Ryan said.

Customers can also lease them for a price ranging from $50 to $135 a month, Moore said.

"It's getting just like buying a stereo system for your home," Ryan said. "You have to get your basic telephone, the antenna, then have it mounted properly in the car, and you have to have the box that houses the computer unit which handles the billing."

Turning over a new leaf each fall

In purely aesthetic terms, the natural beauty of flaming ambers and auburns lighting a mountainside is a breathtaking sight unmatched in nature.

Up the Shenandoahs, the Blue Ridge, the Appalachians and New England's plentiful hillsides, leaf peepers will be out in force this month, seeking more along America's foliage trail than an eyeful of pastoral pulchritude.

"I think the big attraction is the nice aura about everything," said Pat van Vliet, an assistant with the New Hampshire Travel Bureau and leader of the Leaf Watchers Corps.

"It's a super time of the year. The air is crisp, and it just makes you glad to be alive. Everyone feels good in the fall. It's not hot, and it's not freezing — it's just plain nice," van Vliet said.

"You have the beautiful sight of the color, along with the perfect weather," Rust said. "It's just delightful to see the countryside, particularly with all the wonderful country inns we have.

"People spend the day going through the countryside, then spend the night in front of a fireplace after a nice dinner," he said. "New England's a very special place during the fall."

That special quality extends both south and west from New England, with peak viewing weeks varying from county to county. New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia, the Carolinas and Georgia are among the states that know there is big business in attracting foliage fans. Many have telephone hot lines for tourists to call for information on peak foliage spots.

"Fall is a very strong season for us," said Martha Steger, spokeswoman for the Virginia Division of Tourism. "It's a different kind of traveler. We don't get five people in a car — three kids, a mother and father. It's an older, more-affluent traveler."

Travelers will meet with a varied display of leaf quality in New England and are assured of a full show despite Hurricane Gloria, which reportedly did no damage to trees in popular viewing areas.

Unusually heavy rainfall in the past three months will create more vibrant, longer lasting leaves in Connecticut, Rhode Island and southern Massachusetts, while lighter-than-normal rainfall will have the opposite effect in northern New England, said David Taylor, a climatologist with Weather Services Corp. of Bedford, Mass.

Laughter is the best medicine

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Do your homework, know your audience and don't take yourself too seriously.

When Philip Caudill follows the formula, he's not preparing a dinner speech. He's handling the intricate relations between Phillips Petroleum Co. and foreign countries.

Caudill says the seven years he spent in London as head of public relations for Phillips in Europe and Africa taught him the rights and wrongs of selling an American company's image overseas.

"It doesn't work to take American PR programs with American perspectives into another country," Caudill said.

"You can't just walk in and say, 'Hi, let's do business.' You've got to be careful you don't make social errors."

Caudill, now is head of advertising and business promotions for Phillips at its headquarters in Bartlesville, Okla. In an interview he said American companies are awakening to the importance of studying foreign cultures and using that information to tailor their public relations campaigns.

"This is really unfolding in international PR," he said. "The trend is really common sense."

Companies spend millions of dollars marketing their products, but when it comes to selling their companies' images overseas, executives "often fail to take the most important step of all — the step of research."

"They fail to ask the target audience what it feels," Caudill said. "We (executives) simply assume they are interested."

He said many PR executives now are using attitude surveys and "focus-group" interviews and are analyzing patterns of buying, voting and income distribution "to try to understand the people we're dealing with."

Research helped Caudill learn that residents of European countries prefer being addressed as French, German, Spanish, etc. — instead of as "Europeans."

"There is indeed a Europe but there are very few Europeans," he said. "It could be catastrophic ... for an American business person to approach the European Continent as if it were all the same."

In Africa, he found that American business needs to be aware of the "strong tribal heritage of countries" and of "centuries-old animosities" among countries. Caudill said the wise foreign executive should first seek to make friends, only later moving to the subject of business.

"To even broach the subject (of business) in the first call is considered rude," he said. "The value of building friendships cannot be overstated."

Another lesson Caudill learned is that humor is a great communicator.

"It is possible, in fact desirable in many instances, to try to use humor to convey information," he said. "So many of us, in any business, take ourselves too seriously."

Caudill dreamed up "License to Drill," a documentary on Phillips' exploration operations in the North Sea that is disguised as a comedy fashioned after a hit British Broadcasting Corp. situation comedy.

"We kid ourselves as the oil industry in this film," Caudill said, but the "radical approach" of the film, which is offered free to British schools and other organizations, has proved very successful in getting Phillips' point across, he said.

He said the film is aimed at those ages 16-25, "an emerging political force" in Britain.

Quebec heads for Camelot

MONTREAL, Canada (UPI) — The province of Quebec, saddled for a quarter-century with a contentious separatist image, is now led by a man who combines Kennedy-style glamor with an intellect that has few peers in the political world.

Pierre-Marc Johnson, 39, is both a doctor and a lawyer — academic credentials that are unique among the world's leaders — and has a hardheaded determination to attract new business to Quebec.

He was chosen at a Parti Quebecois convention Sunday to replace outgoing premier Rene Levesque, who resigned after 25 years in politics, the last nine as premier. Johnson received 58.7 percent of 97,389 votes cast, while the first runnerup, Pauline Marois, received only 19.7 percent.

His election marks a dramatic leap in his ruling party's shift away from earlier separatist, socialist policies to a more cooperative stance of increased ties with the rest of Canada and the United States.

Johnson still draws strong parallels between emergency medicine, which he once practiced, and politics:

"Sometimes you have to make fast decisions," he said. "It's important to be disciplined, precise and comforting at the same time."

During the firebrand Levesque years, many companies fled Quebec because of political stridecy, legal requirements for conducting business in French and increased taxation. The economy took a nosedive.

Johnson, fluent in both French and English, favors more trade and freer trade with the United States.

> 'We're not going to put our heads in the sand like ostriches and close our eyes to the fact that trade is becoming more international.'
>
> Pierre-Marc Johnson

"I'm not sure we can think at this time in terms of a free-trade zone," he said. "But we're not going to put our heads in the sand like ostriches and close our eyes to the fact that trade is becoming more international."

Quebec, with a population of 6 ½ million people, is a small domestic market and has "terrific productivity problems to face," he said. "We have to do everything we can to counter the protectionist tendency in the United States. It's in both countries' interests."

In 1983, the last year for which complete figures are available, Quebec exported $7.6 billion worth of goods to the United States, representing 70 percent of all Quebec exports. America sent $5.9 billion to Quebec in the same period.

Johnson said he is open to expanding hydroelectric power exports to New England, but is against an opposition plan to start massive new hydro developments in James Bay for export purposes.

"Hydroelectricity must, in the first place, serve our own goals for industrialization," Johnson said.

Johnson is sensitive to corporate feelings that the Quebec government has interfered too much in private industry with laws restricting the use of English, establishing high minimum wages and amending labor law in favor of strikers.

"We cannot let ideological considerations win out over job creation and economic growth," he asserts.

Johnson is expected to call an election in November, and polls indicate he may lead his party to a close victory over the federalist Liberal party.

Johnson comes from a wealthy family with a strong political tradition. His English family name derives from an Irish grandfather who married into a French-Canadian clan.

He describes himself as "more stubborn than spontaneous, more reflective than angry and more prudent than exciting." He believes in delegating authority and uses the buzzword "brainstorming" to describe his administrative style.

He comes to power 19 ½ years after his late father, Daniel Johnson, was elected Quebec premier as head of the right-wing Union Nationale party.

His father, also a lawyer, served as Quebec premier for two years until a fatal heart attack in 1968. When his father died, Johnson vowed he would never enter politics, but changed his mind five days later.

In northern Ireland, kids pay the price

By United Press International

Children from Northern Ireland: The following is a roundtable discussion by James, 12, Eugene, 11, Thomas, 14, whose tape-recorded interviews, discussions, reports and commentary were edited by teenagers and adults.

THOMAS: In our neighborhood in Belfast, you get bloody soldiers walking up and down the streets every day of the week. You get armored cars going up and down the streets. There's a lot of stone-throwing and people getting hurt.

Northern Ireland was free at one time. I don't know exactly when. I wasn't born then. It was after World War II that the British soldiers started coming in. They wanted to take over. Now Protestants and Catholics fight against each other.

JAMES: Most of the kids in my school don't like Protestants. Not at all. One way for Protestant and Catholic kids to be with each other is the program we're on — Project Children. We're Catholic, but Protestants came over as well.

EUGENE: The Protestants are British.

JAMES: They claim theirself British.

EUGENE: And the Catholics are the Irish Republican Army, the IRA.

JAMES: The IRA wants to free Ireland from British control. They're trying to get the British out.

EUGENE: It's a guerilla war. The soldiers knock on your door, busting into them, trying to tear your house apart.

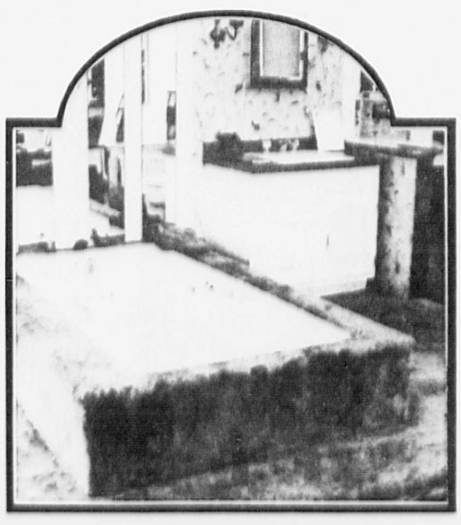

That was why we come over here with Project Children. To get away from those troubles. The soldiers are taking innocent men to jail and keeping them.

JAMES: My father got put in prison for doing something that he didn't do. The supergrass (sic) said that he done something. A supergrass is somebody who squeals on people to get money.

THOMAS: James doesn't remember because he was probably just born. But I can remember my father being taken away. I was four or five. I can remember asking my mama, where did he go? And she said he had to go to jail. It was five years before I saw him again. 1979. I think it was Christmas.

JAMES: When he walked in the door, I thought he was me uncle. I didn't know who he was. Then I figured out that was me father.

He didn't tell me nothing, he didn't want to talk about it.

'Preparedness' the name of the game

By Dean Carroll
Copley News Service

Bicycle touring can and does mean everything from a bicycle club morning ride to an overnight trip to an organized weeklong tour.

A major part of any bicycling expedition, whether long or short, is preparation. The following tips from Bicycle USA, a nonprofit membership organization of bicyclists, are designed to prepare a bicyclist for any tour.

To begin, think about where you want to go and what you want to see. Do you want to go alone or with a group? Do you want to stay in a motel, hostel or campground?

Once you've found a tour that meets your initial criteria, make certain it is practical for your experience and available time.

If you're new to bicycling, gain experience by joining a bicycle club and going on some short rides. As you get in better shape, gradually increase your distance. Before striking out cross country, practice riding a loaded bike and try short overnight trips to a nearby state park or town.

Begin planning overnight trips by picking a general route corridor on a state highway map. Once you have selected it, refine the route. Look for alternatives to heavily traveled raods. Roads parallel to interstates usually are low-traffic roads. Roads parallel to rivers or railroads usually are flat.

Plan bail out points — homes of friends or relatives, train stations, airports, etc. — in case you have to quit early. Leave a copy of your route with someone, and call in at intervals. Carry identification on your person, not in your pack.

Gain experience by joining a bicycle club and going on some short rides.

Before you head out, make sure your equipment, or the equipment you rent, is in good condition. Check brakes, cables, tires, wheel alignment, pedals, spokes and all nuts and bolts. Carry a pump and patch kit. Learn how to use basic maintenance tools and take them with you.

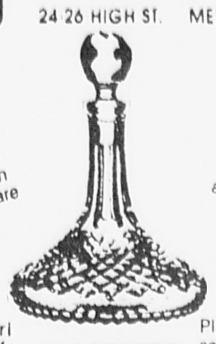

For safety, wear a helmet and brightly colored clothing. If you must cycle at night, use lights. Avoid riding at sunrise and sunset.

Drink before you're thirsty, eat before you're hungry and rest before you're tired. Know what to do for hypothermia, heatstroke, scrapes and other medical problems. For more information on bicycle clubs throughout the United States or about bicycle tours in 46 different countries, write to Bicycle USA, Suite 209, 6707 Whitestone Road, Baltimore, MD 21207.

Grizzlies not bearing up

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Grizzly bear has been the dominant animal of the western United States for centuries, save for mankind, but experts say management policies and encroaching civilization threaten the remnants of the nation's grizzly population.

Male grizzly grow to more than 800 pounds and can stand taller than a man when erect. Their claws can be four inches long, or more, and they are quick as cats, hitting a top speed of 35 mph.

Those physical attributes match a disposition that earned Ursus horribilis its scientific name — horrible bear — and its common name, the grizzly.

Bear expert Frank Craighead says the grizzly population in Yellowstone National Park, one of the bear's last bastions in the continental United States, has already dropped to a danger point and a major management policy change is needed to save the animals.

"I think the grizzly is threatened in the lower 48 states and perhaps even in danger," said Craighead.

Craighead and his brother, John, were responsible for the first major grizzly bear studies in Yellowstone. To stop the decline, Craighead advocates feeding the bears, a practice in dispute among experts.

Craighead and his brother parted company with the National Park Service in 1971 over their criticism of Yellowstone bear management, particularly the closing of dumps where bears regularly foraged. Craighead said he warned the Park Service that doing away with the dumps would jeopardize the bears.

Among recommendations he offered for boosting bear numbers was a plan to set up feeding centers.

"I think it's reached that point now that the establishment of isolated feeding sites — where perhaps carcasses and other forms of food could be left — is needed," Craighead said.

But Craighead's feeding site plan has earned no consensus among bear experts.

Camping all things to all people

By Harlon Bartlett
Copley News Service

There no longer is one, clearly defined definition for the word "camping."

It can, and does, mean everything from sleeping on a drop cloth beside a creek to rolling into a concrete parking lot in a $25,000 vehicle.

Whatever the form, its popularity clearly has been established.

It used to be that the stock reason for going on a camping vacation was because it was cheap. That doesn't always hold up anymore.

Not when some people begin by plunking down anywhere from $7,000 on up for some type of camping vehicle. Then pay the gasoline bill to get it down the road.

The motivation for that apparently is a desire to get a taste of the countryside without sacrificing too many creature comforts.

But when you get down to real camping — living on the ground, accidentally leaning against a pitch-covered tree, gulping hot soup under a tree in the rain — the principal motivation nearly always is cost and a desire for a closer relationship with the land.

If you want to get by with the bare essentials, the Coleman Co., which has been in the outdoor business for more than 70 years, recommends the following equipment for a family of four: 8-by-10 tent, double-mantle lantern, two-burner stove, 48-quart cooler, 2-gallon jug and four sleeping bags.

All I add to that for my annual junket is a collapsible stove stand, a 6-volt light, a 2-inch foam mattress and a lightweight tarp.

For cookware I simply grab whatever's available in the kitchen. (My pots and pans always have more of an outdoor look than an indoor elegance anyway.)

Frankly, when comparing my traveling paraphernalia with others I see at campgrounds, I find that I go more basic than most.

I also find people carting around all manner of equipment they either don't really need or won't possibly use.

Expert salesmen probably are partially to blame for this.

The more I go camping, the less I take along. One year I went so far as to leave the tent stakes home.

Americans go gaga over crazy classes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Millions of Americans are on a lifelong learning binge that is fueling a boom in adult education classes on everything from computers to belly dancing.

They're paying an average of $30 for personal growth and leisure classes with titles such as "How to Find a Lover" and "Brew Your Own Beer." And only some of the classes are held on college campuses. The rest come to order in church basements, private homes, restaurants, museums, parks, concert halls, and, in the case of a "Murder on the High Seas" course offered by The Learning Annex in New York, aboard ship.

An estimated 15 to 20 million adults will take 25 million classes this year from the thousands of organizations offering them, says William A. Draves, president of Learning Resources Network (LERN) in Manhattan, Kans.

Draves, a "fun U" pioneer since 1968 when he helped string together the Free University Network (FUN), says there's been a tenfold growth in adult classes in the last 10 years.

The mix has been expanded by an explosion of noncredit and credit courses at four-year colleges aimed at people who attend weekends and evenings, paying fees of $50 or more.

Judith Koloski, executive director of the American Association for Adult and Continuing Education in Washington, D.C., says weekend and evening classes for adults make up the fastest growing part of higher education.

Most people going to college campuses for "adult or continuing education" are enrolling in courses that will help them advance their careers, re-enter the job market, or train for a new field as their old specialty becomes obsolete.

Kay Kohl, executive director of the National University Continuing Education Association, Washington, D.C., says the 350 four-year colleges belonging to her organization offer credit and non-credit courses to part-timers.

She estimated that 43 percent of all college and university enrollment in those institutions now is students who attend less than full time.

Other part-time students are looking to adult education more for fun than academics.

The zany, entertaining and self-improving courses offered by such so-called "fun universities" as The Learning Annex outlets in New York, Chicago, San Diego, Houston, Atlanta and Washington, D.C., do not appear to be denting enrollment in adult and continuing education at the college level, according to Koloski.

"I think there is room for all now that we are into lifelong learning," she said.

Draves agrees, saying the demand stretches to classes in unconventional settings, taught by people who have no formal credentials.

"It was heresy 15 years ago to say that anyone can teach and anyone can learn," Draves said, "but now that concept is in place and accepted."

"We have not seen a city in which enrollments are running thin but there is a whole lot of competition."

Among the biggest competitors are Discovery Centers, based in Chicago, and the Learning Annex, which has been desribed as "The McDonald's of Adult Learning."

Both are among the 400 organizational members of LERN, which surveyed its membership to find some of the most popular class topics are starting your own business, foreign languages, taking a trip, golf, and Halley's Comet. At the Learning Annex headquarters in New York, popular semi-serious courses run along similar lines.

Popular zany courses?

"It's a tie between 'How to Find a Lover' and 'How to Flirt,' Linda Leonhadt, spokesman for The Learning Annex said.

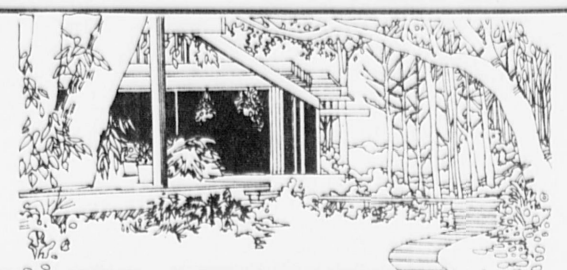

Who attends the pop-ed courses for low bucks and no credits offered by the likes of the Learning Annex, the Learning Connection in Providence, R.I., the Free University in Denver, Colo., the Discovery Center in Chicago, the Mt. Airy Learning Tree in Philadelphia or the University for Man in Manhattan, Kans.?

A survey commissioned by The Learning Annex, shows the average student is single, makes over $25,000 a year and is 25 to 45 years old. Nearly three-out-of-four are college educated, upwardly mobile professionals. The mix also includes the unemployed, however, and people making over $50,000, plus seniors citizens.

Police, court briefs

Complaints pending against youths

FOUR CORNERS — A Newton policeman, while on patrol Saturday morning, stopped the possible theft of some tires from cars parked outside the Beacon Shell service station. According to police reports, Officer Hugh J. Downing was in a police cruiser around 1:15 a.m. when he noticed a youth standing near the Shell station. Downing drove onto the property and saw four more youths, two of them standing next to an Oldsmobile Cutlass Supreme owned by a Walnut Street man. Downing said he noticed the front right side of the car was jacked up and the lug nuts were loosened from the wheel. He said he also saw one of the youths throw something into the bushes. A search of the area turned up a hubcap from the Oldsmobile. Complaints will be sought by police against the youths, according to reports.

Car stereo stolen at Woodland MBTA

LOWER FALLS — Blaupunkt stereo equipment worth $625 was stolen out of a 1980 Saab owned by a Concord man while it was parked at the Woodland MBTA station Saturday night. Also stolen was a radar detector worth $240 and a set of Wilson golf clubs worth $600, according to police.

Mercedes vandalized on Grove Street

NEWTON — A stereo cassette deck was stolen out of a 1984 Mercedes Benz owned by an Albany, N.Y. man while it was parked outside a Grove Street home. The right rear window was smashed in order to gain entry to the car. Police said the crime occurred between 10 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. Sunday.

Hutch bicycle is missing from porch

AUBURNDALE — A bicycle was stolen from the porch of an Evergreen Avenue home Sunday night, according to police. The BMX Hutch with a chrome frame, red wheels and a black seat was worth $300, said police.

Thieves strike at mall parking lot

CHESTNUT HILL — Stereos and radar detectors in cars parked at the Chestnut Hill Mall were in high demand by thieves Saturday, according to police reports.

A Sony AM-FM cassette deck worth $350 was reported stolen out of a 1984 Volkswagen parked outside Bloomingdale's in the Chestnut Hill Mall Saturday.

An Escort radar detector was reported stolen out of a gray 1985 Saab 900S owned by a Yarmouth, Maine man. Police said the passenger side window was smashed to gain entry to the car.

Another Escort radar detector was reported stolen out of another 1985 Saab. Once again, entry was gained by smashing the passenger side window. The car was owned by a Newton Corner woman.

Natick man is not guilty in shoplifting

NEWTON — Glenn K. Lambert, 26, of Natick, was found not guilty last week in Newton District Court on a charge of shoplifting. He was arrested on Sept. 21 after police believed he had stolen some items from the Li'l Peach store in Newtonville.

Driver tears up greens at golf course

NEWTON — According to police, The Commonwealth Country Club sustained malicious damage after a vandal drove a car over the golf course last week. Police said damage to the course — estimated to be $300 — included a knocked-down tree and torn-up fairways, trees and greens on the 15th and 18th holes.

Burglar breaks into and damages Saab

NEWTON — Last week a Sutton woman reported to police her car — which she said she had locked — was broken into while it was parked in the parking lot of the 99 Restaurant on Boylston Street. According to police there were no signs of a forced entry, but the car's dashboard and one of its front seats was damaged. Taken from the 1985 black Saab was an AM-FM car radio valued at $400, a jacket, a sweater and a brown leather brief case, police reported.

Landscaping tools taken from work site

NEWTON — A Waltham landscaping company told police last week that four pieces of its equipment had been stolen from a client's home on Redwood Road. Equipment taken from the property included a 20-inch chainsaw, two grass trimmers and backpack leaf blower which have an estimated value of $1,498, police said.

Pair face burglary trial on November 5

NEWTON — Mark D. Pierce and Posedien Nikiforakis, both of Worcester, were arraigned in District Court last week for breaking and entering during the day time with intent to commit a felony and possession of burglarious tools. Pierce, 20, and Nikiforakis, 19, both entered a plea of not gulity to the charges which resulted from their arrest by Newton Police on the morning of Oct. 8. Both will be back in court on Nov. 5 for their respective trials.

Chase ends in arrest of three youths

By David Weber
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Two Newton Police officers arrested three local youths after chasing two of them through streets and backyards in Newton Centre Saturday.

A number of stolen items were found in one youth's car. The three teenagers, two 17-year-olds and an 18-year-old, were arrested on charges of malicious damage, breaking and entering a motor vehicle and larceny.

According to police reports, Officers Edward J. Aucoin and Edward J. Boudreau responded to a call around 1 a.m. from a Gralynn Road resident who said some kids were going through cars on the street in front of his home.

When Aucoin and Boudreau met on Gralynn Road, the youths were already gone, but Boudreau said he saw three youths running along Mandalay Road, toward Woodchester Road, as he was driving to Gralynn Road. He said the three teens ran behind a house on Mandalay Road, near Fellsmere Road.

The two policemen set off on foot to look for the youths. They captured two of them behind a house on Hobart Road, near Commonwealth Avenue, after chasing them across Ward Street through numerous backyards, according to reports.

The youths were transported by police back to the crime scene on Gralynn Road. The officers arrived to find another teenager unloading a number of stolen items from his car. The teenager told police he happened to stop at the crime scene and did not know how the items got into his car, according to reports.

Among the stolen items were a Whistler radar detector, Realistic FM converter, Panasonic tape recorder, Sony AM-FM portable radio, six cassette tapes, some costume jewelry, a wooden cane and a name sign from a lantern post. A tire which was stolen from a Gralynn Road resident's car was also found.

Police were trying to locate the owners of the stolen property.

Police officers praised for snagging suspects

By John Moroney
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Four police officers were recently praised by Police Chief William F. Quinn for their "outstanding" work in apprehending two suspects for breaking into Huntington Radio and TV on Boylston Street.

"If it were not for the promptness of the officers who initially responded to the alarm," Quinn said, "the suspects might have gotten away. Instead, because they responded so quickly, the suspects fled on foot."

The four officers commended by Chief Quinn for their actions were Bruce Apotheker, Carol Mansfield, Tyrone Powell and John Kearney.

Officers Bruce Apotheker and Carol Mansfield responded to an alarm at the electronic equipment store on the morning of Oct. 8 where they were joined by Officer Tyrone Powell who happened to be passing by on his way home from an all-night paid detail. After an inspection of the premises, the officers discovered a car running in the rear of the store, a grate torn off a window and the window smashed in. Inside the car, Powell found a traffic violation summons made out to a person he knew.

Upon checking the interior of the store, the officers found several electronic items stacked up near the smashed window, but no intruders.

Once the area had been secured by the officers, Powell got in his car and was headed home in the westbound lane of Route 9 when he saw two white males outside the Wellesley Park Office Building. One of the males he identified as the party on the summons. He stopped his car and the suspects fled on foot into a small wooded area near the building and later into the office park.

He asked office workers to call the police and a short time later was joined by police officers from Newton, Wellesley and the state. After a thorough search of the area, Newton Officer John Kearney apprehended the suspects who were hiding in some bushes. Both suspects have been charged with breaking and entering in the day time with intent to commit larceny.

Overnight parking expires

NEWTON — Chief of Police William Quinn announced yesterday that night police officers will be issuing courtesy notices to inform motorists overnight parking in the city will result in their cars being ticketed as of Nov. 1.

"We hope our neighbors will observe the parking ban and avoid the tickets. Last year, it was necessary to tag hundreds of cars at night. We hope this can be avoided this year," Quinn said.

A change in the overnight parking ordinance allows night parking between May 1 and Oct. 1 only. Outside of this time period, the new rules say it is unlawful for any vehicle — except those involved in an emergency — to park on any city thoroughfare dedicated to public use between the hours of 2 a.m. and 6 a.m.

Chief Quinn warns all residents to make proper arrangements to clear the street of cars when the night parking ban goes into effect. "With the coming of the snow season, it's imperative that all vehicles be removed to allow snow plows to clear and maintain our streets," Quinn said.

Adams explodes for Tigers

By Roy LeBlanc
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Everyone knew Mark Adams had big-game potential from the time he made his varsity debut against Natick in 1984. Saturday, he fulfilled that promise by running for 145 yards and two touchdowns as Newton North posted its second straight victory, a 28-6 rout of North Quincy.

The win brought the Tigers to the .500 mark for the first time in Coach Peter Capodilupo's 14-game tenure with a 2-2 record. North Quincy, having a tough time after last year's 7-3 season, is 0-5.

"We feel good about the win," said Capodilupo. "We took a step forward. ... I was pleased with our aggressiveness on defense, and on offense we really blocked well."

Adams opened and closed the Newton scoring, with two entirely different kinds of runs. The first was a 58-yard scamper that was the only score of the first half.

The second was a two-yard plunge with 3:17 to go in the game, creating the final score.

The offense gained 224 total yards (215 on the ground) and 11 first downs. That would imply ball-control but three of the four scoring drives lasted two plays or less. In the air, Mike Ryan was able to complete only one toss, but it was a crucial nine-yarder that gave Newton a 21-0 cushion in the third quarter.

On the other side of the ball, the numbers are just as misleading. The Red Raiders gained 201 yards overall, and marched to 18 first downs, but got into the end zone only once. And despite the fact that they had most of their success through the air, the TD came on a one-yard run by Ted Shionis.

Three primary factors contributed to the off-kilter slant of the statistics. Number one was the number of big plays contributed by Newton North. Evan Galanis, Adams, Britt Ryan and Coppola were among the people coming up with key plays.

Penalties also played a big role in the game, as the teams combined for 18 flags for 159 yards. That helped nullify much of the good work done by the offenses.

Finally, and perhaps ultimately, the game was decided by turnovers. After being plagued by them most of the year, even in last week's win over Cambridge, the Tigers managed to come away with only one giveaway on Saturday, a first-quarter interception that didn't prove costly. On the other hand, the Raiders coughed the ball up three times, and two of them turned into Newton touchdowns.

Despite the final score, Capodilupo couldn't have been too comfortable with this one until the final quarter. Adams' 58-yard jaunt, following a Galanis fumble recovery, gave the Tigers a slim 7-0 margin at the intermission. The junior halfback went right, had one man to beat, and simply outran the rest of the Quincy defense.

That was one of several great automatic calls by quarterback Mike Ryan at the line.

That's the way it stayed until Britt Ryan brought the Tigers out of their doldrums with an electrifying 46-yard punt return early in the second half. The defense had forced the Raiders to kick from their own 25. Ryan took the boot at the 44 and followed a wall of blockers all the way down to the 10, where he was finally dragged down.

A North Quincy penalty tacked on five more yards, and two plays later John Flynn took it in from the two.

Newton's next possession featured the only sustained scoring drive of the afternoon for the home club. It started on the 22 and included nine plays, winding up with a nine-yard toss on third down to a leaping Coppola.

Two long North Quincy penalties helped the Tiger cause, as the visitors were whistled for personal foul and pass interference calls which totaled 30 yards.

Chris Rutan did his best ball-toting of the day during the drive, putting together runs of nine, 18 and 11 yards.

By the time Mike Ryan went back to Coppola for the conversion, it was 21-0 with only 30 seconds left in the third quarter, and the Newton fans could breathe easy.

The Raiders did ruin the shutout on their first possession of the fourth quarter, aided by consecutive personal foul calls on Newton, when Shionis took it in from the one.

The Tigers matched that when Gray coughed the ball up to Galanis again on the North Quincy six. Flynn ran it to the two, and Adams took over from there.

Adams' great day, which featured four runs of 12 yards or more, overshadowed some other outstanding performances.

Demitri Diatchenko did his bit and then some, punting twice for a 51-yard average. The two boots left the North Quincy offense on its own 16 and then its own 19. Newton's other punt was taken by Adams on the quick kick, and bounced into the end zone.

The lines should take some kudos as well. On defense, Brian Claflin, Flynn and Neil Hattem all hauled down QB Chris Gray for 34 yards of losses.

Offensive guard Dave Redmond had "his best performance so far," according to Capodilupo, while Galanis excelled both ways.

Rutan, in addition to rushing for a 6.6-yard average, made one of the great defensive plays of the year on North Quincy's conversion attempt. Gray was headed for the end zone on a sweep and seemed to have room to get inside the flag, but Rutan came out of nowhere and leveled him just shy of paydirt.

"We've asked him to do an awful lot," said Capodilupo of Rutan. "He's on the field for just about every play. The captains have been asked to do the dirty jobs like blocking, faking and taking the opponents' best receiver, and they've been doing it."

Malden, featuring tailback Reggie Hayes ("the fastest back we'll face this year" — Capodilupo) comes to town on Saturday for a 1:30 p.m. contest.

Another Bourland gives North booters a boost

NEWTON — If it's not one Bourland, it's another.

Junior Steve Bourland scored the game winner and assisted on another to spark the Newton North booters to their 10th straight win, a 4-0 whitewashing of visiting Quincy Friday.

Steve took over the reins for older brother and North scoring ace Peter, who has been under the weather for a few days, and lifted the Tigers to a 2-0 halftime lead.

His solo effort goal midway through the opening half would later decide it. Bourland intercepted a Quincy clearing pass and bolted by the sweeper and in on goal, finishing the play off with a shot from 20-yards out.

Bourland set up Phillip Vasiliadis at the 32 minute mark with Brian Scales also figuring in the scoring. Vasiliadis punched home a shot from 20-yards out and North slid into halftime with the 2-0 edge.

Vasiliadis made it 3-0 with his second goal of the game, firing a shot from 15-yards that found the upper lefthand corner. Fullback John Greenberg had set up the play, picking up a loose ball and forwarding it Vasiliadis.

North is 10-0.

Kling vollies Lancers to win

Ann Kling helped spark Newton Catholic back from a 12-5 first-game deficit, as the Lancers handled North Cambridge Catholic, 15-12, 15-10, in the Catholic Suburban League South at Newton Catholic Friday.

Kling served six straight points, with Mary Holland coming through with the winners at the end.

The second game was even until Kling came into the server's spot again, when the Lancers ran off four straight.

Joanne Abruzzi, Holland and Dawn Foley also played well in that second game.

North fights back

Newton North also had to come from behind to take host North Quincy, 12-15, 15-10, 15-7, in another Suburban League duel.

Setting by Tessa Forbes and Christine Sullivan, combined with some outstanding spiking by Nancy Sullivan, helped get the Tigers back on track in the second game.

South gridiron to bear Winkler's name

NEWTON — George Winkler hasn't been the Athletic Director at Newton South since last spring, but there's one more duty he has to perform before the school will let him go completely.

Fortunately, it's one the recent retiree will do gladly and with pride. On Thanksgiving Day, Winkler will participate in a ceremony that will christen the football facility at Newton South as George Winkler Field.

The announcement was made at last week's banquet honoring the outgoing A.D., held at the Hillcrest Function Hall in Waltham.

A committee working on the dinner came up with the suggestion as perhaps the highest honor it could bestow on Winkler. That committee, consisting of current A.D. Warren Bechtold, Toby Abend, president of the Boosters' Club, Alan Hackel and John Passarini, passed the suggestion along through the necessary governmental channels, where nary a negative word was heard.

People like Recreation Commissioner Russ Halloran, Len Gentile, chairman of the School Committee, and South Principal Dr. Ernest Van Seasholes were also heavily involved in the decision-making process, according to Bechtold.

"George was absolutely flabbergasted," reported Bechtold. "He was very pleased."

Though the dedication of the field was the biggest gift that Winkler received on his big night, it was by no means the only one.

In addition to a number of plaques and trophies from different groups, he was given a video cassette recorder from the 150-plus people in attendance.

A special proclamation issued by Governor Michael Dukakis was read by Halloran, presenting it for Rep. Joe DeNucci, who got the ball rolling at the State House.

Lion golf and gymnastics coach Tom Steeves served as the Master of Ceremonies, presiding over a parade of distinguished speakers and well-wishers.

Another highlight was a presentation of a book of mementos from the physical education department, represented by Judy Kennedy.

That department also gave him a plaque, presented by Bechtold.

Winkler was also the second recipient of the bowl for Outstanding Contribution to the Community, given by Abend and the Boosters' Club. Winkler will have his name inscribed on the large bowl, which remains at Newton South, while receiving a smaller version for himself.

Other plaques and trophies were given to Winkler by the School Committee, and Boosters, past and present.

Among those in attendance were Superintendent of Schools Dr. John Strand, Mayor Ted Mann, Lexington High football coach Bill Tighe (a classmate of Winkler's at Boston University), and perhaps the most important guests of all, the Winkler clan.

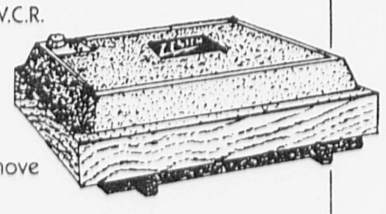

In addition to wife Jean, daughters Gretchen and Nancy and their families and son Carl were all joined in the celebration.

Newton's Bagley scores ace, wins car at Halifax CC

HALIFAX — In just about every one of many celebrity charity golf tournaments, there's a car for anyone who can ace the proper hole. It's a great gimmick for a local dealer, who gets the free publicity for putting the car up, but never has to give it away, because no one ever hits those things, right?

Wrong.

Newton's Steve Bagley made Hanover's Haddon Lincoln-Mercury pay dearly for that little bit of publicity when he fired a hole-in-one on number 12 at the Halifax Country Club last week during the Holovak-Logan Celebrity Tournament.

"A young girl came over and gave me a big kiss and said 'you just won a car,'" said Bagley in describing the events on the 12th.

The 35-year-old Auburndale resident used a 2-iron for the 209-yard hole.

"I had played Halifax a few years ago but didn't remember that particular hole at all."

As a result of that one shot, a For Sale sign went on Bagley's 1983 Camaro Wednesday morning, because he'll soon be behind the wheel of a $15,000 1986 Mercury Grand Marquis.

Latin ends South fairy tale, 37-8

By Mike Stoller
Sports Correspondent

BRIGHTON — Suddenly, the magic had disappeared.

Indeed, in its first three games, Newton South looked better than Cinderella did at the ball, but when "midnight" finally struck Saturday afternoon at Daley Field, the football Lions were left just as helpless as the young girl was when the dreaded hour approached.

The only difference was that Boston Latin's 37-8 Dual County League crunching over Newton was hardly a fairy tale. The Wolfpack, led by seniors Tom Taylor (145 yards on 17 carries, including two touchdowns) and James Alieu (125 yards on 12 carries, including a pair of TDs), totaled 319 rushing yards and scored 16 points before the fairy godmother could even wave her magic wand for South.

After the Lions coughed up the ball on the opening possession, the more-experienced Latin squad needed but one play to put the leather into the end zone. Alieu found an opening around right end and scampered 59 yards down the sideline for the score. Quarterback Tim Dever hooked up with Taylor on the conversion, and the Wolfpack had a quick 8-0 advantage.

Then, presto! Just like that, South fumbled again, this time on the kickoff, and eight plays later the margin was 16. Dever spotted Mitch Harper for a 10-yard TD toss to cap a 25-yard drive. Taylor added the conversion, and the Lions might as well have headed back to the bus, becuause things never got any better for South.

In fact, they got considerably worse. Taylor barreled his way up the middle for an eight-yard TD run late in the second quarter to make the score 22-0. That's the way it stood at the break.

But instead of making it a new ball game in the second half, the Lions let Latin continue the old one on its first possession of the third quarter. From the Wolfpack 45, Taylor broke loose for a 32-yard gain and a first down before stepping out of bounds at the South 23. Then Alieu got the call and sprinted the rest of the way through a bewildered Lion defense for his second TD of the day. Dever hit Tim Kierstead for the two-pointer to make the score 30-0.

Then another Newton fumble led to yet another Latin score. Taylor, again, did the bulk of the work, rushing for 40 yards and three first downs and scoring his second TD of the game on a one-yard plunge. Matt Hudson toed the exta-point, and Latin was on top, 37-0, after three.

The Lions averted the shutout in the final frame when Aaron Harrell (49 yards on 10 carries, including a touchdown) tallied on a five-yard breakthrough to cap a 69-yard drive. Quarterback Ben Burlingame hit Jeff Brewington on the conversion to close out the scoring.

After the game, South coach Art Kojoyian said his young squad just couldn't play up to par with the senior-filled Latin club.

"I can't go against a senior team with a sophomore team," the skipper said. "The kids are mismatched."

What made it even more of a mismatch was that South star tailback Kevin Rollins (26 yards on five carries) apparently had suffered an ankle injury during practice last week and was forced to leave the game early in the second quarter.

So now the Lions (3-1, 0-1 in the league) will go back to the drawing board in the hope of getting their act together for next Saturday's big home game against a very powerful Concord-Carlisle team. The DCL contest is slated for 1:30 p.m.

Tiger girls yield 1st goal in 9th win

PEABODY — Newton North gave up its first goal of the season in girls' soccer, but the Tigers never were in any danger of suffering their first defeat on Friday, taking a 4-1 decision over Peabody.

By the time the Tanners scored, North had a 3-0 lead and was in the process of outshooting the home club, 29-6.

It did take the Tigers 29 minutes to get on the board, which is a little long for them. Ann Meng finally notched the score, finishing off a passing play with Amy Satter and Carolyn Natale.

Ten minutes later stopper Carol Ventura made it 2-0, assisted by Meng and Natale.

After her two assists, Natale bagged a goal for herself four minutes into the second half from 10 feet out. Meng and Angie McKenna assisted on the play.

A minute after that Peabody ended the eight-game shutout streak of Newton North. Kathy Burns was outside the 18-yard line and drilled a good shot into the far top corner.

North coach Fuzzy Howland cited senior Maryann Mann for her outstanding work, as the Tigers ran their record to 9-0.

South knots Bucs

Newton South battled back from a two-goal deficit at halftime to grab a 3-3 tie with visiting Bedford in a Dual County League contest.

The key to the Lions' tie was perhaps the job Cindy Dockser did on Buccaneer gunner Kristin Dougherty. After Dougherty scored her second goal of the game 13 minutes into the second half, putting her club up, 3-1, South coach Chuck Hurwitz appointed Dockser to shadown Dougherty. The move paid off handsomely, as Dougherty was a non-factor the rest of the way.

Meanwhile, the Lions were able to get their offense untracked. A minute after that second Dougherty score, Katrina Antonellis cashed in a direct kick from 16 yards out and it was suddenly 3-2.

South, which dominated play most of the game, continued to press the Buccaneers until finally, 22 minutes into the half, left wing Mara Raider dropped a ball back to Lucy Ketterer. Ketterer chipped for the far corner, where Nada Armian was waiting to trap it, shoot it off the goalie, and finally put in the rebound for the 3-3 tie.

The Lions had several chances to win the game, hitting the post twice in the next five minutes, but had to settle for the deadlock.

The first half had belonged to South on the field, but Bedford in the scorebook. The Lions had 16 shots to the Bucs' five, but at 24:35 Meg Mazoni got a break and put the visitors up, 1-0, assisted by Kathy Poughty.

Dougherty made it 2-0 at 31:57.

Julie Goldenberg broke through for Newton 12 minutes after halftime, only to see Dougherty come back and score on a breakaway, assisted by Mazonni.

Antonellis did "an unbelievable job," from her stopper post, according to Hurwitz. She got 11 shots off and had one goal called back.

South is now 2-5-2 and will travel to Weston on Wednesday for a 3:30 p.m. game.

Lion linksmen post shutout over Latin

WESTON — Newton South had no trouble in wiping out Boston Latin in Dual County League golf on Thursday, taking a 12-0 decision at the Leo J. Martin golf Club.

Mark Loughlin, Jim Neville, Mark Simonian, Dave Strassberger, Mark Spencer, Paul Croce, Jeff Seifer and Eric Becker all posted wins for the Lions.

Loughlin was the top gunner on the day with a 40, playing "very well," according to Coach Tom Steeves. Strassberger chipped in a 42.

Newton South swimmers lose to L-Sudbury

NEWTON — One thing about sports like track and swimming. Sometimes a coach can just look at the times and know that he's in for a long afternoon.

That's the situation Newton South coach Scott Pohlman found himself in Thursday when his club hosted Lincoln-Sudbury at Newton North.

The Warriors' 109-62 win was no surprise for Pohlman, though he was missing a couple of swimmers who might have made the score more respectable.

Chance encounter leads to numerous Chinese exchanges

By John Moroney
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Shortly after President Richard Nixon formally re-established diplomatic Sino-American relations, Claire Kanter was introduced to Fang Bi Hui during a business trip to China with her husband, Richard, in the spring of 1979.

As a result of their historic meeting, the first American-Chinese sister school exchange program was started, bringing three students and three teachers from Jingshan School in Beijing to the city this summer for six months. "The important thing about our relationship is that it's people to people," Kanter said, "not government to government."

A special needs teacher in the school system, Kanter went to China with her tape recorder in hopes of collecting Chinese music to enhance the method by which she teaches special needs children in the city.

At the time, Fang Bi Hui was trying to teach Chinese children the English language at the elementary level. "I suggested that I could help her use music to reinforce the teaching of the English language," Kanter said. "The use of music would be an additive to her teaching, not an end all."

Kanter, with the help of her husband, "spent night after night in the hotel room" explaining to Fang Bi Hui her musical method for teaching.

When it came time for her to return to the United States after two-weeks, Kanter promised to keep in contact by sending textbooks and other teaching materials into China.

"When I got back to Newton," Kanter said, "I immediately went to the then Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink and suggested that Newton become jointly involved because I wanted some help."

After several months and numerous letters and phone calls to Beijing, Kanter was asked to return to China to give a speech on American education. Because she felt she lacked appropriate qualifications for such a talk, she offered to speak on American education "as seen through the Newton Public School system," Kanter said.

Jingshan representatives agreed to her idea, and she returned to China carrying with her a letter from Fink which asked that formal relationships be established between the schools.

"Within 24 hours after I informed Superintendent Fink by phone about the Jingshan School's interest," Kanter said, a sister school relationship between the Underwood Elementary School, Newton South High School and the Jingshan School was a reality.

The two Newton schools were picked to represent the city in the sister school relationship for a number of reasons, Kanter said. They both have a larger-than-average Chinese community, and the combined student population at both schools is equivalent to the Jingshan school's 1-12 grade structure.

During her second visit to China, Kanter and Fang Bi Hui started writing a series of Chinese textbooks which used Kanter's musical method to teach conversational English.

"We're now working on book five which will be for the grade six," she said.

In 1980 Fang Bi Hui's husband came to the states to teach at the Commonwealth School, Kanter said. While he was here, his wife visited for two weeks and "both became very much a part of our family," she added.

During their unofficial visit, Fang Bi Hui and her husband organized a trip to the People's Republic of China in 1981 for a Newton delegation, which included Kanter and her husband, Fink and his wife, principals of Underwood and Newton South, Kanter said. The delegation lectured and demonstrated the teaching techniques used by educators in the garden city during its two-week visit to Beijing, she explained.

Shortly after the group returned from the Far East, Superintendent Fink resigned from the school department and the fate of the sister school relationship was thrown into question, Kanter said. Fortunately, she explained, the new Superintendent of Schools John M. Strand enthusiastically issued an invitation to a Beijing delegation which resulted in their visit to Newton during the fall of 1983.

While representatives from the Jingshan School were in Newton, Kanter received an award from the Massachusetts Association for Retarded Citizens. As a result, she and a second delegation of Newton educators were asked to return to China to address the country's National Association of Special Education in October of 1984.

During this trip, a personal invitation was extended to Jingshan School officials, resulting in the visit of three students and three teachers from the school to Newton this summer.

"I did demonstrations with special needs and established a joint study with China on special education," Kanter said. The school system has also sent videotapes and other special needs teaching material as part of the joint study, she said.

Kanter expects children from Newton to travel to China in the near future. "It's a relationship which is equally important to both sides," she said.

Interviewing forum

CHESTNUT HILL — The Society for Advancement of Management and Pine Manor College will present a forum and hands-on workshop titled, "Interviewing Techniques that Get the Job", on Thursday, Oct. 17, at 7 p.m. in the pub of the Pine Manor Refectory. The lecture is free and open to the public.

Rebbe will be honored

BOSTON — Grand Rabbi Levi Yitzchock Horowitz, the Boston Rebbe, will be honored on Sunday, Oct. 20, at the 70th anniversary dinner of the New England Chassidic Center. The event will be held in tribute to the Boston Rebbe for his 40 years of dedicated and inspiring leadership to world Jewry and, in particular, the New England Jewish Community. The function will take place at the Boston Park Plaza Hotel. Reception is at 5:30 and dinner at 6:30 p.m.

Reservations may be made through the New England Chassidic Center, 1710 Beacon St., Brookline, or by calling 734-5100.

The chairman of the tribute dinner committee is Martin B. Hoffman. Honorary chairmen are Den William Schwartz, B.U. School of Law, and Mr. Maurice Saval.

Women, alcohol explored

CHESTNUT HILL — "The Last to Know," a film that explores alcohol, prescribed drugs and women - the myth, the stigma, the reality, will be presented on Oct. 22 at 7 p.m. in the pub of the Pine Manor College Refectory. The lecture is one in a continuing series known as "Tuesdays at 7" and is sponsored by the Pine Manor College Office of the Dean of Students. All lectures are free and open to the public.

On Oct. 8, the series will feature Dr. Carolyn Shaak, staff gynecologist, Faulkner Hospital, and consulting physician, Pine Manor College. The topic for the evening is "Birth Control and Sexually Transmitted Diseases: A Candid Discussion."

"Corsets and Politics," a lecture slide-show that examines the relationship between women's fashion, western expansion, and politics, is slated for Oct. 15. Linda Martin, costume designer and author, will be the featured speaker.

"Animal Rights: The Controversy Examined" is the topic for discussion scheduled for Oct. 29. The film "Man's Best Friends" will be featured, and Sandra Larson, director of education, New England Anti-Vivisection Society, will speak.

The lecture series runs through Dec. 3 and will present topics that include animal rights, adoption, the hospice movement, and SADD (Students Against Driving Drunk).

Pine Manor College is a four-year liberal arts college for women, which confers the B.A., A.A. and A.S. degrees. The college is easily accessible by public transportation, and ample free parking is available on campus. For more information regarding the "Tuesdays at 7" series, call 731-7118.

Ford redesigns classic Mustang

DETROIT (UPI) — The Mustang SVO is living proof that Ford Motor Co.'s most recognized nameplate is once again lean and mean.

Since its introduction in late 1963 as a sporty, fun-to-drive car, Ford's most recognized nameplate grew in size during the next 15 years and took on luxurious appointments ala Thunderbird.

Only in 1979 did it return to a manageable size. All it needed was a good dose of power. Although the body style is now eight model years old — and will probably stay on until 1988 — constant improvements and new model designations have let it age gracefully, offering buyers models, from a Plain Jane version to the SVO.

The SVO badge that only a small percentage of Mustangs wear stands for Special Vehicle Operations. Ford's SVO engineers, housed in a small, unpretentious building in south of Ford's Dearborn headquarters, have massaged the Mustang into a well balanced package that delivers power and handling, although in a somewhat rough ride manner.

Its off-center hood scoop, which looks like it was lifted from NASA's space shuttle, and two rear wings at the rear distinguish the SVO from its weaker bretheren. The absence of any chrome adds to the SVO's appearance, giving one the impression that it's on some sort of purposeful mission.

The no-nonsense white SVO tested cost $15,684, including sunroof ($315), leather seats ($189) and a $374 destination charge. (Next year's SVO will continue unchanged from the 1985-plus version, although prices are sure to be slightly higher.)

A turbocharger and intercooler sits atop a 2.3 liter four cylinder engine. It is the only motor available for the SVO, but don't dispair. Rated at a respectable 200 horsepower at 5,000 rpm, it manages to rocket the SVO past the legal limit without very much fuss.

Ford also managed to massage an extra 14 percent boost in power and torque from earlier versions.

Only a five-speed manual transmission is offered. The engine-gearbox combination gives the SVO lively performance although a good deal of drivetrain noise filters into the interior at all speeds.

Premium unleaded fuel is recommended, but the SVO has a little switch on the dashboard which allows owners to choose a lower octane fuel. Pushing the switch from "premium" to "regular" re-programs sensors in the engine to accomodate the less potent fuel without any annoying knock or ping.

The SVO's interior is just as serious as its outside. No glitzy chrome in this car; in fact the model evaluated had a dull battleship gray dashboard and gauges that would look more at home on the side of an industrial boiler.

All one needs to know is right there in clear, dial-type gauges that are bathed in an orange glow during night driving. Only the stereo, which has a confusing combination of tiny knobs and pin-push buttons — and the multi function stalks protruding from the left side of the steering column — mark the car as a mid-80s model.

The supportive seats include a hand operated pump ball to inflate the lower back, and the excellent steering wheel adds to the driver's aura of the SVO.

The rear seats fold down independently to increase cargo space, but the rear hatch is hard to open and close because of its weight, and the rear compartment is poorly lit at night.

Six adjustable Koni gas shock absorbers (two on each side in the rear), wide tires on 16-inch cast aluminum rims, and hefty front and rear stabilizer bars keep the SVO glued to the road.

The ride is very harsh on all but the smoothest roads. The SVO crashes over pavement joints and bumps, making one wonder how long it will take the dash to start rattling or the windows to fall out.

But the SVO's ride can be improved somewhat by a rather involved process of adjusting the shocks to a slightly softer setting with an included tool. Handling will become softer as the comfort level is raised, of course.

The shifter and steering matches the meat and potatoes feel of the SVO's ride. Both are precise and grippy, making a long hard drive comparable to working out on a Nautilus exercise machine. The four-wheel disc brakes haul the car down to a stop very effectively.

In normal driving, the brake and accelerator pedals are placed too close together, which some drivers could find uncomfortable at first. However the spacing feels right when the SVO is driven near its potential.

Owner maintenance on the turbo engine is complicated by the turbo and intercooler, which hide the spark plugs. All dipsticks are clearly marked, and changing the oil and filter, which should be done often on any turbo, seems no great feat.

This is for all those who ever wonder where the money goes.

We Keep Getting Better and Better!!!

And we're proud to announce that we have complemented our staff with three outstanding real estate professionals from our area!

Residential Sales Manager

Tom Grady

We are indeed fortunate to announce that Tom Grady has joined our staff as Residential Sales Manager. A longtime area resident, Tom was born in Norwood and attended Norwood schools and Northeastern University. Tom lives on Hearthstone Drive in Medfield. After 20 years as an accountant, Tom became involved in local real estate 16 years ago. He has managed three offices and is acknowledged to be one of the finest and most successful residential real estate brokers in our area!

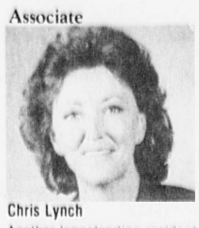

Associate

Mary Lou McKeone

The former Mary Lou Chellman of West Roxbury, Mary Lou has resided in Westwood for 9 years, and currently lives on Oak Street. Her children, Gene and Susan Ridge and Keith McKeone all attend Westwood schools. Mary Lou has been active on many town committees, including the Water Quality and Supply Committee, and is a Past President of the Westwood Newcomers Club.

Associate

Chris Lynch

Another longstanding resident of Westwood, Chris has resided on Forbes Road for the past 9 years. Her three children, John, Beth and Erin all attend Westwood schools. Also very active in community activities, Chris has been Secretary of the Young Women's Club, Secretary of the Olde Home Day Fair, and is a Past Publicity Chairman of Friends of the Library.

Go for it!

Enjoy your success for less at Connelly Pontiac. When you drive one of these new 1986 trendsetters you'll see and feel the Pontiac style–a style that makes sense for you. So for high style and low prices come to Connelly Pontiac. Today.

1986 SUNBIRD
Take a close look at the Pontiac Sunbird and you'll find that function and fun go hand in hand. The 1.8 liter 4 cylinder overhead cam engine matched with front wheel drive, rack and pinion steering, reclining front bucket seats, terrific gas mileage, and the five speed transmission gets you where you want to go in comfort and style.
$7999

1986 FIERO
Once you get behind the wheel of a 1986 Fiero you won't want to let go. Power steering and power brakes, deluxe instrumentation, flush glass windshield and the five speed transmission are only part of what makes the Fiero's slick aerodynamic styling work for you. Pontiac Fiero. Have a seat. You'll love it.
$8999

1986 FIREBIRD
A great Pontiac favorite where fun takes on a whole new dimension. Comfort and performance at a realistic affordable price. Reclining front bucket seats, 2.8 liter multi-port fuel injected engine, power steering, power front disc brakes, sport mirrors and on and on and on! Pontiac Firebird is your reward.

Sidney R. Rabb, 84

Chairman of Stop & Shop Companies

BOSTON (UPI) — A funeral service was held in Congregation Kehillath Israel, Brookline, Tuesday morning for Sidney R. Rabb, 84, longtime chairman of the board of The Stop & Shop Companies.

Mr. Rabb died Sunday in his Back Bay apartment.

Under Rabb's stewardship, the firm set up operations in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, New York and New Jersey, operating supermarkets as well as Bradlees department stores, Medi Mart drug stores, Charles B. Perkins tobacco stores and Off the Rax women's shops.

Today, The Stop & Shop Cos. employ more than 40,000 workers and boast revenues of more than $3 billion. The firm operates Stop & Shop, Bradlee, Medi-Mart and Perkins stores in the Newton, Waltham and Dedham area.

Rabb, born Sidney R. Rabinovitz, was a graduate of Harvard University, and was a longtime fellow of Brandeis University and founder and chairman of Brandeis University's Florence Heller School for Advanced Studies in Social Services.

He also had been a member of the Boston College board of regents, a director of the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce, chairman of the trustees of the Boston Public Library, a trustee of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, an honorary trustee of Temple Israel, Brookline.

Mr. Rabb also had been a director of the Hebrew Home for the Aged, Roslindale, a life trustee of Combined Jewish Philanthropies, a member of the corporation of the Museum of Science, a trustee of McLean Hospital, Belmont, an overseer of the Boys' Clubs of Boston, a director of the Civic Education Foundation, the Ritz Carlton Co. of Boston and of Kehillath Israel Synagogue, Brookline.

He earned the National Community Service Award of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America for "distinctive and continuous service to the community at large"; the Distinguished Service Award of the Massachusetts Committee of Catholics, Protestants and Jews, on which he had served as vice chairman; and, the annual award of the Super Market Institute of America, of which he was considered the father.

Mr. Rabb also worked for medical, civil, religious and cultural causes.

"Sidney R. Rabb worked not only to integrate the Jewish experience into the American mainstream," said Dr. Mitchell T. Rabkin, president of Beth Israel Hospital. "Through his personal performance in many spheres, he nurtured the best qualities of all who knew him and thus created a better community for Boston and the nation."

One of his two daughters, Carol Goldberg, is chief operating officer and her husband, Avram, is Stop & Shop president. His two brothers, Irving and Norman, both of Boston, are retired Stop & Shop executives.

Mr. Rabb also leaves his wife, Esther V. (Cohn); another daughter, Helene J. Cahners of the Back Bay; four grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Evelyn H. (Rackham) Farrell

WEST NEWTON — A funeral service for Evelyn H. (Rackham) Farrell, 90, of West Newton, was held Saturday at the Mackay Funeral Home, 465 Centre St., Newton. Burial was in Newton Cemetery, Newton Centre.

Mrs. Farrell died Thursday at Glover Memorial Hospital, Needham.

Born in Prince Edward Island, Canada, she had been a longtime resident of West Newton and had been a member of the United Methodist Church of Newtonville.

The wife of the late Richard O. Farrell and the mother of the late Doris R. Patten, she leaves her son, Walter O. Farrell of Ashland, three grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

M. Evelyn Leamy, 77

WEST NEWTON — The funeral of M. Evelyn Leamy, 77, of West Newton, was held Tuesday morning from the Walsh-Fennelly Funeral Home, 20 High St., Waltham, followed by a funeral mass in St. Bernard's Church, West Newton. Interment was in the family lot in Calvary Cemetery, Waltham.

Miss Leamy died Friday at the Marshall House in Watertown.

Born in Waltham, she had been a platter at Waltham Precision Instrument Co. and was a member of St. Bernard's Ladies Sodality.

The daughter of the late Thomas J. and Bridget (Quinn) Leamy, she was the last of her immediate family.

Mrs. Spampinato died suddenly Sunday at her home.

Born in Lawrence, she had lived in Newton and Watertown for most of her life.

She was a former employee of the Ark-Les Switch Corp. of Newton and Watertown and was a member of St. Patrick's Church, Watertown.

The mother of the late, Joseph R. Spampinato, Jr. and the sister of the late Pasquale "Pee-Wee" and Alfonso Valenzano, she leaves her husband, Joseph R.; her children, Russell J. of N. H., Camille Lamantea of Long Island, N. Y., Michael of Cambridge; her brothers and sisters, Philomena Santosusso and Daniel Valenzano, both of Newtonville, Rae Haley of Pelham, N. H., Michael J. Valenzano of Calif.; three grandchildren and one great-grandson.

Grace (Entriken) Burkholder

Operated Symphony Hall tea room

NEWTON — A memorial service will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday in Eliot Church, Centre Street, Newton, for Grace (Entriken) Burkholder, 85, a resident of Newton for 50 years and a member of Eliot Church.

Mrs. Burkholder died Thursday in Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

Born in Kidder, Mo., she had lived in the Oklahoma Territory and on a farm near Abilene, Kansas. She attended McPherson College in Kansas, where she met her late husband, Theodore Burkholder, a former Raytheon engineer. She moved here after their marriage in 1924, while her husband was studying at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

She leaves her son, retired Air Force Col. Richard W. of Madbury, N. H.; her daughter, Dorinthe B. Sacks of Brighton, formerly of Newton; five grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Gertrude (Morrill) Hill, 93

SANDWICH — A memorial mass was held Sunday afternoon in St. John's Episcopal Church, Sandwich, for Gertrude (Morrill) Hill, 93, of Sandwich.

Born in Boston, she had lived in Newton Centre and in Roxbury, before moving to Sandwich in 1941.

She and her late husband were leaders in the restoration of Christ Church in Sandwich.

She leaves a nephew Manning C. Morrill of Winchester; a niece, Elizabeth M. Lord of Walnut Creek, Calif.; seven grandnephews and nieces and eight great-grandnephews and nieces.

Sara Ann Weinsoff, 10

WALTHAM — A mass of the angels was held in St. Rose of Lima Church, Topsfield, Saturday for Sara Ann Weinsoff, 10, of Topsfield. Interment followed in Mt. Feake Cemetery, Waltham.

She died Thursday at Children's Hospital, Boston.

Miss Weinsoff was born in Newton. She leaves her parents, Edward P. and Mary V. (Brophy) Weinsoff of Topsfield; her grandparents, Mrs. Annette G. (Goldstein) Weinsoff of Stamford, Ct. and Mrs. Mary V. (Mulcahy) Brophy of Waltham.

Arrangements by Walsh-Fennelly Funeral Home, Waltham.

James A. Hagler, daughter of Newton

COHASSET — James Allen Hagler, 71, of Cohasset, a former assistant professor and lecturer at Harvard University, died last week at his home after a brief illness. There are no funeral services.

Locally he is survived by his daughter, Dorothy Fenno of Newton. He also is survived by another daughter, Katherine Lynn Kolpitts of Nashua, N. H.; his wife, Katherine W. (Mahon); his son, James Allen, Jr. of Durham, N. H.; four grandchildren.

Born in St. Paul, Minn., he had lived in Cohasset for 33 years and was former chairman of the Cohasset Democratic Committee and a member of the Cohasset Yacht Club and the Harvard Club.

Police council audit

Probe results due

By Edward Cafasso, Staff Writer

NEWTON — Police chiefs from 49 area communities in the Route 128 area will meet behind closed doors Thursday to hear the preliminary results of an independent probe into the Greater Boston Police Council (GBPC).

Close to 100 people, including assistants who help handle the GBPC's affairs on the local level, are expected to attend the morning meeting at Police Headquarters in West Newton Square.

Highlighting the secret session will be a report from Thomas Dwyer, the Boston attorney called in 10 weeks ago to conduct an internal audit of the GBPC's practices after the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) began a probe into the personal finances of Timothy C. Coogan.

Until he resigned on June 30, Coogan had been under contract as the GBPC's legal counsel and project manager, as well administrative assistant to Police Chief William F. Quinn, the council's chairman.

The GBPC, a dues-paying association of police departments within and around the Route 128 belt, was created a decade ago in an effort to modenize communication between local and regional law enforcement agencies.

Using Newton as its "host community," the GBPC has since grown into a multi-million dollar purchasing collaborative which gives police departments in every city and town in the state the chance to take advantage of reduced prices for equipment like police cruisers and radios.

> 'The heat is in my corner because I'm the boss.'

Dwyer's audit, which includes interviews with the council's members and private contractors, is attempting to trace all the money involved in the GBPC's accounts for the past five years.

For the past two weeks, an accountant sequestered in a second floor meeting room at City Hall has been pouring over a cardboard box brimming over with GBPC communications and financial records. At the end of his workday, the accountant locks the documents in the Executive Department's offices.

Chief Quinn, who described Dwyer's probe as "a managerial audit," said yesterday that area police chiefs had been notified of Thursday's meeting by teletype and letter.

Dwyer will provide a status report on the independent investigation, he said.

Kahane sparks protest

Protesters waited for hours to criticize Kahane.

By Howard Altman, Staff Writer

NEWTON — Nearly 200 jeering protestors greeted Israeli Knesset member Meir Kahane's arrival at Congregation Beth El Monday night, but no serious incidents or arrests were reported.

The temple resembled an armed camp with more than 50 Newton, Boston and federal police officers climbing the roof and cordoning off nine streets in anticipation of possible violent reaction from the protestors who opposed Kahane's call for the expulsion of Arabs from Israel.

The public and press were kept out of the $50-a-plate dinner attended by 135 people at the behest of the organizers.

According to Kahane spokesman Kenneth Sidman, the press was kept out "because many of the people who are here to make donations want to remain anonymous. It is not something they want a lot of people to know about."

According to Chief William Quinn, the police were prepared to let the press in and had two tables set up to accomodate reporters.

"We would have let you guys in," Quinn said, "but it's not up to us."

Behind the iron gates of a Newton home, the man who would be Prime Minister of the State of Israel sits through a number of interviews. Threatened with death by those who oppose him, Meir Kahane is guarded by a man with a pistol in each of two shoulder holsters.

While many disagree with what he has to say, Kahane has one point that cannot be argued: the bloodshed and turmoil that is the Middle East is not some far away syndrome to be forgotten after the evening news.

Shea irked by GOP slight

By Edward Cafasso
Staff Writer

AUBURNDALE — The Ward 4 Republican City Committee's recent "Evening with Polly Bryson," a candidate for that ward's aldermanic slot, has angered Board President Carol Ann Shea, the five-term incumbent in the race.

In retaliation, Shea has distributed a strongly-worded press release expressing "dismay and disappointment" at the group's move to exclude her from the forum.

Ward 4 Republican Committee Chairwoman Paula S. Kay defended the decision to invite only Bryson and said the slight had nothing to do with the fact that Shea, who once belonged to the group, has switched her political affiliation to the Democratic party.

Bryson, who was invited to the Oct. 9 session in September, said she asked why Shea was not extended the same courtesy, but never received a reply.

Ald. Carol Ann Shea

"I don't know why they did it it the way they did. I honestly don't know what's behind it," said Bryson, the president of the Auburndale Community Association (ACA).

Shea, who said she had "no idea" why she was left out, said in her release, "I am baffled by the committee's decision to hold an evening with one candidate and not the other. If I had been invited, I would have been pleased to attend."

On the night of the group's meeting with Bryson, Shea was at an aldermanic Public Facilities Committee meeting to hear residents' complaints about the open burning of debris at the Rumford Avenue landfill.

"I could understand this action if my opponent were a Republican, which she is not, or if she were unopposed, which she certainly is not," Shea stated. "I think the Republicans of Ward 4 were very poorly served by somebody's decision to invite only one of the two candidates to meet with them.

"That action is inconsistent

THE HOUSING CRUNCH

Area home prices soar

By Jeff Peterson
Business Editor

It was 19th-century British author John Howard Payne who succinctly stated, "Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home."

But it's doubtful that Payne realized just how "humble" — and yet how expensive — the average single-family home would become during the 1980s.

Nationwide, average prices of new houses have increased more than 280 percent over the past decade, soaring from $27,150 in 1972 to $76,150 in 1984. And in the greater Boston area the statistics are more spectacular.

The National Association of Realtors lists Boston as the third most expensive area in the country in which to buy a home — trailing only Orange County, Calif. and San Francisco.

With the average sale price of single-family homes in Newton, Waltham, Watertown and Weston topping $200,000, the dream of owning a single-family home is rapidly becoming out of reach.

Backman leaves a liberal legacy

Steps down, not out

By Christie Herlihy-Starr

BEACON HILL — The same well-worn political signs he has used for the past four Senate campaigns can be discarded now from his basement.

State Senator Jack Backman (D-Newton, Brookline), a 22-year veteran of Beacon Hill, who has crusaded for liberal causes with the zeal of a 60s activist, has announced he will not seek re-election next year.

The 63-year-old senator said he wanted to leave politics with the same energy with which he entered.

"I've enjoyed every day of it, if not every hour. I think it's time to move on. I want to leave with all my capacities and abilities. I think it will be challenging to do the same thing in another way. I don't want to be a fixture in this place."

But many legislative colleagues already consider him a fixture. And his announcement caught several off guard, particularly since it was made a full year before the next election.

"I talk every day with Jack, and I increasingly sensed his frustration and a concern about timing," said fellow liberal Sen. George Bachrach (D-Watertown). "But I was still sur-

Decision creates ripple effect

By Edward Cafasso

NEWTON — Throw a pebble in a pond and a thousand ripples are created.

The ripples resulting from State Senator Jack Backman's (D-Brookline) decision to not seek re-election are now stretching beyond the veteran lawmaker's seat and into the Board of Aldermen.

Paul E. Coletti and Richard J. McGrath, two of the city's veteran aldermen, said Monday night they would consider running for Rep. Susan D. Schur's seat in the 12th Middlesex District if Schur decides to mount a campaign for Backman's slot.

A third alderman, Bruce B. Carmichael, has said he is eyeing a drive for the Brookline-Newton senatorial seat.

Meanwhile, Schur, who was surprised by Backman's announcement, is not taking lightly a decision that could set off a chain reaction on the full board, her early political stomping grounds.

"It's a very big race," she said Monday night. "We're talking about a $100,000 to $150,000 campaign. I want to make sure it's a thorough and thoughtful decision. My decision is going to be based on whether I think it's the best thing for my constituents, the district and my family. It's obviously not a time when I want to act in haste."

Schur said a firm decision is not likely for several weeks because she is "extraordinarily busy" pursuing her own legislative agenda in the House.

With her proposal for a sweeping child support bill "now coming to the bubbling point" and the Nov. 6 deadline to file legislation for the 1986 term just around the corner, she said a potential run for the state Senate is of "secondary importance" — for now.

Schur's seat would be "a logical step" and provide "good experience" for a politician often rumored as an eventual mayoral contender, according to Coletti.

"I believe that, after eight years as an alderman, I would like to continue moving further in politics," he said.

"If you're going to make politics your life's ambition, it's crazy to stay an alderman for 20 or 25 years. The objective is to move upward. I feel as though I'm ready to take on some additional challenges," Coletti added.

No key to the city for Rabbi Kahane

While earlier reports mentioned the possibility of clashes between anti-Kahane groups, the Jewish Defense League and the PLO, the only scuffle occurred between a group of Israelis from Brandeis University and Kahane — who walked with bodyguards through the crowd of protestors against Quinn's wishes.

"I guess he's trying to be a wiseguy," Quinn said of Kahane's meeting the crowd head-on.

One officer was knocked down as the crowd rushed Kahane, who was protected by a human chain formed by police. Kahane was escorted into the building unharmed.

The anti-Kahane rally run by 20-year-old David Seidenberg of Jews Against Racism (JAR) was unexpectedly calm. JAR members lit candles, held signs and sang "Hatikva" — the Israeli national anthem — and other Hebrew songs.

Using a portable speaker system, Seidenberg constantly kept his supporters in line, asking them not confront either the police — who formed a battle line in front of the temple — or Kahane supporters.

In addition, Seidenberg, on several occasions, corralled members of his group who strayed onto private property. He told officers that anyone pressing against the police barrier was not with his organization.

"We are out here to support Israel," Seidenberg said. "Kahane and his racist ideas are not good for Israel, and we want people to know that Kahane does not speak for Israel. He feeds on hatred."

"What Kahane is trying to do by removing the Arabs from Israel," Harrison said, "is not totally unlike what the Germans government did in the 30s and 40s. He is the closest thing we have to a Jewish Nazi."

The 10 Brandeis students were the most vocal protestors, screaming "Kahane is a facist" and raising their arms in mock Nazi party salutes. While most of the crowd left once Kahane was inside, the Israelis stayed and taunted his supporters until he came out shortly after 11 p.m.

"You should be ashamed of yourselves for supporting Kahane," Yair Bonwitt shouted. "He is going to mean the death of the Jews."

Joining the Israelis after Kahane's arrival, 25-year-old Newton resident Helaine Clayton decried the Beth El leadership for allowing Kahane to speak.

"I was Bat Mitzvahed here when I was 13," Clayton shouted through a bullhorn at the people inside the temple. "It is a disgrace to see what is going on inside the building. With all the police on the roof, it reminds me of when I lived on a Kibbutz near the Jordanian border. This is war, not peace. Kahane should not be here."

Sidney and Edna Parad, who live across the street from the temple, looked on in bewildered awe at the action taking place on their lawn.

"It's a little upsetting to see what is happening out here," Mrs. Parad said as protestors held signs and jeered just a few feet from the enclosed porch she and her husband were standing in. "I wanted to go away for the evening when I first found out about this, but I decided to stay because I don't think the police would have let me back into my home. I also wanted to be here in case anything happened and somebody needed help."

When the fundraiser finally broke up, most of those leaving the temple to the taunts of the Israeli protestors were reluctant to comment.

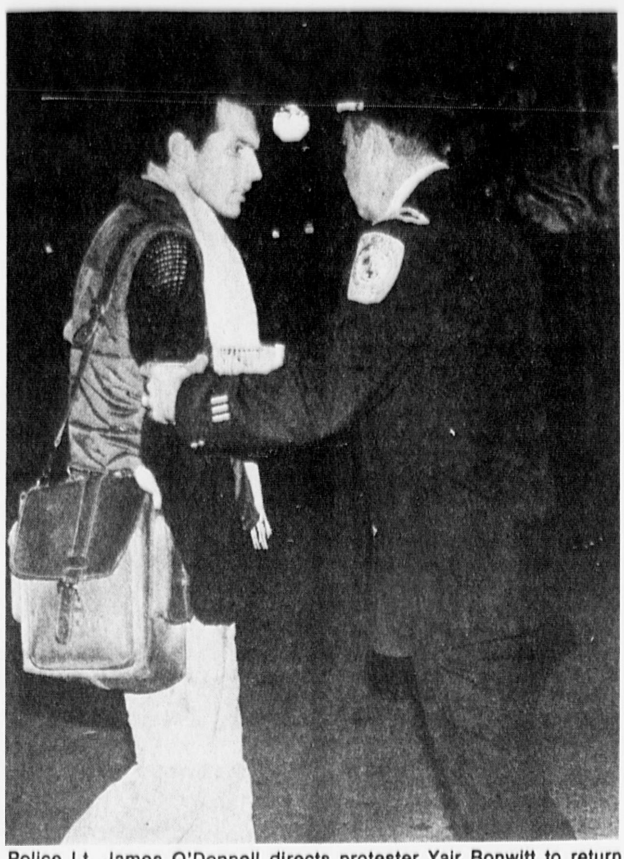

Newton resident Bruce Leeds, however, said while he "thinks Kahane is a bit radical, the message he is trying to get across that the Jewish State of Israel is being threatened by increases in the Arab population with corresponding decreases in the Jewish population is important and I think it's a good thing to see it brought out in the open."

Others willing to go on record were not as sure about their reaction.

"I came here to listen and learn," Newtonite Lillian Guberoff said. "I didn't know much about Kahane or the Kach party before tonight. I still don't really know how I feel, but I wish all the killing and war would stop."

Before being escorted from the scene by police, Kahane said he was "very satisfied" with the evening's event.

"I think I brought my message to the people here," Kahane said. "I think I changed minds of people who came here that were previously sitting on the fence about the issue of the future of Israel."

Jewish state is sought

American branch of his Kach party — says it is time American Jews "wake up.

"If it is true that on Mt. Sinai God wished us to be a chosen people," Kahane says, "then it is also true that no Jew can be truly happy in America. Israel is a Jewish state and the only place where Jews belong. The American Jewish leadership is much like the German Jewish leadership of the 30s. The German Jews were very comfortable, and the same goes for the American Jews."

Kahane is pushing for the expulsion of Arabs from Israel. He justifies his position by saying that, through "the peaceful process of democracy," the Arabs may one day take over the country by outnumbering the Jews.

"The Jews in America think the Messiah will come to Newton," Kahane says, his eyes widening. "They think this is another garden of Eden. They think I'm paranoid. They have to realize what will happen to Israel if the Arabs take over. It will no longer be Israel. It will be Palestine. I will not feel any guilt over kicking the Arabs out. It is the only way to maintain the state of Israel."

Kahane argues that there is a conflict between Western democracy and Zionism.

"America is a very great country. Anyone who denegrates it is a fool. But while democracy is good for America, it is not good for Israel. Israel has to be based on Judaism and Torah law. Western democracy is not for the Jewish people," the Rabbi says.

He adds that under his plan, Arabs who leave willingly will be "compenstated for the land they leave behind." Those who do not leave willingly "will be forced out.

"There are those who would compare what I want to do with the plans of Adolf Hitler," Kahane acknowledges. "The difference is that in Germany, the Jews wanted to be good Germans. In Israel, the Arabs want to take over the country, so I don't see how you can make any comparisons."

State agrees to help with costs of cleanup

By Edward Cafasso
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Mayor Theodore D. Mann and a unanimous delegation of chief executives meeting here last week called on Gov. Michael S. Dukakis for emergency aid to reimburse the clean-up costs associated with Hurricane Gloria and the governor responded in the positive, according to the mayor.

Dukakis had "committed himself to 25 percent state assistance," the mayor said at the end of the week. "To get federal aid, he has to provide 25 percent of the funds out of local resources. I would think we're in a good position with the governor at last, with regard to the 25 percent."

Mann estimated the governor's commitment could mean as much as $750,000 would come to the city from the state.

The resolution asking Dukakis to follow-up on his own emergency declaration passed quickly during a breakfast roundtable of the Massachusetts Mayors Association at the Newton Marriot in Auburndale.

The call for help came just hours before the governor asked President Reagan to declare the state a federal disaster area to help pay a portion of the $61 million in damage caused by the hurricane.

The cost estimate for damage to the Garden City is about $6 million, split evenly between public and private property.

If Reagan complies with Dukakis' request, the federal government would reimburse Massachusetts for 75 percent of an estimated $17 million in state and local clean-up costs.

State lawmakers would then be asked to appropriate money for the remaining 25 percent.

Dukakis also asked the federal Small Business Administration to provide loans between 4 and 8 percent to help repair an estimated $36 million in private losses.

During his weekly press conference, Mann praised city workers and department heads for their work in the immediate aftermath of the storm, but brushed aside subsequent problems with the open burning of wooden debris at the Rumford Avenue landfill.

"As far as I'm concerned, the subject is over," he said. "The most important element is digging out from the storm itself."

City officials met with representatives of the Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE) yesterday morning to discuss long-range disposal alternatives in the wake of the DEQE's decision to prohibit controlled burning at the Rumford Avenue site.

Mann said the city will put "a stronger emphasis on chipping and making firewood available to the public."

He defended the decision to begin open burning as a way to rid the city of tons of debris that fire officials viewed as a serious, potential public safety problem.

"We didn't ask to burn ... We thought we had responded properly at that time. We are still not out of the woods. Given the state of affairs, this city has responded in a very strong fashion to eliminate a city-wide, public safety hazard," Mann said.

Arms control urged

By Edward Cafasso, Staff Writer

NEWTON — Aldermen Monday night called for a negotiated end to the nuclear arms race, solidly rejecting a colleague's charge that the unique move amounted to election-year huckstering.

The full board voted 18-2, with four members absent, to approve a resolution urging President Ronald Reagan and Soviet Premier Mikhail Gorbachev "to make real progress toward arms control" at their November summit in Geneva.

The two votes in opposition were cast by Alderman James Regan, who launched the charge of political gamesmanship, and Alderman Wendell Bauckman, who was uncomfortable with the call for an end to the testing of so-called "Star Wars" weapons.

Aldermen Robert Tennant, Carol Robinson, Bruce Carmichael and Dominic Taglienti were absent from the roll call.

The resolution, which has drawn praise from officials at the White House and Soviet Embassy in New York, was sponsored by Aldermen Rodney Barker and Louis Irwin on behalf of residents Curt Lamb, Brook Lipsitt and Beverly Droz.

The plea for an end to the nuclear threat is the first local legislation on the subject to reach the Oval Office, a government official said last week.

The resolution, citing the "historic opportunity" available to the superpowers, called for "large reductions in the number of nuclear weapons and cessation of testing of Strategic Defense Initiative ('Star Wars') weapons."

At a recent committee hearing, Droz told aldermen 80 to 85 percent of Garden City residents support arms control and noted that Newton's size makes it a prime target for Russian missiles.

Officials representing the International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War also endorsed the resolution.

Regan, who is leaving office in January, said in his attack, "After all, it is an election year. This is a nice little piece of information some people can use to push their candidacies."

Although claiming to be a supporter of a freeze on the current level of arms, he said, "I have a problem with the Board of Aldermen again getting involved in foreign policy. I think we have no right to. We're not experts by any means."

Regan also objected to the inclusion of Star Wars in the bill, arguing that it was Russia's fear of the defensive weapons system that brought them to the bargaining table in the first place.

"I don't want to take that negotiating point away. Anytime you can gain the upper hand, you should keep it ... We'll be sending the president into the boxing ring with his hands tied behind his back," he said.

Jewels & Gems

BY CAROL
THE GOLD LADY

GOLD-FILLED

All that glitters is not gold. "Gold-filled" or "rolled gold" jewelry, made of a "sandwich" in which a base metal (brass, copper or an alloy) is covered on both sides by sheets of gold, is hard to distinguish from the real thing. If the gold is thick enough, the piece will wear well and look like real gold except for the places where hard wear has rubbed the outer gold off. The base metal will then be visible. The gold used can be of various karats and thickness and should be marked accordingly. Much less desirable than rolled gold is "gold plating." This refers to a base metal which has been electroplated, usually with a thin coating of gold. It can rub off after a few wearings.

If you're on a tight budget, gold-filled jewelry might suit your needs. However when quality and long lasting value is most important 14K and 18K is the gold for you. And CAROL "THE GOLD LADY" at 100 Dalby St., Newton has the best selection of all gold jewelry pieces. We strive for quality in our inventory as well as our service. Sticker parking plan severely criticized by city officials

NEWTON — A permit parking plan proposed by an aldermanic sub-committee was shot full of holes last week by members of the Traffic Commission and officials from local nonprofit institutions.

Although the vast majority of the commission opposed the idea, they postponed their final decision for a month to give aldermen one last chance to make revisions.

Aldermen George Mansfield and W. Arthur Reilly, who said they intend to pursue the idea with the Board of Aldermen despite the commission's objections, described the problems with the plan as "minor" and the opposition as "not unexpected."

The plan would allow residents who can muster the support of their neighborhood to petition the Board of Aldermen for the creation of a resident sticker zone.

City Engineer Paul Giunta, who called parking zones "a monstrous thing to try and control," said he would not take a firm stand on the idea "until the bugs have been worked out" by "more input, revision and dialogue."

Describing his main philosophical objection, Giunta said, "People have an inherent right to use public streets," which are paid for with local, state and federal tax dollars.

Ironically, Police Chief William F. Quinn, who read off a long list of objections to the proposed ordinance, shied away from openly opposing the idea, saying instead that he would work with aldermen to make the program feasible.

Capt. John Bartinelli said the plan would backfire in areas like Boston College because students are considered residents and, as such, would be allowed to petition for parking stickers and obtain visitors permits.

Assistance with fuel costs is now available at City Hall

NEWTON — Eligible Garden City residents will once again be able to participate in Action for Boston Community Development's (ABCD) estimated $12.6 million Fuel Assistance Program.

The program, coordinated by the city's Human Services Department, offers low-income residents between $350 and $750 to help with their heating bills. The program began last week and benefits can be granted retroactively to Oct. 1.

ABCD Director of Fuel Assistance Constance Carey said while the number of Newton residents who apply for aid from the seven-year-old program is not as high as other areas, it is still a significant figure.

"No one ever thinks there are poor people in Newton," Carey said, "but last year we had 630 successful applications and we expect similar numbers this year. All told, there were 25,000 total applications last year — 3000 in our central Boston office alone — but we do a considerable amount of weatherization and replacement and repair of heating systems in Newton."

Newton residents interested in the program are being urged to contact the city's Department of Human Services to set up an appointment. The department only acts as a conduit between the residents and ABCD and the latter provides the staff to interview the applicants and process the information.

Interested residents should call 552-7170 and make an appointment at one of the two Newton intake centers. Applicants should be prepared to provide and submit certain information and documentation for a 90-day period.

The program ends April 30, 1986.

'Below average' turnout predicted for city election

NEWTON — The scene at the Election Commission's offices in City Hall last week was pretty much what everybody expected — slow, very slow.

From 5 p.m. to 10 p.m., the last five hours to register to vote for the Nov. 5 election, 19 residents stepped in to sign up.

"It's always disappointing when my people are here and nobody else shows up, but it's about what I anticipated ... The registration activity indicates the type of turnout we're going to have," according to Alan W. Licarie, executive secretary of the Election Commission.

Licarie's tentative voter registration numbers show fewer voters are signed up to participate in this year's municipal election than in all but one of the seven city races staged since 1971.

Two years ago, registration hit its lowest point ever during that time span, but the number of voters on the rolls for this year increased by more than 400.

If Licarie's guess is accurate, the 12,000 to 15,000 residents expected to cast ballots on Election Day would constitute a "below average" city-wide turnout of about 20 to 25 percent.

A contested mayoral race would push turnout to its "normal" level of more than 30 percent, he said.

'Advance Challenge' program starts in schools Nov. 1

NEWTON — The staff of the Newton Advance Challenge (NAC) program told the School Committee last week that instruction of elementary students gifted with special academic talents will begin in the schools on Nov. 1.

"Our initiative has been positively received by the staff and principals at the elementary schools," Larry Annett, assistant superintendent of curriculum and instruction, said. "The components of the program and the way they're being offered seem to have struck a responsive chord."

Services for academically gifted students will include instruction by a teaching staff of five in science, math, language arts and thinking skills, Annett said.

According to Carlson, the teachers will be responsible for delivering at least one of the curriculum components in and out of the classrooms, depending on the desires of the individual classroom teacher. "Our primary goal is to support the teachers in their classrooms," Carlson said.

Carlson said NAC had already received an "overwhelming" number of requests from teachers for particular students or for instruction in their classrooms.

The curriculum is two-fold, Carlson explained. One part of the program will be the delivery of services to a primary group consisting of grades K-3. At no time, she emphasized, will instruction at the primary level occur outside of the classroom.

The second part of the program is aimed at delivering excelerated instruction to students in grades 4-6 by dividing them into two intermediate groups — the advanced learners group and the challenge group. The advanced learners will most likely be instructed in the classroom while the challenge group will be gathered up and given instruction in science at a location outside of the schools, Carlson said.

Historic district in Upper Falls growing

UPPER FALLS — Preservationists in Upper Falls have cleared the first legislative hurdle in their effort to increase the number of properties included in the neighborhood's historic district.

The aldermanic Administration & Planning Committee voted unanimously last week to approve the Upper Falls Historic District Commission's request to place 50 more buildings in the heart of the old cotton milling community under the seven-member group's umbrella.

Since no opposition to the idea surfaced at last week's public hearing, the item will now travel to the Legislation & Rules Committee for drafting in ordinance form.

In addition to insuring that historically valuable buildings are preserved, the expansion would make the decade-old district large enough to qualify for the National Registry of Historic Places, clearing the way for many property owners to receive tax benefits.

The Massachusetts Historical Commission came down strongly in favor of the expansion as a device to protect the area from any major development project involving federal funds, like the potential widening of Route 9.

The purpose of a historic district is to preserve the distinctive and historic nature of buildings, to maintain and improve the settings of those buildings and to encourage new designs compatible with the district's existing structures, according to local Commission Chairman Leslie Friedman.

The old Upper Falls Railroad Depot and the Gamewell Building at Petee Square are two structures that would be included in the enlarged district, she said.

Hearing on Iodice building delayed

NEWTONVILLE — Last week's court hearing that would have been the first step in a suit against the city and developer Michael Iodice was postponed, according to attorney Peter Harrington. Harrington is representing Alderman Bruce Carmichael and GARDEN — an organization of area residents opposed to the six-story office building Iodice is constructing on Crafts Street.

"We are seeking to have a hearing on the complaint that Alderman Carmichael's appeal should have been upheld. He was appealing a Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) ruling on the issuance of a building permit to Iodice. The ZBA originally approved Carmichael's appeal, then changed their minds.

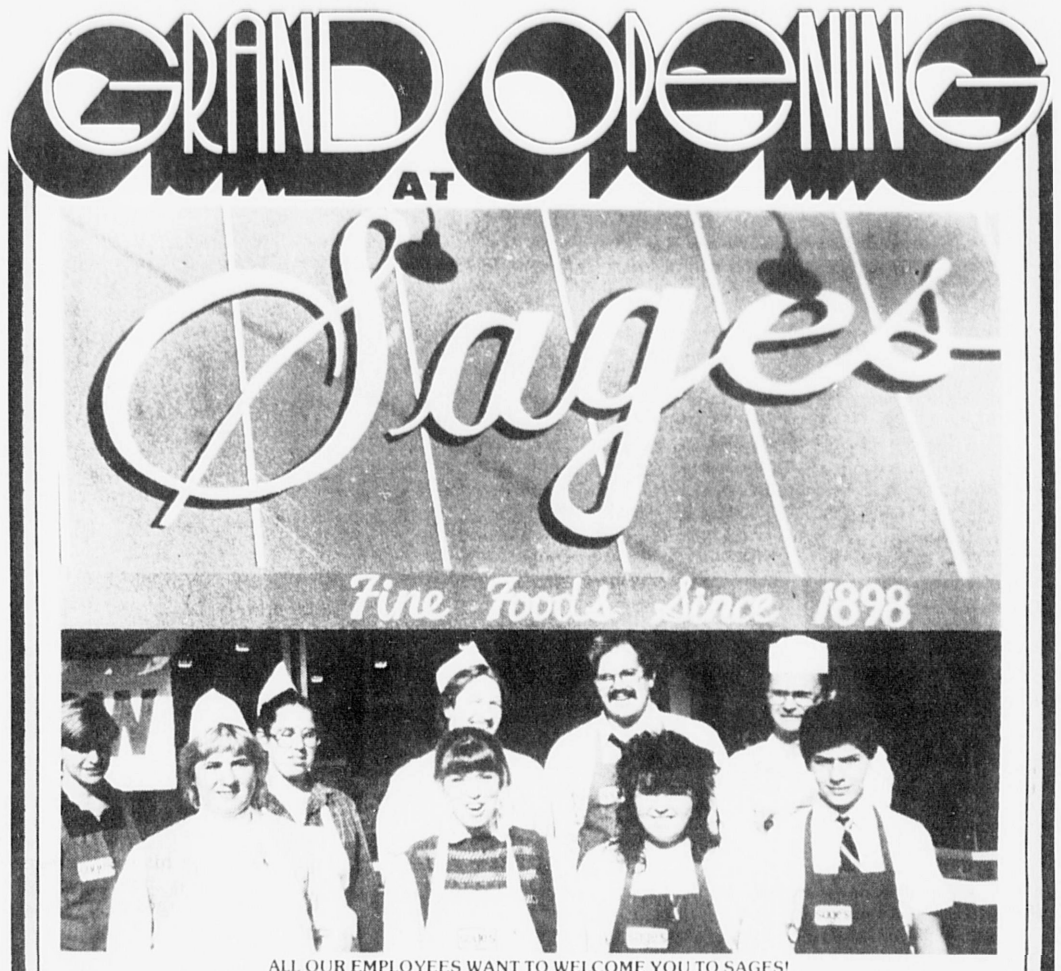

"Basically," Harrington continued, "the ZBA violated their rules in order to change their decision. The appeal should have been left to stand as it is and the building permit should have been withdrawn. An office building should not be put in a manufacturng zone anyway."

Where's there's smoke, there's fire

One word about a situation the Newton city adminstration does not want to hear one more word about: the bungled burning of hurricane Gloria debris at the city's landfill on Rumford Avenue.

Coping with an emergency is one thing. Creating an emergency is something else.

In an editorial that ran right after the storm, we encouraged residents to overlook some of the indelicacies that would normally stem from such a massive cleanup effort and to subordinate their parochial concerns for the greater good of the city. When you are stuck removing an elephant from inside your house, we commented, some of the furniture is bound to get scratched.

Well, scratching the furniture is one thing. Burning down the house is something else.

Neighbors of the landfill, city workers and department heads bumped heads for more than a week after the city decided to burn the debris from the storm. Smoke billowed from the mountain of still-wet brush and limbs for days, blanketing sections of Auburndale with soot and ash.

The state's environmental watchdogs finally ordered the burning stopped when it became clear that it was taking place on a landfill, creating the danger of long burning underground fires that would feed off the methane gase generated by decomposing organic materials.

State guidelines issued after the storm stipulated there was to be no burning on a landfill. City officials contended they were burning on solid ground, not on a landfill. They started fires in the morning using gasoline; and they tried to stop them at night using fire hoses. They fought off questions and criticism. Finally, the state laid down the law.

For a week, Paul Moan, of the city's Health Department, was a voice in the wilderness, condemning the burning and calling for a saner approach to the problem until he was summarily directed to shut up.

Since it was told to stop the burning, the city is planning to bury much of the debris and allow the rest of it to be cut up for firewood.

In the aftermath of the incident, Mayor Mann has promised an intensive investigation. He has promised to evaluate the city's actions after the storm in the hopes of avoiding problems in the future.

We applaud his intentions. While city officials and city workers deserve great praise for their efforts in the post-storm cleanup, the source of confusion in the Rumford Avenue incident should be pinpointed, scrutinized and corrected.

Anything less promises to yield even more confusion in the future.

Alcohol awareness increases

Times, they are a'changin'

By Kevin C. Kennedy

It is amazing, when you step back and look at how things are today, how attitudes toward alcohol abuse have changed in the last decade. A look back at how things were just a few short years ago, when the baby-boomers were growing up reveals a lot.

Recent newspaper reports that beer distributors at this year's National Beer Wholesalers Convention were "crying in their beers" over declining sales reflects on the ultimate success of a nationwide campaign to curb alcohol abuse.

Peter H. Coors, president of the Adolph Coors Company, directly attributed the drop in beer sales to the campaign to increase public awareness of the dangers of alcohol abuse. "We have run head-on into concern about alcohol abuse," he said.

Coors' quote is not news to the nations' tavern owners, who have seen their bottom line get smaller and smaller as customers opt to stay home rather than run the gauntlet of law enforcement agencies determined to cut down the numbers of drunk drivers on the road.

The bars on the Cape, where young people used to slosh around in beer up to their ankles until two in the morning before they drove off to assault the utility poles in the area, are the ones feeling the brunt of the new awareness campaign. But even the neighborhood bars in the area have discovered their "regulars" are indulging in fewer and less potent beverages.

The docket posted in the lobby of Newton District Court attests to the all-out war police have declared on drinking and driving. Half of all cases on the docket relate to "driving under the influence."

Alcohol abuse programs in the schools seem, finally, to be having an effect. Students these days, for the most part, do not subscribe to the macho myths about drinking that young people were strapped with only one generation ago. More and more of them seem to have penetrated through the nonsense about drinking being a necessary part of being accepted or respected by their peers.

For that reason, the following story, which tells of an incident that happened in the late 1950's, could hardly be told today. It is difficult to imagine any laughter coming out of it now. Attitudes have changed so radically that there would be little humor to supplant the horror and little to detract from the foolishness of its protagonists:

'The Missed Lesson'

It was an unseasonably warm night for late Fall. It must have been around 1:30 in the morning, because the bars closed at one. We were coming back home from Rustic Gardens, a roadhouse in Pine City, a couple miles south of town.

Chubby Checker had just hit big. I had learned to do "the twist" that night. I was 16 or 17 years old.

Driving home "the back way," over twisting, turning Mt. Zoar Road, Moose Schilleroff missed a curve pushing his '49 Chevy over the mountain at high speed. We ended up on our left side in a ditch. Sparks were crackling under the hood and we smelled gas.

Melvin Muckler, who was alone in the back seat, broke a door handle off with his head. Moose, the driver, a great wrestler with powerful arms, had stiffarmed the steering wheel and held his position secure.

I, front seat middle (riding "sheriff" in the lingo of the day), had put my feet up on the dash and pressed myself back against the seat, well-wedged. I was OK too.

Chauncey Blash, riding "shotgun" (front right), had gone through the windshield. He could do nothing to protect himself because he had a bottle of Ballantine Ale in each hand when we crashed.

There was utter confusion in the pitch black darkness as we lay on our side in the ditch. Melvin was talking crazy in the back, delirious from a bad bump on the head. Moose was being crushed under the weight of Chauncey and me. He was yelling at us to get off him ... yelling loudly. He was the first one to put the smell of gas together with the sound of sparks under the hood. He freaked totally. He panicked badly and he started punching and kicking as if it would somehow get him out.

Chauncey was manic, jubilant. "I didn't spill a drop! I didn't spill a drop!" he was yelling at us.

Chauncey was wasted, as we all were. For some reason, growing up in upstate New York in the 50's and 60's meant you drank a lot of beer as a teenager.

While the near-uniform drinking age in the U.S., in those days, was 21, New York's was 18. That meant you began to "experiment" with alcohol several years earlier than most teenagers.

There were more bars per capita in my hometown, an industrial city that lay in a damp valley under habitually grey skies, than in any other city in New York State. We were proud of that. We boasted of it to out-of-towners.

Back in the old Chevy, Moose punching, kicking and screaming, Melvin delirious, Chauncey had yet to make a move toward opening the door and getting us out of there. He still had his hands full of Bally Ale, and he was still bragging about not having spilled a drop.

"If you didn't spill a drop, then what in hell is dripping in my eye?" I asked, still stunned, rubbing something warm and wet out of my right eye.

Years ago, warnings about the dangers of teenage drinking and driving were few and far between and generally disregarded.

Chauncey's face, though we couldn't get a glimpse of it on that moonless night, was a bloody mess. He said later that it wasn't going through the windshield that tore up his face and ears, it was when he fell back into the car that the broken shards did their damage. It was his blood that was dripping on me.

Somehow, we got the car doors on the right side open. (They are extremely heavy in that predicament.) As Moose was scrambling out, the front right door slammed shut on his hand, mangling it badly. It was difficult to open the door again. I had to climb up on top of the tumbled car, which we all thought was a time bomb, to get at the handle. Moose, meanwhile, was temporarily possessed ... crazy with shock and fear.

I had to carry Chauncey in my arms about a mile down Mt. Zoar Road to a darkened farmhouse. Chauncey was going into shock. Moose was in extreme pain, biting his lip and holding his bloody hand out in front of him like it was not a part of his body. Melvin was still delirious.

The farmer and his wife would not let us in, though I told them one of us was very badly injured. They did call the cops, though, and the county sheriff came out and carried us off to the hospital.

Melvin straightened things out in his mind about a half-hour after the crash. He needed some stitches. Moose never cried, despite his pain. He lost his license for a while and wore a cast for a couple of months that all the girls at school rushed to autograph.

Chauncey's face remained a mess. His head was wrapped like a mummy's for more than a month. When it had healed completely, his face still looked like a road map. His father, a doctor, was arranging for a cosmetic surgeon to set his youngest son's face straight when Chauncey died. Somehow, the undertaker managed to fix him up so the scars barely showed, though.

In the spring, Chauncey ran the 880 in the Section 5 Finals with a burst appendix. He won the race. He fell extremely ill on the long bus ride home. By the time he got to the hospital, where his father was waiting to try every medical maneuver he knew to save his son's life, there was nothing to be done.

Chauncey lingered in intensive care for several days and expired early one morning in June. Moose, Melvin and I were among those who carried his casket. The next year's yearbook had an "in memoriam" page dedicated to him.

Before he died, Chauncey used to love to brag about the time Moose's Chevy crashed in a ditch up on Mt. Zoar ... when he had gone through the windshield rather than spill a drop of his precious Bally Ale.

He always got a laugh with that one.

Marking time

Long line for Backman's seat

By Mark White

> You have to understand the frustration of being in politics in Newton. It's like playing for the Boston Celtics and waiting for Larry Bird to retire.

Take a number please and step to the rear of the line!!

In case you live on Mars and haven't heard the news, State Senator Jack Backman has decided not to seek re-election, and the scramble for succession has begun.

Now, anybody who follows Massachusetts politics knows that nothing goes on in the State Senate because Billy Bulger runs the whole show. But you do get a staff and a nice private office.

C'mon, get in line. There's room for many more at the political bakery.

Me? No thank you. It's actually fun to be settled down to a normal existence.

You have to understand the frustration of being in politics in Newton. It's like playing for the Boston Celtics and waiting for Larry Bird to retire. You spend a lot of time sitting on the bench waiting to play.

All the ambitious pols have been sitting on the bench waiting for their chance because there is no place to go.

Barney Frank is in for life. Joe DeNucci has the safest seat in Massachusetts, and deservedly so, I might add.

So where does an ambitious political type go? The Board of Aldermen? Get serious!

Before we bury the "political carcass" of Jack Backman, let me say a few things about the man.

I first met Jack when Brookline was redistricted with Newton and Jack was going head on against Newton's senator, Irving Fishman. Newton had twice the votes Brookline had, and everybody expected Fishman to romp.

A mutual friend introduced us and I was really impressed with the man. Consequently, I became the only Newton alderman to endorse Backman.

Without a doubt that campaign was the best that I have ever seen. One political wag said of Backman; "Every time I opened up a phone booth door, I expected someone to jump out and say, 'Hi, I'm Jack Backman.'"

He has been a terrific, dedicated official. The man has guts and was willing to take tough positions despite the political ramifications. You don't see that much these days.

Anyhow, as soon as Backman withdrew, the phone lines started buzzing.

Newton versus Brookline. Just like the Thanksgiving Day football game; north side versus south side; ethnic split of the vote; split the Newton vote; solidify the Brookline vote.

And, of course, the political dominoes are falling. Cohen and DeNucci aren't running, but Susan Schur is a serious possibility. So who runs for her seat? Dick McGrath, Rodney Barker, Cindy Creem, Paul Coletti, Paul Daley and local activist and tireless campaign worker Brian Yates.

I don't know about you but I just want to get through the municipal election, follow the Celtics through the winter, watch the Red Sox fold one month into next season, and maybe then I'll be ready to think about a 1986 election ... and then again, maybe not!

(Mark White is a former Newton Alderman, a practicing attorney, and a definite non-candidate for the State Senate seat.)

Logic behind 'sin tax' changes mindboggling

By Jeff Peterson

There are some leaps of logic that boggle the imagination.

How else to describe President Ronald Reagan's desire to eliminate the 16-cent per pack federal tax on cigarettes? Or better yet, the decision by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., the Senate's own pro-tobacco pariah, to support that tax?

Talk about a role reversal.

Early last week Reagan "reluctantly" signed legislation extending the existing cigarette tax for 45 days, instead of letting it slip to 8 cents beginning Oct. 1.

But the Gipper let it be known through White House mouthpiece Larry Speaks that he will fight any proposal for a permanent 16-cent tax. He favors repealing it at the federal level, thereby paving the way for individual states to adopt what has traditionally been a major revenue source.

And here in the Bay State, some legislators feel he had the right idea.

State Sen. Patricia McGovern, chairman of the Senate Ways and Means Committee, has been pushing for an increase in the state cigarette tax as part of the repeal of the state's $250 million surtax.

McGovern counted on Reagan signing the legislation reducing the federal cigarette tax to 8 cents. Massachusetts then would have tacked on its own 8-cent per pack tax — raising some $55 million in revenue.

Not exactly a windfall. But hardly small change either.

The problem is not with Reagan's desire to give the states an added revenue source. It lies with his notion that somehow the overall levy on cigarettes should remain fixed at 16 cents — be it federal, state, or a combination of the two.

Why not let the states tack on their own levy above and beyond the 16-cent federal tax, which was passed in 1982 as a deficit reduction measure?

After all, the cigarette tax — like the federal levy on hard liquor — is first and foremost a "sin tax." It you want to play, you've got to pay.

In contrast to the continuing soap opera with Helms, Reagan didn't seem to have too much of a problem with this month's $2 increase in the federal liquor tax, which also was billed as a deficit reduction measure.

Sure the liquor industry curmudgeons howled — the New Hampshire state liquor commission even staged its own symbolic protests — but the feds stood firm.

Apparently the liquor industry has neither as influential a lobby, nor as many friends in Congress as do America's tobacco farmers.

In the past, attempts to raise cigarette taxes or reduce tobacco price supports have been squashed by the same conservative legislators who hold the purse strings for Reagan's cherished defense programs. Their argument historically has been that eliminating such controls only would hurt farmers. It would not force smokers to moderate their habit.

Apparently the liquor industry has neither as influential a lobby nor as many friends in Congress as do America's tobacco farmers.

Perhaps.

But like any sin tax, increasing the levy on cigarettes has two distinct advantages: it would add a source of revenue to apply directly to the federal deficit; and it would force smokers to subsidize a larger share of the cost of operating a national health-care system overburdened with lung-related cases.

Which makes it even more interesting that it was Helms who convinced Reagan to retain the 16-cent tax until mid-November.

According to a White House source, Jesse got on the horn to Ron last week and argued in his sweetest drawl that reducing the tax would disrupt the tobacco industry.

So why was Helms — the voice of America's tobacco farmers — seeking to perpetuate the cigarette tax?

Simple. Last month he struck a deal. Helms agreed to support the 16-cent cigarette tax in exchange for attaching tobacco price-support legislation to a deficit reduction measure, increasing its chance for passage.

Say what you want, Helms always has been a master at horse trading on the behalf of his constituents. But there is a bigger issue at stake here than parochial politics — and that's fairness.

If this administration wants to boost the federal tax on liquor, let all sin taxes be increased accordingly. If Reagan's economic shamans want to reduce financial aid to American farmers — including the elimination in 1987-88 of the direct farm ownership loan program — let the cuts be felt equally across the board.

It would be the only logical thing to do.

Closing Oak Hill, not Hyde, responsible for overcrowding

I read the Graphic's Oct. 9 front-page article on the Hyde School with interest. As an Oak Hill resident and former Oak Hill School parent, I can empathize with the dismay of many of the members of the Hyde community over the closing of their elementary school. I can also understand their emotional attachment to their school and the refusal of many to fully accept the fact that their school has been closed.

Yet it is more emotion than logic that causes some poeople to attribute the current overcrowding problem to the closing of the Hyde School. Rather, the cause of today's overcrowding was the lack of foresight of five members of the School Committee, who rejected Superintindent Strand's recommendation that Hyde and Williams be closed, and instead voted in Superintendent Strand's fourth choice of Hyde and Oak Hill, notwithstanding his recommendation against that choice.

It is undeniable that it was the closing of Oak Hill which precipitated the overcrowding problems, the consequent expenses, and adverse impact on the quality of education. The facts and statistics before the School Committee made it clear that by choosing the Hyde-Oak Hill combination over the Hyde-Williams combination, the committee was taking a substantial risk that Countryside, Zervas and Mason-Rice would have overcrowding problems.

The facts before the School Committee made it equally clear that the current overcrowding problem would have been avoided if the Hyde-Williams combination had been chosen.

Although this information was presented to the School Committee, and although the Oak Hill community demonstrated, with facts and statistics provided by Superintendent Strand and Assistant Superintendent Silluzio, that the overcrowding we are experiencing would follow as a consequence of choosing the Hyde-Oak Hill combination over the Hyde-Williams combination, the School Committee turned a deaf ear.

Indeed, after the committee had voted, 8-1, to close Hyde, it was the committee member from the Hyde community that cast the deciding vote in the 5-4 decision to close Oak Hill, rather than Williams, and who therefore ordained that the Hyde children and many Oak Hill children would end up in overcrowded schools.

As a result, we are not confronted by the terrible anomaly of underenrollment in several schools, and overcrowding in others. This could have, and in fact would have, been avoided if Williams, and not Oak Hill, had been closed with Hyde.

The 5-4 decision to close Oak Hill instead of Williams, and the consequent overcrowding, was the most critical decision before the School Committee, not the 8-1 decision to close Hyde.

Therefore, while I sympathize, to a point, with those members of the Hyde community who are still mourning the loss of their school, it is clear to me that logic dictates the conclusion that the closing of Oak Hill spawned our current problems, and that if any school is to be reopened, it should be Oak Hill and not Hyde.

The committee has deprived two communities of their most dear resource, supposedly to save money and combat underenrollment, and by doing so had caused overcrowding and substantial expenses. The logic of that decision escapes me. However, I do not agree with those members of the Hyde Community who choose to ignore the fact that it was the closing of Oak Hill instead of Williams that has caused the present overcrowding.

Praise for 'pooper scooper'

To the Editor:

As a former life-long resident and, still, a current property owner of Newton I wish to applaud the city for your proposed dog "Pooper Scooper" law!

I have a dog and I was very anxious over our proposed move to New York City. I love living in a city where a similar law is in effect (and enforced). When my family and I return for a visit to Newton, we have "picked up."

Heads turn and smiles cross faces when we clean our dog's mess. I feel very proud. It is easy and painless. It makes NYC a much more pleasant place to stroll then pre "pooper scooper" law!

Go for it!

Can't afford the 'royal flush'

With water rates soaring everywhere, wise homeowners can reduce their water bills considerably by using water-saving shower heads and sink filters.

In addition to the former, sizable savings can be realized by the following simple procedure at tiny or no cost at all while still maintaining adequate operation.

Just fill four ordinary Coke bottles with water and place them upright close together in the extreme left-hand side of the toilet flush box. This has the effect of permanently reducing the effective size of the chamber and the volume of water used by about a half-gallon hundreds of times a year.

Be frugal — we can no longer afford the royal flush!

Minority report on library plan

To The Editor:

Do we want a better consensus for an improved main library building?

Here's how to get it:

1. For the recommended building, aim for an $8 million price rather than $12 million.

2. Try for a much greater amount from voluntary contributions. Use creative ways of appealing to business and library voters.

3. Reduce the prelimary design expense if limiting factors are discovered at the authorized site.

4. Maximize the sale price of the Warren and old main library properties or utilize Warren. Save other capital funds for other use.

5. Reconsider self-financing for the new library building.

6. Guarantee a cost limit.

7. Find budget savings to finance principal and interest on any library financing.

"I don't want to have a mammogram – they might find something."
Ignoring breast cancer doesn't make it go away.
Finding it in the early stages does.
The earlier a problem is discovered, the greater the chances for successful treatment. If it's detected in time, breast cancer is curable.
No examination can find the disease as early as mammography – a safe, simple test that takes about fifteen minutes. If you're over thirty-five or if there's been a history of breast cancer in your family, call to make an appointment or ask your doctor to arrange for you to have a mammogram at Precheck.
In most cases a mammogram finds only healthy tissue. That can save you worry. But if it does find "something," that can save your life.

Backman to stay active

prised. I think it will be a tremendous loss to the Senate. Jack has been the conscience of the Senate. He's been a wonderful advocate for people who need an advocate here."

"He's accomplished an awful lot on behalf of a lot of people," said Rep. Joseph DeNucci (D-Newton, Waltham), Backman's colleague on the joint Human Services and Elderly Affairs Committee. "We don't always agree. But I think our contrasts compliment each other. I'm going to miss him."

Backman claimed no one factor influenced his decision although he said he had written the press release for a similar announcement four and two years ago but was talked out of it both times by an aide.

"If he was still on my staff, perhaps I wouldn't have gone through with it this time," Backman laughed.

The senator said he announced his decision early to be fair to job applicants he was currently interviewing for a staff opening. He also said he wanted to go public before any challengers appeared on the scene for his seat. "I wanted to walk out under my own steam, an independent man," he said.

Backman's announcement, however, generated a lot of political talk about who might run for the Second Middlesex and Norfolk Senate seat.

By the end of the term, Backman will have represented Newton and Brookline 16 years in the Senate, known for his co-chairmanship of Human Services. For part of his six years in the House, he served as vice-chairman of the joint Judiciary Committee. His legislative accomplishments include the outlawing of corporal punishment in the schools, and prohibiting the assigning of young people to adult mental wards. Backman also worked to set a minimal annual income for the elderly and disabled, and a constitutional amendment providing equal rights for the handicapped.

A World War II veteran, Backman is particularly proud of the successful passage of a bill questioning the constitutionality of the Vietnam War. "I think that was the high point of the legislative history of Massachusetts," he said, believing the statement sent a signal to the nation.

Known for his lasting and deep friendships with many residents, Backman spent three hours the afternoon he announced his decision with a former constituent who had traveled from Florida to discuss a personal issue.

Such commitment to people and his own ideals is the source of other Backman legends. For the last ten years, he claims not to have spent a dime of his own money or anyone else's for his political campaigns, relying instead on a steady flow of press releases and regular personal appearances to make himself known to voters.

"The only thing I haven't liked about this business prior to the last ten years has been having to accept money for campaigns," he said.

Bachrach said one image of Backman remains firmly fixed his mind. Every year during the budget debates, typically at 3 a.m. "everyone is tired, doesn't want to hear from another soul. Jack will rise and speak on behalf of those who need human services. Everyone will groan a little. But those people need an advocate for their concerns. Jack does that.

"Because of his advocacy for progressive issues, Jack would find himself alone a lot, or two or three of us voting with him," Bachrach said. Bachrach and Backman were the only two for example to vote against the Senate tax relief package which included repeal of the state surtax. Backman continues to argue there is no state surplus when human beings suffer for lack of food and adequate medical care.

"Jack never chose the easy course. He was always fighting the uphill battle. It's been a 22 hard years. I'm going to miss him," Bachrach said.

Backman said he has no firm plans yet about what he will do when he leaves the legislature next year.

"I wasn't born to be in the legislature. I was born to do a lot of things in life, whatever it will be."

Practicing law is one option for the Harvard Law School graduate, but Backman said he would like to continue as a private citizen working on many of the issues he has championed in the legislature. "Maybe I can do more on the outside to turn things around then on the inside," he said.

Backman mentioned an interest in lobbying against nuclear arms and discrimination, and promoting Middle East peace.

His advice to his successor: "'Be your own person.' I give that advice to anyone. You have to follow your gut feeling. That's what I'm doing now."

A Brookline resident, Backman has four children and four grandchildren.

Backman's decision ripples through local political scene

After 14 years as an alderman, McGrath said he would "definitely consider" returning to the State House, where he served in 1975 and 1976 before being ousted by Joe DeNucci.

"I didn't leave the job voluntarily," he said. "I've already paid my freshmen dues. I know the system and I think I did a good job when I was up there."

Coletti's and McGrath's possible entries into the race for Schur's seat raises another interesting option — if either wins, he could, theoretically, serve as an alderman and a state representative at the same time.

> 'My decision is going to be based on whether I think it's the best thing for my constituents, the district and my family.'
> Susan Schur

Lois Pines, Peter Harrington, David Cohen, McGrath and Schur all performed political double duty — part-time in the Garden City and full-time on Beacon Hill.

Coletti said, if he won Schur's seat, he would probably resign at the end of his aldermanic term.

But McGrath said he would consider keeping his at-large seat on the board.

"I would never resign my seat and force the city to spend tens of thousands of dollars on a special election. You could do both jobs. In a way, it helps you keep in touch with your constituents," he said.

If Schur does try to move into the Senate, Coletti and McGrath would need the certified signatures of only 150 voters in her sprawling constituency to get on the ballot.

Schur represents 12 precincts in a district that curves along the city's western side and includes Oak Hill Park, West Newton Hill, Lower Falls, Upper Falls and parts of Auburndale, Waban and Newton Highlands.

In four short months, the current speculation sweeping the area will be academic. Nomination papers for the seats now held by Schur and Backman become available on Feb. 11.

Chisolm gives address

NEWTON — Shirley Chisolm, former congresswoman from New York City, will be the featured speaker at the celebration of the ministry of lay people at 7:30 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 26.

Her address,"Transforming My Religious Values into Social Practice," is a highlight of the first convocation sponsored by the Center for the Ministry of the Laity and Andover Newton Theological School and will be at the First Baptist Church in Newton, 848 Beacon St., Newton Centre.

The three-day convocation on the ministry of the laity includes lectures, workshops and consultations which focus on ways the faithful live out their ministries at work and at home. It will be held on the Andover Newton campus.

Chisolm's address is open to the public and free of charge. No registration is required. Music for the Saturday night celebration will be provided by the Concord Baptist Church Gospel Choir and the Auburndale Brass.

More than 300 people from across the country have registered for the convocation.

GOP meeting with Bryson irks Shea with the principles of fair play and equal treatment of all candidates which underlie our political system," she added.

Kay, who took over the committee's reigns after joining a year and a half ago, said the idea for the evening with Bryson was brought up and voted on during a meeting of the group.

"It met our needs to, number one, meet Polly Bryson, and number two, to be able to reflect our concerns to Polly Bryson. The non-confrontational format also appealled to us," she said, describing herself as "a relative newcomer to the political scene."

Bryson said the evening "went wonderfully well" with the discussion focussing on development concerns involving a new main library, the Riverside MBTA station and the potential for air rights construction over the Massachusetts Turnpike.

City records show that Shea registered as a Republican in May 1971, switched her affiliation to Independent in August 1982, voted Democratic in the 1982 primary, switched back to Independent after that primary and is now registered as a Democrat by virtue of her vote in the March 1984 primary.

Bryson, using the first name "Dorothy P.," registered as an Independent in August 1956, switched her affiliation to Democrat in October 1959 and remains associated with that party today, although she is now registered under first name "D. Pauline."

Both women are scheduled to meet for face-to-face confrontations in their own backyard on Oct. 27, when the ACA sponsors a debate at Lasell College.

"He'll be able to give the council the benefit of 10 weeks of a managerial audit. He'll tell us exactly where he is, but, the way I see it, he's not finished," according to Quinn.

The meeting will also allow the GBPC's members to report back to city managers and mayors in their communities.

"We owe that to our members," said Quinn, who will also address the Thursday session.

He described the meeting as "very confidential business," but added that, considering the number of people expected to attend, "I wonder how confidential it will be after the meeting is over."

"There's not secret that the feds are involved in this and it's no secret that the U.S. attorney and district attorney are involved. I'm hoping that much of the information will be kept in the strictest confidence so as not to jeopardize any possible cases that might develop," Quinn said.

Although all the GBPC's expenditures involve public monies, Quinn consulted with the Middlesex County District Attorney's office and decided to close the meeting to the press and public because the subject matter may involve several exceptions to the state's Open Meeting Law.

The federal probe into Coogan has spawned rumors of impending resignations and indictments, but Quinn is "very confident" that both he and the GBPC will be vindicated.

"When this case is over, it will be very clear as to where any possible improprieties lie and all the terrible rumors about me will be proven unfounded. It's just unfortunate that I've taken it on the chin here for the past 10 weeks, but I understand it. The heat is in my corner because I'm the boss," he said.

Dwyer has said his probe will determine whether there have been any questionable management or accounting practices in the GBPC from 1980 until the present.

That timeframe roughly corresponds to the span of the IRS' investigation into the possibility that Coogan failed to report $500,000 in personal income to the federal government.

Quinn said he has tried to contact his former aide, but Coogan's lawyer, Kenneth Pollenz, "won't let me talk to him."

After reporting in June and August that the IRS had requested all GBPC financials records from 1980 to 1984, subsequent newspaper stories revealed that no local, state or federal agency monitors the GBPC's collective purchasing activities.

It is "reasonable to assume" that the independent probe will result in some type of legal or supervisory structure for the GBPC, according to Dwyer.

The GBPC relied on Coogan to draw up its service contracts, bidding specifications and to apply for radio frequencies from the Fderal Communications Commission (FCC).

Pollenz has himself applied to the FCC for radio frequencies on behalf of a Waltham communications firm for which his client now works.

Coogan travelled throughout the area in the 1970s to convince local law enforcement agencies to join the Boston Area Police Radio Emergency Network (BAPERN), the largest multi-agency police command and control system in North America.

Controlling elder abuse

By Lauren McFalls
Assistant News Editor

NEWTON — Mrs. Smith, 95, lives with her daughter, Elizabeth, who is now retired and the only other living member in the family. Elizabeth almost never leaves her mother alone for fear something dreadful will happen.

As a result, she feels housebound, trapped and increasingly angered by her mother's constant demands.

Then, one day, she hits her mother in the face.

Although hypothetical, this is a typical scenario in elder abuse cases reported to the Protective Services department of West Suburban Elder Services, located on Watertown street in Nonantum.

The department will hear of the case from the family doctor, who noticed a bruise from the blow and demanded an explanation. Neighbors, friends, nurses, hospital social workers or other family members also may have reported case.

Elder abuse is not something that rarely happens, according to protective services workers. And it is not more likely to happen in one economic strata or another.

In fact, on a state-wide level, the Executive Office of Elder Affairs reports a marked increase in the number of elderly abuse cases.

The reason for the rise is unclear, although some speculate that a strong reporting statute enacted in 1983 has set up a better mechanism for reporting abuse incidents.

Even locally, Becky Silvia, a protective services worker at West Suburban, has noted an increase in her caseload since she first started work for the agency in 1983. Over the past fiscal year she has handled 50 cases of abuse. Altogether, "we've had something like 145 cases reported since the law was passed," Silvia said.

(Still, according to Ruth White, another protective services worker at the agency, the number of cases covered by her organization has remained stable.)

And there is a disproportionate number of elder abuse cases from Newton reported to West Suburban, which covers eight towns in the area, including Newton, Needham, Weston, Watertown, Waltham, Belmont Brookline and Wellesley.

"More than an eighth of the cases are from Newton," said Silvia, adding that Newton's large senior citizen population may be one explanation for the phenomenon.

Abuse can be physical, emotional or a question of neglect, whereby the elder does not get the proper medication or nutrition.

However, Silvia said, most reported cases involve neglect. What often happens is that one or both people in a couple — "who have or haven't gotten along" — will retire, she said. The physical health of one of them may be declining and one person ends up taking care of the other.

"Frequently, alcohol enters into it," to alleviate the stressful situation, she said. "The caretaker or the one being cared for or both may be alcoholic."

In responding to reported abusive situations, Protective Services will attempt to relieve caretakers from their duties and place the elder in senior day care centers or assign a respite care worker to the home several nights a week.

And in some cases, the agency will secure a restraining order from the courts to remove the abuser from the household.

If family members are unable to care for the elder, or if the elder has no family and is unable to maintain, the state will assign that person a guardian to take authority over the senior's financial and personal affairs.

> 'They either close the door in your face or stand there with their arms wide open.'
>
> Becky Silvia

Such instances arise if the "son or daughter is retarded or has mental health problems and are now left in a role of caretaker which they are unable to fulfill," said Silvia.

Or, "Maybe parents used to hit the kids, and now that they're elderly, there's a role reversal," she said.

Protective services tries to choose the least restrictive alternative in restoring peace in the household.

"We do whatever we can to remedy the situation," Silvia explained. "What's difficult is knowing a person is being abused and they refuse help, in which case we try to get in there and set up a relationship with them that is as non-threatening as possible."

In most instances, they "either close the door in your face or stand there with their arms wide open," she said.

For help in crisis situations call the Elder Abuse Hotline, which operates 24 hours a day, at 1-800-922-2275. For those beginning to feel overburdened in the caretaking role, call West Suburban Elder Service's information and referral number — 926-4100.

In addition to protective services, the organization helps with heavy cleaning and light household repair, transportation to medical appointments, laundry, home delivered meals, social day care and respite care.

Bill Ford honored

WEST NEWTON — On Nov. 3, St. Bernard's Holy Name Society members Rep. A. Joseph De Nucci and Bill Ford will be honored as archdiocesan "Men of the Year." The event will be held at the Hillcrest, Beaver Hill Road, Waltham, at 6 p.m.

Tickets are $15 and may be ordered from Pat Melidio, chairman, or Marty Lucente, and George Reynolds.

The society also is sponsoring a retreat at the Dominican Retreat Facility in Dover, from Friday, Nov. 1, at 6 p.m. until Sunday, Nov. 3, at noon.

Anyone interested in attending may call Dick Bullwinkle, president, at 527-7067, or Tony Tonti, chairman, at 332-1596, for information or reservations.

Stress of storm felled Moan

NEWTON — Health Department official Paul D. Moan, who took a strong stand against the city's decision to burn brush at the Rumford Avenue landfill, is on the road to recovery from a recent heart attack, his wife says.

Moan, a veteran of nearly 30 years with the city, was stricken at his McCarthy Road home last Wednesday and was admitted to Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

After spending five days in the hospital's coronary care unit, his health improved enough for him to be transferred Monday afternoon to Three-West, a progressive recovery ward.

Moan was listed in "stable" condition early Tuesday morning, a hospital spokesman said.

His illness surfaced exactly one week after he appeared at an aldermanic Public Facilities Committee meeting to criticize the city's decision to burn debris from Hurricane Gloria at the Rumford Avenue landfill.

Moan's public vow to do everything in his power to stop the practice became academic several days later, when state environmental officials ordered the city to stop the burning because of the site's close proximity to the residential neighborhood.

"I don't think that stress helped him at all," his wife said.

Although he did not suffer a lot of pain during the attack, she persuaded him to go to the hospital as a precaution.

"He's doing well," she added.

Bronze Star awarded 42 years late

REVERE — Gerard L. Celucci, a former Nonantum resident, has finally received the Bronze Star he was awarded for "exceptionally meritorious service" in North Africa, 42 years ago.

U.S. Army records documenting Celucci's career as an infantryman on the Algerian, Tunisian and Italian fronts were apparently destroyed by fire long ago at the U.S. Army Records Center in Maryland. It was not until this year that Celucci, reading an article in Disabled American Veterans monthly magazine, found out how many other vets were in his situation and what to do about it.

A few phone calls resulted in his finally receiving the recognition that has been his due for 42 years.

Former Nonantum resident Gerard Celucci proudly displays his Bronze Star.

According to the citation, "Pvt. Celucci ... unhesitatingly assisted in administering first aid to wounded men of four companies. Working continuously under Axis mortar, machine gun, artillery and sniper fire for 65 hours, Pvt. Celucci undoubtedly, in the opinion of his officers, saved the lives of many wounded comrades.

"Pvt. Celucci's courage and devotion to duty was exceptionally meritorious and a credit to the Armed Forces of the United States."

Coin launches career in collecting

By Edward Cafasso
Staff Writer

Among Rendell's possessions is a Peruvian treasure map said to be the oldest in North America.

NEWTON — Kenneth W. Rendell's road to fame and fortune was paved with a half dollar minted in 1806.

Thirty-two years ago, when he was 10, a customer at his father's drugstore in Allston used the 50-cent piece to pay for his goods.

Rendell, who was buying and selling coins extensively at the time, sold the half dollar for $3.50 and then bought it back six months later for $5.00.

Over the next several years, Rendell began trading his coins for authentic letters penned by presidents. Then in 1960, when his curiosity took him to an estate sale, he successfully bid on a half-dozen boxes of family documents and letters.

"I was just fascinated by this stuff. Twenty-five years later, I'm still at it," he says.

Today, Rendell is one of 12 men in the world who can call themselves full-time specialists in the field of original manuscripts.

On one shelf is a wallcarving from Mesopotamia dating back to 2,300 B.C. On another, pottery shaped by the craftsmen of ancient Greece. On his desk is a glass inkwell made during the height of the Roman Empire. Inside the historic inkwell is a pen used by President Harry Truman. The walls of his office are adorned with writing samples on papyrus and sandstone and documents signed by John Hancock, Dwight Eisenhower and Washington Irving.

> 'What I've really learned in this business is about people — most of them dead — how similar people are, how they don't really change.'
>
> Kenneth Rendell

The 1806 half dollar that started this avalanche of history is encased in plastic on his desk.

Most people know Rendell as the man who debunked the supposed "Hitler diaries" and, more recently, as the expert called in when the private papers of explorer Admiral Richard E. Byrd were found in the basement of a Newton home.

"I'm in the news because of my consulting work, but that's a very small part of my business. I do things like that if it's interesting. Basically, I'm in the business of buying and selling handwritten materials from ancient times right up to modern day. The bulk of my business begins in the Renaissance around 1500," he says.

Rendell, who was born in Somerville, moved to his Newton office a decade ago and now lives in Dover, deals in documents written in every language except Chinese and Japanese. He is a larger dealer of historic French manuscripts than anyone in France.

One of his most recent purchases included a letter written just after World War II by Albert Einstein, in which the great physicist discusses his fears about politicians and atomic energy.

His business makes him a broker in history, but Rendell prefers to think of himself as a student of mankind.

"The whole thing is really a study in human nature. It's a glimpse into everything in life. What I've really learned in this business is about people — most of them dead — how similar people are, how they don't really change. Ancient Greeks weren't that much different from us," he says.

As with the Einstein letter, Rendell's work often gives him an exclusive view of history, like memos stamped "Eyes Only" from the administration of President Jimmy Carter, and involves tremendous amounts of research, like the 10 million pieces of paper he sifted through to learn the history of the Burlington Northern Railroad.

"It's like being a reporter, but I do it backwards. Sometimes, I have to go 3,000 years backwards. You could say I deal in old news," he says with a chuckle.

Ironically, those who know little or nothing at all about original manuscripts manage to keep Rendell's expert eye the busiest. Such was the case with the Byrd documents, which may have travelled from house to house for years without the bearers knowing the importance of the cargo.

"Every year, a significant number of things are found like this, virtually by accident," he says, recalling another instance, when a trunk in a Cape Cod basement, which was supposed to contain routine family papers, turned out to hold a treasure trove of manuscripts by the composer Brahms.

"The content (of a find) will make the difference in price," according to Rendell. For example, there are thousands of military passes from the Civil War-era, but the most valuable one is the pass Lincoln signed that allowed his bodyguard to travel to Richmond, Va. on the day of the Lincoln's assasination

The demand for Rendell's expertise creates a harrowing worldwide travel schedule. During a recent two-week stint, he flew to California, Texas, Washington, D.C., London, Geneva, Paris and back to the nation's capitol.

When he has time, Rendell indulges himself in the world of downhill ski racing or adds to his personal collection of "Western Americana," which includes overland diaries from the wagon train-era, President Franklin D. Roosevelt's speech on the fall of France, and Gen. George S. Patton's farewell message to his troops.

Security is, of course, a major concern for Rendell, who keeps his most valuable items in the vaults of area banks and has his home and office wired with an "impenetrable," state-of-the-art alarm system.

The documents themselves have a built-in security system, since a thief would have to get the stolen papers authenticated by an expert before selling them — a process that typically involves a phone call to Rendell.

His work almost invariably involves a person who has made history, but Rendell believes the human side of the manuscript often holds a more valuable lesson than the event or accomplishment associated with the author.

"You find that your heroes were real people, the sense you don't get when you read history books. The history books tell you what they did, but what I get to see is how they got to that point. You begin seeing people really as people, not as the sum of their accomplishments," he says.

His specialized field of original manuscripts has also caused Rendell to cast a discerning eye on the people he meets.

"I think that I'm more willing than a lot of people to look at the interesting part of somebody and ignore the uninteresting. I expect people to be complicated. If they're not complicated, they're dull. In this business, I don't run into a helluva a lot of ordinary people," he adds.

Police, court briefs

Stolen N.H. car found in neighborhood

WEST NEWTON — A 1985 Chevrolet Monte Carlo reported stolen in Nashua, N.H. was recovered on Henshaw Terrace by police Saturday. The car was found after a resident of the street complained that the car had been parked there for some time without being moved, said police.

Car stolen from Varick Road driveway

WABAN — Police reported a 1985 Oldsmobile Toronado Coupe was stolen from a Varick Road driveway Sunday evening.

Stereo equipment taken out of Toyota

LOWER FALLS — A 1978 Toyota Corolla was broken into Sunday night while it was parked on Longwell Road, police said. Taken from the car was an AM-FM stereo cassette player, valued at $270, and a radar detector, valued at $120, police reported.

Intruders steal photography equipment

NEWTON CENTRE — A resident of Read Court reported to police Sunday $2,000-$3,000 worth of camera equipment and photographic materials had been stolen out of his apartment over the weekend. Police said intruders gained access to the apartment by forcing the lock on the back door open.

Alarm in Porsche foils theft attempt

NEWTON — Police said vandals broke into a 1984 Porsche parked on Boylston Street Sunday night in an attempt to steal the car's AM-FM stereo cassette player. The vandals were unsuccessful, police said, as a result of the car's alarm system.

Intruders borrow house for weekend

NEWTON CENTRE — Police reported a Grafton Street house had been entered over the weekend while its owners were staying in Vermont. When the owners returned Sunday night, police said, they noticed several of the beds had been used, dishes had been washed and empty beer cans scattered about the house. After interviewing neighbors, police said a group of about 10 to 20 youths and their cars were noticed in front of the house over the weekend. According to police, the house was entered through an unlocked kitchen window, but nothing seems to have been stolen.

Oldsmobile looted on Ballard Street

NEWTON CENTRE — A 1979 Oldsmoblie Delta — parked on Ballard Street — was entered Sunday when vandals broke the handle on the driver's side, police said. Taken from the car, police reported, was a blue leather brief case valued at $50, a pair of sneakers and a sweat suit.

1985 Cadillac stolen from country club

WEST NEWTON — A 1985 Cadillac de Ville was stolen from Fuller Street Sunday afternoon while its owner was golfing at the Brae Burn Country Club, police reported. In the car's trunk was a set of golf clubs and a hand-pushed golf cart, police said.

Vandals break into church, smash door

AUBURNDALE — Intruders entered the Congregational Church on Central Street last week through a rear bathroom window, police said. In addition to the window being broken, the glass door at the front of the church was smashed and an inner office door was tampered with — nothing was reported missing, police said.

Athletic equipment taken from shop

CHESTNUT HILL — The pro shop at the Longwood Cricket Club on Hammond Street was broken into last weekend and several thousand dollars of athletic equipment was taken, police reported. The shop was entered when intruders apparently forced open a window on the south side of the building, police said.

100 lights broken in half-built building

NEWTONVILLE — One hundred lights in the basement of six-story office building being constructed on Crafts Street were broken by vandals sometime last week, police said. The lights have an estimated value of $400, according to police.

Watertown doctor pleads guilty

Newton police helped in probe

By Gary Dorion
County News Service

CAMBRIDGE — A Watertown physician has pleaded guilty to doling out various prescription drugs for phony medical reasons during 1983-84 and to illegally maintaining the drug habit of an addict. Newton police helped with the investigation, visiting close to 20 pharmacies during the probe.

Doctor James L. Thompson, 60, who conducted a general medical practice at 235 Mt. Auburn St., Watertown, is to be sentenced Nov. 4, before Superior Court Judge James McDaniel in Middlesex Court.

Thompson also pleaded guilty to conspiring with co-defendants Robert Lucas, Stephan O'Donnell, Thomas Lambert, all of Somerville, and Paul Harrington, of Tewksbury, to violate state narcotics laws. The cases of the co-defendants are still pending.

Doctor Thompson, at his recent sentencing, admitted to illegally distributing thousands of tablets of prescription drugs from June 1983 to November 1984. Most prescriptions were issued to Lucas in the names of Lucas' family members who were unaware that the prescriptions were being issued in their names, said Assistant Middlesex County District Attorney Adrienne Lynch.

Lynch said that at least one prescription was issued by Doctor Thompson to Lucas in the name of Lucas' two-year old daughter while others were issued in his sister's name.

Lynch is recommending that the court sentence Thompson to the Massachusetts Correctional Institution at Walpole for a term of 5-7 years. If that recommendation is adopted, Thompson would have to serve at least 20 months before being eligible for parole.

Defense lawyer Nicholas Scali is expected to ask for a lighter sentence.

Lynch said a number of area pharmacists expressed concerns about the amount of the prescriptions, prompting an investigation by Newton police, who later were assisted by the Sherborn and Natick departments. A total of 17 pharmacies were visited by Newton police officers during the investigation, Lynch said.

She told the judge that Doctor Thompson wrote all of the prescriptions without a valid medical purpose. The prescriptions would be written at Thompson's Mt. Auburn St. office or at his home. "Sometimes the scripts would be left in the mailbox," Lynch said.

She said Lucas, at the time Thompson was giving him prescriptions for percocet and percodan, was being treated at McLean Hospital, in Belmont, for a percocet addiction. She said Doctor Thompson was "aware of this treatment."

Lynch said Newton police, acting on a search warrant, seized a number of records including appointment books from Thompson's office. She said police found a U.S. savings bond in the name of Lucas' sister in an inner office and cards with prescriptions listed to Lucas' family members and others. "There were no notations of payments, lists of amounts owed...there were literally no records in the doctor's appointment books," Lynch said.

She said the Lucas family never visited Doctor Thompson.

Judge McDaniel told attorney Scali that, for the upcoming sentencing he wants information to be presented regarding Doctor Thompson's financial background as well as his federal income tax forms for the past two years.

Vandals hit Waban

By David Weber
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Eleven cars in the area around Nehoiden Road in Waban were entered by thieves over the weekend and one car in the same area was stolen, according to reports received by police Sunday morning.

Another vehicle was stolen around 1:30 a.m. Sunday when its driver left the keys in his car in front of the Store 24 on Watertown Street, Nonantum.

Two other cars were reported broken into on Nahanton and Mount Vernon streets Saturday.

A Clarion AM-FM cassette deck with built-in equalizer was stolen out of a 1974 Saab parked in a garage on Nehoiden Road. Police said the garage was entered through an unlocked side door. The glove compartment of the Saab was ransacked and Spalding driver was taken from a golf bag in the car. The club may have been used by the thief to smash windows of several other cars.

A few yards down the road, two more cars were entered, and a hat was stolen from one of them. The other car had its glove compartment pried open, but nothing appeared to be missing.

A 1980 Mazda parked in a driveway on Nehoiden Road had its right rear window smashed and its glove compartment ransacked. Ten dollars in quarters were stolen from the car.

An unlocked 1979 Toyota parked at the same address also had its glove compartment ransacked, but nothing was taken, according to police.

Several houses away, a 1985 Volkswagen Golf, left unlocked in a driveway, was entered and a wallet containing $20 was taken. The dashboard was also damaged.

At 4:15 a.m. Sunday, Officer Kenneth Cahoon was investigating some damage done to a 1983 Saab on nearby Fenwick Road. The left-rear window had been smashed, setting off the car alarm. Nothing appeared to be missing. Another car in the same yard was also entered.

When Cahoon left the scene and drove down Collins Road, he noticed some papers and credit cards in front of the home. Checking the name and address on the papers, he returned them to a nearby home on Collins Road.

The occupant told Cahoon the papers came from her purse, which she had left in her car in her driveway. Cahoon then told her there was no car in her driveway.

Her beige 1980 Toyota Corolla had been stolen.

A garage containing two unlocked cars on Kewadin Road was entered through an unlocked door.

A Blaupunkt AM-FM cassette deck and an Escort radar detector were stolen out of a 1984 Porsche 911. The other car, a 1982 Saab, was entered and knobs from the radio were stolen.

On Devonshire Road, a 1978 Volkswagen Rabbit had its right-vent window smashed. Stolen from the car were a medical kit, stethoscope, lab coat and a backpack containing medical books. The glove compartment was also ransacked.

Mayor Mann swears in fire Lt. William Adams

Lt. Adams, a resident of Natick, is married to the former Ann Keeler of Dorchester, and is the father of William Jr., Richard, Paula of Natick and Mrs. Kathleen Kizik of Milford.

He graduated from Waltham High School and holds an associate degree in fire science from Massachusetts Bay Community College. Lt. Adams served as a Navy corpsman during the Vietnam conflict. He has been assigned as commanding officer of the Fire Departments' Communications and is filling the vacancy created by the retirement of Lt. Dexter Briggs.

NEWTON — The Carroll Center for the Blind announces the grand opening of their new dormitory facility at a ribbon cutting ceremony on Sunday, Nov. 17, at 2 p.m.. at their Newton location, 770 Centre St.

The new facility will be named Raeder Hall in honor of one of the Carroll Center's very successful graduates, Mr. William Raeder, executive director of the National Braille Press. It is the second phase of remodeling for this internationally renowned center for the blind that included the renovation of its training facility in 1981 and now its dormitory for residents pursuing rehabilitation.

The dedication ceremony, open to the public, will also include an open house, tours of the facility and demonstrations of special methods of rehabilitation for the blind adult.

Flu vaccinations available October 30

NEWTON — A flu clinic will be held on Wednesday, Oct. 30, from 3 to 7 p.m. at Newton City Hall, Room 209 for those who still wish to receive the flu vaccination. This year's immunization consists of A/Phillipine, A/Chile and B/USSR strains.

The vaccine will be given to adults with chronic cardiovascular or pulmonary conditions requiring medical care; medical personnel having extensive contact with high-risk patients; persons over 65 years of age; and adults with chronic metabolic disease such as diabetes and kidney disease. The clinic, which is free of charge, is sponsored by the Newton Health Department.

High tech gizmos for every pocket

By Mark Schwed
UPI Feature Writer

Technological wizards are busy shrinking the size of every gizmo in the universe, and soon the gods of high tech will place a microchipped miracle in every coat pocket.

The once-popular belief that "bigger is better" is being frowned on by corporate tech-nomads sold on the shrinking of America. We squeeze into subcompact cars, toil in tiny office modules and live solo in small homes crammed together in development clusters. The plots of land are so puny there's not even enough room for the white picket fence.

Space is a high-priced commodity, making mini of maxi importance, and the shrinking of America will soon dwarf the imagination.

There will be a VCR in every coat pocket, a compact disc player in every palm, a mini-cam in every home and a baby satellite dish in every backyard.

Take televisions to start with. The bottom of the line black and white mini TV is made by Casio. Basically, it's a liquid crystal display reflected onto a mirror. Quality is limited, but the size is oh so puny — 2 ½ inches wide, ⅞ of an inch thick and 4 ½ inches long. Price is about $100.

The top of the mini line is Seiko's color model that retails for about $350. The size is 3 ¼ inches by 1 inch by 6 inches, smaller than a paperback book. Some of the mini TVs include all the features of their big brothers, including automatic tuning and built-in radios.

One step beyond TV is Sony's WatchCam, a compact security system for the home which retails for about $500. You get a lightweight surveillance camera which monitors people through the front-door peephole, hallway or window and has a built-in microphone. Set up the camera in the nursery to watch junior, or focus on the front door to keep track of visitors.

Mitsubishi also is developing a home automation system that can close the curtains, turn off the oven, unlock the door, photograph guests, alert police or fire departments and pay bills via home computer.

Combine that with Sony's CamCorder, a videocassette recorder within a camera, and the possibilities are endless.

Another TV development: Mitsubishi has a small printer that attaches to the TV set. Use the camera to put your image on TV, push a button and give yourself a picture right off the screen. Cost is $300.

Talking about cassettes, Olympus makes one of the smallest micro cassette recorders on the market. For about $175, you get many of the functions of a big recorder: voice-activated, audible searching, cue markings, a tape counter, two speeds and easy to manage controls.

And remember those transistor radios that were every child's dream? Casio makes credit card-sized radios with headset quality sound that cost about $30.

Keeping the hands free for other chores is the idea behind Dial-less telephones, made by California-based TCC Inc. The company boasts the world's only hands-free, voice-recognition phone. The caller says "mother" and the phone calls mom. Say hang up and the phone clicks off.

Techno-wizzards at the the Massachusettes Institute of Technology, better known to math and science freaks as MIT, are experimenting on a voice-activated, speech-recognition answer machine. What does that mean? You call Mark and the phone answers, "This is Mark's place." Then you say, "This is Stewart calling." Then the phone says, "Oh, Stewart, Mark left a message for you." Mark may be miles away but his phone does all the talking for him.

The folks at MIT were theorizing about a micro-copier until they stumbled on one already being sold by Copy Jack in Japan. It is roughtly 8 inches, by 3 inches by 1 inch and operates on batteries. You sweep the copier along something you want on the page of a book, and it makes a copy on a narrow paper tape.

For the traveling techno-executive, there are some incredible gadgets that boggle the mind.

Radio Shack makes a Model 100 computer with built in modem that fits in the lap and costs from $400 to $800, depending on memory. Data East makes a facsimile machine that fits in a small attache case and costs just $1,000. It enables the executive to transmit or receive sketches, pictures, X-ray prints, documents — virtually anything on paper. Add the two together, pull out the acoustic couplers, find a phone and you have a data base at your roving fingertips.

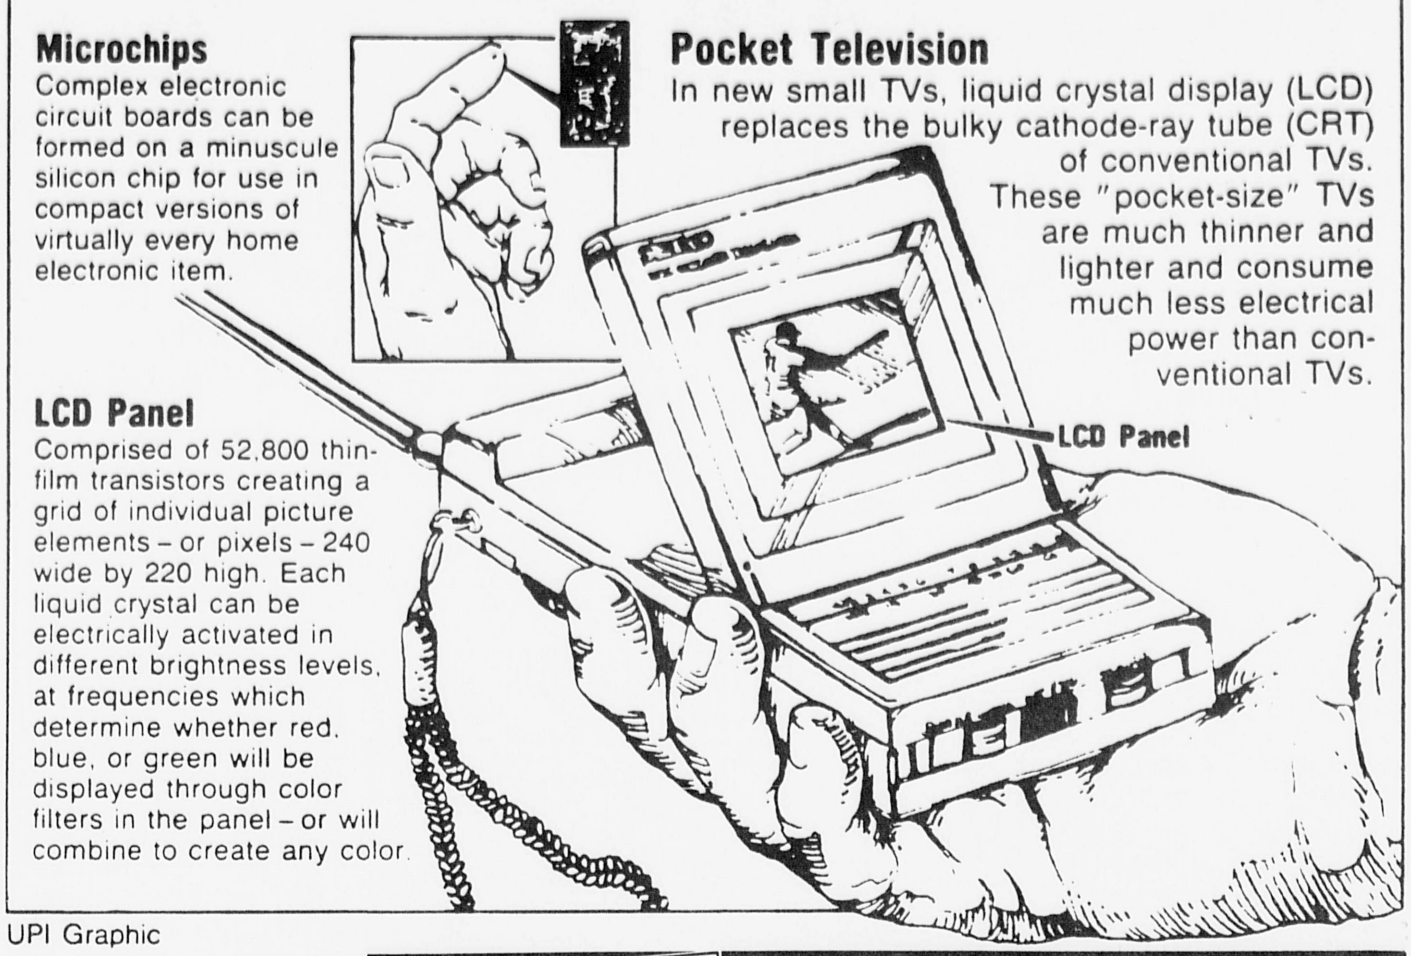

With cellular telephones that fit in an attache case, you can transmit and receive from the park, the beach, the rooftop pool, from the 50-yard line, or a mountain cabin.

Looking slightly ahead, there are holographic TV sets on display in Japan with full 3-D. Also coming soon: wall TV that you literally paint on the wall, 8 mm videocassette systems with tapes no larger than those now used for audio, fiber-optic picture phones, a telephone serviceoffering vitually any movie ever made at the push of a button and home satellite dishes as small as 2 feet across.

Miniaturized Consumer Electronics

Familiar products are getting tinier every year after technological breakthroughs.

Campus, military briefs

Edward J. Powers of Auburndale was honored recently for 25 years of teaching at University College, the part-time division of Northeastern University, where he is a senior lecturer in the Business Administration department.

Powers earned a B.S. in engineering management from Northeastern University and an M.B.A. degree from Northeastern's graduate school of business administration. He also earned a master's degree in education from Boston State College.

Navy Fireman Recruit Martha N. Selling, daughter of Irma and Ben Selling of Park Street, Newton, was graduated from Basic Hull Maintenance Technician School.

A graduate of Newton North High School, she joined the Navy in April 1985.

Newton's Michael S. Drucker, and Carl J. Young, III were chosen senators from the sixth form when Belmont Hill School students held elections for the school senate recently.

Holly Shiller of West Newton received a service award for five years of outstanding service to Easter Seal from Richard A. LaPierre, President of the Massachusetts Easter Seal Society.

Newton Country Day School students Allyson Bradley and Susan English documented the fourth episode of the film "Spencer: For Hire," a new TV series while the crews were filming on campus Sept. 20. While Bradley gathered information for the yearbook, English videotaped the event.

FIRST TIMERS NEED NOT APPLY

With the average sale price of single-family homes in Newton, Waltham, Watertown and Weston topping $200,000, the dream of owning a single-family home is rapidly becoming out of reach.

This restored Victorian in Newton Highlands is a perfect example of putting dollars to work by renovating.

According to figures compiled by the Multiple Listing Service, the average sale price of property in greater Boston was $131,000 in 1984. And for the first six months of 1985 the average selling price has jumped to a staggering $148,700.

Looking for better news locally? Don't count on it. The following figures are based on MLS activity over the last three quarters, and reflect average selling prices through Sept. 1.

- Newton: $210,000
- Waltham: $122,100
- Watertown: $133,400
- Weston: $353,400

The average selling price for this four-town area is $204,100. True, this figure is skewed somewhat by Weston's high property prices. But the overall trend is more than evident.

And what do you get for $204,100? A Mansard Victorian located on a half-acre in Auburndale? A three-bedroom split level with a finished basement on a quiet street near the Waltham/Belmont line? Anything at all in Weston?

Not a chance.

For a mere $199,000 you can purchase a garrison Colonial with three bedrooms, 1½ baths, and a small TV room on a 6,170-square-foot lot just off Route 9 in Newton Highlands. Or for $210,000 you can get a 30-year-old, six-room brick house on Everett Avenue in Watertown.

The sad thing is, these prices are not abnormally high. According to John Bowen at the Mass. Association of Realtors, located in Waltham, the rapid appreciation of property values shows no signs of slowing.

"The dream has always been a single-family detached home," Bowen says. "The reality is that's going to cost you about $131,000 — conservatively — in the Waltham area."

Bowen says the current situation is a classic case of supply and demand economics, as larger numbers of potential home buyers vie for a limited housing stock.

"The demand out there is phenomenal right now," Bowen says, and John Harrington, an associate at the Mennell Division Gallery of Homes in Newton, agrees.

"Supply and demand is what drove the prices up in the spring," Harrington says, adding that during one four-week span beginning in April homes "were moving in hours, not days or weeks."

•••••

According to John Campbell, a Brookline-based broker listing homes in Newton, the market has moderated greatly since the feeding frenzy of last spring. Currently, he says, homes typically will take from 30 to 60 days to sell, a situation he describes as "normal."

Contributing to this moderating trend, he adds, is that variable and adjustable-rate mortgages have become much more accepted by buyers and sellers.

"I think we're into a more healthy market condition," Campbell says. "It's not necessarily a buyer's or a seller's market."

Regardless of whom the market favors at present, the fact remains that it is "just about impossible" for first-time home buyers looking in Newton or Weston — and to a large extent Watertown and Waltham as well.

"I grew up in Newton and the chances of my buying a house here are slim," Harrington says. "My only chance might be to buy a two-family and fix it up, and I'm not much of a handyman.

"I guess it's just paying your dues," he added. "You can't expect to live here just because you grew up here."

While it virtually has priced the mid-income homebuyer right out of the market, the real estate boom has been a godsend for others. Campbell opened his agency less than a year ago and already has expanded from 6 brokers to 17.

"I'm sure it's contributed to the success of my office," he says of the sales explosion. "I'd be foolish to say it hasn't."

Much of the demand for single-family housing has been attributed to the "baby boom" generation coming of age. In part, this is true.

A national poll in 1984 profiled the typical single-family home buyer as 34 years old, married, with a family income of $39,986. Almost 60 percent of those polled were two-income households, and their average monthly bill (including insurance and utilities) was $875.

This poll, conducted by the National Association of Home Builders, also showed the majority of home buyers opted for a fixed-rate mortgage with a 9-percent downpayment.

Harrington believes fluctuations in the single-family home market in greater Boston are tied in large part to fluctuations in the high-tech industry.

"The computer industry has had a profound impact," he says.

When high-tech was booming last year, job candidates and transfers flocked to the Route 128 area from around the country. These people had to buy quickly, Harrington says, meaning they would jump at virtually any price. This begat a "chain reaction" which drove housing prices even higher.

According to Newton Planning Director Barry Canner, the rise in house prices in greater Boston has been fueled by a number of factors: Land for building new homes has become increasingly scarce; there has been an increase in the formation of households even though the population has remained basically stable; the numbers of two-income households has increased; and single persons are willing to buy a home alone or are buying with other singles.

Finally, employment throughout the region has remained high, meaning people have the income to purchase a starter home or to trade up.

And "trading up," according to Campbell, is the name of the real estate game. Young professionals purchasing homes in the $300,000 to $350,000 price range almost always are trading up from condominiums, he says.

"They grew up in a generation that's not afraid of big, big mortgages," he says. "They've owned before and they've got a big chunk of equity in another property."

Likewise, in this day and age, two-income households are no longer a luxury for homebuyers.

"The daycare business is the most popular business in the area now," he says. "Those combined incomes can really add up ... and they have to."

But there is a general feeling among real estate professionals that the market has peaked and is now in the process of stabilizing.

"It has slowed somewhat since springtime," said one consultant at Property Financial Services, a Waltham appraisal firm. "But the rates are still good for those looking to buy."

Harrington agrees, maintaining that housing is more affordable now than it has been at any time in the past eight years. Fall traditionally has been a good time for buyers, and fixed interest rates have stabilized around 12.5 percent — down from the 17-18 percent rates of five years ago — while savings and personal income are up.

This combination, according to Harrington, means typical home buyers can afford up to $50,000 more than five years ago.

The downside of this trend is that housing costs have escalated at a pace at least equal to the decline in interest rates. Mortgage guidelines have been tightened considerably. Uncertainty about the future course of interest rates has lenders to be more cautious. Banks have a lot more to lose.

"If they used the same guidelines they use now when my parents were younger they never would have been able to buy their home," Harrington says.

•••••

What does all this mean to young couples seeking to purchase a home in the western suburbs?

According to Harrington, it means having to settle for less — plain and simple. The days of truly "affordable" housing are gone for good.

For the first time since the 1930s, the nation's howeownership rate has declined, according to the census bureau. After climbing steadily from a rate of 43.6 percent in 1940 to a peak of 56.8 percent in 1980, the homeownership rate has slipped to 64.1 percent in the fourth quarter of 1984.

This four-year slide has been most evident among young homeowners, particularly those aged 34 and under. It has been linked to a corresponding rise in the national mortgage delinquency rate — which reached a record high of 6.19 percent in the first quarter of 1985.

According to Harrington, a couple purchasing a $200,000 home might typically put $40,000 down, leaving a $160,000 mortgage. At current interest rates, a family income of approximately $80,000 is needed to support that $160,000 mortgage.

That doesn't mean people have to abandon the dream of owning their own home. It does mean, however, that careful long-term planning is required to achieve the ultimate goal.

"Sacrifices have to be made," Harrington says. "It's like buying your first car, you can't go out and buy a Rolls-Royce."

But you just might be able to afford a Chevrolet or a Ford. And this is where first-time homebuyers have to look — settling for a home in Mansfield or Sharon, or a condominium in Brighton or Watertown, instead of a Victorian in Newton.

And even then they might need a little help from their friends.

"Thank God for parents helping their kids out," says Harrington.

Next week:

Staff writers Jeff Peterson and Christie Herlihy-Starr will scrutinize the housing situation in Newton, where the lowest-priced home on the market is selling for $159,000, and analyze the forces behind the dramatic price rises of early 1985.

Settling for a little bit of Newton for a lot less money

By Christie Herlihy-Starr, Staff Writer

RANDOLPH — After renting for five years in Newton and experiencing its lifestyle, we knew exactly what we wanted: to buy a house in Newton.

But six months of scouring the real estate listings convinced my husband and me that even the cheapest Garden City homes were far above our maximum price range of $125,000. So we embarked on the great search for a city with Newton's essence that we could call home.

For us, home would be a community close to Route 128 and provide easy access to downtown Boston. It would have tennis courts, a park, and a relaxing place to jog. And finally, besides the fact that the house must have a roof, there must be a place for a garden.

There's nothing like a house-hunting trip to bring dreams to earth.

We concentrated on the southern part of Route 128, because even the far western suburbs between Routes 128 and 495 appeared to be above our limit.

I had gotten a tip, from a woman I met in the restroom during a bird-watchers club breakfast, that Sharon was a nice community. After finding a property in the low-teens listed in the newspaper Saturday morning, we called a Sharon real estate agent.

"That house is long gone," she said. "It really needed a lot of work." But she assured us she could find something in our price range in Sharon and we made an afternoon appointment.

We first saw a year-old home listed for $130,000. It was more than we could afford, the agent recognized, but perhaps we'd be willing to stretch a bit after we saw it.

It was in a nice quiet neighborhood, but the house could be best described as an over-sized trailer without wheels. The driveway and garage faced the front of the street where a main door normally would have been. The entrance to the house was actually on the side. There was no walkway and not much room on the narrow lot for one. The house siding was plastic that had been molded to look like wood. The house may have had cathedral ceilings and been "economical to heat" with its electric heating panels, but it had a shower stall for bathing and two tiny bedrooms.

This was worth $130,000? I trudged back to the agent's car depressed, wondering what awaited us at our next location, a house which had just been reduced to $117,900.

The agent parked beside the white Garrison Colonial on a corner lot.

"Has there been a fire in the breezeway?" I asked.

"No, no," she said. "Now you'll have to use your imagination with this one. Keep in mind what the place would look like after you decorate it."

We used our imagination, and couldn't imagine ever living there. There was a fire hydrant in the front yard. White paint peeled from the house and at least one gutter sagged. Inside, cheap fake paneling covered the living and dining rooms. There were no closets in the two bedrooms upstairs. Although the agent tried to convince us the cement block barbecue pit in the middle of the screen-in porch would be appreciated year-round for cooking steaks, all I could think of was how much it looked like a miniaturized version of the incinerator in the schoolyard of St. Peter's Grammar School back home.

As my husband Bill said, that house was not a "fixer-upper." It was a "do-it-over-again."

"I may not have anything for you now, but we'll find you something," our Sharon real estate agent said as she took us on a tour of the community, pointing out the large lake for swimming, sailing, and jogging. Sharon had Newton's amenities — and unfortunately Newton's prices.

After a quick call to set up another appointment, our real estate agent drove us to Walpole to look at another home. On the way she asked us what really was our limit and couldn't we stretch just a little more. "People can be a little too conservative," she said.

"We don't want to be over our heads with a big mortage," I replied firmly.

The multi-level home we saw in Walpole priced at $124,900 had a lot of space, but the large back yard was actually the downside of steep hill. The only useable part of the yard was a small terraced patio which the owners were trying to complete. We decided to think about this one.

Sunday morning, after looking over the real estate listings, we got into the car again to look at homes, this time in Randolph.

"I just want to see why there are so many homes under $100,000 there," Bill said.

"They're probably pre-fabricated jobs, all arranged in a subdivision," I said. "Maybe there's a hazardous waste dump."

We stopped at the first real estate office we saw and were matched with an agent so new to his job we later found that we were his first customers.

He assured us Randolph was a half-hour drive to central Boston during non-rush hours, and could be reached via public transportation which was just a short drive away in neighboring Canton or Braintree.

"Why would you want to go into Boston anyway?" he asked while driving us around Randolph. "Everything you want is right here, two supermarkets with malls, the movie theater and the Penney catalog store. The South Shore Mall is nearby. You don't even have to go to Boston."

He was obviously unaware that we Midwesterners had left our jobs just to live near and partake of Boston's cultural attractions.

I decided to hit the other priorities on our dream list. "Was there an outdoor pool, or park in town?"

"Not that I can think of."

"Do people jog here," I asked.

"No, not really. Here we are," he said pulling into the driveway of a three-bedroom ranch on a dead-end street near the main part of town. The neighborhood seemed to be mostly woods. And the backyard itself was wooded. A rabbit hopped into nearby bushes. The house looked from the outside like a small cottage with ivy climbing over the brick chimney. Inside, the bedrooms were small, the dark brown wallpaper would have to be removed, and a dilapidated lean-to porch would have to be knocked off the kitchen. But this place looked like home. The price, in the low-teens, was right.

We moved in August, and although we still suffer from Newton withdrawal, the pain is ebbing. We are thankful to be homeowners. We have gotten to know some kind neighbors and we have discovered, in perhaps farflung places, little bits of "Newton."

Ellen Apsokardos and Wayne Schubert

Ellen Apsokardos is wed to Wayne Robert Schubert

A double-ring ceremony took place at 11 a.m. in the First Lutheran Church of Waltham on Saturday, Aug. 31 uniting Ellen Apsokardos of Newton with Wayne Robert Schubert of Waltham. Pastor Ernest Bergeson was the officiating clergyman.

Cheryl Burritt, friend of the bride, served as the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Kathleen Murphy, friend of the bride, Kristin Schubert, sister of the bridegroom, Joanna Hayes, cousin of the bride. Stephanie Shelton, cousin of the bride, was the flowergirl.

The brother of the bridegroom, Craig Schubert, served as the best man. Ushers were John Robinson, Don Peterson, Jonathan Shelton, cousin of the bride. Kenneth Shelton, cousin of the bride, escorted the flowergirl.

The bride wore a long trained gown of lace and pearls with a Priscilla neckline. She carried a cascade of white carnations, fraessia and sweetheart roses with babybreath. Ellen was given in marriage by both parents, Eleftherios and Norma Apsokardos of Newton.

The bridesmaids wore pink chiffon while the maid of honor and flowergirl wore gowns of frost rose chiffon. They carried a bouquet of pink minicarnations, daisies and babybreath.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Newton Marriott Hotel. After a honeymoon to Niagra Falls, the couple will reside in Newton.

Ellen and Wayne are both employed by the Newton Marriott Hotel.

Busy agenda for Auburndale Garden Club

The Auburndale Garden Club plans an interesting and busy agenda for the coming year. Lectures and workshops range from Ikebana, the art of Japanese flower arranging, to wildflower conservation. In addition to its many on-going projects, the club intends to intensify its efforts in the area of community beautification.

Now in its forty-seventh year, the Auburndale Garden Club offers informative gardening lectures and workshops at its monthly meetings and is chiefly responsible for numerous beautification and improvement projects throughout the village. In addition, the club sponsors a holiday greens workshop and a spring plant sale.

Halloween party for patients

Mayflower Chapter, B'nai B'rith Women, will sponsor a Halloween Party for the patients of Units IV and V of the Kennedy Memorial Hospital for Children, on Wednesday, Oct. 30, at 2 p.m.

The youngsters will be provided with masks, "trick or treat" bags, noisemakers, and refreshments. Chapter members, some of whom will be dressed in costume, will play games and decorate pumpkins with the children.

Irene Gaffin, of Newton, is chairman of this event. On the committee are Avery Douglas, Eileen Karnow, Bea Fox, Pat List, Martha Simmons, Freda Srebro, Ann Witzer, and Sylvia Zack. Barbara Segal, of Newton, is president of Mayflower Chapter, B.B.W.

Kennedy Memorial Hospital combines the therapeutic services of a rehabilitation center with the medical, surgical and diagnostic services of a general pediatric hospital. It serves children from infancy to age 21 and offers a day program providing education for children with special needs.

Births for area families

A daughter, Stephanie Beth, was born Sept. 15 at Brigham and Women's Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Michael Wiseman of Needham. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Allen Rudolph of Chestnut Hill and Mr. and Mrs. Irving Wiseman of Sharon.

A son, Joshua Marc, was born Oct. 7 at Brigham and Women's Hospital to Burton J. and Elaine (Stoler) Stein of Newton Centre. Grandparents are Mr. Sidney Stoler of Brookline, Mrs. Sadye Stein of Chestnut Hill, and Mr. Israel Stein of Nashua, N.H.

A son, Brian, was born Oct. 11 at The Waltham Hospital to Susan and Paul Higgins of Newton.

Marjorie E. Kritzman of Waban marries Dr. Joshua Oliver Benditt

Marjorie Ellen Kritzman, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Julius Kritzman of Waban, was married on Sept. 8 to Dr. Joshua Oliver Benditt, son of Dr. and Mrs. Earl Benditt of Seattle, Wash.

The ceremony and reception were held at the home of the bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Saul B. Cohen of Chestnut Hill. Rabbi H. Bruce Ehrmann officiated. Julia Abbott of Medfield was her sister's matron of honor and Eric Gorbman of Seattle was best man. The bride is a graduate of Newton South High School and the University of Massachusetts in Amherst. She is a nuclear medicine technologist at Tufts New England Medical Center Hospitals.

The bridegroom attended Swarthmore College and is a graduate of the University of Washington and University of Washington Medical School. He is currently Chief Resident in Medicine at the Boston Veterans Administration Hospital.

After a wedding trip to the San Juan Islands, the couple is residing in Brookline.

Sara-Jane Matloff and Richard Rogers

Sara-Jane Matloff of Newton marries Richard Rogers of Natick

Sara-Jane Matloff and Richard Rogers were married at the home of the bride's parents in Newton. The bride, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. Jay Matloff, Newton, graduated magna cum laude from Tufts University. She holds a master's degree in Reading from Lesley College and is a first grade teacher in North Reading. The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard B. Rogers, Natick, graduated from Swarthmore College. He holds a master's degree in Elementary Education from Lesley College and is a third grade teacher in Brookline. The couple will live in Arlington.

Luncheon committee

Temple Israel Sisterhood holds luncheon

Irma Dana, president of Temple Israel Sisterhood of Boston, announces the forthcoming annual sisterhood fundraiser for the year, a luncheon, entitled, "Keeping the Pledge." This event will be another step in the sisterhood's commitment in establishing the Creative and Performing Arts Endowment Fund of $50,000 to the Temple, part of which has already been donated. The gala event will take place on Oct. 23 in Rabb Cahners Social Hall, preceded by the "Aisle of Boutiques" in the Smith Lobby at 10:30 a.m.

Naomi Hambro and Phoebe Woolf, Co-chairpersons of the program, will present television personality Lisa Karlin, Channel 5's authority in the world of arts and entertainment, plus an added feature with "Accent on Youth," starring the youth director of Temple Israel, who will perform with his guitar songs by Dana Hur, president of the Temple's youth group.

All members and friends are cordially invited to attend. For reservations, please call the chairman, Paula Ligums at 469-9422.

Breast cancer undetected is the problem.
Breast cancer is a real fear for women—a fear preventing many from taking advantage of life-saving detection techniques. Today's mammography is a safe and simple x-ray that can detect breast cancer long before you or even your physician can feel an abnormality. The fact is, the earlier breast cancer is detected, the better the chances are for successful, less-disfiguring treatment.
At Preterm, you can expect affordable breast screenings by mammography with experienced radiologists interpreting your x-ray for accurate diagnosis. And, we will teach you invaluable self-examination techniques for breast checks you can do regularly at home.
Call 738-6210. We answer to a broad range of health concerns affecting women.

Mary Dimodica and James Quinlan

Mary G. Dimodica is wed to James Francis Quinlan

John and Grace Dimodica of West Springfield announce the wedding of their daughter, Mary Grace, to James Francis Quinlan, son of Paul and Mary Quinlan of Newtonville.

The couple were married at St. Thomas the Apostle Church, West Springfield, on June 29 at 11 a.m. in a double-ring ceremony. Rev. Thomas J. Marley, the bride's uncle, officiated the wedding. The bride was given away by her father.

The bride's cousin, Miss Ann Marie McCarron, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Angela Liquori, friend of the bride, of Brighton; Miss Denise Stanislas, friend of the bride, of Springfield; Miss Paula Nowak, friend of the bride, West Springfield; Miss Sherri Peotrowski, friend of the bride, of Duxbury.

The bride wore a white, floor-length gown with train that was Victorian in style with ornate bodice of lace, touch of white sequins and tiny pearls. Dress had a simpler skirt and train. Headpiece was a hat with blusher and veil.

Best man was Mr. Timothy Ryan, the bridegroom's friend, of Newtonville. Ushers were Mr. James Dimodica, the bride's brother, of West Springfield; Mr. John Fay, the bridegroom's friend, of Newton; Mr. Robert LeBlanc, the bridegroom's friend, of Falls Church; Mr. Paul Mulvaney, the bridegroom's friend, of Needham.

The reception was held at Elmerest Country Club, East Longmeadow. The bride attended Cathedral High School, Springfield, and graduated from Providence College, Providence, R.I., in May, 1985. She is seeking employment in the marketing field.

The bridegroom attended Newton North High School and graduated from Babson College, Wellesley, in 1982. He is currently working towards his MBA at Suffolk University and is working as a sales representative at ARA/Smiths.

Following a wedding trip to Hawaii, the couple resides in Waltham.

Jacqueline H. Britt weds Mr. Dennis Patrick Hipps

Jacqueline Helene Britt of San Francisco, Calif., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Britt of Waltham, formerly of Auburndale, was married to Dennis Patrick Hipps, son of Mrs. Sheila Castagneto of Pacifica, Calif., on Sept. 21.

The wedding was held at Our Lady of Victories Church, Boston, and the reception was at the Park Plaza Hotel.

Rev. Father Paul Chaisson, S. M., uncle of the bride, was the officiating clergyman.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Mr. William J. Britt. The bride's gown was made of ivory satin with lace and pearl appliqued on top and sleeves. She wore a satin train edged with lace and a band in her hair that was hand-made and covered with pearls with French tulle veil attached.

The bride carried a bouquet of gardenias, stephanotis and baby's breath. The maid of honor was Denise Bergin of Auburndale, who wore a mint-green gown and carried lillies and a wreath of baby's breath.

Bridesmaids were Debra Constantine of Waltham, Allison Toney of Auburndale, Christine Hiller of California, and Elaine Parry of California. They wore teal green gowns and carried lillies and a wreath of baby's breath.

The best man at the wedding was Theodore Wiederhorn of Auburn, Maine. Ushers were John Britt of Winchester, brother of the bride; Paul Britt of California, brother of the bride; John Hipps of California, brother of the bridegroom; and Robert Hipps of California, brother of the bridegroom.

The bride's mother wore a silver-gray crepe dress with beading at the neck and top of dress. The bridegroom's mother wore a rose crepe tunic dress with beading at the neck.

Following a wedding trip to Nantucket, the couple will make San Francisco their permanent residence.

The bride graduated from Northeastern University and is currently employed as operation supervisor and stockbroker at Charles/Schwabb & Co. in San Francisco.

The bridegroom is a graduate of San Francisco City College and is a stock and bond broker at Wullfs, Hansen & Co., San Francisco.

Rosemary Francis Sullivan plans to wed Kenneth Miller of Newton

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Sullivan Jr. of Waltham are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter, Rosemary Francis, to Kenneth G. Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude S. Miller of Newton. An early fall wedding is planned.

Contributors to be awarded new Samech Pin

The Samech Pin has been created especially for the historic 60th anniversary of Pioneer Women/Na'amat. The new pin is a striking stylized samech, the Hebrew letter that stands for 60. It symbolizes 60 years of Pioneer Women/Na'amat achievement. In America, the organization supports legislation and social action for women. While in Israel the organization supports services for women. teenagers, children, and families.

The Samech Pin will be awarded to members contributing or raising $1,000 in one fiscal year. The pin was designed by Moshe Zabari, one of the foremost Israeli creators of Judaic art and artist-in-residence at the Jewish Museum in New York. Each pin is stamped with his name and is made in Israel. This is a limited edition.

Two charming babies

Constitution Chapter, B'nai B'rith Women announced the winners of its Annual Charming Baby Contest recently held at the Middlesex Mall, Burlington.

Contest chairperson Barbara Hantman of Waltham presented the first prize — a $50 U.S. Savings Bond — to Matthew Rameior of Arlington and the second prize of $25 cash to Lauren Sarver of Newton.

Proceeds from the contest benefit the services and agencies of B'nai B'rith Women, as well as its Children's Home in Israel.

Pulse-8*ing* to top of music charts

By Candy Kosow
Correspondent

Pulse-8, a rock and roll band from Newton

Newtonite Jimmy Holzman calls it a mutiny. He as manager, plus the bass player and drummer, were all a part of a group known as Cool-Rays. They wanted better guitarists, a different sound, and tunes that were upbeat, sharp and rhythmic. In short, they wanted music that would pulsate.

Jimmy found two guitar players, and along with the other two ex-Cool-Rays musicians, the group really did start Pulse-8. That was a year ago.

Two weeks ago, the band had a record release party at the Paradise that was attended by more than 400 people. Although they have been receiving local air play via tapes on radio stations WBCN, WAAF and WFNX, this represents the first time the band has had a single recorded on vinyl. It's a snappy, well-harmonized song called "Locksmith." And it goes like this:

Locksmith gonna make or break the world,
Locksmith's got the key.
When you get to thinking about suicide,
The Locksmith is you and me.

All the band members contribute to the songwriting.

A majority of the time, each band member writes his own musical part as well. All in all, the members feel they share equal billing in this group, with Holzman acting as manager, PR person, booking agent and radio and record liaison. The band includes Andy Baldwin on bass, Eric Braunsdorf on drums, Jerry Arslanian on rhythm guitar, and Stew Guernsey on lead guitar.

Now that the record has been released, Pulse-8 has a few more short-term goals they'd like accomplished. For instance, they are hoping to complete their first video, featuring "Locksmith," sometime soon. They want the the video to reflect a sort of "Rebel Without a Cause" theme — a James Dean mood piece, with some of the obvious lock and key visuals.

Pulse-8 also hopes to submit the cut to the 1986 WBCN Rock and Roll Rumble, which significantly boosted the popularity of another local band, Til Tuesday, following their victory at the rumble two years ago.

Another goal is to be signed on by a record company, and already two major labels have expressed interest in the band. However, they're taking a wait-and-see attitude to see if the band's initial flicker will swell into a fire.

A graduate of Newton South High School and Northeastern University, Holzman says that all the band members are college graduates in their mid-20s with enormous dedication and patience. Currently, they are recording in the Eden Sound Studio in West Newton and are receiving some exposure through gigs at local clubs.

During a set at Bunratty's this past weekend, Pulse-8 played close to an hour of high tempo, accessible dance music — all originals, except for a jazzed-up musical interlude of the classic "When Johnny Comes Marching Home." Among their best numbers were "It's a Parade," "Wicked Delicious" and the B-side to the "Locksmith" single, "On the Edge."

Pulse-8 donated their time to the recent Beat Aid concert in which many local bands raised money by playing at various clubs throughout Boston.

One of the band members even helped Marion Streetpeople of Waban record a song for the cause called "Will You Be a Friend."

While the group has achieved some success in the clubs, Pulse-8 also came in second out of 32 bands at this year's North Shore Rumble. They only lost by half a point.

Pulse-8, with manager Holzman, have a solid act. With time and polish and a few breaks, these hometown boys might just be pulsating to the top of the music charts.

Renoir through Jan. 8

The exclusive American showing of Renoir at the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, featuring 96 celebrated works by one of the most widely-recognized and universally-loved painters, will continue through Jan. 5, 1986.

Admission to the exhibit is by ticket for a reserved date and time of entry. In addition to the museum's Renoir box office, located in the West Wing lobby and open during all museum public hours, reserved tickets may be obtained through Ticketron and Teletron outlets. Telephone information may be obtained by dialing 617-9-Renoir (973-6647).

Pianist Serkin to open concert series benefit

NEWTON — The ANMS will open the 1985-86 Benefit Concert Series with Mr. Peter Serkin, pianist, on Sunday, Nov. 3 , at 4 p.m. at the Second Church in West Newton. "Mr. Serkin is an extraordinary artist: he must already be counted among the ranks of our great pianists," states The New York Times. The Washington Post says Serkin is "one of the freshest and most resourceful minds in music today."

With his musical heritage extending back several generations, Serkin had lessons in music and piano studying with many outstanding teachers including his father, Rudolf Serkin.

Since his first public performance in 1959, Serkin has appeared as soloist with the world's major symphony orchestras. His performances often leave audiences and critics mesmerized.

His longstanding and absorbing interest in contemporary music has led him to work with composers such as Berio, Takemitsu and Messiaen. In 1973, he formed the chamber ensemble TASHI (Tibetan for "good fortune"), which premiered pieces written by these composers especially for the group.

Nov. 3 will be an especially exciting performance. The 75th Anniversary Celebration of ANMS has inspired Peter Lieberson to compose and dedicate a piano piece for the school. Lieberson currently lives in Newton with his wife and three daughters and teaches at Harvard University. The youngest of 12 composers commissioned by the Boston Symnphony Orchestra for their centennial celebration, he created a Piano Concerto which was recently released by New World Records, with Peter Serkin on piano and Seiji Ozawa conducting the BSO.

For information and reservations, call 527-4553.

Arts complex dedication set

CHESTNUT HILL — Boston College will dedicate its theater arts complex, located on the university's main campus, in honor of E. Paul Robsham, Jr. (BC class of 1986), on Oct. 25.

Robsham died in an automobile accident in the summer of 1983 following his freshman year. His parents are E. Paul and Joyce Robsham of Wayland. Robsham, Sr., is president and chairman of the board of Robsham Industries, Inc., a real estate development firm in Framingham.

The dedication ceremony precedes that night's 8 p.m. showing of Peter Shaffer's "Amadeus," with a champagne reception afterwards. The play opens Oct. 24, and runs through Oct. 26.

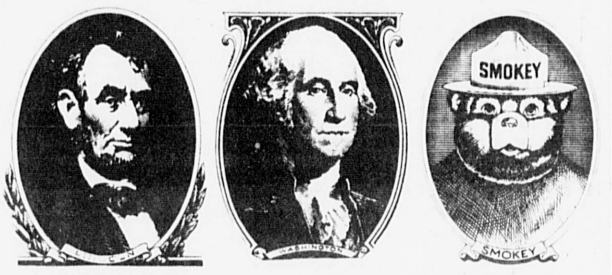

BC inagurated its theater in "Theaterfest" celebration which attracted 5,000 persons.

These guys want you to stop wasting your tax dollars.

Wildfires in our country are a terrible waste. A waste of natural resources. A waste of natural beauty. A waste of money.
Yet every single year, over one billion in tax dollars goes up in smoke. That's what it costs to protect our nation's resources and fight wildfires.
So, think of these famous faces next time you're in the great outdoors. And remember, only you can prevent forest fires.

United Nations Day

Celebration of local ethnicity

NEWTON — Governor Michael Dukakis' Community Relations officer, Hispanic Liaison Jose Masso, will be guest speaker at the Newton United Nations Day celebration on Oct. 24.

Also scheduled to perform is the Shirim Klezmer Orchestra, Chi Ching Yen (Christine) of the Wu Shu Institute of Boston, who is also a member of the U. S. Olympic team and a student at Day Jr. High School, and classical dances of India will be performed by Neena Gulati of the Triveni School of Dance. Gulati has performed at the United Nations, Asia House and enumerable colleges and universities across the country. The entertainment for the evening is under the direction of Jane Chiong of Cultural Sharing Inc. of Newton.

In addition to these performances, food samples from a plethora of ethnic origins will be offered with the opportunity to experience ethnic customs. The program will begin at 6:30 p.m. on Thursday at American Legion Post 440, 295 California St., Nonantum. This program is free and open to the public.

The food sampling portion of the program results from the generosity of individually prepared contributions of food and that of many local restaurants including: Sally Ling's, Delitizer, Bonjour Armenian Bakery, Bread and Chocolate, Cafe Topo, Carl's Sausage Kitchen, Catering by Inger, Homsy Middle East Importing Company, India Tea and Spices, Inc., Seven Star Mandarin House, Tang Dynasty,

Indian dancer Neena Gulati

Italian Food Shop, Karoun, Magni Bakery, Near East Baking Company, Palmyra Restaurant, Pearl's Hot Dogs, Rosenfeld Bagel Company, Inc., Newtonville Pizza, Sabra, Sage's Market, McDonald's of Newton, Bills House of Piizza, Newton Balloons.

Also, Antoine's Pastry Shop, Purity Supreme, Dunkin Donuts, Coca-Cola Bottling Co., Pilipino School of Greater Boston, Iranian Group — Mahry Tavassoli, Nazi Zamani, Lida Family, Tahera Nosheeravani, Pari Momtaz, Sona Daga & Dr. Rama Bansil, Papa Gino's of Newton.

This celebration has evolved from the enthusiastic efforts of seven sub-committees and supporting organizations such as Newton Parks and Recreation Department, Newton Free Library, Newton Historical Society, Newton Community Schools, the Office of the Mayor, Newton Human Rights Commission and Boston College.

Newton Community Schools are sponsoring two city-wide seminars earlier in the week, to enhance the spirit of ethnic harmony.

Tuesday, Oct. 22, from 7:30 to 10 p.m. there will be panel discussions on "The Immigrant Experience in Newton 19th and 20th Century Rememberances," at St. Jean's Church. This panel discussion features representatives from several ethnic communities in Newton. They'll tell stories and reflect on family experiences as "newcomers" to Newton. Audience participation is encouraged.

Community Schools Director Ralph Hergert moderates "The Baptists of Newton: White and Black," Wednesday evening, Oct. 23, from 7:30 to 10 p.m. Hergert, along with representatives from several Newton Baptist churches and the Andover Newton Theological Seminary, will explore interaction of white and black communities in Newton, as seen 111 years ago by the forming of the Myrtle Baptist Church Congregation.

To register for these seminars, call the NCS office at 552-7117.

Discussion group to host local celebrities

WEST NEWTON — The Anna Fleisher Discussion Group inaugurates its sixth year with a Newton celebrity meeting. The first of this year meeting will be held at the Newton Community Service Center, 492 Waltham St., on Oct. 24 at 9 a.m.

Fleisher, who established the group with five members, has arranged to have her favorite local celebrities at the meeting. They include Mayor Theodore D. Mann, Judge Monte G. Basbas, retired Newton Police Lieutenant and present Chairman of the Council on Aging Charles E. Feeley, Executive Director of the Newton Community Service Center Anthony Bibbo and the city's foremost Chef Mario Bocabello of the Cantin Abruzzi. Chef Bocabello will talk about his sauces, pasta and give out samples.

Fleisher will introduce Mayor Mann who will introduce Feeley who in turn will interview Judge Basbas about his career in the city. Fleisher has issued the command to all that "they must be entertaining, interesting and humorous and not surprised by questions from the discussion group."

Sponsored by the Newton, Wellesley, Weston R.S.V.P. and chaired by Anna Fleisher, the group discusses topics of interest and has a mailing list of 325 persons.

NSO to begin 20th concert season

NEWTON — The 20th concert season of the Newton Symphony Orchestra, under the leadership of Ronald Knudsen, music director, will be a musical celebration from the opening concert in November to the finale in June. Renowned soloists will perform with the orchestra at all the concerts.

Among these soloists are founding conductor Michel Sasson, who is now principal guest conductor at La Scala, Milan, who will return for the first concert, and Seiji Ozawa, the music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and a Newton resident, will return for the second concert. Instrumental soloists during the season will include two acclaimed pianists, Russell Sherman and Anthony diBonaventura, as well as Malcolm Lowe, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, in his first orchestral solo engagement outside the BSO. In addition, the NSO will accent the 20th year festivities with a sparkling Holiday POPS Concert (champagne will be available) in December, featuring the brilliant young pianist, Hugh Hinton, and the 44-voice, first-prize-winning Newton South Vocal Ensemble.

The annual frec youth concert, to be held in April, will be a major event for the orchestra and for the city's young people. Assisted by the sponsorship of Continental Cable, the NSO will join the Railway Theater in a production of Strauss' "Til Eulenspiegel", for orchestra, narrator, and shadow puppets.

The final NSO concert of the season will be its traditional Esplanade Concert in June; a soloist is yet to be announced.

The NSO's subscription series of four Sunday evening concerts, all held at Aquinas Junior College, opens on Nov. 10. Subsequent dates are Jan. 19, March 23, and May 4.

There are still available subscriptions to the NSO 20th season for $30 for the series of four concerts. Individual tickets are always available at the door the night of the concert for $8 per ticket. For information and reservations, call 965-2555.

If we can raise the lowly onion to an art form, imagine what we can do with our Grilled Venison.

Take the ordinary, underappreciated onion.
Better yet, take three varieties of the onion, each with its own distinctive flavor.
Blend them into a rich puree, topped with three eminent international cheeses—Emmenthal, Jarlsburg, and smoked Gouda—and baked until a golden crust barely skims the surface.
You have our signature Baked Onion Soup, just one of the highly original specialties you'll find here.
Our entrees are a unique collection of regional American dishes with a new and decidedly original international twist. Selections like Grilled Venison Steak and Smoked Quail, perfectly prepared over natural woods and enhanced with a Mustard Seed and Port Sauce.
All foods are creatively presented in a comfortable, tasteful atmosphere, accented by fresh flowers, on the banks of the Charles River. In the new Embassy Suites Hotel.
We're now open for everyone to enjoy, serving lunch and dinner daily. Parking is free. Reservations suggested. Call 783-0090.

Admission to the popular event is free but tickets must be obtained in advance by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Transcript Newspaper in Dedham, Waltham, or Norwood, or by picking up tickets at one of the three offices. Gryger White will be returning for the second year to run the Transcript show.

Address for ticket requests are: Transcript Newspapers, P.O. Box 70, Dedham MA 02026; P.O. Box 69, Waltham, MA 02254; P.O. Box 9, Norwood, MA 02062. There is a limit of two tickets per request.

401(k) offers more than IRAs

MONEY TALK$

Neville Frankel is Vice President of Financial Planning Associates Inc., a Boston and New York affiliate of Confidential Planning Network, an international network of more than 120 financial planning firms. Direct questions to Frankel, care of this publication.

Dear Mr. Frankel:

I have been contributing to my IRA annually for three years now. The contributions are invested in mutual funds, and I am satisfied with the way this investment is growing.

Last year my employer established a 401(k) plan. If I have limited dollars to invest in a pension plan, should I continue with my IRA, or make future contributions to the 401(k)?

C.D., Newton

Dear C.D.:

The 401(k) plan allows you to set aside pre-tax money in a qualified savings plan which will accumulate on a tax-deferred basis until the money is withdrawn. It has features similar to an IRA, but shares some qualities of a profit-sharing plan.

Under a 401(k) plan, an employee can choose how much of his or her salary will be deducted from each paycheck and placed in the plan. The employer may choose to contribute to the plan in an amount that matches that of the employee, or may be any lesser amount.

The single fact that contributions other than the employee's may speed the fund's growth, makes the 401(k) attractive — but it has other attractive features too.

Contribution limits

An IRA limits your contribution to $2,000 annually ($2,250 divided between a couple in which only one spouse is employed). A 401(k) permits much greater contributions — up to 25 percent of your taxable income, with a maximum of $30,000 (Pending tax reform, if passed as presented, would lower the ceiling to $8,000, reduced by the amount of any contribution to an IRA). In addition, 6 percent of your income may also be deposited in the plan. This additional amount is not deductible, although any earnings on it will grow on a tax deferred basis.

Withdrawal

In an IRA, if money is withdrawn before the holder reaches age 59½, a substantial federal penalty is incurred. The only exception to this is permanent physical or mental disability.

The 401(k) plan, however, provides substantially more leeway. It allows withdrawal without penalty if the employee ceases employment with the company that set up the program, or is hit by financial hardship. Financial needs that may fall into this category are emergency medical expenses, education, the purchase of a home, or even home improvements.

Loan provisions

Should the need arise, you may borrow from your 401(k), to the greater of $10,000 or 50 percent of the value of the account. No tax is due on this money, but interest must be paid back into the account. Since you have borrowed from yourself, and since the account is yours, you are essentially paying yourself.

Pre-tax dollars

Because contributions to the 401(k) plan are deducted from your paycheck, the contributions do not appear on your W-2 form. As a consequence, no federal or state taxes are applied. And since deductions are made from your paycheck before you have a chance to spend it, there is probably considerably more available for savings than there would be if you're depositing the money into a comparable account of your own.

Volunteer opportunities

Region West, Inc., a family counseling service and mental health clinic serving Newton, Wellesley, Waltham and six other suburban communities is beginning its 15th annual drive to recruit new volunteers for its highly successful Parent-Child Home Program. Parent-Child Home Program volunteers spend four to six hours a week working with two and three-year-old children from low-income families. Volunteers also work toward improving and enhancing the parent-child relationship. Call Ronni McMillan, LICSW, at 965-6200.

Newton-Brookline Office of Consumer Affairs, located in Newton City Hall, seeks volunteers interested in consumer mediation and available a minimum of three hours for two days a week to work in a local mediation program. Training will be provided. Call Mim Cole or Judy Zohn, 552-7205.

Hospice of the Good Shepherd, Inc. of Newton is seeking volunteer fundraisers to work as part of our hospice team to develop, plan, publicize and implement fundraising projects. For more information, call 969-6130.

Newton Community Schools is looking for people interested in sharing a skill or talent with others, whether it be decorating a room, learning a language or changing a tire.

Here's an opportunity to teach kids, adults or people with special needs. Newton Community Schools needs you, so call the office at 552-7117 for more information.

West Suburban Elder Services seeks volunteer companions to visit homebound elders. Persons interested in volunteering as companions to elders may visit one or two clients during the work week. Orientation and supervision are provided. Volunteers can arrange convenient visiting schedules. Call Kim Schwartz or Bernie Connaughton at 926-4100.

Greater Boston Division of the American Heart Association is currently involved in an effort to bring its programs of public and professional education, and community service projects to the residents of Newton, Needham and Wellesley. If volunteer work with a major voluntary agency seeking to make a major contribution in your community appeals to you, please contact Melody Ring at 449-5931.

Volunteers needed in the Newton-Wellesley-Needham-Weston Unit at Medfield State Hospital. Some patients are very interested in music and starting up a small musical group. Anyone interested in music could make this an excellent volunteer project. Call 727-9830.

The Greater Boston Convention & Visitors Bureau seeks enthusiastic Newton residents to volunteer as information specialists at one of its two booths, one is located at the Boston Common and the other at the Prudential Center. For information, call 426-3115 or 536-4100.

American Heart Association
WE'RE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE

each month at the Newton Community Center, 492 Waltham St., West Newton. Membership is open to area residents age 18 to 36. For information call Jeff Levine after 6 p.m. at 965-8699.

Attention all graduates of Newton Catholic. An office of development has been established at the school to form an alumni association. If you can be of any help in locating the whereabouts of your classmates or if you have not been contacted, please write Peggy Hewitt, director of development, at 573 Washington St., Newton, Ma. 02158, or call 527-1338.

The Hospice of the Good Shepherd, Inc., announces a training program, for male and female volunteers. Volunteers will be asked to provide emotional support and respite care for terminally ill patients and their families who reside in Newton or Wellesley. If your interested in becoming a volunteer, call Kristin Kiesel, volunteer coordinator, at 969-6130.

Volunteers are needed to assist the Senior Citizen's Shopper Bus. More than 100 senior citizens rely on this service. Duties include riding the bus, counting and assisting passengers. For more information, call the city's department of Human Services at 552-7170.

"All About Newton" is a publication printed by the League of Women Voters of Newton which describes Newton's history, government, housing, land use regulations, as well as its health, social services and recreational services. The publication is available at the City Clerk's Office, the New England Book Fair or through the League of Women Voters. The cost is $3. Call 527-2830.

The Multi-Service Center needs donations of items for use in its program of services to local young people. The center particularly needs lamps, chairs and small tables. Anyone wishing to make a donation should call Sheri at 244-4802.

Volunteer home visitors are needed to work under professional supervision (four to six hours per week), delivering cognitive enrichment programs to low-income mothers and their pre-school children. Call Ronni McMillan at 965-6200.

The Newton-Brookline Office of Consumer Affairs, located in Newton City Hall, seeks volunteers interested in consumer mediation and available a minimum of three hours twice a week to work in a local mediation program. Training will be provided. Please call coordinators Mim Cole or Judy Zohn during regular business hours at 552-7205.

The Parent Aide Program, offered by Newton Community Service Centers, Inc., West Newton, is seeking non-judgemental, listening volunteers. Tasks range from teaching parenting skills to taking a mother out to lunch. Training and supervision provided. Six to 12-month commitment, one home visit per week. Call Mrs. Simons, R.N., at 969-5906.

Rev. John E. Murphy

A native of Newton, B.C. prof

NEWTON — Rev. John E. Murphy, S.J., 84, a professor at Boston College from 1939 to 1970, died of heart failure Monday morning in the Campion Center, Weston. He had suffered several strokes in recent years.

Father Murphy taught Gaelic and literature at Boston College, and, for many years, was also director and purchasing and business manager of the Boston College bookstore. He retired in 1970 and was a visiting lecturer in Irish literature at Boston State College until 1974. He lived in St. Mary's Hall at Boston College until his death.

Father Murphy earned his bachelor's and master's degrees at Boston College in 1929, a licentiate in sacred theology degree at Weston College in 1935 and a doctorate in philosophy from the National University of Ireland at Dublin in 1939.

A native of Newton, he entered the Society of Jesus at Yonkers, N.Y., in 1922 and was ordained at Weston College in 1934 by Most Rev. Bishop Thomas Emmet, S.J. After his novitiate training at Yonkers and at Shadowbrook, Father Murphy served at Weston College.

The brother of the late Father Charles Murphy and Eileen Murphy, he leaves his sister, Marie Kelley of Newton Corner, and his brother, Joseph Murphy of Metairie, La.

A funeral mass will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Thursday in St. Ignatius Church, Chestnut Hill.

Dr. Maurice O. Belson, 81

Obstetrician, gynecologist for 50 years

NEWTON CENTRE — A funeral service was held last week in the Levine Chapel, Brookline, for Dr. Maurice O. Belson, 81, of Newton Centre, who had been an obstetrician and gynecologist for more than 50 years at Beth Israel Hospital. Burial was in Sharon Memorial Park.

A member of Temple Shalom of Newton, Dr. Belson served on the courtesy staffs of the Newton-Wellesley, Brookline, Mt. Auburn and St. Margaret's hospitals.

A cum laude graduate of Tufts College and Tufts Medical School, he interned at Boston City Hospital and served his residency at Carney Hospital. He began his practice in 1932 with offices in Winthrop and Boston.

Dr. Belson had been active for many years in the Combined Jewish Philanthropies and, in 1946, was CJP chairman in Winthrop.

Dr. Belson's interest in medical students prompted him to dedicate time to the national office of Phi Delta Epsilon Medical Fraternity, and he was a former president of the Phi Delta Epsilon Graduate Club of Boston and served as district governor for five terms.

In 1968, he earned the Man of the Year award from Phi Delta Epsilon for his many years of service.

In 1977, Dr. Belson was chairman of his 50th Reunion Class at Tufts Medical School, where he had been very active as a fundraiser for the Tufts Medical School Alumni Association.

In 1982, he was honored with the Maurice O. Belson Gynecological Lecture at the National Convention held in Boston.

In 1985, he was honored by the medical staff of the Carney Hospital for his many years of service.

Dr. Belson had been a surgeon in the department of gynecology at Carney Hospital, Dorchester, former chief of obstetrics and gynecology at Whidden Memorial Hospital, Everett, former chief consultant at Winthrop Hospital, an instructor in the Department of Gynecology and Obstetrics at Tufts Medical School, and until 1970, a member of the teaching faculty at Harvard Medical School.

At his death, Dr. Belson was honorary consultant in the department of gynecology at Carney Hospital and was on the honorary staff and executive committee at Whidden Memorial and the honorary staff at Beth Israel Hospital.

He was chief of gynecology at the Union Health Center (ILGWU) from 1949 to 1973, and was president of the medical staff council at Beth Israel Hospital from 1964 to 1965.

A fellow of the American College of Surgeons, Dr. Belson was a founding fellow of the American Board of Obstetrics and Gynecology, a diplomat of the American Board of Obstetrics and Gynecology, a fellow of the Obstetrical Society of Boston and a council member of the New England Obstetrical and Gynecological Society.

He also was a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society, the Charles River District Society, the American Medical Association, the Everett C. Benton Masonic Lodge, a Shriner at Aleppo Temple and a member of B' nai B'rith Ocean Lodge and the American Physicians Fellowship.

Dr. Belson also was a life member of the Jewish Memorial Hospital, the Hebrew Rehabilitation Center for Aged, the Winthrop Community Hospital and a life member and 32d degree Mason in the Ancient Accepted Scottish Rite.

Villanova coach Rollie Massimino addresses Sons of Italy.

Coaching national champion hasn't changed Rollie

By David Cuddy
Sports Correspondent

WALTHAM — It takes more than an NCAA basketball championship to change this man. Rollie Massimino is the same Rollie Massimino who coached Lexington High in the 1960s.

As the Villanova head coach anxiously prepares to defend the national crown, he took time out Sunday to partake in a testimonial brunch on his behalf, put on by the The Grand Lodge of Massachusetts Order Sons of Italy and held at the Hillcrest.

Proceeds of the breakfast will benefit a scholarship to be given every year in Massimino's honor by the Sons of Italy Charitable and Educational Trust.

Massimino, who guided the Villanova Wildcats to the national championship last season over heavily favored Georgetown, flew to Boston Sunday morning to be honored by the Sons of Italy, lending proof to the fact that the basketball coach has not let success stand in the way of commitment.

"You always have to remember that this (the Sons of Italy) is a critical organization," said the proud Italian-American, who went on to jokingly say, "You probably made me lose a 6-foot-11 All-American because I had to come here. I got him up at 6:15 this morning, I talked to him from 6:30 to 7:10, then I went down to the airport. Now if you were a recruit and I woke you up at 6:15 in the morning, would you want to come to Villanova?"

Comedy was as much a part of this event as was the basic reason these people had assembled. As State President of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts, Charles Perenick, explained, "The Sons of Italy has probably the finest scholarship program of any organization in Massachusetts."

Perenick said that approximately 300 scholarships a year are presented by the Sons of Italy, in addition to the many donations made to various research and needy organizations.

Beginning this year, Perenick said, a scholarship no less than $500 will be presented every year in the name of Massimino to a deserving student.

Massimino's resume features a wide assortment of accomplishments. From assistant coach at Cranford High School in New Jersey and head coach at Lexington High to his current position at Villanova, Massimino's road to success has been one that he won't easily forget.

"It's so interesting how everything's grown over the years," he said. "You know, 13 years ago when I first arrived at Villanova I went to the local grocery store to try to cash a check and the guy said 'I need to see some sort of identification.' I said, 'I'm Rollie Massimino' and he said 'I don't care who you are, I want to see some identification.' And now, after 13 years, they're naming pasta dishes after me."

Massimino remembered his first year at Villanova as one filled with difficulties, not only with cashing checks but with winning ballgames.

"We were so bad 13 years ago that we could have gone on What's My Line and stumped the panel," joked Massimino. "I can remember, after two weeks of practice we had a young man named Joe Rogers...and I said to Joe 'Why don't you go to the end of the line?' Joe came back and he said 'Coach, there's already somebody there.' I knew we were in deep, deep trouble."

Times change though, and so did success. "We have suffered through some very trying times," Massimino said of the Villanova basketball program. "But the most important thing is that we always believed that we could be the best in the country."

And Villanova is. And Massimino is. And with success, and instant stardom, come tempting offers, like an offer to coach the NBA New Jersey Nets.

The coach likes to tell the story of how he made the decision to stay with the Wildcats. He and Villanova University President Rev. John M Driscoll sat down the night before Massimino would make his decision, and "after a lengthy session he (Fr. Driscoll) said to me, 'Okay, Rollie, this is what we'll do. If you stay at Villanova I will give you all the collections from the nine and 10 o'clock Masses for the next two years.' So I decided to stay."

Massimino has not changed. As Fr. Ed Hastings, Assistant Director of Campus Administry at Merrimack College and an assistant to Massimino in his first season, explained, "It's not just the wins and losses, although they are important, there's no doubt about that. Winning really is important, but it's not the only thing and I believe that's part of Rollie's philosophy."

Seated at the head table were Massimino; Perenick; Fr. Hastings; O.S.I.A. Committee Chairman Charles Storella; Grand Lodge National Director Michael Caira and his wife Jane; Robert Capone of the Alumni Association Villanova University; and Julie Baumgardner, President of the Mass. Villanova Alumni Association.

Tocci scores pair in Bantam AA victory

Tom Tocci scored a pair of goals to lead the Newton Bantam AA youth hockey team to a 4-3 win over Waltham on Monday.

Jay Capello also had a pair of points, scoring a goal and assisting on one by Willie Bachner. David Frechette picked up an assist as well.

Sunday Newton was forced to settle for a tie with Arlington, which scored with 49 seconds left on the clock.

In the season opener, Newton shut out Chelmsford, 3-0.

Paul Fay (from Charlie Goldman), Capello (Bachner) and Tocci had the goals.

Tigers surprised by Malden

By Roy LeBlanc
Staff Writer

NEWTON — All year long, Malden coach Paul Finn has maintained that two players, even two as good as Steve Monaco and Reggie Hayes, are not enough to carry a football team. He may be right, but Chris Finn (no relation) joined that duo on Saturday, and the three of them provided enough punch to hand Newton North a 25-8 defeat at Dickinson Stadium.

"They're a different team with that kid," North coach Peter Capodilupo said. "We knew he could come back. There wasn't much we could do."

While the Tiger offense lost its versatility, partially due to the steady rain, the Tornadoes (2-3) gained some, thanks to the return of their big fullback.

Finn, a senior co-captain, wound up rushing for 54 yards and returned an interception 40 yards for a touchdown, but that's only half of his contribution. Even more importantly, he immediately established Malden's inside game on a sloppy, wet field, forcing the Tigers to give Hayes a little more room outside.

Mr. Outside to Finn's Mr. Inside, Hayes accounted for 60 yards and two TDs. The biggest was a backbreaking 21-yard dash for a score that followed a 15-yard Malden penalty for a personal foul.

Of course, the third leg of the triad shouldn't escape notice. With the rest of the offense clicking, Monaco was free to choose his spots through the air, and he hit 5-of-9 for 72 yards.

North's offense consisted of one 47-yard pass from Mike Ryan to Britt Ryan. Pretty though it was, it came with the score 25-0 and only 4:25 left in the game.

Other than that, Malden and the rain stuffed everything the Tigers tried to do. The Tornadoes took Mark Adams out of the game very quickly by keying on him, which was evident from the first play, a two-yard loss. The Tigers finished with only 35 yards rushing.

The situation wasn't much better in the sky. Quarterback Ryan was obviously bothered by the rain more than the experienced Monaco, and hit only four of 17 attempts. Take away the TD bomb, and North's three completions totalled 26 yards.

The Tigers can't even blame turnovers or penalties, though one Malden score came on the interception return. Even without that, the Tornadoes had more than enough points to win, and they were slapped with 90 yards of penalties to North's 28.

After all is said and done, the only explanation is that Malden was a much better team on Saturday. The Tornadoes didn't turn the ball over once (a miracle considering the conditions), and outran, outpassed, and most importantly, outscored the Tigers.

"We were generally uninspired," admitted Capodilupo. "We played without emotion."

The visitors, notably Hayes and Monaco, went to work on their second possession. On second-and-15 from the North 49, Monaco found his speedy halfback all alone on the 24. It took five plays, but Monaco went to work again from the 14 to tight end Bill Roderick, who was wide open down the middle for the score. The sophomore finished with three catches for 40 yards.

Malden's best drive of the day, a 78-yard, 14-play march, made it 12-0 midway through the second quarter. The Tornadoes had the edge in field position all day, largely because of a better kicking game. In the first half, the Tigers started from their own 23, 16, 1 and 3. The Tornadoes began on their own 41, the North 44, their own 22 and the North 6.

Ironically enough, it was when they started from their own 22 that they pushed across their second score. It was done mostly on the ground, though the visitors picked up 14 yards down to the North six on a great play-action pass on fourth down from Monaco to Roderick.

The Tigers stopped Hayes and Monaco cold following that play, and it looked like they may dodge a bullet when a personal foul drove the Tornadoes back to the 21. But that's when Hayes drove the knife through the Tiger hearts with his 21-yard sweep left behind Dan Jones' block.

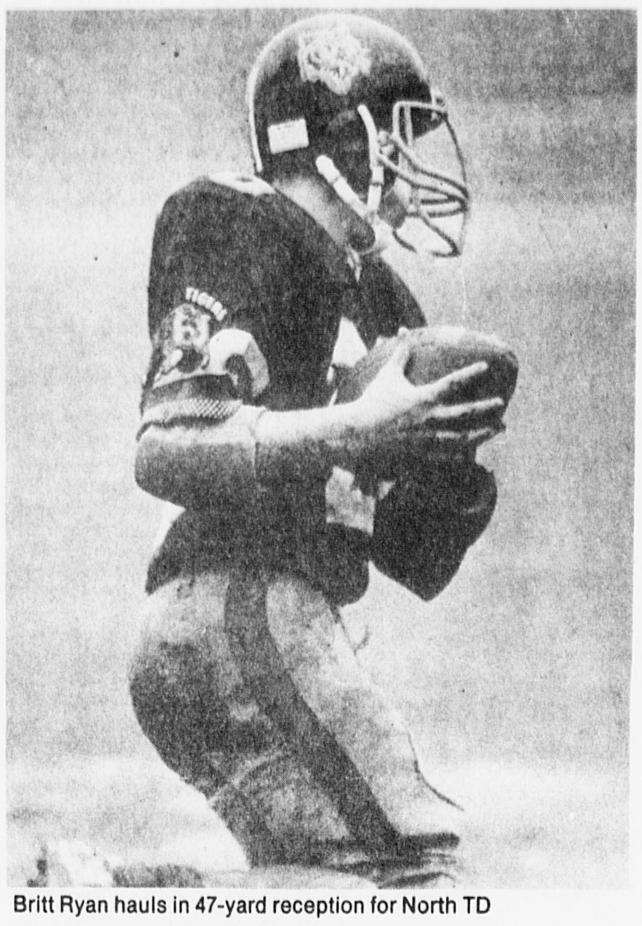

North was lucky the score wasn't worse at the half, fumbling the ball away on the Tiger 10 but then stopping the Tornadoes on fourth down from the three.

The Tigers had made it out to their own 40 only once in the half, and things quickly went from bad to worse after the break. On North's second play from scrimmage, Finn stepped in front of Ryan's quick toss over the middle and took off for the end zone untouched.

Steve Debenidictis' 22-yard punt return set up Malden's final score, a four-run run by Hayes.

Throwing on every down trying to get on the board, the Ryans finally hooked up late in the game for a bomb down the right sideline.

The Tigers, who fall to 2-3, will try and pick up the pieces on Saturday at Leominster at 1:30.

Newton Midget A's explode

WOBURN — The Newton Midget A's spotted Watertown two goals then took control, scoring nine straight, in a 9-2 victory Monday at the O'Brien Rink in Woburn.

Jim Reagan scored at 2:07 and Jim Burns followed at 4:25 for Watertown before Newton got on track with a goal by Jim Rizza.

Rizza intercepted a clearing pass 50 feet out and wiped a slap shot home from the right point to cut the lead, 2-1.

Jason Verduccio didn't waste any time scoring the tying goal as he poked in a loose puck from a scramble in front 13 seconds later.

Four goals in the second period put the game away for Newton. Verduccio and Rizza added their second goals, and Dom Bianchi and Peter Kalamvokis punched home solo affairs to boost Newton to a 6-2 edge after two periods.

Kevin Caissie scored his first goal of the season and Verduccio finished off his hat trick in the third period. Rob Ingham also scored a goal in that frame.

Newton fired a total of 41 shots on net while Watertown put only 12 on goalie Neil Ronchinsky.

Defensively, Dave LeConti, Anthony Whiting, and Rizza played well for Newton.

Newton, 3-1, will play Waltham in Arlington on Saturday at 7 p.m.

South in swim loss to Gardner

GARDNER — Newton South started off strong, winning the 200 medley relay in good time, but pulled up lame in the events to come, dropping an 111-63 meet to Gardner Wednesday.

Gardner, always a powerful team, quickly pulled out in front and stayed there, taking only one other event.

Newton's time of 2:10 in the relay is the best so far this season for swimmers Amy Freedman, Wendy Goldberg, Wendy Meltzer, and Angelica Brisk.

Junior Talia Hochman swam well in the 200 freestyle and Brisk had a good race in the 500 freestyle (6:09). Debbie Frieze set a personal best in the backstroke.

Newton South, 2-5, will meet North Quincy on Friday.

North drowns Brookline

Penny Patrick and Heather Myer both qualified for the state meet as Newton North swam to an easy, 106-67 victory over Brookline.

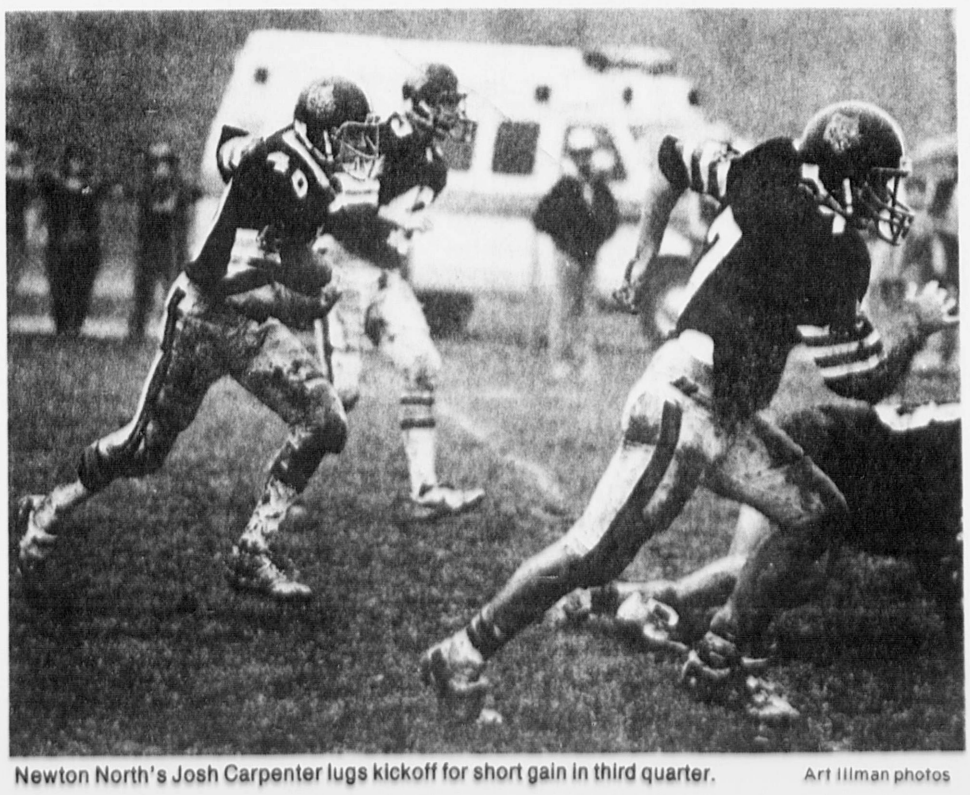

The summary:

South's Aaron Harrell (38) breaks up potential scoring pass — Art Illman photo

Hicks' missiles gun down Newton South

By Mike Stoller
Sports Correspondent

NEWTON — Just call it the Willie Hicks extravaganza.

The Concord-Carlisle Patriots, led by this extremely talented quarterback, handed Newton South its second straight Dual County League loss of the campaign, this one a 43-8 pasting in Saturday's torrential downpour.

The show literally was produced and directed by Hicks, as the junior signal caller air-mailed five touchdowns into the Lion end zone and led his team to its fifth straight victory. Altogether, Hicks was 16 of 26 for a remarkable 267 yards.

By the end of the first half, Newton was completely washed away, if not by the pouring rain, then certainly by the Patriot offense. Hicks teamed up with wide receiver Mike Tobin (four receptions for 83 yards, including two TDs) and running back Chris Graham (six receptions for 148 yards, including a pair of TDs) on a pair of nifty scoring plays to spark the C-C surge. The first, a 25-yard TD toss to Tobin late in the initial frame, gave the Patriots a 15-0 edge, while the second, a 43-yard scoring strike to Graham, put C-C on top, 22-0, at the break.

The Lions would see daylight only once in this one. Sophomore quarterback Ben Burlingame hooked up with Jeff Brewington for a 72-yard touchdown fling in the third quarter. South's Scott Perrin made a heads-up play on defense, intercepting a C-C pass, to set up the one-play drive.

Other than that, however, the Lions were pretty much locked up in their cage all afternoon. As a team, they rushed for only 86 yards, way under their weekly average of what had been more than 200. And on defense, South never really applied much pressure on Hicks, who essentially did whatever he wanted, whenever he wanted, however he wanted.

Indeed, the day started out badly for South and proceeded to get worse. Newton was left befuddled on its first drive of the game, as the Lions fumbled on their own 25. A 20-yard toss from Hicks to Graham put the ball on the five, and when the 150-pound quarterback took the snap again, he promptly delivered a 10-yard touchdown pass to Tobin. Greg Mueller caught the conversion pass to give the Patriots an 8-0 advantage.

Before the Hicks-Graham tandem put the game out of reach, the Lions pulled off the trick of the year. Unfortunately, it was one they won't want to remember. Punting from their own 37, the ball ended up seven yards behind the line of scrimmage. So instead of being backed up somewhere in their own territory, the Patriots took over from the South 30. Needless to say, Hicks and Co. managed very nicely from there.

The Patriots led, 22-0, at halftime and expanded their lead to 29 midway through the third quarter. Hicks connected with Tobin on a 38-yard bomb to the Newton eight, and one play later, C-C had crossed the goalline again, as the Patriot QB rifled an eight-yard scoring pass to Rick Mullins. Mike Duggan toed the extra-point.

Then, after Newton put its two cents in for the day, making it 29-8, the Patriots finished off the third quarter with a stylish 18-yard touchdown pass fashioned by (you guessed it) Hicks and Graham. Scoreboard says, 36-8.

But before the Patriots headed back to the bus, they had to play a fourth quarter. So they did. And so they scored. Back-up quarterback Nick Boynton ran 33 yards for six points and Duggan added the PAT, ending the game and sending the Lions back to the locker room scratching their heads. If it isn't one quarterback, its another.

"I have nothing to say," South coach Art Kojoyian said later. "They have 21 seniors, we have only four. I wish I had as many as they do. They're an excellent ball club."

The Lions (3-2, 0-2 in the league) will travel to Bedford on Saturday for another big DCL contest. Kickoff is at 1:30 p.m.

Lion girls give Wayland scare in floodlight soccer

WAYLAND — The records may be much different, but don't tell Wayland that the Newton South girls' soccer team has only two wins this season. One of those victories came over Wayland earlier this season, and on Friday the Lions gave the Warriors all they could handle once more, but fell a little bit short in a 3-2 loss under the lights.

Only a sensational 20-minute stretch by Shari Krasnoo saved the Warriors, who are hoping for a tournament spot, from another defeat. The superb forward scored three times in the first half of the second half to turn the game around.

The Warriors dominated the first 10 minutes of the game, but South's Katrina Antonellis scored the only goal of the first half.

The Lions began battling back after that first 10 minutes, and about 20 minutes in Antonellis ticketed one for the lower right corner.

The sweeper caught the ball to keep it out of the net, but that only delayed the inevitable, as Antonellis cashed in the resulting penalty kick.

Late in the first half Krasnoo began giving an indication of what was to come. The Lions still contained her, but it took two, and sometimes three girls to do it.

Finally, about 10 minutes into the second half, Krasnoo tied the game. A cross from the left wing went right to Krasnoo's head, and she simply outleaped two defenders to head it in.

At the 18-minute mark, the Warrior star replayed Antonellis' first period goal. She fired a shot toward an open net inside the far post. Cindy Dockser dove on it for South as a last resort, but Krasnoo made it 2-1 on the penalty shot.

Playing all over the field by this time, in order to harass the South defense, Krasnoo got the ball on the opposite wing half from where she started. She carried down to the 18-yard line and drilled one into the lower right corner.

At this point the Lions began to turn things back the other way, though they never could close the gap.

Monique Brinson came into the net for Dede Theodore, though Coach Chuck Hurwitz stressed Krasnoo's goals weren't Theodore's fault.

Brinson responded with shutout goaltending the rest of the way.

At the same time, Hurwitz inserted Lucy and Jenny Ketterer into the wing halfback slots for more offense, and both played very well.

The ball stayed in the Wayland end for most of the last 20 minutes.

Eight minutes after the third Warrior goal, Antonellis banged one off the crossbar. The rebound came to Sheila Coleman, who missed wide right, but her shot was deflected out of bounds for a corner.

Kathy McBride's boot went into a pack in front and off the Wayland goalie. Mara Raider picked up the rebound and drilled it into the left corner for the 3-2 final.

The Lions had a few shots at tying the game late, but were denied every time.

"The kids played very well," said Hurwitz.

North wins 12th

It's 12 and counting for the Newton North girls' soccer team, which posted a 10-0 win over North Quincy on Thursday. Angie McKenna scored two goals and added two assists to lead the Tigers to an 8-0 halftime lead, en route to their 12th win without a defeat.

Carolyn Natale added a pair of scores, including one that came 30 seconds into the game. That was assisted by Amy Satter, who later had two more assists.

McKenna scored twice within the first six minutes, and promptly assisted on Kristin Hughes' goal to make it 4-0.

Lisa Kazarosian scored the first of her two goals from 40 feet out, and Meg O'Donnell added a goal (from Heather Hughes) with two minutes to go. Heather (from McKenna) and Natale (from Satter) added goals before the half was over.

Second half goals went to Kazarosian (from Becca Locke) and Locke (from Katherine Vigneau).

Wednesday, the Tigers had their toughest win of the year, hanging on for a 1-0 victory over host Brookling. Kristen Hughes came through with the clutch score, taking a pass from McKenna to make the difference, 29 minutes into the second half.

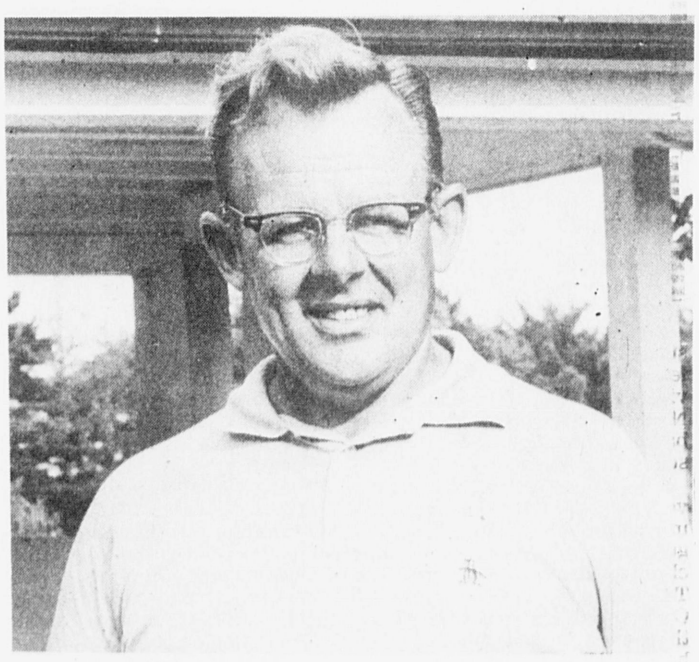

The North defense played well in the close game, holding Brookline to only six shots.

Crowley in B.C. Hall of Fame

Eleven people who have made profound impressions on the athletic history of Boston College were enshrined in the Boston College Varsity Club Hall of Fame last weekend. Professional golfer Bob Crowley, a Newton native, was among the inductees.

The group was feted at a gala testimonial dinner at Lantana's in Randolph Friday evening and was introduced to Alumni Stadium fans at halftime of Saturday's football game against West Virginia.

Crowley, a former Newton High links standout, has become a legend in New England golf. Representing Boston College, Bob won the 1950 New England Intercollegiate golf championship. The following year he turned professional.

He was a club pro at several New Jersey country clubs and has been head pro at Pine Brook Country Club in Weston since 1957. Bob has played in the U.S. Open eight times and has won six qualifying medals in that prestigious event.

He's a four-time New England PGA champion and has won the Masschusetts Open the same number of times. Crowley has been named New England PGA Palyer of the Year five times and last year was named the region's PGA Professional of the year. He currently lives in Wellesley.

Newton nipped, 3-1, in women's hockey

WEST NEWTON — Gail Risty scored a lone goal as Newton fell, 3-1, to Hobomock Sunday in South Shore Women's Ice Hockey League action played at the Fessenden School.

Newton got some fine defensive performances from Charlotte Dunn and Jennifer Young while Laurie Ashare and Patty Lyons played well offensively.

Lyons had a hat trick recently but it wasn't enough to prevent Newton from dropping a 9-4 decision to Canton.

Risty chipped in a goal and an assist for Newton, which played with only six skaters.

The team is still looking for more players. Those interested should contact Coach Ray Dunne at 332-5052.

Champs again

DeSimone Suburban golf king

BROCKTON — Rick DeSimone may be the number two man on the Newton North golf team, but he can claim bragging rights to the entire Suburban League after winning the Sullivan Memorial Invitational at Thorny Lea Country Club on Monday.

DeSimone fired a 76 to take the crown, finishing four strokes ahead of runnerup Bob Saltonof North Quincy.

"DeSimone was definitely hot today," said North coach Jerry Phillips, whose club closed out the season with the individual tournament.

Jim Campbell, who plays number one for North, finished third with an 81.

Two other Tigers tied for sixth. Tim Weaver and Greg Burke each carded 86's.

South falls

Newton South didn't do as well, falling to Lincoln-Sudbury, 9½-2½ at Nashawtuc Country Club in Concord.

Dave Strassburger won his match for the Lions, while Jeff Seifer and Paul Croce each tied theirs.

South is now 3-8.

Kornitzer 2nd against Quincy

Magda Kornitzer took her time and finished second, but Newton North still outran Quincy in Suburban League cross country action on Wednesday, 22-38.

Kornitzer, who was committed to helping pace teammates Suzanne Mosher and Dierdre O'Reilly, finished five seconds behind winner Christine Mullaney but the Tigers still grabbed three of the first four spots and six of the first eight.

Mosher and O'Reilly were hoping to challenge Mullaney, and Kornitzer was trying to help them along by staying as a group. It didn't work out that way, and Kornitzer couldn't make up the time needed to catch Mullaney, but the overall outcome was never in doubt.

Weston edges Lions, 1-0, in field hockey

NEWTON — After a couple of losses, Weston got back on track in field hockey on Thursday with a 1-0 Dual County League victory over Newton North.

The Wildcats still aren't burning up the nets, but the Stichweh sisters gave them the only goal they would need 23 minutes into the second half.

It was a pretty goal, as sophomore Kathy made a nice pass into junior Lisa. The elder sister flicked it into the Newton net on the far side for the gamewinner.

Jodi Jones only had one save in the Weston net, though the Tigers made several forays down into the Wildcat end. The Weston defenders protected the goal well.

Overall, Weston had the edge in both corners and shots, and "maintained territorial possession," according to Coach Marie Butera.

Boys' soccer roundup

Brookline shades North on Robb's goal, 3-2

BROOKLINE — Midfielder Will Robb, a going concern all day, fired in a goal midway through the second half to give Brookline a 3-2 victory over Newton North in Suburban League boys' soccer action on Monday.

The Indians had a direct kick at midfield to start the play. Two Tigers went for it and got a piece of it, but the ball got by them. Robb beat everyone to the ball and went in for the score.

The home club got a pair of goals from Dan Miller to keep the pressure on Newton North, which never led.

Miller got his first at 20:17 of the first half when the Tiger defense couldn't clear a throw-in. Miller chipped one from 30 yards out that bounced in.

The half ended that way, with neither team getting a real good scoring threat.

At the 14:54 mark of the second half, however, the Tigers bounced back.

Ed O'Brien cleared the ball out of the Newton end on the right side. Steve Bourland picked it up at midfield and sent older brother Peter away with a through ball. Peter didn't miss, and the game was tied.

Miller broke the Tigers' hearts by retaliating less than a minute later.

Again North had trouble clearing. Jim Reardon got off a shot from a scramble in front that was stopped. Miller Dave Vona to cash in the rebound at 19:44.

Despite the heartbreak of that goal, the Tigers were able to rebound one more time.

The Bourlands again did the honors, though this time it was Steve cashing in Peter's rebound at 19:58.

That set the stage for Robb's gamewinner, though North did have a couple of more chances.

Steve Bourland hit the post with several minutes to go. The last great opportunity came with two minutes to play, when North had two straight corners. On the second, the Tigers had the goalkeeper out and Ken Kazarosian shot, but sweeper Ben Slover filled the breach and booted it away for Brookline.

"We got a decent effort," said North coach Roger Brown. "We just broke down twice defensively and we can't afford to do that."

The coach cited right wing Josh Albert and right wing half Eric Constantino, in addition to the Bourlands.

North, still atop the Suburban League with an 11-2 overall mark, will be at North Quincy on Wednesday.

South victorious

Paolo Sepe's goal with four minutes left in the game gave Newton South a 3-2 win over Wayland in Dual County League action on Friday.

Sepe, a junior forward, broke a 2-2 tie when he headed in Phil Leibovich's indirect kick from 20 yards out.

Abroms sent a pass from the right wing into the center to Leibovich, midway through the half. From the 18-yard line, Leibovich fired one into the lower right corner.

The Warriors fought back early in the second half, scoring twice in the first 10 minutes.

But Loren Mueller tied the game with 10 minutes left to play. Sepe's direct kick went off the Wayland goaltender, and Mueller was there to put in the rebound.

The defense played as well as it has all year. Fullbacks Alex Olin, Gary Rudnick and Mark Bailen, combined with goalie Alex Levine, helped keep the Warriors at bay.

Wayland had one more great chance as the clock wound down, but Levine dove to his right and took the shot off his chest, and Rudnick cleared the rebound to seal the South win.

The Lions, 4-4-3, host Boston Latin on Wednesday.

Ed O'Brien assisted on a Tiger goal.

North JVs' goal-line stand preserves win over Malden

NEWTON — A goal-line stand with a minute and a half left in the game salvaged a 14-8 victory over Malden for the Newton North junior varsity football team on Monday at Dickinson Stadium.

The Tornadoes seemed on the verge of tying the game or winning it when they had a first-and-goal at the Newton three with the clock running down. But the Tiger defense stood firm, as Dan Cedrone finished off the Malden threat by sacking the quarterback on fourth down.

North got a pair of touchdown receptions by Milt Britton to account for the offense.

The first came in the second quarter, as Scott Lennon hit the sophomore from the 25. Al Clark set up the play by blocking a Malden punt. One play later, the Tigers were in the end zone.

Rusty Russell ran in the conversion for two points.

Malden tied the contest early in the third quarter. Fittingly enough, the Tornadoes blocked a Newton punt, got the ball at the Tiger one, and went in on the next play.

Britton hauled in a 22-yard toss from Nick Mariano to account for the gamewinner early in the fourth quarter. The key play in the drive was a third-down pass from Mariano to Dennis Rohanna.

The Lions got a solid rushing performance from halfback Tom McMillen, who usually ran behind Mike Brashears and Jim Halloran.

Linebackers Cedrone and Russell played well on defense, as did nose guard Ed Lin.

Now 3-2, the Tigers host Medfield on Tuesday.

Defensive end Rico Corsetti of West Newton

Corsetti named Player of Week at Bates

LEWISTON, ME. — Senior defensive end Rico Corsetti of West Newton, and senior quarterback Ron Garrison of Hanover, Mass., were named Bates College football players of the week by head coach Web Harrison for the Babcats' Sept. 28 game against Trinity.

The two were cited for their outstanding play in Bates' 24-21 loss to the powerful Bantams, who are among the leading teams in the New England Division III poll.

Corsetti enjoyed one of the finest games of his memorable Bates career against Trinity, posting seven solo tackles and a key sack. A graduate of Belmont Hill School, he is the son of Bernardo and Maria Corsetti of 141 bster St., West Newton, formerly of Waltham.

Garrison, in his third s on as the Bobcats' top signal-caller, completed 18 of 30 passes ainst Trinity for 183 yards and one touchdown.

Mayor Ted Mann (right) and Middlesex County D.A. Scott Harshbarger present Mayor's Trophy to

Mayor's Trophy captured by Vona

England's Steve Binns and Australia's Alison Quelch overcame unseasonably warm weather to take first pace, male and female, in the fourth running of the Six S'Mile Run recently.

The race was hosted by the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc. and the Metropolitan District Dental Society, attracted a field of 700 runners after a three-year layoff.

Binns, coming off a very successful European track season with a top 10km time of 27:59, took the lead from the start and cruised through the 10km course in 29:02. Finishing second in 29:42 was Gary Crossan of Reebock Track Club, followed closely, in order, by Larry Barthlow (29:55), Tom Ratcliffe (30:06), Mike Cotton (30:12) and former Boston University running star Dave Vona (30:17).

Topping the women's division was Alison Quelch, currently living in Chestnut Hill and attending Boston College, finishing in 35:09, two minutes off Joan Benoit's course record of 32:55. Taking second place was BU's Marty Shea in 37:28 followed by Lori Allen-Sorell in 39:27, Alison Coolidge (41:52) and Mary Little-Delaney.

The masters' field was headed by Wellesley's Kirk Randall in 34:30, and on the women's side by Mary O'Brien of Newton. A special feature of this year's race was the presentation of the Mayor's Trophy, presented by Mayor Mann, to the first place male and female Newton residents. This year's winners were Dave Vona and Alison Quelch.

Also featured was a 1km kid's race for children 12 and under attracting a field of 130 junior runners. First place finishers in their divisions were: David Taylor and Julie Pendleton (11-12); Anna Doherty and Nat Lloyd (9-10); Maria Finison and Colin Regele-DeAngelis (6-8); Julie Cowgill and Sebastian Regele-DeAngelis (5 and under).

Proceeds from the race will benefit the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc. and the Sydney Farber Cancer Institute.

THIS AD IS FULL OF LIES.

LIE #1: ADVERTISING MAKES YOU BUY THINGS YOU DON'T WANT.

Advertising is often accused of inducing people to buy things against their will.

But when was the last time you returned home from the local shopping mall with a bag full of things you had absolutely no use for? The truth is, nothing short of a pointed gun can get anybody to spend money on something he or she doesn't want.

No matter how effective an ad is, you and millions of other American consumers make your own decisions. If you don't believe it, ask someone who knows firsthand about the limits of advertising. Like your local Edsel dealer.

LIE #2: ADVERTISING MAKES THINGS COST MORE. Since advertising costs money, it's natural to assume it costs you money. But the truth is that advertising often brings prices down.

Consider the electronic calculator, for example. In the late 1960's, advertising created a mass market for calculators. That meant more of them needed to be produced, which brought the price of producing each calculator down. Competition spurred by advertising brought the price down still further.

As a result, the same product that used to cost hundreds of dollars now costs as little as five dollars.

LIE #3: ADVERTISING HELPS BAD PRODUCTS SELL.

But nothing can make you like a bad product. So, while advertising can help convince you to try something once, it can't make you buy it twice. If you don't like what you've bought, you won't buy it again. And if enough people feel the same way, the product dies on the shelf.

In other words, the only thing advertising can do for a bad product is help you find out it's a bad product. And you take it from there.

LIE #4: ADVERTISING IS A WASTE OF MONEY. Some people wonder why we don't just put all the money spent on advertising directly into our national economy.

The answer is, we already do.

Advertising helps products sell, which holds down prices, which helps sales even more. It creates jobs. It informs you about all the products available and helps you compare them. And it stimulates the competition that produces new and better products at reasonable prices.

If all that doesn't convince you that advertising is important to our economy, you might as well stop reading.

Because on top of everything else, advertising has paid for a large part of the newspaper you're now holding.

And that's the truth.

ADVERTISING.
ANOTHER WORD FOR FREEDOM OF CHOICE.

#506

1986 FIERO
Once you get behind the wheel of a 1986 Fiero you won't want to let go. Power steering and power brakes, deluxe instrumentation, flush glass windshield and the five speed transmission are only part of what makes the Fiero's slick aerodynamic styling work for you. Pontiac Fiero. Have a seat. You'll love it.
$8999
#552

1986 FIREBIRD
A great Pontiac favorite where fun takes on a whole new dimension. Comfort and performance at a realistic affordable price. Reclining front bucket seats, 2.8 liter multi-port fuel injected engine, power steering, power front disc brakes, sport mirrors and on and on and on! Pontiac Firebird is your reward.

What's Happening

Wed. Oct. 23

"Book and Author Luncheon" will be sponsored by the Greater Boston Council of Pioneer Women/Na'amat at noon at the Park Plaza Hotel, Boston. Reservations can be made by calling 731-8378.

"Oriental Rugs and the Stories They Tell" will be presented by the Lasell Junior College Concert and Lecture Series at 8 p.m. at Winslow Hall. Admission and parking is free. For more information, call the Office of External Affairs at 243-2141 or 243-2165.

Newton Free Library presents a series of free films on Leaders of the 20th Century. The films start at 7 p.m. at 414 Centre St., Newton Corner. They include: "Herohito: the Chrysanthemum Throne," "DeGaulle: Force of Character," and "Adenauer: Germany Reborn," "Queen Elizabeth II: Winds of Change."

Day Junior High P.T.S.A.'s Annual Spaghetti Dinner will be held at 6 p.m. at the Day Junior High. Dinner is prepared by the Nonantum Christmas Party Association. Day community and neighbors are welcome.

"Mothers of Young Children," a lecture and discussion group, is held every second and fourth Wednesday from 9:15 to 11 a.m. at the Second Church, 60 Highland St., West Newton. Today's lecture, which will be given by Julie Goschalk, M.S.W., will be "Parenting: A Reflection of our own Childhood, or can we offer a Different Experience?" Babysitting is free during these lectures. Call 244-4039 or 969-2867 for more information.

Youth Pro Musica will be among the featured attractions of this year's annual party day — today at 3 p.m. at the Allen Riddle Hall, Newton-Wellesley Hospital — a fundraising event sponsored by the Newton-Wellesley Hospital Aid Association. Admission is $4. For more information, call 655-0660 or the Newton-Wellesley Hosptial Aid Office on Thursdays at 243-6761.

Thurs. Oct. 24

Boston College Gallery will present an exhibition of drawings by famous artists at Barry Pavilion, 885 Centre St., Newton, now through Oct. 27.

College Nights, sponsored by the Counseling Department of Newton North High School, will be held at 7:45 p.m. in the school cafeteria.

Middlesex South Chapter of the MRTA will hold its fall luncheon meeting at 10:30 a.m. at the Woodland Country Club in Newton. All Massachusetts retired teachers, librarians, and salaried personnel from the following towns are invited: Arlington, Belmont, Concord, Lincoln, Lexington, Newton, Waltham, Watertown, and Weston. For reservations, call 891-5375.

Leventhal-Sidman Jewish Community Center presents a single parents lecture called "Remarriage" from 7:30 to 10 p.m. Cost is $3 for members and $4.50 for non-members. Guest speaker will be Dr. Harry Keshet. Call 965-7410 for information.

United Nations Day, sponsored by the Newton Historical Society, will be held from 6 to 9:30 p.m. This celebration at Newton North High School is an opportunity for families to sample the diversity of Newton's population through food and music. For information, call the Jackson Homestead.

Second College Night sponsored by the Counseling Department will be held tonight at 7:45 p.m. at Newton North High School. 105 different colleges from those represented at the first program will be present.

"India," by Dr. Howard Hirt is the next free film showing at the Waban Branch of the Newton Free Library, 1608 Walnut St. The film will be shown at 10 a.m.

Fri. Oct. 25

Fetishes, Masks and Relics, works by Paul Bowen, Raymond Elman and James Hansen, is on display now through Nov. 3 from 6 to 9 p.m. at the Newton Arts Center, 61 Washington Park, Newtonville, 964-3424.

"Singles Dance Party" for all single men and women approximately 25 to 40 years old, will be at the Holiday Inn of Newton, exit 53 off Rt. 128, from 8:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. Donation is $8 at the door. For more information, call New England Singles of Boston at 899-3900.

"Brahms' Violin Concerto: Performers' View" is a lecture given by Robert Koff at the All Newton Music School, West Newton, at 11:15 a.m. Tickets for the lecture are $6. $8 includes a light lunch. Reservations should be made one day in advance by calling 527-4553 or 244-5758.

"The Laity in Ministry," a three-day convocation, will feature speakers Shirley Chisholm, former U.S. representative from New York, and Hans Ruedi-Weber, a biblical theologian with the World Council of Churches in Geneva, Switzerland, on today through Oct. 27 at Andover Newton Theological School campus and First Baptist Church in Newton. For information, call 964-1100, ext. 208.

"Rummage Sale" will be held at St. Paul's Church in the Parish Hall, 1135 Walnut St., Newton Highlands, tonight from 7 to 9 p.m. and tomorrow from 9 a.m. to noon.

"The Happy Journey to Camden and Trenton" and "The Long Christmas Dinner" by Thornton Wilder will be shown at Newton North High School, 360 Lowell Ave., Newton at 8 p.m. tonight and tomorrow. Tickets cost $3. For more information, call 552-7440.

THE HOUSING CRUNCH

'Newtonians always have been willing to pay a little extra to live here.'

This small home goes for $259,000.

Newton costs more

By Christie Herlihy-Starr and Jeff Peterson, Staff Writers

From the time it was conceived as a summer retreat for Boston's elite banking community, Newton always has retained the image of an affluent suburb.

That image grows more and more accurate. Based on 229 homes sold during the first nine months of 1985, the average price of a single-family home in Newton is $210,000. And even though the market has moderated somewhat over the past three months, prices have remained relatively unchanged.

"Newtonians always have been willing to pay a little extra to live here," according to John Harrington, an associate at Gallery Realty/Mennell Division in Newton.

A "little extra?"

According to a computer analysis of home sales run by Abramowitz & Jauregui Realty between April and October 1984 there were 16 homes that sold under $105,000. For that same period in 1985 there was not a single sale under $105,000.

Police council audit released

$1.5 million stashed away

By Edward Cafasso, Staff Writer

NEWTON — An internal audit released late last week claims that former Greater Boston Police Council (GBPC) consultant Timothy C. Coogan, already the subject of a criminal investigation by the Internal Revenue Service, diverted more than $1.5 million in public funds into a secret Bank of Boston account.

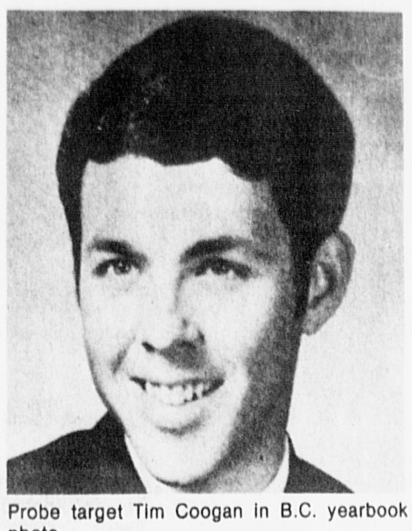

The missing money came from almost half the local communities and private educational institutions belonging to the GBPC, a voluntary association of more than 50 law enforcement agencies in eastern Massachusetts.

In addition, a federal grand jury convened by U.S. Attorney William F. Weld during the first week of October to investigate the GBPC's finances has issued subpoenas for GBPC records and documents maintained by the city of Newton, the council's "host" community.

The revelations concerning the alleged swindle were released after a private, two-hour morning meeting of the GBPC police chiefs at Newton Police Headquarters.

The internal GBPC audit, coordinated by the Boston law firm of Dwyer & Murray, began in early September after it was reported that the IRS was probing Coogan's personal finances. The Newton Graphic reported on the IRS probe last June 26th.

The five-year report alleges Coogan accumulated millions in the secret bank account, which he opened in the GBPC's name, by falsely inflating the prices charged local communities for police communications equipment and by billing the cities and towns for phony engineering services between 1982 and 1984.

'He was somewhat like a son to me. This hurts very deeply.'

Chief Quinn

Efforts are currently underway to trace how the money was spent, according to Thomas E. Dwyer, Jr., an attorney in the firm conducting the audit.

At his request, Dwyer said, Bank of Boston officials have agreed to freeze the account pending further investigation. He would not reveal how much money is left.

The preliminary audit also cleared Newton Police Chief William F. Quinn, the GBPC's chairman for the past decade, of any wrong-doing.

"There is no evidence that any GBPC officer, member, or city of Newton employee, had knowledge of, or participated in, the diversion of these funds," Dwyer said.

He would not say whether any other individuals or the private contractors who supplied services through the GBPC have been implicated in the scheme. It could not be learned whether the grand jury has ordered anyone to testify.

Dwyer would not comment when asked if Coogan was receiving money from any of the Lawyer defends Coogan, criticizes city

By Edward Cafasso, Staff Writer

NEWTON — The lawyer defending Timothy C. Coogan, the former Greater Boston Police Council (GBPC) consultant implicated in an alleged swindle involving more than $1.5 million, Monday dismissed the GBPC as an organization with less legal standing than an ordinary club.

Attorney Kenneth A. Pollenz, who is also representing Coogan in a criminal Internal Revenue Service (IRS) probe of his personal finances, portrayed his client as the victim of a flawed system and shoddy city accounting practices.

Although he acknowledged that Coogan, acting on his own, opened a bank account in the GBPC's name, Pollenz said the GBPC has no legal claim to the public funds Coogan allegedly embezzled from area communities.

He defended Coogan during an afternoon press conference called to respond to charges issued last week by attorney Thomas Dwyer, whose firm is performing an audit of the GBPC's finances and management procedures.

Coogan, a 38-year-old Sudbury resident, did not attend the media session.

Dwyer claims Coogan accumulated the money by inflating equipment prices and submitting phony engineering bills to nearly half the 50 eastern Massachusetts law enforcement agencies who are full members of the GBPC.

But Pollenz, who questioned whether the GBPC is a legal entity at all, said the money in the unauthorized account came from outside

Hyde nets $800,000

NEWTON HIGHLANDS — The sale of the former Hyde School has shortcircuited a last-ditch attempt to reopen the newer school building for classroom space.

Although the specific details of the sale were not available, Mayor Theodore D. Mann said he has agreed to a price of approximately $800,000 for the Newton Highlands site named after the city's first mayor, James F.C. Hyde.

Word of the sale came in the midst of a drive by Aldermen George Mansfield, Rodney Barker and Michael Malec, who wanted the New Hyde put back into use to handle the overcrowded conditions created by last year's school closings.

Mann said the Hyde complex will be sold to the Architectural Conservation Trust (ACT), which has agreed to completely restore the fire-damaged Old Hyde building.

ACT will build a small addition at the back of the Old Hyde and convert the building into 24 market-rate condominiums designed for "empty-nester" or retirement-age citizens.

Work to secure the Old Hyde before the winter season arrives is expected to begin immediately, Mann said.

In cooperation with the Boston Center for Independent Living (BCIL), ACT will turn the New Hyde into 16 units of low-income housing for the handicapped. Approximately 5,000 square feet in the building will be reserved for community-sponsored programs.

Mann said ACT has agreed to establish a trust fund to pay for public programming under the auspices of the Newton

Robber turned victim

By Edward Cafasso, Staff Writer

WALTHAM — The incident is recorded in the police blotter as a daring daylight robbery, but, for Newtonville resident Nancy Garfinkle, it was a moment of personal triumph.

The spunky 34-year-old surrended $52 to the suspect who accosted her in the middle of sun-soaked Main Street one afternoon last week, but not before she taught him an extremely painful lesson.

Her husband, David, calls it "swift and sure justice," but Nancy is more specific.

"I kicked him real heard in the groin. I kicked with him every ounce of strength I had and he went down hard," she said.

Garfinkle, who works as a sale representative for Electrolux in West Newton, was driving to a business appointment at 1 p.m. when she pulled up to the Store 24 near the corner of Main and Bacon streets.

When she opened her car door, several boxes of vacuum cleaner bags fell into the street and a "clean-cut looking young man with a very gentlemanly, very polite" manner offered to help her pick them up, Garfinkle said.

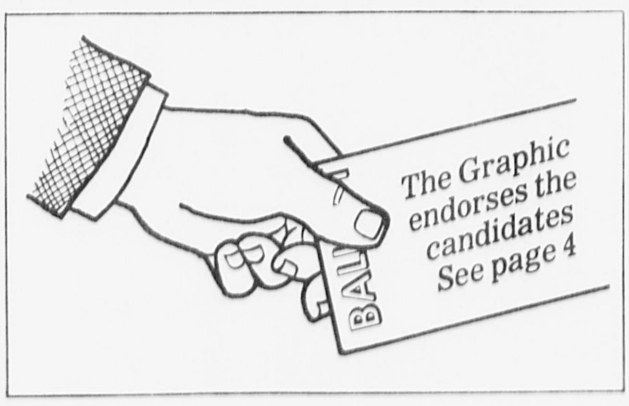

She turned to put the boxes back in her car and suddenly felt something jammed into the small of her back through her coat.

Moratorium not that much of a drawing card

By Howard Altman, Staff Writer

NEWTON — Election Commission Executive Secretary Alan Licarie says he does not think the moratorium ballot question will have much of an effect on voter turnout for the Nov. 5 election.

"I haven't seen that much campaigning by the moratorium people," Licarie says, "either for or against it. I know there was good coverage in the local newspaper and I sent a sample ballot to every household in the city, so if (voters) aren't aware of the moratorium question, they will be. Will this bring more people out? I don't think so.

"The people who are either for or against the moratorium would vote anyhow," he adds.

The non-binding ballot question asks voters, "Shall the Newton Board of Aldermen pass a zoning amendment which in summary would impose a temporary suspension of the issuance of construction permits for commercial,

Campaign finance reports in

By Edward Cafasso, Staff Writer

NEWTON — Laurel G. Karp, a candidate for Ward 6 alderman-at-large, contributed to incumbent Rodney Barker's re-election effort even though Barker is backing the candidacy of Susan M. Basham, one of Karp's opponents.

The "strange bedfellows" in the Ward 6 race became apparent Monday at 5 p.m., the deadline for submitting Campaign Finance Reports (CFR) to the Election Commission.

Included in the no-shows were CFRs from incumbent Bruce Carmichael, Ward 2 at-large candidate Joshua E. Davidson, incumbent Carol Robinson, Ward 6 at-large candidate John C. Amicangioli, incumbent Cynthia Creem, incumbent Ron Marini, incumbent Richard Bullwinkle, incumbent Dominic Taglienti and contested Ward 4 Alderman Carol Ann Shea.

Marini handed his CFR in on Tuesday.

Aldermen Verne Vance and William Shaevel turned in their CFRs at 5 p.m. Monday, but the documents were not available for public inspection.

Ironically, Alderman W. Arthur Reilly, running unopposed for re-election in Ward 7, raised more money than any other aldermanic candidate who turned in a CFR.

Meanwhile, Polly Bryson, who is running in Ward 4 against the veteran Shea,

School Comm. races costly

By Edward Cafasso, Staff Writer

NEWTON — Sydra Schnipper and Patience Berkman, both candidates for the Ward 7 School Committee slot, lead their colleagues in campaign fundraising and spending, respectively.

Finance reports (CFR) released show that Schnipper raised $6,857.98 from July 15 to Oct. 18, while Berkman collected $6,492 during approximately the same period.

However, Berkman's campaign spent $5,990 during that time, more than double the $2,373.24 spent by Schnipper.

In the Ward 2 School Committee race, Jennifer M. Huntington's finances easily outstripped her opponent Kenneth R. Hartford, who did not raise or spend any money on his campaign.

More than 100 contributors helped Huntington collect $3,675 from July 1 to Oct. 18. She spent $1,193.20 during that time.

Huntington helped her own cause by contributed $100 and loaning her campaign an additional $500

In the Ward 1 race, Sally Rizzo collected more than twice as much money as her opponent Ronald Nuttall, but spent only a slight amount more.

Rizzo raised $4,475 from June 1 to Oct. 18 and spent $1,641, while Nuttall collected $1,615 in a month's less time and spent $1,470.14 during the reporting period.

GBPC's contractors or if the any individuals representing the private firms received money from the secret account.

The latest evidence will be presented to the district attorneys in Suffolk, Norfolk, Essex and Middlesex counties for "further evaluation," Dwyer added.

The police chiefs were issued an inch-thick report, but Dwyer said it is not a public document. Chiefs approached when the meeting adjourned would not comment.

"It's fair to say that the membership is embarassed, but fully realized that it did not reflect on the integrity of the officers or the association as a whole," according to Dwyer.

GBPC members voted to authorize his firm to continue the internal probe and to "fully cooperate" with any other investigations. Dwyer said the work he performed during the month of September cost approximately $15,000.

Dwyer intends to work with Newton City Solicitor Dan Funk to file either a criminal or civil suit against Coogan "as soon as possible" in an effort to recover the misappropriated funds.

It is still undecided whether the suit will be state or federally sponsored.

Neither Coogan nor his attorney, Kenneth Pollenz, could be reached for comment right after the meeting.

How it may have worked

Sources explained one way in which the public funds could have been diverted into a special account.

Typically, member communities of the GBPC pay for GBPC services with checks made payable to "The City of Newton." City officials receive the checks, match them against the correct invoices and then deposit the money in the GBPC's city account used to pay vendors.

One way to avoid city accounting procedures, however, is to have the local communities make their checks payable to the GBPC. Such a maneuver could have allowed the money to deposited in the unauthorized bank account opened under the council's name.

It is "not difficult" for a person with the right credentials to open a phony bank account, one source said.

'Like a son'

Quinn said he felt "vindicated" from the allegations of corruption spread during recent days by "the rumor mongers of the world.

"I'm very pleased with the audit because it has uncovered what was suspected for the last three months — that there's more to this," he said.

Quinn first hired Coogan, a Sudbury resident, as a Boston College work-study student in 1971. He holds a bachelors degree in government from BC, a masters degree in business administration and management from Boston University, and law degree from BC.

Eventually, Coogan was hired, under contract, by the GBPC to serve as the group's legal counsel, project manager, technical advisor and federal grants manager.

He also served, under contract, as Quinn's adminstrative assistant.

The GBPC relied on Coogan — who wrote numerous articles for law enforcement and communication publications — to draw up its service contracts, bidding specifications and applications to the Federal Communications Commission (FFC) for radio frequencies.

As Quinn has described it, Coogan "rode herd on the entire Boston Area Police Radio Newtork (BAPERN)" in the mid-1970s, travelling to area cities and towns in an effort to convince officials to join the sophisticated communications system.

In October 1984, he told Quinn he would be leaving his duties at the end of the fiscal year to go into private business. Quinn asked Coogan to stay on with the GBPC, but the consultant refused, allegedly citing potential conflicts of interest between his new job and the council's activities.

Quinn takes great pride in the GBPC and its collective purchasing practices, which allow almost every law enforcement agency in the state to take advantage of reduced prices for equipment and services.

Last week he expressed shock at the extent of Coogan's alleged criminal involvement.

"I've been hurt bitterly by it. He was somewhat like a son to me. This hurts very deeply," he said.

Missing records

Dwyer said the audit focused on the paper trail showing where the money intended for the GBPC ended up.

The effort was temporarily thwarted by the fact that files and records maintained by Coogan for the GBPC turned up missing, he said.

In order to accurately re-create the financial transactions, investigators had to travel to area cities and towns, often "working backwards" to trace the flow of funds through interviews, invoices, cancelled checks and other documentation.

Dwyer and members of his firm must still visit several communities to gather more information and the Bank of Boston officials who dealt with Coogan have to be interviewed.

"It takes a long time to piece it all together," Dwyer said.

New procedures

Earlier news stories found that, despite the millions of dollars channelled through GBPC accounts, there is no local, state or federal agency, by-laws or any other legal mechanism to monitor the collective purchasing activities.

Dwyer had said his audit would eventually result in the creation of such a structure and, last week, the GBPC took the first steps toward that goal.

The group will continue purchasing equipment and services, but a special account has been set up with a Newton bank to hold all the money handled by the GBPC, he said.

Any expenditures from that account will require the signature of Quinn and the GBPC's treasurer, Brookline Police Chief George Simard.

In addition, the new account will undergo an audit every month for the next year, Dwyer said.

The GBPC chiefs will meet again for Dwyer's next report during the first week of December.

BAPERN

The GBPC was originally formed a decade ago to foster more effective communication between area police departments and agencies.

The need for an area-wide radio network was highlighted by the "Harvard Square riots" of the early 1970s, when local police from different departments found themselves unable to radio each other for help during the era's anti-war demonstrations.

The creation of BAPERN represented the GBPC's first major project and is considered the largest multi-agency police command and control system in North America.

News stories in June and August provided the first hint that Coogan's activities cast a shadow over the agencies responsible for designing and maintaining the BAPERN system.

The IRS probe into Coogan's personal finances from 1980 to 1984 centers on allegations that he received $500,000 from ITS Inc., an Illinois communication firm owned by Michael Yefsky.

ITS is an affilliate of CES Communications, which is owned by Yefsky's father, Arthur. Acting on a recommendation from the Justice Department in the ealry 70s, the GBPC hired CES to engineer the installation and technical requirements for the BAPERN system.

This past April, aldermen learned that the GBPC's bidding specifications for BAPERN, which Coogan helped compose, were written so that only Motorola, a world-wide leader in police radio technology, could bid successfully.

Motorola lost its exclusive maintenance contract for BAPERN in 1981, to a Waltham firm known as Ackerman Communications. This past summer, Motorola won the maintenance agreement back, reportedly when the other company's owner, Jerry Ackerman, decided to concentrate on cellular telephones.

Quinn has described Ackerman as "a Motorola trouble-shooter" in the mid-70s who eventually started his own business. That business, which has two offices on Main and High streets in Waltham, is now known as Acticom.

Coogan maintains his new office at Acticom's High Street branch. Pollenz, his lawyer, has applied to the FCC for radio frequencies on behalf of Acticom Associates, Ltd.

High-powered probe

The team performing the internal audit of the GBPC's accounts is comprised of lawyers and investigators with extensive experience in corruption probes.

Dwyer, who is also Quinn's personal lawyer, was an assistant Suffolk County District Attorney from 1972 to 1978. From 1978 until 1980, he served as executive director of the Ward Commission, created to investigate allegations of corruption among public officials.

Dwyer's partner, Philip X. Murray, is the former head of the state's Committee on Criminal Justice, which played a major role in helping to create the GBPC.

Also participating in the probe are James F. X. Dineen, a former assistant U.S. attorney, and James P. Vaughn, a financial investigator for a company known as Obelus. Vaughn spent 15 years as a special agent with the IRS' criminal investigation division.

The accounting firm working to uncover any suspicious financial transactions is the Boston-based Tobias, Fleischman, Shapiro & Co.

"We do a lot of civil and criminal litigation in state or federal courts. This one is more interesting than most," Dwyer replied, when asked to put the current probe in perspective with his firm's other cases.

Lawyer says money belongs to Coogan consulting work Coogan performed for private firms and communities that do not belong to the GBPC.

He said Coogan accumulated the funds by acting as an independent communications consultant for "non-members" during the second phase of the GBPC's effort to install the $20 million Boston Area Police Emergency Radio Network (BAPERN).

The GBPC's membership is limited to law enforcements agencies within the Route 128 belt, but numerous other municipal police departments, like the one in Weston, for example, are allowed to take advantage of the GBPC's radio communications services and collective purchases.

Pollenz said Coogan's contract as the GBPC's "management consultant" contained a provision allowing him to "engage in other communication consulting activities."

He said would "not characterize" the missing money as public funds, even though Dwyer claims the cash came from a variety of municipal coffers.

"The GBPC will not be able to substantiate claims to any monies they say were diverted. They'll have trouble enough identifying who they are ... As far as I've determined, the GBPC is an idea. It's a name," Pollenz said.

"The GBPC has no charter, no rules, no organization, no procedures for membership. There is no corporate body or entity that you can hang your hat on," he added.

Asked if he would consider the GBPC "a club," Pollenz replied, "I don't think it's as formal as a club."

He would not say how Coogan earned the "consulting" money or whether anyone else knew about the bank account. Approximately $130,000 is left, he added.

The issue of why Coogan would open a bank account in the GBPC's name if it was intended to store money he earned privately "will have to be resolved" in the course of potential legal actions, he added.

Pollenz accused Dwyer of not giving "the full story" to the media, claiming that the "greater perspective" will emerge when the "contractural relationships" and dealings between Coogan, the GBPC, the city of Newton and "non-members" of the GBPC are "scrutinized."

He described Coogan's decision to end his contracts with the GBPC and the city as "coincidental" with the IRS' probe into why Coogan received two checks worth $1 million from an Illinois communications firm involved in the creation of BAPERN.

Coogan's work as an independent, management consultant for the GBPC lasted from 1979 until June. Pollenz said Coogan's other titles — legal counsel and project manager — were made up by Police Chief William F. Quinn, the GBPC's chairman.

The GBPC's lack of oversight and legal structure left Coogan "to his own devices," according to Pollenz, who compared Quinn and the BAPERN system to an Egyptian pharoah who wants to build the greatest pyramid in the world, but does not want to be bothered with the project's details.

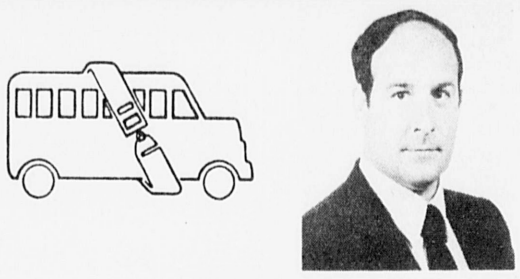

Quinn and other city officials who handled GBPC funds "never followed procedures," he claimed.

The missing funds and other problems should not come as a surprise, Pollenz said, because city officials, acting as the GBPC's fiscal agents, "never took the time to understand what was going on."

"Ask Chief Quinn or the comptroller or the purchasing agent why they signed their names over and over again on purchase orders without checking whether there were funds on deposit when the purchase orders were signed. They obviously didn't know too much about what was going on for the past 10 years," he said.

"The evidence will show (that Coogan) probably did the best he would under the circumstances ... He had to work within that environment," Pollenz added.

City sues developers over 10 percent

CAMBRIDGE — The City of Newton is suing the developers of a townhouse condominium project for failing to provide two "promised" low-income housing units that were to be built off-site in Ward 4.

Filed in Middlesex Superior Court, the suit names as defendants Peter Bailey and John A. Humbert, trustees of the First Riverwood Trust, having a principle place of business at 480 Commonwealth Ave., Boston. The trust also was named as a defendant.

According to the suit, the two units of low-income housing were to have been built off-site in conjunction with 26 two-bedroom units that have been built off of Staniford Street.

The city, represented by Assistant City Solicitor Attorney G. Michael Peirce, claims that the trust broke its promise to provide the low-income units and asks that the court declare the trust to be in violation of its agreement with the city.

It also asks that the court rule that the trust violated a revised zoning ordinance of 1984 which requires that a developer who wishes to develop property in Newton at residential density greater than those permitted provide low-income family housing or housing for the elderly in an amount equal to 10 percent of the total dwelling units in the development.

In the suit, the city is asking that the court order that the defendants to pay the city a sufficient sum of money to enable it to purchase two units that would meet city and state standards for low-income housing.

The defendants have 20 days to file their answer to the complaint.

BC administrator guilty of embezzling

CAMBRIDGE — A former Boston College administrator pleaded guilty Monday to embezzling over $34,000 during 1981-84 from the college, having used some of the stolen money to finance his Marblehead restaurant.

David Mitchell, 30, of Westwood, former assistant director and business manager of the housing department, admitted to stealing school funds and to converting them for his personal use in such enterprises as Mitchell's Marblehead restaurant called McKeon's.

Superior Court Judge Richard S. Kelley, sitting in Middlesex Court sentenced Mitchell to a suspended term of 3-5 years at the Massachusetts Correctional Institution at Walpole.

Judge Kelley, saying incarceration would have "no constructive effect," imposed three years of probation, ordered Mitchell to repay the college the stolen $34,514, another $15,631 to cover Boston College's investigation costs and $3,750 to cover court costs.

Commenting on the sentence, Middlesex District Attorney Scott Harshbarger said he was disappointed Kelley chose not to imprison Mitchell. The district attorney's office, represented by Assistant District Attorney Lawrence Dugan, had recommended a commitment of two and one half years at the Billerica House of Correction.

Harshbarger said, "This kind of sentence sends an inappropriate message to the community...it is a dangerous precedent to turn a crime... particularly in this kind of calculating, premeditated crime...into something you can buy your way out of, frankly. Unfortunately, what it does is leave defendants out on the street who can pay."

Harshbarger added, "every indication our office has got is that he's going to pay the restitution out of the profits of his restaurant."

Judge Kelley said incarceration would likely "disrupt" Mitchell's ability to repay the school.

Mitchell pleaded guilty to over 30 counts of larceny, embezzlement, making false entries into the college's corporate books, and larceny by fraud.

The district attorney's investigation revealed that Mitchell and a co-defendant, Richard E. Collins, 40, of Dedham, the former director of Boston College's housing department, used the stolen funds to finance "lavish lifestyles" that included ski trips to Vale, Colo., rental of a house in Falmouth, and the purchase of a saxaphone for Collins' son.

Collins still faces indictments charging him with having embezzled an additional $56,000 in Boston College housing funds.

Big campaign for moratorium question

NEWTON CENTRE — REZONE leader Thomas Paulini says the campaign to win overwhelming public support for a construction moratorium is in high gear.

"We've sent out a mailing urging people to vote yes on Question 2, the moratorium," Paulini says. "We are making posters and setting up a schedule for election day activities. We have a meeting scheduled for October 30 to further publicize the moratorium and we are also setting up polls to find out how we are doing."

Paulini says in addition to campaigning for the moratorium, REZONE will campaign for and against aldermanic candidates based on their position on the ballot question.

"Through our mailing of 3,200 flyers, we are asking the voters to deny their votes to the people who voted to deny them their right to make a choice on the moratorium issue," Paulini says. "We will ask the voters not to support Aldermen Paul Daley, Carol Robinson, Matthew Jefferson, Robert Tennant and Sondra Shick."

In addition, Paulini says, the REZONE flyers are asking voters to support Aldermen Rodney Barker, Michael Malec, Richard McGrath, George Mansfield and candidates Susan Basham, Alan Ciccone and Polly Bryson.

"We are trying to make the voters aware of who supported their right to decide and who didn't," Paulini says of the mailings.

REZONE is trying to stir public interest in an election without the benefit of a mayoral race. Paulini says he hopes voters will come out to vote on the moratorium.

"It's hard to say how many people we will rustle up specifically for the moratorium," Paulini says. "A lot of people are apathetic and (Election Commission Executive Secretary Alan) Licarie is saying he expects only about 15 percent of registered voters to go to the polls. We hope to get that figure up to around 25 percent."

City suing trash firm over fee hikes

NEWTON — The city is going to take GSX Corp., the firm managing the Rumford Avenue transfer-haul station, to court in an effort to reverse the skyrocketing "tipping fees" that threaten to drive local landscaping operations out of business.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann and Public Works Commissioner James L. Hickey announced the legal action last week, just hours before nearly 100 enraged gardeners stormed City Hall to issue a desperate plea for help.

Landscaping companies, many of them run by families who live in the city, perform seasonal yard work for close to three-quarters of the households here.

Solicitor Dan Funk said the city will ask a Middlesex Superior Court judge for a temporary restraining order aimed at rolling back a recent $25-per-ton increase in the fee charged contractors who bring debris to the Rumford Avenue facility.

If the court agrees, the order will probably last for 10 days, at which time another hearing will be held to consider a preliminary injunction against GSX, he said.

The city's contract with GSX allows the firm to set its own rates for private companies, but prohibits a fee increase "calculated solely to discourage" their business.

Funk said the city will "take its best shot" at proving the latest price hike "is not based on economic factors" and asked Frank Mercuri, the attorney representing the local contractors, to join in "a double-barrelled legal action" against GSX.

In one day, GSX raised the tipping fee from $55 to over $100 a ton, Hickey said. When he complained, a GSX lawyer agreed to rescind the increase, but, without any prior warning a few days later, a new tonnage price of $80 was set.

Edison shifts blame for outages on city

NEWTON — Boston Edison officials last week blamed the city's reluctance to trim trees properly for many of the widespread power outages caused by Hurricane Gloria.

The criticism came during an aldermanic Public Facilities Committee discussion on why it took the utility so long to restore power to the 40,000 Garden City customers whose homes were blacked out by the storm.

"We want more clearance on trimming trees. With a good tree-trimming policy, the outages can be avoided. A policy like that will save the city money with other severe storms in the future," Edison District Manager Walter McGaulley said.

McGaulley and Robert Sisson, Edison's chief distribution manager, said they hope to arrange a meeting soon to discuss the problem with Parks & Recreation Commissioner Russell Halloran and Forestry Superintendent Richard Metro.

Edison, which typically hires private crews to do the trimming, leaves it up to the city to decide how the trees located on city berms should be pruned, according to Sisson.

In most communities, the utility is allowed to clear a five-foot wide path around powerlines obscured by trees, but city officials here only give Edison "the barest minimum" — one foot of clearance, he said.

The objective of the five-foot formula is to keep the wires reasonably clear for three years, Sisson added.

If the branches are trimmed so that a Y-shaped gap is left around the wires, high winds will cause the remaining limbs to split downward away from the powerlines, he said during the discussion sponsored by Ward 4 Alderman Carol Ann Shea.

Stabbing victim in 'guarded' condition

WATERTOWN — A Newton man was listed in guarded condition in WalthamWeston Hospital after he was stabbed early Sunday morning in a Watertown apartment.

Richard Farnese, 24, 92 Lexington St., was taken to the hospital after he was stabbed on the left side of his chest. Police found Farnese lying unconscious on a living room floor in an apartment at 8 Charles St. at 1:35 a.m. Sunday.

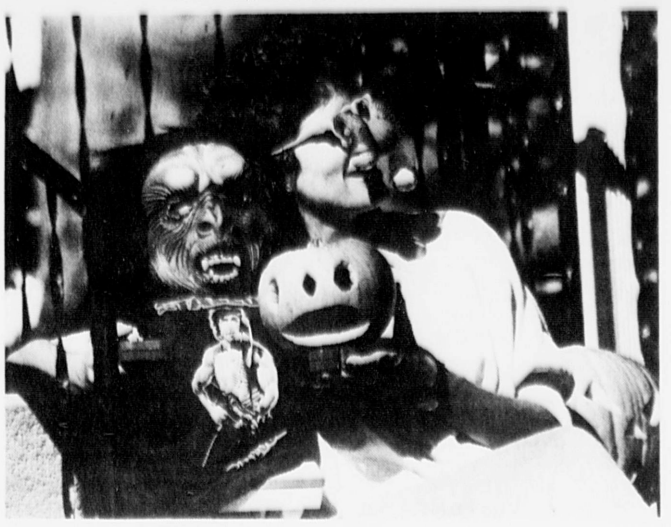

A warrant for attempted murder has been issued by Watertown Police for Martin Bowler, 30, of 115 Waverley Ave., Watertown.

According to witnesses reports to police, six women and two men were in the apartment of Judy Williams when an argument broke out, leading to some pushing and shoving. Bowler then went into the kitchen, picked up a kitchen knife with a blade eight to ten inches long and stabbed Farnese in the chest, according to witnesses.

Bowler then fled the scene with a female companion. One of the women present at the apartment called the police. After police arrived they called Watertown Fire Rescue to transport Farnese to the hospital.

Bowler is described as a white male, 5-feet-9, weighing 170 pounds, with light brown hair and a mustache.

Lt. John Jackson is in charge of the investigation and Detetectives Peter Seminara and Robert Corrazzini are working on the case as well.

For alderman, the Graphic endorses ...

We envy those Newton voters who already have their minds made up as to whom they will vote for in next Tuesday's citywide election.

There are very few real contests this year for seats on the Board of Aldermen. More's the pity, because incumbents and the entire city could only profit from some vigorous challenges. While we lament the dearth of challengers, we have to admit that, in a couple of important races, it is very difficult to pick a candidate.

Ward 2, Alderman-at-Large

In Ward 2, three candidates are vying for two at-large seats: incumbent Louis Irwin and challengers Joshua Davidson and Allan Ciccone.

We wholeheartedly endorse the re-election of Louis Irwin, whose methodical approach to solving problems has represented a refreshing change from the way some of his colleagues operate. Irwin has been an outspoken booster of a new, main library at the corner of Homer and Walnut streets. His resolutions, the latest of which urged President Reagan to make real progress toward the reduction of nuclear weaponry, have served to jog the consciences of his fellow aldermen.

We look forward to Irwin's second term on the board, thinking that, with more experience and confidence, he can play a larger role there.

We find it impossible to endorse either of the two challengers. Davidson, a newcomer to the Garden City even though members of his family have lived here for years, lacks credentials.

An unknown in city government, he has garnered some enviable endorsements — including those of outgoing Alderman Ed Richmond and Ward 2 Democratic Committee Chairperson Martina Jackson — but we insist that a seat on the Board of Aldermen should not be a candidate's first involvement with the way the city is run. After a couple of years "in the trenches," he might well be a viable candidate for the board, but to recommend him for the office at this point would be to overlook the complicated nature of city government.

Allan Ciccone, after years in the city's Police Department, should have a good working knowledge of the concerns of city residents, but he has yet to take step one toward putting his knowlege to work. He ran for the same seat two years ago, but we feel involvement in city affairs should amount to more than running a campaign.

Ciccone has the knowlege needed for the job, but he has yet to display the positive energy needed to do it right.

Ward 4, Ward Alderman

Without a doubt, the most important race in the city. Carol Ann Shea, ward alderman from Auburndale for the past 10 years and president of the Board of Alderman, is being challenged by Polly Bryson, longtime community activist and president of the Auburndale Community Association.

It must be remembered that this is not a race for the presidency of the Board of Aldermen. This race will determine who will represent the residents of Ward 4 most effectively in City Hall — who will address their concerns, listen to their problems, aggressively seek solutions and protect their neighborhood.

Shea has done just that, but it has been years since she was in the forefront. When she first came on the board, she was actively involved in protecting her constituents from commercial encroachment. She was a leader in the fight to preserve open space in the city and buy up land to be held for conservation.

She can take some of the credit for helping to keep the Williams and Burr schools open. Her record of constituent service is on a par with most of her colleagues. Her endorsements include the names of some of the brightest political lights in the city.

But the promise on which her successful presidential coup was based two years ago has never been fulfilled. The "tenor of the board," the argumentative attitude of some aldermen which was once cited as a reason why many viable candidates would not run for office, has not changed substantially since she managed to grasp the gavel.

The business of the board, which is bound to have its ups and downs in the largest municipal legislature in the commonwealth, is not being conducted any more efficiently than it was under the previous setup. Critics contend that Shea's appointments to some of the board's committee chairs have not helped things run any more smoothly.

If, as Shea contended when she was bucking for the presidency, "It's time for a change," then it is still time for a change. She has not delivered on her promise.

Polly Bryson's credentials as an effective advocate for the residents of Ward 4 are formidable. From the Girl Scouts to the reuse committees for the Auburndale Yard and Warren Jr. High, she has worked long and hard to see that things were done right. In Auburndale, when they say, "Let the other guy do it," the "other guy" has very often been Polly Bryson.

Testimony to her ability to organize, communicate and persuade can be found in her being one of the founders of the Newton Neighborhood Network. What began as an idea in Bryson's head has grown to be a coalition of no less than 38 separate neighborhood organizations from every part of the city. It is a decidedly "grassroots" sort of organization with which a "grassroots" activist like Bryson is most comfortable.

We have to wonder how Bryson's experience with neighborhood activism would translate to the Board of Aldermen. It has gone well in the past for others who used neighborhood activism as a springboard to City Hall. The late Robert Shuman from Oak Hill was a good example.

But Bryson would have to avoid applying simple solutions to complex problems. Neighborhood problems and citywide problems have a lot in common, but the latter have ramifications that prohibit a parochial approach.

Another hazard Bryson would have to avoid if she were elected would be her close alliance with Alderman Richard McGrath. What we do not need on the Board of Alderman is another rubber stamp. The fact that she has separated herself from him in the past, especially with regard to the propriety of the mixed-income housing project at the old St. Jean's School, suggests that she would not allow her political mentor to dominate her thinking.

For the job that is being contested — fighting for the best interests of the Auburndale community — we have to endorse Bryson.

Ward 5, Alderman-at-Large

In Ward 5, three candidates are running for two at-large seats: incumbents Paul Coletti and Paul Daley and challenger Harold Williams.

Paul Coletti still deserves an endorsement for his work as head of the first Revaluation Subcommittee, a thankless task that sandwiched him between a recalcitrant administration and an enraged mob of disgruntled taxpayers.

Since then, he has continued to carry more than his share of the aldermanic workload as chairman of the Finance Committee.

We are stuck reiterating a strange endorsement we made in the Ward 5 race two years ago: together, Williams and Daley would make a great alderman. While Daley is extremely knowledgeable about the workings of city government, Williams promises to come to meetings on a regular basis and devote much of his time to the task.

Ward 6, Alderman-at-Large

In Ward 6, four candidates are running for two at-large seats: incumbent Rodney Barker and challengers Laurel Karp, Susan Basham and John Amicangioli.

We have to endorse Barker, even though the focus of his concerns suggests the "at-large" after his name might not be exactly appropriate. He has proven himself sensitive to residents' concerns and ready to act on them regardless of how his proposals have been received by his colleagues on the board.

As an aside, he has fielded some sharp barbs from these pages with extremely good humor — a definite asset in an alderman.

Susan Basham's intelligence, drive and experience with the machinery of city government suggest she might be the best candidate for the second at-large slot. She tackled a difficult problem when she accepted the leadership of the Hyde School reuse advisory group. Some measure of her success with that venture can be found in the fact that she has also been named to the Bigelow Jr. High reuse committee.

Our only reservation regarding Basham's effectiveness as an alderman comes from the fear that she might possibly fall into lockstep with the other two aldermen from the Highlands. Anyone who has real fears about that would do well to vote for the more conservative John Amicangioli.

Ward 7, Alderman-at-Large

In Ward 7, three candidates are running for two at-large seats. Incumbents Dominic Taglienti and Verne Vance are being challenged by Nicholas Kyriakos.

The choice is clear. Taglienti and Vance are two of the finest aldermen on the board. The city is lucky to have men of their calibre willing to serve.

For School Committee, the Graphic endorses ...

There are only four contests for School Committee, and three of those were created by the incumbents having to leave the board when their terms expired.

Depending on the outcome of next Tuesday's vote, we could see five teachers on the School Committee; which suggests to some that the largesse that resolved the last teacher contract problems might become something of a tradition.

Ward 1

In the Ward 1 race, we do not see that Ron Nuttal's experience as a professional educator since 1967 outweighs the determined strength and articulateness Sally Rizzo has shown in various candidate night outings.

She has pointed out that her past experience as a teacher, combined with her present experience working within the budget of the State Office of Human Services, makes her uniquely qualified for the Ward 1 slot. We agree, but it was her obvious ability to think "on her feet" and communicate effectively that suggested she is the right one for the job.

In fact, in a couple of years, Rizzo could assume a dominant role on the committee.

Ward 2

Kenneth Hartford, a veteran of two previous School Committee races, could be the right choice in this race.

Brookline teacher Jennifer Huntington brings a wealth of relevant experience to the race as an educator and a parent with children in the school system. But we are looking for a new perspective on the fiscal responsibilities of School Committee members, and, while Hartford might end up "a voice in the wilderness," we think he deserves a chance to sell the committee on his more conservative approach to the task at hand.

Ward 7

The race in Ward 7 between Patience Berkman and Sydra Schnipper has been an extremely difficult one to sort out. The two candidates, while they differ in personality, seem very much alike. While Schnipper enjoys the edge in terms of credentials, Berkman seems to be better versed in the problems of individual schools in the city.

It seems a shame that to waste the two of them in one ward. They both could serve the city well, but we have to go with Berkman.

Ward 8

Robert Ricles, a six-year veteran of the School Committee, is sthe obvious choice in this contest. His opponent, Allyn Segelman, who wants seat belts in school buses and a coherent AIDS policy in the schools, has taken way too narrow an approach to the School Committee's job.

We would hope that Ricles, who has done an adequate job in the past, would view re-election to a fourth term as a sort of mandate and begin to function with the confidence of his convictions.

On the moratorium question, the Graphic votes 'no'

A moratorium on construction is the wrong response to Newton's growth problems, and we urge residents to vote "no" on the moratorium resolution on next Tuesday's ballot.

To merit support, a referendum on a major public policy question should be both sound and useful. This proposal is neither. Halting construction would be a knee-jerk response to a complicated issue. Some might argue that because it is non-binding, this ballot question will do nothing more than register residents' concern about development. But clearly that concern has been registered. Passing this item would simply lend a false sense of promise to the myth there is a simple cure for growth pains, and put officials under the wrong kind of pressure.

The goal of Newton's reasonable leaders and residents should be to manage growth for the general welfare. That means planned development, modern zoning regulations and strict zoning enforcement, and maintaining a balance between residential and commercial property which is economically sound in terms of taxes, employment and shopping.

Unbridled development would clearly erode the quality of life, strain municipal services, create congestion and degrade the environment. But a sudden stop would damage the tax structure and be vulnerable to legal challenge. A moratorium also might well stampede developers to build while they still have a chance.

Newton has responded to the challenge of dealing with growth problems. The Zoning Review Committee now at work is taking a detailed look at regulations and policy. Only such a line-by-line, neighborhood-by-neighborhood analysis will be of lasting value. And the Village Study should help formulate sensible long-range plans.

Residents do not need this moratorium to be involved in the future of their city's growth. They should continue to speak out with their concerns through their representatives and at public hearings on individual projects.

The fact must be faced that development is too complicated an issue to submit to a moratorium. We urge citizens to reject that notion Tuesday, and then get on with the business of managing growth.

The freedom not to vote is a costly one

Last year George Will, Newsweek's neoconservative editorialist, wrote a page called "In Defense of Not Voting." As is the usual case with his columns, the piece was well-turned, nicely stained with arcane verbiage, and waxed and buffed to a lovely journalistic, professional luster.

But it struck me as ironic that no voter in this Republic — where the free vote is lip-serviced as sacrosanct, as a fundamental and near-divine right — wrote in to say that the act of voting was important and that more people ought to indulge in it.

Today's newspaper carries an interesting article about Cuba, the Marxist theological state a few million miles east of Miami Beach. In a series of interviews the reporter makes some informative points, one relating to the practice of voting: "People here live and breathe politics from childhood; they have no choice," she quotes a U.S. diplomat. "In the states, our freedom is in not having to be involved if we don't want to.... In Cuba you go to the parade even if you have a hangover, because the state is the only game in town."

So, we are presented with opposite positions: the one says protect the American way of freedom by not voting if you don't feel like it; the other, defend the Marxist-socialist Cuban state by making sure you show up at the polls.

And, we are presented with opposing choices: accept the voting commission's prediction (there will be a low voter turnout), let the status quo be maintained (the fewer the voters the better the incumbents' chances), approve freedom through apathy; or use the vote, get involved in this small but essential way. In my mind, the vote and all other kinds of political involvement, large and small, are a necessary and personal protection of for-the-people democracy. Nothing so much guarantees what we take for granted as its use.

You can cite your own examples: the Third Reich, where indifference to the political process led to disorder and citizen disfranchisement of the vilest kind; Orwell's imagined (though not unimaginable) newspeak land of 1984; the Soviet dictatorships. Perhaps, Cuba, where people do not have the luxury of not voting.

Locally, this being an "off year," much has been said about popular disaffection with voting. "Everybody" pre-agrees that very few of us will visit the polls. And, of course, according to Will and the Cuban diplomat and others too, "our freedom is in not having to be involved...."

Nevertheless, it seems to me that in Newton there are several important races, important because new voices and new ideas are being heard, because ordinary people are working hard and spending their valuable time and money getting involved, and because to consider their merits and to weigh their credentials and to cast your decision is to endorse their involvement and to protect your own Constitutionally guaranteed and precious free right.

As examples: Polly Bryson's campaign in Ward 4, the crowded race in Ward 6 where John Amicangiolli vies with three other candidates, newcomer Harold Williams' efforts in Ward 5, the populist movement to mandate consideration of a temporary halt to increasing commercial development, the comfortable mayoral incumbency. (There are a number of such unopposed candidacies, and while the nominations are closed, it's not too late to express some mild dissatisfaction with the status quo by leaving an uncontested pol off your ballot. But the only place to voice such disenchantment is in the voting booth.)

Maybe it's very important that we don't have to be involved, that we can stay away from the polls if we wish; maybe that's freedom. Still, Cuba and all, I'd opt for defending the democratic process in a much more active and energetic way.

VOTE.

Pooch is pushing for 'pooper scooper' law

By Mark White and Diane Burk White

The following statement was submitted to the Newton Board of Alderman at its public hearing on October 29, 1985 pertaining to the "pooper scooper" law, which would require dog owners to clean up after their pets or pay a fine:

My name is Audi White. I have lived in Newton for approximately four months. I am a german shepherd and came to Newton because of its reputation as a pretty, clean community.

Well, after four months of living in this city I am sorely disappointed and I came to speak in favor of this landmark piece of legislation.

Now you might think it unusal for a dog to support this type of legislation, but most dogs are for it.

It's hard enough being a dog and taking care of business. Let's face it, there's no soft cushy seat to sit on. There's no magazines to read to pass the time of day.

How would you like it if everytime you had to go someone stood there rooting you on with "C'mon Audi. C'mon Audi"! It's not easy being a pooch, but I can handle my own situation.

What I can't control is other dogs. Anytime I look for a nice clean place to go, it's invariable been taken by a previous participant. Lately all the spots have been taken.

Ya know, ya go to the park for a little excercise, take a nice little jog and ya gotta watch your step through the whole run.

I have heard human joggers complain of the same problem but they only have to watch out for two feet. I've got look out for four.

I can't even walk around the neighborhood without being carefully watched by most of the neighbors. And God forbid I have to go — you should hear them yell!

And yet if some human is walking his dog past our house and the dog begins to do his business his master will invariably deny that the dog is doing anything but sniffing the grass. Sniffing the grass my tail!!!

Look. I just spent weeks learning how to get the paper for my owners every morning. And how do you think I feel when I go to pick up the paper and find it landed in trouble?

> 'I have heard human joggers complain of the same problem but they only have to watch out for two feet. I've got look out for four.'

I also hope that this law provides for different size "pooper scoopers." I mean the great dane down the street needs a pooper bulldozer.

As a resident of this city I call upon the Board of Alderman to protect our parks and our lawns.

Politics is politics, but let's keep that stuff in City Hall, not on our lawns.

(Mark White and Diane Burke White are Audi White's legal guardians.)

Letters

Argument valid but unsound

The letter by Paul Samson about the Hyde/Oak Hill closing is logically reasoned, but proceeds from an error in fact. Mr. Samson argues quite rightly that the serious overcrowding of the Newton southside elementary schools is the result of closing two schools on the south side, rather than one in the south and one in the north.

He says, "after the committee had voted 8-1 to close Hyde, it was the committee member from the Hyde community that cast the deciding vote in the 5-4 decision to close Oak Hill, rather than Williams, and who therefore ordained that the Hyde children and many Oak Hill children would end up in overcrowded schools."

Unfortunately for Mr. Samson's argument, that was not the true sequence of events. In fact, the school committee first decided, in a 5-4 decision, to close Oak Hill. After that decision had been made, all committee members except one made the fatal decision to close Hyde, with the foreseeable consequences.

As to the question of which school, Oak Hill or Hyde, should have been closed — I still think it would have made more sense to close the school which was half empty, Oak Hill, rather than Hyde, which was overflowing. Bussing Oak Hill's approximately 150 pupils to Angier and Bowen would have made more sense than bussing a great portion of Hyde's 350 pupils, 95 percent of whom lived within half a mile of the school.

No matter how you cut it, it just did not make sense to close a full school in the center of greatest child population, at a time when enrollment was known to be going up. Just try to explain it to a stranger; I doubt that it has been done anywhere else in America; it certainly has not been done anywhere else in Newton.

But the problem for us now is to look for solutions; and this should be done by the new school committee, with as many options as possible before them. The candidates are very much aware of the overcrowding problem, and expect to have before them four possible options: 1) city-wide redistricting, the so-called "ripple" effect; 2) grade reorganization, with a grade 6-8 middle school, which would require reopening Bigelow — much more expensive to run than Hyde; 3) re-opening Hyde, using the sound building only, which could be done by Sept. 1986, and would finally end the whole issue, since without Hyde children, there would be room in Angier and Bowen to receive new children from the Oak Hill area, thus relieving the future pressure on country-side; and lastly, 4) building space on to Mason-Rice, Bowen, Zervas, and Countryside, over the years, using mobile classroom units as necessary to relieve the pressure during the many years of the planning, contract and building process.

(Building on to Countryside, incidentally is judged to cost between $300,000 and $500,000 and is complicated by the fact that it is in a "flood plain," so that building beside it will probably not be allowed, and the building would have to be on top of the existing building.)

Deciding between these options will not be easy, since the first two are highly and widely unpopular and will affect the entire city. The last option will depend upon the mayor and the board of alderman being willing to allot the money, and will prolong the issue and decision-making process over the next 10 years, since enrollment figures show that within 10 years every one of the five receiver schools will be over 100 percent capacity. Furthermore, from the time a school feels pressured to the time it actually has newly built space could easily be four years, more than half the school years of an elementary school child.

In these circumstances, it seems unthinkable that the mayor has suddenly and unilaterally decided to eliminate the one permanent solution which could be executed quickly, with minimum impact: the re-opening of Hyde. He has taken this moment to contract with a developer for the Hyde site, specifying that the sound building, retained by the city, should be used for handicapped housing, instead of retaining the option of reopening it as a school. If done last spring, this action would be understandable. At this time, it is reprehensible. The people of Newton ought to have a say in the matter, through their elected representatives on the new School Committee; and that new committee should be given all possible latitude to come to a wise decision.

It must now be obvious whence came the original decision of the School Committee to close Hyde. The power of the purse is very great; and we all know who gives, or does not give, the School Committee its yearly budget. Why the mayor has such strong and relentless interest in abolishing the Hyde School is not known; but that he does, is now beyond question.

Countryside needs to grow

The Countryside PTA wishes to clarify its "crowding" situation with regard to the article the Newton Graphic published on page one, October 9, 1985, concerning the reopening of the Hyde School.

The Countryside School has been a receiver school for two schools only: Emerson in 1979 and Oak Hill in 1984. The Countryside School's current population is approximately 400 students. Three students who formerly attended Hyde enrolled at Countryside when Hyde closed. These students, however, actually lived with the Countryside district and were "out of district" students at Hyde.

To imply that our overcrowding is a result of the Hyde closing or, conversely, that a reopening of the Hyde School would alleviate our problem is not only misleading, but is also untrue.

Furthermore, the three receiver schools for Hyde children — Bowen, Mason-Rice, and Zervas — have already had appropriate renovations completed or money allocated for renovation. We support the Board of Alderman in these capital improvements. We believe all children in the city have the right to an equal education and equal opportunity. There are programs the Countryside School cannot presently provide because there is no space in which to offer them.

As our school comprises the largest geographical area in the City of Newton (including open space which could well be developed), it is imperative that citizens understand clearly the situation existing in our school as well as its causes. Consolidation is painful. Now that closings are complete, it would be wise for the City of Newton to make the remaining elementary schools, including Countryside, as functional and equitable as possible.

Sale kills move to reopen Hyde

Highlands Community Development Corporation.

The Hyde gym will also be made available to the community as a polling place and activity area.

Mann called the deal he struck with ACT "extremely exciting" because it met the needs of the neighborhood and the city as a whole.

The Hyde sale will also create on-going tax revenue for the city, he added.

The three aldermen used a series of memos to School Supt. John Strand and Asst. Supt Vin Silluzio in their effort to argue that the New Hyde will be needed to handle the overcrowding already affecting several receiver schools.

The memos tried to dispute Silluzio's enrollment projections and Strand's estimates concerning the financial savings created by the Hyde closing.

However, Mann said he decided to go through with the sale when Strand told him the Hyde would "no longer be needed for educational purposes."

The Lincoln Street school was closed in August 1984 after an unsuccessful city-wide referendum seeking to keep it open.

The Hyde Joint Planning Advisory Group (JPAG), chaired by Ward 6 at-large candidate Susan Basham, recommended ACT and BCIL as the developers for the site a year ago after extensive deliberations.

The JPAG's recommendation received strong support from the tightly-knit Highlands community, which was concerned that an intensive commercioal use for the Hyde would eliminate the site's traditional role as a buffer between the neighborhood's commercial and residential areas.

"Give me your wallet and all your money," the helper-turned-criminal said to Garfinkle.

She did not have a wallet, but she did have $52 in small bills in one of her pockets.

"I figured that if I was being forced to give it up, I was going to at least have to make it a little harder for him," Garfinkle said.

And then, almost instinctively, she did a very gutsy thing.

"I turned partially back toward him and dropped the money on purpose. He started to bend down, trying to catch the money as it fell, and I just socked him one. I didn't even think about about. He was quite mad," she said.

Before the suspect had a chance to recover, Garfinkle jumped back into her car and sped off, leaving the robber with 38 Electrolux vacuum cleaner bags, $52 in small bills and funny hitch in his walk.

"When I looked back, well, let's just say he was not standing erect. He was in pain. He was staggering toward the sidewalk and started heading down Main Street toward Watertown," she said.

Garfinkle hailed a nearby Waltham police cruiser, but a search of the area proved fruitless. Later, she sat down with a Waltham detective, looked through some mug shots and helped create "a great composite" drawing of her assailant.

"The police were absolutely wonderful. They put a bulletin out right away with a description. They even notified hospitals to be on the look out for a guy complaining of groin pains," she said.

The suspect is described as being in his mid to late 20s, about 5 feet 9 inches tall, with a fair complexion, dirty blond hair, a wide face and nose, and wearing a light blue, long sleeve button down shirt with khaki-colored pants.

It was the first time Garfinkle had been the victim of a crime.

"I've been working with Electrolux for two months. We sell equipment directly to homes, door-to-door, and I never came across any problems. I find people very friendly," she said.

"The thing that really surprised me was that he didn't really look like the kind of person who would do this. I guess you can never be sure. I would like him to get caught before he does something else," she added.

Her husband, David, is "proud as hell" of his wife's quick-thinking, if not completely successful, brand of revenge.

"She fought back. She's not the kind of person who takes things lying down. She's a fighter," he said.

Nancy said she "was pretty stunned all afternoon," but now considers herself "very lucky" to have escaped injury.

"He was holding one of his hands behind his back, so I never actually saw a gun," she added.

Her advice for those who find themselves in similar situations?

"I would recommend a good, swift, powerful kick right in the groin," Garfinkle said. "It works wonders."

NNN opposes air rights development

NEWTON — Members of the Newton Neighborhood Network (NNN) have communicated to Secretary of Transportation Frederick Salvucci that they are "vehemently opposed to any development of the air rights over the Mass Turnpike in Newton."

Last April, the city's Urban Design and Beautification Commission began work on a Turnpike Corridor Urban Design Study aimed at developing guidlines "for any future development over the Massachusetts Turnpike Air-Rights Spine."

Newton Corner, Newtonville, West Newton and Auburndale abutt the five miles of turnpike that run through the city. Air rights already have been developed at the Gateway Center in Newton Corner and the Star Market in Newtonville.

In a letter signed by NNN Co-chairpersons Polly Bryson and Susan Mirsky, air rights development was criticized for its "negative environmental and aesthetic impact, which includes air and noise pollution, wind tunnel effects and the reduction of sunlight to nearby homes."

"Increased traffic and parking on adjacent residential streets" was also cited as a potential drawback to development, along with "additional long term expenditures for city services."

Bryson and Mirsky also pointed out to the secretary of transportation that "The construction of the turnpike has already been a major divisive burden to the residents of our city, and we are at a loss to see how any further development, which will exacerbate an existing environmental wound, would have any positive effect on the quality of life in Newton."

JUST BETWEEN US

THE WALTHAMWESTON HOSPITAL & MEDICAL CENTER IS THE MOST COMPLETE CANCER MANAGEMENT FACILITY BETWEEN WORCESTER AND BOSTON.

It's no secret that in the past, the only place for residents of the western suburbs to receive complete cancer management care was either Boston or Worcester. Just between us though, this is no longer the case. The WalthamWeston Hospital & Medical Center is fully equipped to handle every aspect of cancer management so patients don't have to travel for the specialized care they need. From the prevention of cancer, to its detection and treatment, it's the only regional facility of this kind located between Boston and Worcester. The best cancer specialists from Boston practice at WalthamWeston. The latest state-of-the-art technology, such as a CT scanner for early detection, cobalt radiation equipment, and the recently acquired linear accelerator as well as our chemotherapy program provide the most up-to-date therapy available. All of this, along with lifestyle programs offering information on the benefits of exercise, stress management, non-smoking and diet, has made this regional cancer management program so complete that the WalthamWeston Hospital & Medical Center is one of fewer than 10 percent of community hospitals in the United States to have been accredited by The Commission on Cancer of the American College of Surgeons.

The WalthamWeston Hospital & Medical Center is ready and able to help, a little bit closer to home. For more information, call today at (617) 647-6539.

Stereos getting married

By Frank Spotnitz
UPI Feature Writer

NEW YORK — After years of flirtatious courtship, the television set and the stereo have finally married, producing offspring ranging from humble stereo-capable sets to ambitious 250-command audio-video extravaganzas.

Stirred by the advent of low-priced videotape recorders and cable television, consumers are expecting more from television hardware than ever before.

Sales of stereo television sets this year will total $700 million, projection TVs will account for $650 million in sales, and another $675 million will be spent on televisions with expanded screen sizes.

The electronics industry has responded to consumer desires with a record number of components liberating your television set from the sonic ravages of a 3-inch speaker, ranging in price from $500 to $7,000.

But before laying down any money, the first step in improving the way your television sounds is deciding whether an integrated home entertainment system is right for your household.

Audio Magazine Editor Ivan Berger, co-author of the forthcoming book "The New Sound of Stereo," said, "A lot of people find after they have integrated their systems that they deintegrate them."

"If you have one master home entertainment system, it's fine if you live alone," Berger said. "But if you have a family, you might find one person wants to listen to records and one watch TV. Then somebody's out of luck."

If you're a bachelor or you have more than one set, you're ready to proceed.

The least expensive way to take advantage of the FM-quality signal beamed to your set is to buy a cable linking the audio output jack on the back of the TV to your stereo, High Fidelity Magazine Editor-In-Chief William Tynan said.

Available at any audio-video supply store, the cable only can be used if your set has an audio output jack, he said. If not, it will probably cost about $50 to have a TV repairman rewire the set so that the TV's audio circuitry can be bypassed, Tynan said.

Although NBC and MTV have been boasting about their stereo signals, many local and cable systems rebroadcast that signal to you in mono, he said.

You still can get simulated stereo sound by buying an inexpensive stereo decoder — and if you're buying a new set, make sure it's capable of plugging into such a device, Tynan said.

If you want to improve TV sound, but leave your stereo out of it, consider the Video Roommate by Boze, an inexpensive set of speakers with a built-in amplifier that plugs into your TV set, Berger said.

If you have the money and the inclination to start building an integrated system from scratch, Berger recommended starting with a television that has audio output jacks and an audio receiver with jacks for video.

The most obvious advantage to buying a manufacturer's integrated system, as opposed to simply hooking up the TV you own to your stereo, is the ability to control all of your components from a single remote control.

RCA has the leading edge in the field with its Dimensia system. Priced at $3,000 to $5,000, the channel, time and other information from the audio and video components in the system can be displayed on the TV screen at the press of a remote-control button.

Technics' elaborate AV-500 system, which retails for $3,500, includes a TV receiver, VCR, stereo tuner, cassette deck, turntable, three-way speakers and an optional compact disc player. It also features a remote-control.

The disadvantage is that many of these systems lock the consumer into a single manufacturer, since a remote control from one company cannot be used to operate a videocassette recorder or turntable from another, Tynan said.

Uniform industry standards on remote-control units are "probably somewhat down the road," said George Fouts, RCA vice president of sales.

"It requires an awful lot of industry talking and the setting of standards," he said. "As you well know, the electronics industry has not done a good job of setting its own standards, as demonstrated by the VHS and Beta situation."

Berger and Tynan both noted that General Electric has overcome the obstacle by inventing a remote-control unit that works with any component by memorizing the codes of other brands' remote controls. Called the Control Central, it retails for $150.

Whatever route you choose to follow, integration of audio and video components is sure to increase in coming years, both because it improves sound quality for TV viewers and it eliminates the need for duplicating parts in different components.

"It's definitely what's ahead," Tynan said.

Electronics brief

Family fun

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Videotaping family fun is easy if you regularly follow a few tips, say the experts at Kodak Co.:

—Shoot with the light at your back as often as possible. Avoid shooting into the light.

—Changing shots too quickly will make the tape seem jumpy. Try counting to 10 while shooting a subject before moving on to something else.

—A good rule of thumb is to "edit while shooting." After a shot filled with movement, pan away for a frame of reference.

—Keep a record of what you're shooting and details on the reason you've selected it for your video.

—A zoom lens is great for bringing the subject up close, or stepping back for a big view. But go slow! Zooming in and out quickly may create a confusing picture. The same problem can occur if the camera is whipped around too fast to catch another subject.

—Use only high-quality video tape. If low-quality tape is used, a low-quality picture will appear on the screen at home.

spent the most of any aldermanic campaign.

From Jan. 1 to Oct. 18, Reilly collected $4,160.46 and spent $1,202.80. The vast majority of Reilly's contributors live outside the city, outnumbering his resident contributors by three to one.

From May 28 to Oct. 18, Bryson raised $3,080.14 and spent $2,717.24 in her attempt to unseat Shea. Bryson, who loaned her campaign $700, collected the rest of the money from only 45 contributors.

William and Beverly Carmen contributed $100, Ward 7 School Committee candidate gave $50 and Newton Highlands activist Susan Mirsky contributed $25 to Bryson's cause.

From June 25 to Oct. 18, Basham collected $2,261.87 and spent $1,406.10 in her effort to win one of the two at-large seats in Ward 6.

From July to Oct. 18, Karp collected $1,110.42 and spent only $247.62. Meanwhile, from Jan. 1 to Oct. 18, Barker raked in $2,550 and spent $1,552.46 in his bid to stay on the full board.

Basham raised her money from 41 contributors, most of them prominent Newton Highlands residents, and loaned her own campaign $361.87. Barker gave $50 to her effort.

Mirsky, Friends of the Library President Nancy Criscitiello, Alderman George Mansfield, Alderman William Shaevel, Alderman Sondra Shick and Newton Teachers Association President Tony Croce also contributed to Basham's campaign.

Barker brought together 78 contributors for his fundraising effort.

Among his more notable financial boosters were Karp ($20), Mirsky, former alderman Lisle Baker, Patience Berkman and Sondra Schnipper, both Ward 7 School Committee candidates, Alderman Louis Irwin, radio personality Hubert Jessup, Alderman Michael Malec, Alderman George Mansfield, realtor Roy Mennell, David Mofenson, School Committee member Angela Nielsen, Alderman W. Arthur Reilly, Ward 1 School Committee candidate Sally Rizzo, State Rep. Susan Schur, former alderman Ethel Sheehan, Alderman Verne Vance, Brian Yates and Oscar A. Wasserman.

Karp received a $300 contribution from the Republican City Committee, a $200 contribution from the Republican Club, $20 from Republican City Committee Chairman Alvin Mandell and $600 worth of free printing from a family member.

Alderman Louis Irwin, fighting to hold onto his Ward 2 at-large seat, raised $875 from Jan. 1 to Oct. 18, but his campaign spent $1,226.13 and finished the period in the red by $136.89.

Allan L. Ciccone, who is also running for a Ward 2 slot, gave his own campaign $340.10 and spent it all on bumperstickers and signs by Oct. 18.

Nicholas Kyriakos, who is running against Vance and Taglienti in ward 7, raised no money and had no campaign expenditures.

None of the three candidates in the Ward 5 at-large race raised or spent any money.

Schur to stay in the House

NEWTON HIGHLANDS — State Representative Susan Schur(D — Newton), whom observers put near the front of the pack in the race for the state senate seat being vacated by Jack Backman, has announced that she will not be running.

"I feel real good about it," Schur said of her decision early this week. "It was a personal decision, not a political one."

She admitted she was tempted to run for the senate seat and said she had received "enormous encouragement and support" from friends who thought she should make the move.

Schur said she "stopped taking calls" last Thursday and used the weekend to analyze the situation and reassess her own goals. In the end, she decided her work in the House of Representatives, where she spends a lot of her time pushing women's issues, merited her complete attention.

Crafts Street finds relief

By Howard Altman
Staff Writer

NEWTONVILLE — More than 75 abutters of a 6.5-acre parcel of land along Crafts Street and McGuire Court found the relief they sought Monday night when the aldermanic Land Use Committee unanimously passed a petition to rezone the parcel from a manufacturing to a private residence district.

Part of the crowd which poured out of the committee room into the hallway after the decision said the petition introduced by Alderman Ronald Marini "is something we need because the people who live in the area have suffered enough from overdevelopment."

Marini called the 7-0 decision "an historic occasion.

"The unanimous vote is a clear-cut message that the people of this city are fed up with what's been going on in terms of development," Marini said. "If there had been a few negative votes, the message to the rest of the board would not have been as clear, but I think this vote will carry a lot of weight."

If passed, the rezoning would only permit the construction of single and two-family dwellings by right, and attached housing with special permission from the board. Proponents argue the petition will decrease the pressure on the neighborhood from traffic and intensity, while opponents argue it will decrease the value of land they own within the parcel.

Marini said the petition was initiated in part as a reaction to the construction by developer Michael Iodice of a six-story office building across Crafts Street in what is also a manufacturing zone. Marini said the impact of that development cannot be tolerated by the neighbors.

"We asked ourselves what we could do because we are experiencing a problem with the office building going up across the street," Marini said, "It is really an intrusion of development on a residential area. We want to find a way to stop the intrusion. We are in here tonight because we don't want to see what happened across the street happen here."

Opponents of the petition argued rezoning the land would decrease their property's value by decreasing their ability to market it to potential developers. Although the proposed zone change would permit a nonconforming use grandfather clause for the established businesses in the parcel — in effect allowing them to continue business as usual — that clause would no longer exist if they should decide to sell the land.

"It is unfair to change the rules in the middle of the game," David Roseman said on behalf of the business owners. "It is unfair because the people who bought property did so with the knowledge that the land was in a manufacturing zone. Changing the zoning diminishes the value of our property."

At an earlier meeting, Paul Reid — co-owner with his brother of Barnes and Jones, a steamfitting manufacturer in the parcel — said he would be hard-pressed to expand his operation to another facility.

Rizzo raised her funds from more than 140 contributors, including Aldermen William Shaevel and W. Arthur Reilly, State Reps. David Cohen and Susan Schur, artist Lloyd Lillie, former alderman Lois Pines and former Congressman James M. Shannon.

Nuttall loaned his campaign $500. He received $100 from the Committee to Elect Regina Frawley, $300 from the Republican City Committee, $200 from the Republican Club and $25 from Republican City Committee Chairman Alvin Mandell.

Ward 8 Alderman Robert Ricles did not turn in his CFR by yesterday's 5 p.m. deadline.

Allyn E. Segelman, Ricle's opponent, received $100 worth of private contributions and loaned his own campaign $2,255. He spent $2,321.25 from Oct. 1 to Oct. 27.

Gerald Bazer, the uncontested candidate for the Ward 4 slot, raised $1,234.70 and spent $896.63 from May 1 to Oct. 18.

Unopposed Ward 3 candidate Leonard Gentile and unopposed Ward 5 candidate Angela Nielsen did not raise or spend any funds.

Lynne B. Sullivan, the uncontested candidate in Ward 6, failed to turn in her CFR by the deadline.

residential and multi-family residential buildings until such time as a new zoning ordinance is adopted by the Board of Aldermen?"

The catalyst for the moratorium movement is increased commercial construction in the city, especially Newton Corner and Newton Centre. The most recent example, and what moratorium supporters say was "the final straw," is Michael Iodice's six-story office building at 29 Crafts St. The fact that final approval for the construction start was based on a technicality in the interpretation of a zoning ordinance did not sit well with some residents. After other attempts to get the Board of Aldermen to consider a moratorium, they formed REZONE to help collect signatures for an initiative petition that was not to happen.

According to moratorium lobbyist Thomas Paulini, the idea for a construction ban first came about in November, 1984, as a result of concern over development by the Newton Centre Neighborhood Association (NCNA) executive board.

The first significant step, Paulini says, was the Jan. 27, 1985, filing of a petition by 50 citizens who asked the board to pass a two-year moratorium. There was a public hearing in March, and the board voted 12-9 to deny the petition in early May.

Paulini says moratorium supporters, encouraged by the board's interest, then tried to get an initiative petition passed that would have put a binding question on the ballot. Aug. 7, however, the city solicitor's office ruled against it. Paulini says he then decided to go the nonbinding ballot question route, which was finally approved in late September.

Not all the aldermen support the moratorium. President of the Board of Aldermen Carol Ann Shea says she voted against it because "there are better ways to control development in Newton.

"The Zoning Review Committee (ZRC) and the Village Study are both looking at ways to approach the review and recodification of zoning laws," Shea says. She adds the results of the moratorium may be contrary to what supporters are trying to accomplish.

"The ZRC is the right way to go about it," Shea says. "One of the reasons is because the moratorium is having effects that would not please its supporters. It has spurred people who own property to file perimeter plans, and it may have spurred on more developers than the people who are proposing the moratorium wanted or expected."

She does, however, acknowledge positive results of the moratorium drive.

"It has focused a lot of attention on zoning issues and has forced us to look at zoning ordinances," Shea says. "That is a positive step. But overall, I don't think a moratorium is a good way of going about solving the problem in an organized or well-thought-out manner. I think that the ZRC, which is a direct result of the moratorium push, is a much better way to solve the zoning problems we have in Newton."

Halloween, time for fantasy

By Charlotte Meryman
Staff Writer

This Halloween, the streets of local cities and towns will be swarming with little witches and ghosts, robbers and dance hall girls, butterflies, punk rockers and "Rambos."

For children, psychologists say, Halloween means one of the few chances each year to experiment with fantasies and drives in a safe, controlled situation.

And while for some parents, the thought of little Joey suited up as an Uzi-toting "Soldier of Fortune" may seem like an appalling omen of psychological disturbance to come, experts say such costumes are actually a healthy expression of the natural stages in a child's development. They also can serve to give kids a sense of mastery over their own fears, and can be a way of joining with their peers.

Says Dr. Jason Stengel, a licensed psychologist and director of the Psychological Counseling Center in Norwood, "It's an experiment for later life."

The fifth and sixth graders crowding around a visitor at the Balch School in Norwood during a recent morning recess were more than happy to relate the intricate details of their Halloween costumes and their plans for trick or treating.

"I'm going to be a robber," declared 10-year-old Mike Anagnos, who said he was teaming up with friends for the event. "We're going out and we're going to shoot water guns and we'll chase girls and stuff down the street."

"I'm being a gypsy 'cause I can wear all my jewelry," explained 11-year-old Christine Doe. Her friend Cheryl Palsic, also 11, had a similar outfit in mind — that of a dance hall girl. "My mother has this old dress that I can wear. I can wear that and lots of jewelry," she offered. Such feminine costumes are a new idea for both girls, who last year dressed as a clown and a "mailwoman," respectively.

Ten-year-olds Debra Narkevicius and Ida Samargedlis planned to make themselves up as old ladies, while Eric Griffin, 11, said he was dressing as "Twisted Sister" rock star Dee Snyder, and classmate Michael Fraone reported that he and his friends would be robbers "because they go around taking people's candy." Griffin said last year he was a "ghostbuster" and his friend's sister was a ghost "so I chased her all the way around the neighborhood."

Should Griffin's and Fraone's parents worry that their kids are getting too involved in this little bit of play-acting? Not a chance, say psychologists.

"I think it's constructive as long as it's kept under control, and I think one of the best ways to keep it under control is to have community parties ... places to return to after trick or treating," commented Dr. Edward Pollak, a licensed clinical psychologist and director of clinical services at ACA Counseling Services in Walpole. "Lots of 13- and 14-year-old boys, (for example), have acting out ideologies, but on this particular night they can really let it all out and act as little hoods," Pollak added. "I've been in practice for 15 years and I've seen scads of that."

"Halloween, as a holiday, is a way to express feelings that might not be acceptable in any other (situation)," agreed Stengel, of the Psychological Counseling Center. "They can scare people; they can act angry."

Stengel said he often suggests to parents that they take pictures of their kids in costume "so that the children later on can see themselves and remind themselves of how they looked," as well as to let the children know that "it's OK to be scary."

If the costume a kid selects does "strike a chord" with parents, it might be a signal that the parents need to examine their own feelings around a certain issue, rather than that there is any cause for concern about the child, Stengel noted.

For children in the primary grades, monsters, witches and other "agressive" costumes can be wonderful vehicles for overcoming their fears, the psychologists agreed. As Leele Pustake, district supervisor for the Norwood branch of Family Service Center for Counseling, put it: "You be that so you can conquer it."

For a little kid, who is usually smaller than the people around him or her, and is easily frightened by so many things, getting a chance to turn the tables and play the goblin for a change can be a big confidence-booster. And parents can add to a young child's sense of power by joining in and pretending, in a playful way, to be scared by the costume.

But while all of the psychologists contacted agree there are some basic themes underlying children's costume choices at various age levels, they also are quick to point out the importance of parental influence at very young ages, and of fads and advertising on older kids.

"I think that most likely the way kids pick costumes has more to do with the way they are marketed: how much of a certain costume they see on TV, or how much it's in the stores, or how much it relates to something they see on TV," said Dr. Lonnie Carton, a Newton psychologist and commentator on WEEI-radio's "The Learning Center."

"We read so much psychology into just normal types of things," she declared, adding that there is nothing wrong with most costumes "as long as kids can differentiate between what they are and what they act like."

Is there anything a child could choose to be that might be cause for concern? Well, maybe, say the psychologists, but only if it were extreme or age- or sex-inappropriate.

"The parents might be concerned, for example, if a seven- or eight-year-old boy, who should be, really, more into masculine stereotype behavior, started dressing up in a girl's outfit," commented William Corley, director of children's services for Cutler Counseling Center in Norwood. "I think the light bulb would go off: maybe this kid has some identity problems (that are) not abnormal, but maybe might make life a little more difficult."

And while such crossing of sexually stereotyped lines isn't necessarily a problem, it would certainly be an OK place for parents to get involved in the costume selection process — to explore why their child was interested in that particular costume, or even to suggest that the child might face some peer pressure during trick or treating, or that there might be reason to select another outfit, Stengel suggests.

Corley adds that there might be some concern about a 14- or 15-year-old who was still dressing up in costumes, because such activities are not as appropriate at that age level.

"I think if a kid were to say, 'I don't see any costume I like — I want to be Charles Manson,' (it might be cause for concern)," commented Carton. But even then, she added, "children don't create the violence. They don't create the association. Parents do that."

So as cuddly bunnies and clowns give way to werewolves and warriors, wild rock stars and aliens, the best thing parents can do is simply mourn the passing and take these changing costumes in stride.

Says Carton, "That's one of the little choices we should give kids."

'Ladies First' at Lasell Jr. College

AUBURNDALE — Ladies First, a one-woman presentation by Robin Lane Productions, is set to appear at Lasell Junior College's Winslow Hall on Wednesday, Nov. 13, at 8 p.m.

In a kaleidoscope of history that reveals the women behind the image of First Lady, the presentation spans the years from Rachel Jackson to Jackie Kennedy.

Robin Lane, the actress who portrays five American first ladies, is a direct descendent of Abigail Adams, who was the wife of John Adams (our second president) and the mother of John Quincy Adams (our sixth president).

The event, free and open to the public, is presented as part of the Lasell Junior Concert and Lecture Series and in conjunction with the Founders' Day celebration, which marks Lasell's 134th anniversary this year.

Doctor Study Proves

New Hi-Tech 'Super Pills' Give Faster Weight Loss

Diet Pills Sweeping U.S.
No Dieting—Eat Normally

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special)— Good news for overweight people! If you want to lose weight fast, you no longer have to guess which diet product to use.

A recent clinical weight loss study was conducted by a panel of medical doctors in California on groups of overweight people to determine which of the five most popular weight loss products was the most effective. One product, the amazing new "hi-tech super pills" proved to be vastly superior to all the others tested in the study and even gave almost "3 times faster" weight loss than the famous grapefruit diet pills.

All Lost up to 1 lb. Per Day

Best of all, the pills allow you to "continue to eat all of your favorite foods without changing your normal eating or exercising habits and still lose weight easier and faster than ever before, starting immediately." The manufacturer "guarantees" it. Remarkably, ALL people in the new 'hi-tech' super pills clinical test group lost weight (an average of ½ lb. per day up to 1 lb. per day or the equivalent of 15 to 30 lbs. per month.) It also helps eliminate bloat and puffiness.

"Pills Do All the Work"

According to the clinical study, "the pills alone do all the work while you quickly lose weight with NO starvation "diet menus" to follow, NO calorie counting, NO special exercise, and NO hunger pangs." You simply take the pills with a glass of water before meals.

Powerful Appetite Suppressants

The new pills contain a powerful clinically proven appetite suppressant that an advisory panel of doctors have determined to be "safe and effective for weight loss."

In addition, the pills also contain a remarkable calorie-free dietary fiber that expands in your stomach and tends to give you a partially satisfied feeling before you eat. Thus, the new combination of ingredients in the pills act 2 ways to aid in curbing your appetite, causing you to eat less, take in less calories, and lose weight without feeling deprived or hungry.

Pills Contain ALL Daily Vitamins

No need to take any vitamins to maintain your good health and energy because the pills are fortified with ALL (100%) of the U.S. Government USRDA recommended daily vitamin requirements.

The amazing 'hi-tech' super pills are already sweeping the country with glowing reports of easy and fast weight loss from formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Now Available to Public

You can order your supply of these new highly successful 'hi-tech' super pills (now available directly from the manufacturer by mail or phone order only) by sending $14 for a 15-day supply (or $20 for a 30-day supply, or $35 for a 60-day supply) cash, check or money order to: Hi-Tech Products, 717 Central Ave., Dept. The hard sell on car leasing

MONEY TALK$

Neville Frankel is Vice President of Financial Planning Associates Inc., a Boston and New York affiliate of Confidential Planning Network, an international network of more than 120 financial planning firms. Direct questions to Frankel, care of this publication.

Dear Mr. Frankel:

I have always thought of automobile leasing as something for large companies. Several friends, however, have begun leasing their cars, and swear by it. What are the benefits of leasing, and do they outweigh the advantages of owning one's own car?

M.L., Framingham

Dear M.L.:

In the past, businesses and corporations were the primary users of leased vehicles. But the leasing market has changed drastically over the last few years.

One reason why few individuals have chosen to lease their cars in the past is the traditional sense of pride in ownership. The economic advantages of leasing, however, are encouraging more and more people to consider it as an alternative. The monthly payment on a 1985 Mercury Cougar, for example, would be approximately $125 higher if financed than if leased.

Leasing eliminates the need for an initial downpayment. Instead, a security deposit (usually $200-$300), plus the first month's lease payment, will give you the right to drive the car off the lot.

If the car is to be used for business, the entire lease payment can be written off as a business tax deduction.

Generally, the lease period runs for either 36 or 48 months, and there are two kinds of leases. The closed-end lease ends when the lease does; the open-end lease establishes a sale price at which the car will be sold when the lease expires — either to the leasee, or to someone else.

The open-end lease provides the advantages of ownership to the leasee. However, it also creates a potential liability, since the price set for the resale of the car may exceed its worth. If the leasee returns a car that has been valued at $5,000, but it can only be sold for $4,000, the leasee may be liable for the difference.

It may be helpful to compare someone who buys a new car every four years, to the person who elects to lease for the same period.

Both individuals make monthly payments — the buyer to a bank and the leaser to an auto dealer. The buyer has the advantage of building equity in the automobile. This will provide him with cash when he sells the car — cash that can be used as a partial downpayment on his next car. The car owner who uses his vehicle for business also has another advantage: depreciation.

The leaser builds no equity, but he has two distinct advantages over the buyer. First, his monthly payments are probably much lower. Second, he has made no substantial downpayment.

At the end of four years the owner has a car with a resale or trade-in value which may be substantially less than the downpayment required on a new car. The leaser, however, can simply return what he has leased, and apply his returned security deposit toward the leasing of another late-model car. All he needs is the first month's payment.

A thrifty leaser might take the downpayment saved, and turn it into an investment opportunity. For example, you might choose not to buy that shiny red car and elect instead to lease something a little less spectacular. Your monthly payments would have halved, and you could invest the difference. And what about the downpayment you've avoided making? Well, if it were a substantial $5,000, and you invested it in a tax-deferred program at 10 percent, it would grow to $30,000 in 20 years.

And it wouldn't be long before the interest earned on your $5,000 could be used toward making payments on cars leased in the future.

Crafts persons and food purveyors wanted for state assistance survey

BOSTON — Crafts persons and food purveyors in the Newton area may participate in a program sponsored by the Massachusetts Department of Commerce and the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture to promote the sale of their products.

A survey is being conducted under the Crafted in Massachusetts Program to assess the need for promotional assistance in the production and marketing of specialty food items and hand crafted goods.

Those interested in starting their own businesses may participate in the survey by writing: Sheila Feeney, crafted in Massachusetts, Massachusetts Department of Commerce, 100 Cambridge St., Boston.

New clothing store on 'cutting edge'

NEWTON CENTRE — Finesse, a clothing store for the "fashion-forward" woman, opened at 81 Union Street, Piccadilly Square, Newton Centre recently. The 1,500 square-foot shop will be owned and operated by Fern Chitel and Sandee Rudofsky.

The Finesse fashion emphasis will be, in the words of Rudofsky, on the cutting edge of high fashion. "Our clothing will be chic and sophisticated and offer great versatility to women who have developed their own individual styles. We will be a unique alternative to the local department stores, especially as we will provide our customers with personal service in a warm and comfortable environment.

"We believe Finesse fills a large void for customers in the suburbs west of Boston," states Chitel. "Our fashions will be unique, and more importantly, a step ahead of what you'll find elsewhere. And for our forward-looking customer, that will be a great benefit."

Eric Stevens taken over by Olken's

Eric Stevens of Newton Centre, one of the area's foremost retailers of men's and boy's clothing, is closing its doors, according to owner Robert Sweet.

Citing changes in the store's Langley Road lease, Sweet confirmed this week that Eric Stevens is being taken over by Olken's of Wellesley.

"We have chosen Olken's to carry on the tradition because the Olken family has operated the store for 40 years and we are sure they will continue the good name of Eric Stevens."

Ladies shop completes renovations

NEWTON CENTRE — Rabbit's Foot, the fashionable ladies and accessory store specializing in comfortable and affordable styles for teenagers and career women, announces the completion of major renovations. This change is a direct response to the changes that have and will take place in Newton Centre.

This store has always been synonomous with exceptional service with a wide selection of quality merchandise. According to Sidney Sandler, owner of Rabbit's Foot, "These renovations have not only enhanced the aesthetic quality of the store, but have provided a substantial increase of both display and seating space to meet the discerning needs of the suburbia teen, young professional and the fashionable suburban women."

Sage's grocers open in Newton Centre

NEWTON — The Sage family, purveyors of fine foods since grandfather Sage started a fruit stand in Harvard Square near the beginning of the century, has returned to Newton Centre.

The new Sage's, located on Langely Road between Centre and Beacon streets, combines the reliability and vitality of the former Sage's Market, which was located on Centre Street until a bit more than five years ago, with the best parts of a well-stocked gourmet food shop.

The interior of the new store, done in blue and white tile, is filled with basic groceries, a complete deli, a meat section that features prime cuts of Black Angus beef and fine foods from around the world.

After a little more than a week back in Newton Centre, the Sage's have already seen a number of their old customers flocking back to their new location.

Doctors win national award for exhibit

WALTHAM — Newton residents Dr. Leonard and Dr. Laurence Cibley, Waltham/Weston Hospital doctors, were the recent recipients of the American College of Obstetrics and Gynecology (ACOG) College award for their exhibit at the May 7-9 annual meeting in Washington, D.C. The exhibit, entitled "Candidiasis and a Critical Look at its Treatment," used a microcomputer-controlled slide show and computerized quiz to explain this vulvo-vaginal infection and its treatment.

The father and son team are actively engaged in obstetric and gynecologic research, with special emphasis on vaginal infections. It was for work of this type that they received the national award. Both doctors are also involved in the production of medical education films and videotapes.

The Doctors Cibley are the only father and son team in practice at Waltham/Weston Hospital. Both physicians practice obstetrics and gynecology and are active in the academic world with teaching appointments at Boston University School of Medicine, where Dr. Laurence Cibley is a clinical professor of obstetrics and gynecology. Both maintain OB/GYN practices at the Waltham Medical Office Building at Waltham/Weston Hospital, and at 683 Beacon St. in Newton Centre.

CICCONE SEEKS INVOLVEMENT

By Edward Cafasso
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Allan L. Ciccone, a candidate for alderman-at-large in Ward 2, believes November's election is his chance to make sure residents have a role in the city's legislative process.

"I'd like to get involved. I'm concerned about the neighborhoods. People who have objections have the right to be heard. Right now, they're calling for a modernization of our zoning ordinances," according to the 45-year-old Fair Oaks Avenue resident.

Ciccone, who retired from the Police Department in 1983, said he would make "a full-time job" out of his aldermanic post.

"I have the time, and it's a job that takes that kind of commitment," he added.

He believes it is "proper" for aldermen and School Committee members to be paid stipends, although he said he would continue his campaign even if the position was completely voluntary.

"For the time they put in, it's right that they get some kind of reimbursement. $3,000 is almost like a token fee," according to Ciccone, who staged an unsuccessful effort to join the Board of Aldermen two years ago.

He believes residents should be given the chance to vote on the current moratorium proposal.

"The people should be heard and the ballot box is place for them to speak out. The moratorium supporters are not asking for a great deal. You have to feel sorry for the people who have commercial buildings going up in the middle of their residential neighborhoods," said Ciccone, who favors a building ban of "at least one year."

He added the residents who abut developer Michael Iodice's planned Crafts Street office building "have a legitimate squawk."

Ciccone, who supported the renovation of the former Warren School during the last campaign, believes a city-owned building should be converted into a library as long as the project can be accomplished safely.

"There's no doubt we need a new library. The building in Newton Corner is almost a disgrace. Most of the city's buildings are in good shape, but the most important one is falling apart.

"The cost to build a new library is going to be astronomical if we don't act on it soon," he added.

Ciccone lives in Newtonville with his wife, Patricia (Maloney), and three children, Allan Jr., 20, Margie, 18, and Shannon, 16.

Costuming for tricks and treats

By Lisa Brems
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Dance school owner Paulette Harwood can look at an orange tutu and see the makings of a pumpkin costume. Or she can transform a plain dime-store mask into a fancy chorus-line type of headpiece, complete with sequins and feathery plumes.

"This tuxedo could be turned into a good cancan outfit," she said holding up a purple satin jacket edged with silver sequins.

Most of the year she channels her considerable imagination into costumes for the annual shows her dance students perform.

But before Halloween, Harwood, who lives in Needham, sells extra costumes and masks to the public from her Oak Street store in Newton.

"When I'm making something, I take what appeals to me," she said. She has accumulated plenty of materials to choose from. Rolls of sequins in all colors cover most of a table top; leftover material and fur strips fill many drawers, and bags of feathers are stored under tables.

She buys feathers wholesale in New York. One of her costumes, which may be rented, but is not for sale, is made entirely of peacock tail feathers.

Harwood's Halloween costume business began 18 years ago in her garage. Friends frequently asked her if she had extra costumes, so one year she decided to sell fancy costumes in her garage. "It was uncanny the way people came. They wiped me out," she said.

She still enjoys making costumes. "It's fun."

Sometimes she sells costumes she decided in midstream were not right for her dance shows. "Halfway through I decided not to use these," she said holding up a bag full of frilly aprons that at one time were going to be part of French maid costumes.

Harwood attributes her love of both dance and costume designing to her mother and grandmother, both of whom danced and sewed.

The Broadway flavor of many of her costumes is not coincidental. "I try to recreate for my students what it was like for me when I performed," Harwood said.

Paulette Harwood sits amongst her costume creations in her Oak Street store in Newton.

Ted Fitzgerald photo

Harwood, 58, danced professionally from the time she was 14 until she married at 24.

Among her experiences includes a stint as a ballerina at the Radio City Music Hall from 1945 to 1948. She also danced for Broadway producer Billy Rose at his Diamond Horseshoe club in New York.

While she was a high school student at Brookline High, she toured with Billy Rose's company. Her grandmother accompanied her, and made all her costumes, she said.

Paulette and her husband Paul, a sales manager for Global Petroleum in Waltham, have three daughters, Pauline 32, Paula 30, and Paulette Jr. 21, all of whom are dancers. Paulette and her daughters occasionaly perform together.

> 'I try to recreate for my students what it was like for me when I performed.'
>
> Paulette Harwood

Their names ended up being similar, Harwood said, because by the time the second daughter was born, "what else could we call her, she would have felt left out (since her parents' names also started with "P") if we'd named her Susan or something like that."

Harwood started teaching dance 26 years ago so she could teach her daughters. She started teaching them at home, but they didn't want to do what mom told them to, Harwood said. In a class with other students, they followed directions without problems.

Harwood always wanted to dance. "I don't ever remember not wanting to be a dancer."

And she still enjoys it. "I love every minute of it. I'd be very unhappy if I couldn't dance. My kicks aren't quite as high, but I can still do most of the things." She teaches ballet classes evenings and all day Saturday.

Heartbreak Hill race is November 3

BOSTON — On Nov. 3, an estimated 3,500 people will compete in the Superoni Heartbreak Hill 10K to raise money for the treatment of birth defects, it was announced today by Ruth M. Silin, director of Development at Kennedy Memorial Hospital for Children, and Charles E. Fiske, director of The Genesis Fund.

This is the first year The Prince Co., Inc., Lowell, the country's largest independent pasta manufacturer, will sponsor the race that has raised close to $100,000 for the care and treatment of multi-handicapped children over the past eight years. All proceeds from the race will benefit the hospital and The Genesis Fund, a non-profit organization dedicated to the treatment and prevention of birth defects.

"Prince's sponsorship of the 10K in 1985 marks the union of two great Boston traditions," said Silin. "We're extremely grateful for this support that will affect thousands of children right here in Boston, and that will benefit the treatment of children born with birth defects around the country."

Fiske, whose daughter Jamie needed a liver transplant, understands first-hand the impact of birth defects on families. "People trying to make sense of this overwhelming and confusing issue often feel the economic and emotional burden is theirs alone," said Fiske. "Events like the Superoni 10K educate the general public about the issue, and create heightened awareness and support for those people whose lives are deeply affected by birth defects."

The Superoni 10K will begin at 10 a.m. on Sunday, Nov. 3. Runners will meet at the M.D.C. Pump House on Beacon St. (across from the Chestnut Hill Reservoir) and run through Newton and over the famous Heartbreak Hill. At the end of the race, participants will be invited to a celebration party at the Pump House Finish Line, where refreshments and Superoni, the high protein, low-cholesterol pasta made by Prince will be served.

Prize money totalling $5,000 will be shared among the top 10 male and female winners. In addition, prizes will be presented to the top male and female finishers in divisions including 18 and under, 19-29, 30-39, 40-49, 50-59, 60 and over, plus the wheel-chair division.

While runners for this year's race have not been announced yet, the 10K has attracted such prestigious runners as Joan Benoit, Dan Dillon and Guy Stearns in the past. In 1984, Greg Meyer and Nancy Conz took first place in their respective divisions.

Conventures, Inc., Boston, race coordinators, will handle applications and the $7 entry fee. Applications also will be available at all major sporting goods outlets, sports and fitness centers and universities in the Boston area. Mail-in entries must be received by Oct. 30. Late entries, costing $8, will be accepted on Saturday, Nov. 2, at the day care office of Kennedy Memorial Hospital, 30 Warren St., Brighton.

Runners can check-in and receive their numbers and race information on Saturday, Nov. 2, between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. at Kennedy Memorial's Day Care office or on Sunday, at the Pump House Starting Line between 7:30 and 9 a.m. Commemorative T-shirts and baseball caps will be distributed to runners as well.

For further race information, call Conventures at 267-0055.

Jewels & Gems
BY CAROL
THE GOLD LADY

SETTINGS AND MOUNTINGS

Stones may be set or mounted in metal in various styles. In an "open setting," the stone is set in prongs or claws. The prongs touch the stone in as few places as possible, making the stone visible in all directions. A "belcher" setting is an open setting that is relatively flat. "Tiffany" setting is high, permitting the maximum amount of light to reflect and refract in the gem. In a "closed setting," there are no prongs. The stone is set in a cavity in the metal. If the stone is set flush with the setting, the mounting is called a "gypsy mounting." Another type of mounting is called "pave" or "en pave." Small stones are set in prongs over a closed backing, giving a studded effect.

Whatever style setting you choose, be certain the jeweler is an experienced craftsman. You can have complete confidence when you shop at CAROL "THE GOLD LADY." We are noted for our custom jewelry and our remounting of heirloom jewelry. You'll also be able to select all types of gems in the various settings mentioned. Visit us at 109 Dalby St., Newton to view a beautiful selection of all jewelry. Tues., Wed., Sat. 10-6; Thurs. & Fri. til 9. Call us at 332-5935. Most major credit cards accepted.

South bounces back

By Mike Stoller
Sports Correspondent

BEDFORD — It was as though everyone knew their lines to utmost perfection. Newton South had rehearsed and rehearsed for this one all last week. Finally, Saturday afternoon, the stage was set; the troupers were ready. And when the show was over, the football Lions had responded with an awe-inspiring peformance, a 28-8 Dual County League victory over the Bedford High School Buccaneers.

With the win, South got itself back on the right track after losing to DCL powerhouses Boston Latin (37-8) and Concord-Carlisle (43-8) the past two weeks.

The Lions were in high gear all day, totaling a remarkable 328 rushing yards and 22 first downs. Seniors Kevin Rollins (125 yards on 28 carries, including a TD) and Dave Mosby (113 yards on 15 carries) and sophomore Leroy Browne (73 yards on 12 carries, including a pair of TDs) led South's awesome ground game from start to finish. But perhaps the irony of the whole thing was that Newton's biggest play of the game in importance came on an option-pass with 1:04 remaining in the first half.

Holding onto a slim, 14-8, lead, the Lions played the option to perfection on a crucial fourth-and-19 situation from the Buccaneer 20. Quarterback Ben Burlingame pitched out to Rollins, who promptly delivered an on-the-button touchdown strike to Chris Tyler in the right corner of the end zone. Burlingame ran for the conversion to make the score 22-8.

"That (the option play) was the turning point," South coach Art Kojoyian said. "It put us over the hump, gave us some room to breathe. Then, in the second half, we just ran right at them because that's what we felt we could do."

And indeed it worked. After the two clubs dueled to a scoreless third quarter, the Lions took advantage of a Bedford fumble early in the final frame and marched 70 yards for six points on a drive that ate up nearly nine minutes on the clock. Rollins did the bulk of the legwork, rushing for 42 yards and scoring the eventual touchdown on a four-yard breakthrough to put South on top, 28-8. Due credit must also be given to Newton's strong offensive line, which made big gaps for its runners all afternoon.

"We felt we were prepared (for the game)," Bedford coach Armand Sabourin said later. "They (the Lions) just beat us up front on the line."

A prime example of this came on the first possession of the game when the Lions paraded 80 yards on the ground for the score. Rollins, Mosby and Browne brought South from its own 20 to the Buccaneer 35. Then, the offensive line made room for Browne, who burst up the middle and eluded several tacklers on his way to the end zone. The fleet-footed tailback also added the conversion to give the Lions an early, 8-0, edge.

Newton, aided by the fine defensive efforts of brothers John and Rob Hillis, forced the home club to punt once again, giving South good field position at its own 42. Then, a couple of key runs by Browne and Mosby set up the Rollins-to-Tyler TD. The first, a 14-yard sprint by Browne, put the ball on the Bedford 36, while the second, a 13-yard jostle-up-the-middle by Mosby, gave South control at the Buccaneer 23. Soon after, Newton struck with the big play, and the Lions led, 22-8, at the break.

"We ran that play deliberately to fake them out," Kojoyian said. "We knew they weren't expecting Rollins to throw the ball."

South's final tally came on its first possession of the fourth quarter. Again, Newton's defense played an instrumental role, as the Lions put a halt to a Bedford 55-yard drive with some nice teamwork. Mosby stripped the ball from Donny Campbell, before Browne quickly pounced on the loose ball and gave South control on its own 30. A magnificent running attack led by Rollins on Newton's next possession sealed the win for the Lions, who ran their record to 4-2 overall and 1-2 in the DCL.

So how does Kojoyian explain the downfalls of the past two games compared with this week's sudden uprising? According to the South skipper, the answer is quite simple. "Concord-Carlisle and Boston Latin are loaded with athletes," the coach said. "We're not in that category, neither is Bedford. When you're young and inexperienced like we are, talented athletes will do a job on you...(But) when we can match up with teams (such as Bedford), we'll execute and do things right."

So, with the big win under their belts, the Lions will have all the momentum they'll need when they face a very powerful West Roxbury club Saturday at Newton South. Kickoff is at 2 p.m.

Lion booters win on Abroms' free kick

ACTON — Dave Abroms got Newton South rolling early, tipping a free kick home two minutes into the contest Friday to ignite the Lions to a 2-1 victory over host Acton-Boxboro, keeping the Lions' tournament hopes alive.

With a 6-4-3 record, South needs to win its final game of the regular season to qualify for the Eastern Mass. Tournament. Wednesday, the Lions will travel to Concord-Carlisle to battle the first-place Patriots.

Abroms deflected a Paolo Sepe free kick from midfield to give Newton an early 1-0 lead. Abroms fed Phil Leibovitch 23 minutes later for a 2-0 edge, and the South defense held off the Acton attack for the remainder of the period.

Acton lit the scoreboard five minutes into the second half on a low shot that rebounded off goalie Alex Levine's hands and into the net.

With the low sun shining in his eyes, Levine held tough for the remainder top post the narrow victory.

Bourland spurs North

Newton North kept pace with Brookline at the top of the Suburban League with an 8-1 romp over host North Quincy on Wednesday. Each team has lost twice.

Peter Bourland led the Newton North attack with a hat trick, while Phil Vasiliades chipped in a goal and two assists.

The Tigers opened up a 5-1 lead by halftime, as the game's outcome was never in doubt once North opened the scoring 13 seconds into the game.

Bourland took care of that one, as brother Steve took possession of the kickoff, fed Ed O'Brien, who chipped it in to Peter.

The score stayed that way for 12 minutes, though North kept the pressure on, until Ken Kazarosian gave the Tigers some breathing room with a goal from five yards out. Brian Scales began the play and Vasiliades' cross set up Kazarosian.

A minute later North Quincy scored its only goal of the day, though it was hardly a gem as a Newton North defender inadvertently headed it in.

Vasiliades quickly got that back on a left-footer from in close.

The Tigers didn't let up in the second half. Albert finished off a nice passing play from Peter Bourland and O'Brien at the six-minute mark, and three minutes later Peter completed his hat trick, assisted by Vasiliades and O'Brien.

As far as winning the league title, North coach Roger Brown admits, "We definitely need some help, but we've also got to do it ourselves."

Adams, Rutan ignite Tigers

By Roy LeBlanc
Staff Writer

LEOMINSTER — This was the one Peter Capodilupo has been waiting for since he took over as the Newton North coach in the fall of 1984. That day when everything he touched turned to gold. That day when his Tigers went out and executed everything he's been drilling into them since the first day of double sessions. The day Newton North would thoroughly dominate a legitimate football team.

Saturday was the day and Leominster was the team. For two quarters, the Tigers looked like the Green Bay Packers of the 1960s. Nothing fancy, just the linemen blowing away their opponents and the backs zipping through the holes.

The Tigers used that formula to build a 27-0 lead that would let them coast to a 34-20 victory over the host Blue Devils.

"I've been telling the kids that X's and O's don't win the game," said Capodilupo, "emotion is flesh and blood. In order to be emotional we have to hit, and the kids rose to the occasion."

Leominster did adjust a bit at halftime, aided by the absence of Newton fullback Chris Rutan, who sprained an ankle in the second period, but the Tigers responded when they had to. Once the Blue Devils closed to 27-14, Mark Adams ripped off a 59-yard touchdown run to plant the marker on the Leominster grave.

That capped what was by far the best day of the junior halfback's career. He rang up 192 yards on 20 carries, scoring twice. In addition, he had a 52-yarder called back in the fourth period.

Those numbers are impressive enough, but for a true picture of the game, just take a look at the first half. That's when the game was on the line, and before the break, Adams already had 119 yards and one TD.

Rutan shouldn't be overlooked by any means, though the injury kept his yardage total under 100. Playing less than a half, the senior fullback still found time to rush for 85 yards and score three times.

Of course, that duo had the luxury of running behind a line that looked like the Marines storming Grenada. The fire in the eyes of the Tigers turned the play in the pits into a mismatch.

Guards Evan Galanis and Dave Redmond and tackle Demitri Diatchenko led the way with their best efforts of the season.

The situation wasn't much different on defense. Brian Claflin, John Flynn and Scott Lancilotti sparked a charge that buried their counterparts.

Newton made Doyle Field its own private preserve from the opening whistle. Leominster's first four possessions consisted of: four plays (punt), four plays (punt), four plays (interception) and eight plays (sack on punt attempt).

The Tigers answered with: nine plays (TD), three plays (TD), eight plays (TD) and six plays (TD). You get the idea.

The offense had been behind the eight-ball all day against Malden last week, but things were different on Saturday. Four plays and a punt, and right away North had the ball at the Tiger 49.

When Mike Ryan opened up with a 15-yard keeper, North fans got the merest inkling of what was to come.

The Tigers even overcame consecutive penalties, which hasn't often been the case this season. The key was an 11-yard run by Adams on third down, followed by a 15-yard flag on Leominster. That put the ball at the Blue Devil 15, and two plays later Adams swept it in from the 13.

Redmond (4-for-4) added the point, and quickly it was 7-0.

It got even easier after that. On the third play of the second possession, Rutan took off on a 55-yard jaunt that ended in paydirt. The senior broke up the middle and used his sprinter's speed to cut left and outrun the two guys who had a shot at him.

Things went from bad to worse for the Blue Devils when David Gates picked off their second pass attempt of the day. Gates might have taken care of business himself, with some running room in front of him, but he slipped and went down at the Newton 46.

No matter. This was the kind of day that the offense just couldn't wait to get another chance.

Adams immediately broke off a 21-yard, stopped by the last man between him and the goal line. The Tigers had to know things were going their way when Rutan fumbled the ball after a nine-yard gain and watched it bounce out of bounds, with North retaining possession.

Rutan was given the honor of finishing the drive, bulling his way off left tackle from the three.

Rutan also served as the closer on TD drive number four, though Adams set it up with dashes of 19 and 20 yards. Again the Tigers were able to overcome an untimely penalty at the Leominster two.

That made it 27-0, which was enough to win the ballgame, though the Blue Devils weren't quite ready to concede. Surprisingly enough, for a wing-T team, it was the pass which got them back on the beam. A 31-yard strike from Dave White to Peter Charpentier over the middle wound up setting up Shawn Carr's one-yard run. What hurt North more than the TD on that sequence was that Rutan went out with the ankle sprain, complicating a problem he's had with the joint all season. He's questionable for this week's contest against Arlington.

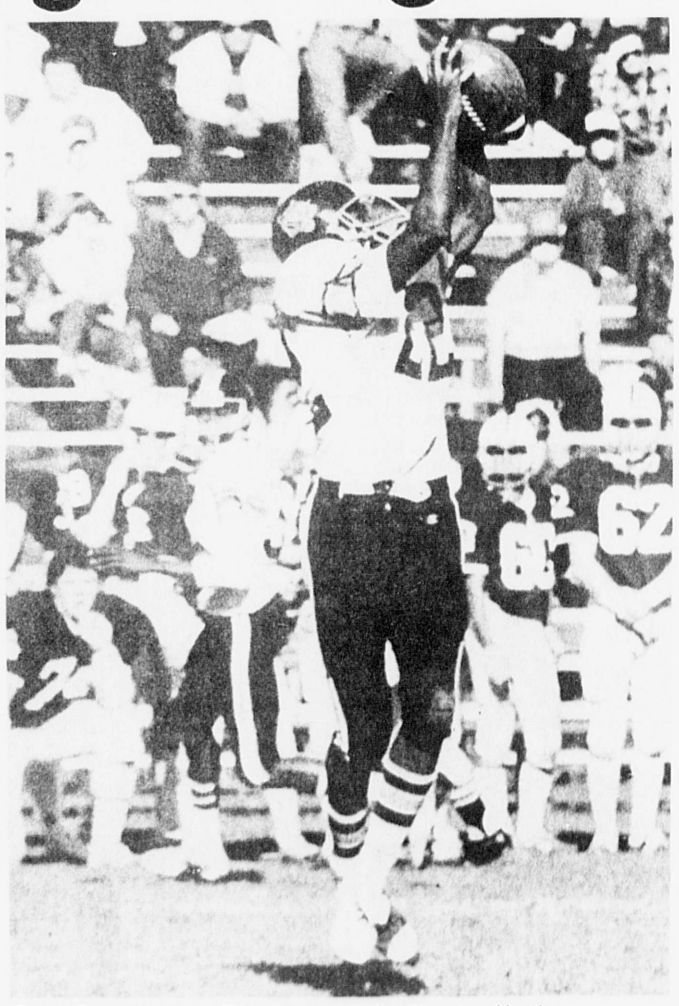

Perhaps understandably, the Tiger offense wasn't quite as efficient after the half, though North held the ball most of the third quarter and missed out on a score only because of an interception at the Leominster six.

The Blue Devils marched it all the way back to the Newton end zone, again led by White's passing. In only his second game as the Devil QB, the junior hit Charpentier for 22 yards, Joe Siciliano for 22, and Charpentier again for 11, with the latter putting six on the board early in the fourth quarter.

Rick Millette's boot made it 27-14, and it looked as though it might turn into an interesting game after all. Adams ended any such notions with a great individual effort two plays after North got the ball back. The line gave him a hole, and he took care of the rest. White was the last man to have a shot at him, but Adams turned the defensive back completely around on his way to the end zone.

Carr went in again from the two later on, but that was strictly for the scorekeeper.

North tries to keep it going on Saturday at Arlington at 2 p.m.

North harriers shaded by undefeated Cantabs

CAMBRIDGE — It was a showdown for the Suburban League title, and Cambridge Rindge and Latin left no doubt about which team earned it, taking a 24-35 cross country victory over Newton North on Monday at Fresh Pond.

That result left Newton North at 4-1 for the season, while Cambridge finishes at 5-0.

Though losing the war, the Tigers did win a battle, as Barry Logan outdueled Scott Cody for first place.

Logan ran a 14:51, only a second off the 2.9-mile course record, while Cody, Cambridge's superb sophomore, took second at 15:15.

Cody has been one of the top runners in the state all year, and he stayed with Logan for about two miles. Finally, Logan took off just before hitting a hill at the two-mile mark and Cody never caught him.

Jamie Kreider also had a very good run for North, grabbing third only 11 seconds behind Cody.

But after that, the Cantab depth took over. The next five runners across the line were from Cambridge.

The Tigers were hampered by some injury troubles, as Rob Wellenstein has had a bad ankle and finished 10th, while North's number five man, Paul Shea, twisted his ankle on the course and couldn't finish.

North will run in the State Coaches' Meet this weekend.

Cambridge 24, Newton North 35
1. Logan (NN) 14:51. 2. Cody (C). 3. Kreider (NN). 4. Prince (C). 5. Affefen (C). 6. Campbell (C). 7. Mohani (C). 8. Forde (C). 9. Partridge (NN). 10. Wellenstein (NN).

Fitzpatrick, Feeney top Sons of Italy road race

NEWTON — Dermot Fitzpatrick and Tara Feeney pulled in winners recently at the 12th Annual Columbus Day Junior Road Race sponsored by the Newton Sons of Italy, Lodge 1609.

Fitzpatrick, 16, a Lexington High School student, won the boys' race, breaking the tape in 10:56, and was presented the Sons of Italy Trophy by President Joe Marzilli. Last year, Fitzpatrick was the third-place runner up.

Feeney, a Newton North track star, won the girls' division for the second straight year, this time with a 13:44 finish. A seven-time participant in the Columbus Day affair, Feeney, 16, was presented the Daughters of Italy Trophy by President Joan Proia.

Watertown High's Bob Bushey won the Legion Post 440 Trophy for his second-place finish (11:46) in the boys' division. The award was presented by Post Commander George Reynolds.

Third place went to Jonis Marcvoldims, 13, of Newton, who was presented the I.T.A.M. Post 50 Trophy by Bob Vassolotti.

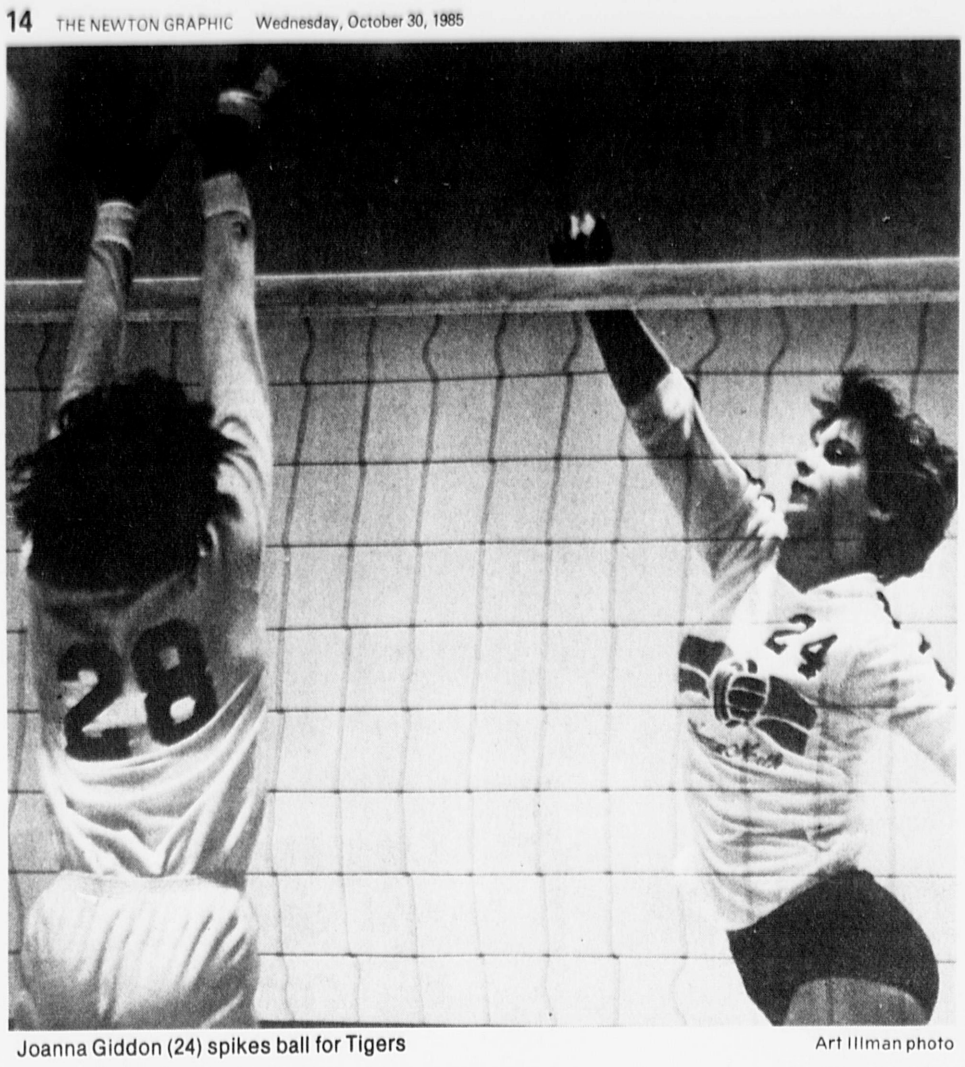

In the girls' division, Jenny Martin, 10, of the Waltham track Club took second place and the Newton Girls' Club Trophy presented by Joan Leary, Girls' Club Advisor.

Mirian Kornitzer, 12, of Newton finished third, winning the Patty's Doughnut Trophy presented by Alice Weber, Financial Secretary of the Women's Lodge.

Steve MacEvoy of Watertown High School won the 14-year old race, Mathew Riely of Newton took first in the 13-year old contest, Ted Fitzpatrick finished first in the 12-year old race, and Wendy Srocewski wonn the 11-year old race.

Seven-year-old Julie Sellers won the Youngest Finisher and Beth O'Hare, 8, won the Best Effort.

Joanna Giddon (24) spikes ball for Tigers

Tigers blast Brockton in volleyball behind Giddon

BROCKTON — Joanna Giddon starred on defense, which was the name of the game Monday as Newton North destroyed Brockton in two games, 15-4, 15-1, to improve its volleyball record to 13-2.

"I can see much more communication and more strength now that season is coming to an end," said North Coach Jay Cradle. "They have been steadily improving."

North got excellent setting by Tessa Forbes, Wendy Rogers, and Christine Sullivan while Jody Rogers and Nikki Cradle had good net play. The back row star was Nancy Sullivan with the deadly spikes.

Friday, Newton North beat Cambridge, Rindge & Latin in two straight, but it was far from easy.

Both games ended with the Tigers on top, 16-14, and required good play from the entire team. Cambridge led early in both matches but North proved too strong.

Joanna Giddon had the power dink down to an art in the first game, with Nancy Sullivan serving two aces to bring North within one, 13-12, in that contest.

Nancy Sullivan took over from there. At 14-14, Sullivan spiked a bullet that could not be returned, setting up the final point by Jody Rogers.

Rogers was doing the setting in game two, getting the ball to Giddon and Sullivan, who both finished off the plays.

Nikki Cradle had a strong game, as did Chris Sullivan (one ace to tie it, 14-14). Cradle's power dink put North in the lead, 15-14, then she served the clinching point.

North will host Quincy on Wednesday.

Waltham losses two

Things are looking up for Waltham as the Hawks took North Quincy to the limit before falling in game three, 15-12, Monday.

Waltham lost the first contest, 15-11, before evening the score in a 15-7 game-two victory. The Hawks fell behind, 10-2, in the deciding match before Juridgian brought the team back with six straight points.

Waltham Coach Dave Simeone praised the work of his net players and also cited the play of Andrea Ciampa and Sandra Plourde.

In action on Friday, Waltham lost to Acton-Boxboro in two straight as Plourde and Juridgian played well. Lynne Burgess performed well off the bench for the Hawks.

Waltham will play at Newton South on Wednesday.

South falls

Newton South battled 'til the end Monday, swapping points with Brookline in the deciding game before succumbing, 16-14, in game two.

South lost the first match, 15-5, but came back to give Brookline a run for the money in game two. Brookline came out early to take the lead before South tied it at 8-8. The Lions would tie the score three times more before Brookline rattled off two straight to post the deciding game.

Newton South Coach George Papalambros cited the play of freshman Ellen Hackel off the bench, Jen Lerman, and Anamirta Otero.

South, 2-13, will host Waltham on Wednesday.

Friday, South lost to defending champion Quincy in two straight, 15-0, 15-12.

Hackell played well, as did Otero, who was moved from setter to spiker.

LaValle scores hole-in-one at Woodland

Andy LaValle of Waltham scored a hole-in-one at Woodland Golf Club Tuesday on 13th hole, a 190-yard par 3. He used a number 4 wood, shooting into a stiff wind.

LaValle was playing with Eddie Wedge of Brockton, Glenn Aramo of Stoneham and Felix Orlandella of Brockton.

LaValle, 35, owns LaValle Bakery Distributor of Waltham, has been playing golf only two years and has taken 10 shots off his handicap, lowering it to a 15.

The foursome were playing an informal 4-ball match. LaValle was the guest for the day of Wedge, who is a Woodland member. LaVallee finished with an 89 for the round, with a 39 on the backside.

It was his first hole-in-one ever.

South relay team close to record

The medley relay team missed the Newton South High record by just half-a-second, but the win in that event wasn't enough to carry the Lions to victory, as the Lions lost a 94-78 decision to Wayland at Newton North pool on Tuesday.

Amy Freedman started the Lions off on the right stroke with a split of 32 seconds in the relay. Following were Wendy Goldenberg, Angelica Brisk and Wendy Meltzer, and the quartet wound up with a time of 2:09.32.

Goldenberg, Freedman and Meltzer accounted for the only other Newton South firsts in the meet.

Goldenberg set a personal best of 1:19.01 in the butterfly for a another South win.

Finally, Meltzer turned in a 1:16.25 in the breaststroke for first.

The 3-6 Lions will host Melrose on Thursday at 5 p.m. at Newton North.

The summaries:

Wayland 94, Newton South 78

Raider's goal gives South girls 1-1 draw

NEWTON — Mara Raider fired a cannon blast into the Acton-Boxboro net 40 seconds into the second half to give Newton South a 1-1 girls' soccer tie on Friday at Newton South in a Dual County League contest.

Katrina Antonellis set the play up, bringing the ball up the middle and shooting toward the near post. The ball bounced off a defender out to the 18, where Raider picked it up and blasted it into the upper right corner.

That was already South's third shot of the half, and the Lions continued to dominate, though they never scored again. South finished with 15 shots in the second half, to Acton-Boxboro's one.

The Lions also outshot the Colonials in the first half, 14-7, but A-B got the only goal of the half. Speedster Mary Beth Monahan keyed it, on kind of a strange play.

A stiff cross wind kept the ball on one side of the field the entire game. Monahan got loose for a 2-on-1 break that fullback Hendi Crosby stopped, but the ball bounced over the South end line. That resulted in the only corner kick of the day that was with the wind.

The corner sailed right into the middle, but bounced out to a halfback, 30 yards away. She fired a long ball that looked like it was going over the far post, but the wind caught it and shoved it down and into the net.

Now 3-7-3, the Lions take on league-leading Concord-Carlisle in the season finale at South on Wednesday.

Entertainment

'Dreyfus' to show

NEWTON — The Jewish Theater of New England, the resident theater company of the Leventhal-Sidman Jewish Community Center, will present "Dreyfus in Rehearsal" by Jean-Claude Grumberg, adapted by Garson Kanin, directed by Will LeBow.

The production will take place in the Wasserman Auditorium, Leventhal-Sidman Jewish Community Center, 333 Nahanton St., Newton Centre, on Nov. 3, 9, 10, 16, 21, 23, 24, at 8 p.m. and Nov. 10, 17, 24, at 3 p.m.

"Dreyfus in Rehearsal" is a spirited play within a play, set in Vilna, Poland, 1931 romance, history, comedy and drama blended into a poignant tale as a local community theater group enacts a production exploring the life of Captain Alfred Dreyfus.

Advance tickets will be on sale at the Leventhal-Sidman Jewish Community Center, 965-7410, ext. 169, out of town tickets, Harvard Square, 492-1900; and Concert Charge, 497-118. General admission is $8; members of the Jewish Community Center, $7; students and senior citizens, $5. For further information, please call 965-7410, ext. 169.

Vet's Day plans set

NEWTON — The annual City of Newton Veteran's Day Observance will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 6, at 7 p.m., at the Nonantum Post 440 American Legion, 295 California St., Newton, Saul Klashman, president-elect of the Newton Veterans' Council advised this week.

All veterans within the City of Newton and surrounding cities and towns, as well as other members of the public, are invited to attend the ceremony. Mayor Theodore D. Mann, a World War II veteran with service in the Asiatic Pacific Theater, will greet the City of Newton. The guest speaker will be Anthony J. Bicchieri, Jr., a Vietnam veteran, past department commander of the American Legion, and past commander of Nonantum Post 440. Monte G. Basbas will be the installing officer; he is currently presiding justice of the Newton District Court and a veteran of World War II with service in the Asiatic Pacific Theater and during the Korean War.

Following the Veteran's Day Observance and the Installation of Officers of the Newton Veterans' Council, a collation and social program will be held for those in attendance.

On Monday, Nov. 11, at 10 a.m., the veterans leadership of Newton will participate in the 32nd annual observance of Veteran's Day at the Hall of Flags, State House, Boston. At the end of the State House observance comes the annual American Legion Veteran's Day parade in Boston, featuring members of Newton Post 48, George D. Carson Post 141, Nonantum Post 440 and Newton Women's Post 410. The Newton Legionnaires and the Joseph F. Hill Post No. 156 Waltham American Legion Band will march in the Middlesex County contingent. The Newton units will form next to Montana's, Commonwealth Avenue, Boston, at 12:30 p.m.

Cultural implant

Election to be aired

NEWTON — The Newton Chapter of the League of Women Voters and Continental Cable of Newton will present live election coverage of this year's Mayoral, Aldermanic and School Committee races from Newton City Hall, and Continental's local production studio, on Tuesday, Nov. 5 beginning at 8 p.m.

Noemi Aid fashion show will benefit handicapped

Noemi Aid to Handicapped Children (United Order True Sisters) will hold its 108th Annual Luncheon and Fashion Show by Nikki at the Marriott Hotel in Newton on Nov. 5. The oldest women's organization in the United States, Noemi was established in 1877 and has dedicated its fund-raising efforts to aiding the orthopedically handicapped child. Proceeds from the luncheon will be used to remodel and update a specially-designed Cameca MBX Scanning Electromicroscope, and advanced tools with which to perform optimum electron microscopy and chemical analysis of calcified tissue.

Paula Silver and Paul Noyovitz

Paula Silver of Newton marries Mr. Paul Noyovitz

Under a canopy of white and yellow iris and mums, Paula Silver and Paul Noyovitz were married on Aug. 18 at Temple Beth Avodah, Newton Centre. Rabbi Robert Miller officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Silver of Newton Centre, and the granddaughter of Mrs. Augusta Levinson of Mercer Island, Washington, and Sophie Silver of Brookline. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Noyovitz of Levittown, Pa., and the grandson of Mrs. Rose Noyovitz of Philadelphia, Pa.

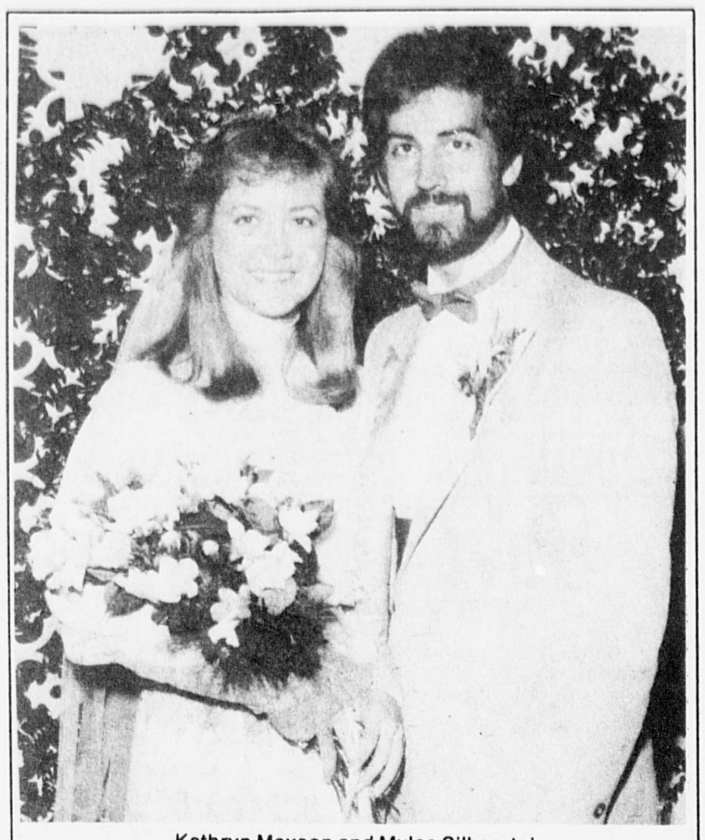

Ms. Silver wore a gown of white silk organza with a scooped neckline adn puffed sleeves. The bodice, sleeves and hemline were appliqued with roses and lillies of the valley in Point Venice Lace. She wore a wreath of white satin roses with an illusion veil and carried a bouquet of white roses and stephanotis on her mother's bible.

Mrs. Laurel Silverman was her sister's Matron of Honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Karen Karlin, the bride's sister; Mrs. Janet Paul; Ms. Judi Noyovitz; and Ms. Beryl Gomberg. They wore gowns of white on white striped organza over yellow and carried bouquets of blue iris. Rachel Silverman was the flower girl, wearing white eyelet with blue sash and carrying a miniature bouquet of blue iris.

Philip Noyovitz was best man for his brother. Ushers were Alan Orlin, the groom's brother-in-law; Robert Plesset; James Beisaw; and Victor Hathaway.

Ms. Silver attended Newton South High School and was graduated from Boston University in 1980. She is an occupational therapist in Chelmsford. Mr. Noyovitz was graduated from the University of Maine, spent four years in the Navy and is employed as an engineer in Bedford.

After a honeymoon in Florida, the couple will reside in Nashua, N.H.

Kathryn Maxson and Myles Silberstein

Kathryn Lena Maxson is married to Myles Silberstein of Newton

The Hotel Marriott in Newton was the setting on Sunday, Sept. 8, for the marriage of Kathryn Lena Maxson, daughter of Mrs. Vivi-Ann Maxson of Amherst and the late Richard Maxson, to Myles Evan Silberstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Silberstein of Newton Centre.

The bride was attended by Tracy Keegan as matron of honor. Jerrold Fleishman was best man for his brother-in-law. Bridesmaids were Arnalie Fleishman, sister of the groom, and Dena Coletta. Ushers were Aaron Finkelstein, Michael Freedman, C. Ralph Henry, James Popkin, and Mark Rubin. Flower girl was Morgan Erin Fleishman, niece of the groom.

The bride, a graduate of the University of Massachusetts in Amherst and Boston University Graduate School of Graphic Design, is a graphic designer with Czyryca Design of Waltham. The bridegroom, a graduate of the University of Massachusetts in Amherst, is president of Camp Trucking.

Victoria Lloyd

Victoria Ann Lloyd of Newton is married to Glenn Alan Cochran

Corpus Christi Church in Auburndale was the setting for the Aug. 10 wedding of Victoria Ann Lloyd and Glenn Alan Cochran.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Lloyd, Jr. of Auburndale. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Cochran of Franklin.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore her mother's wedding gown of ivory silk organza. The Rev. Joseph McGlone, pastor of Corpus Christi Church, and the Rev. John Dean, chaplin of Westfield State College, concelebrated the double ring ceremony.

Music was provided by Jacqueline DeMeo, organist, and Fiona Wright, soloist.

Tina Helton of Waltham served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Lisa, Christine and Amy Lloyd of Auburndale, sisters of the bride, and Gail Colace of Franklin, sister of the bridegroom.

Dean Boudreau of Marlboro served as best man. Ushers were Carmine Colace of Franklin, brother-in-law of the bridegroom; Michael Cognac of Chicopee; Scott St. Cyr of Gloucester and Timothy McCarron of Franklin.

The bride is a 1980 graduate of Newton North High School and attended Westfield State College. She is employed at Jayne's in Olean and attending Boces of Olean.

The bridegroom is a 1980 graduate of Franklin High School and a 1984 graduate of Westfield State College. He is employed as a resident director at St. Bonaventure University, Olean, N.Y., where he is studying for a master's degree in business administration.

Richard J. Marchioni and Susan M. Thistle

Susan Thistle is engaged to Richard J. Marchioni

Mrs. Elizabeth Marchioni of Newton announces the engagement of her son Richard J. to Susan M. Thistle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. Thistle of Hudson. Mr. Marchioni is a 1982 graduate of Newton North High School. He is currently a senior at Bentley College in Waltham. His fiance is a graduate of Hudson High School and Becker Junior College. She is currently employed at Cherry Web & Touraine. An April 1987 wedding is planned.

Birth announcement

Mr. and Mrs. John Proia Jr. of Watertown are proud to announce the birth of their first child, John Anthony III, born on Sept. 6, 1985 at Newton-Wellesley Hospital. Grandparents of the new arrival are Mrs. Laudia Boucher of Waltham and Mr. and Mrs. John Proia Sr. of Auburndale. Great grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Albert Roi of New Brunswick, Canada, Mr. and Mrs. James Boucher of West Newton, Mrs. Rose Hurleert of Montreal, Canada and Mrs. Virginia Proia of Newtonville.

Campus, military briefs

Birdsey is a sophomore majoring in economics and English at the University of Michigan.

Newton Centre resident Steven Branfman was recently honored by the Rhode Island School of Design as its 1985 recipient of the Alumnus Service Award of the year.

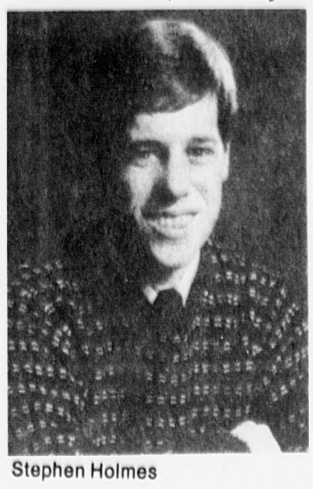

Branfman is the owner and operator of the Potters Shop, a school, artists' workshop, and studio located at Lasell Junior College in Newton. He is represented by several galleries, and his work appears in collections throughout the U.S. He currently teaches ceramics at Lasell and at Thayer Academy in Braintree.

Branfman is a graduate of Cortland State University and the Rhode Island School of Design.

Ellen H. Dunlap of Prince Street, West Newton, received an Excellence in Teaching Award from Northeastern University.

Dunlap, associate professor of mathematics, was one of seven professors cited for being outstanding teachers at the general university meeting held recently.

Candidates for this award are nominated by Northeastern alumni, undergraduate and graduate students, and faculty.

Stephen Holmes

Stephen Holmes, son of Stephen and Jacqueline Holmes of Auburndale, recently began studies at the New England College of Optometry. Stephen is enrolled in the college's four-year program, which leads to the Doctor of Optometry (O.D.) degree.

Stephen completed his undergraduate studies at College of the Holy Cross in Worcester. He received a bachelor of arts in chemistry in 1985.

Day Junior High eighth-grade social studies students went to the re-enactment of the 1787 treason trial of Daniel Shays and Shattuck recently when they opened the Ninth Annual Statewide Conference on Law-Related Education sponsored by the New York State Bar Association and the New York State Education Department at the Concord Resort Hotel, New York.

Mary Moonves of Auburndale received her M.B.A. from Northeastern University in June. She is married to Paul Moonves and is the mother of Ashley, 9, and Zachary, 5, who attend the Williams School in Newton. She received a bachelor of arts in French from the University of Massachusetts.

The following Newton residents have enrolled at Dean Junior College: William B. Karger of 41 Dorset Rd.; Debra L. Finkle of 138 Dane Hill Rd.; and Michelle P. Bersch of 12 Ivanhoe St.

Pvt. 1st Class Catherine G. Newlan, daughter of Mary Ann Newlan of 21 Carver Rd., Newton, has completed the Army programmer and analyst course at Fort Benjamin Harrison, IN.

The course provided enlisted personnel with a knowledge of the principles and techniques of computer programming. Major subject areas included ADP fundamentals, problem-solving, compiler-level programming, assembler-level programming, and operating systems.

She is a 1984 graduate of Boston College, Newton.

Ann Kniznik, a graduate of Newton North, was named to the dean's list at UMass/Amherst for the 1985 spring semester. A sophomore at the university, Kniznik was also named to the fall semester dean's list.

College president to retire

NEWTON — Dr. Eli Grad of Newton, president of Hebrew College in Brookline, is retiring for disability reasons Nov. 1 after 16 years as head of New England's only accredited college of Judaic Studies.

Dr. Michael Libenson, also of Newton, associate dean of the college, will become acting president.

The announcement was made by Leon E. Brock, chairman of the board of trustees, who is heading a search committee that will look for Grad's successor.

"We sincerely regret that health reasons have forced Eli Grad to step down prematurely as president of the college, which has so ably served for more than a decade and a half," Brock said in a prepared statement.

"We have begun canvassing the nation to assure that the best possible candidates emerge to succeed him as head of the college and all its divisions: the Prozdor Hebrew High School; the Ulpan conversational language program; Hebrew-speaking Camp Yavneh in Northwood, N.H.; and the adult education and cultural arts divisions."

Why Are We Giving Away Famous Nationally Advertised™ MALIN M-15™ SURVIVAL KNIVES for only $5?

Hard to believe, but true!

As part of a nationwide advertising campaign, a New York firm will give away one million (1,000,000) of its most expensive hunting knives—the best-selling MALIN M-15™ SURVIVAL KNIFE—for the astonishing publicity price of only $5 each to the first one million persons who write to the company address (below) before Midnight, November 17, 1985.

This original publicity ad must accompany your request. Copies or photostats are not acceptable.

These knives are not copies. These are genuine MALIN M-15™ SURVIVAL KNIVES—the same famous survival knives nationally advertised in leading media throughout America. They are the most popular (and most expensive) hunting/fishing/camping knives of their kind ever sold by this multi-million-dollar firm.

If you had to describe the MALIN M-15 in just one word, that word would have to be ... big! Each MALIN M-15 is a whopping 12 inches long—a foot in length!—yet so perfectly balanced it cuts and thrusts like an extension of your own hand. Heft this beauty just once; you'll never want to put it down!

Each MALIN M-15 blade is crafted entirely of 420 molecular stainless! Thick as a silver dollar at the spine, it's tough enough to split wood or shatter bone. Yet the edge is so wickedly sharp it slices thin as a whisper!

Survival Kit hidden in the hollow handle

But that's not all! In the pommel of each MALIN M-15 is a precision ZF-360 Liquid Damped Compass. And when you unscrew the compass—there is an astonishing Survival Kit complete with packet of waterproof wrapped matches, half-a-dozen fishing hooks, sinkers, nylon test fishing line, sewing needle kit—even an 18-inch cable saw actually capable of cutting down a small tree! No wonder this is the best-selling survival knife of its kind ever sold by this multi-million dollar New York firm.

Compass Unscrews To Reveal Survival Kit

These Famous Nationally Advertised MALIN M-15 SURVIVAL KNIVES will not be sold at this price by the company in any store. There is a limit of two (2) per address at this price, but if your request is made early enough (before Nov. 9) you may order up to five. Each knife is covered by the company's unconditional one-year money-back guarantee.

To get your MALIN M-15 SURVIVAL KNIFE, mail this original publicity ad (no copies or photostats) together with your name and address and $5 for each knife. Add only $2 shipping and handling per knife. (New York residents add sales tax.) Mail promptly and we guarantee earliest shipment for holiday season. Make check payable to A&C Company. Mail to: A&C MALIN M-15, Dept. 297-100, Box 1793, Hicksville, New York 11802. (A29140)

Police, court briefs

Assault and battery charges dismissed

WEST NEWTON — Mark E. Rahall, 28, of Newton had the charges of assault and battery, threatening to commit a crime and attempting to commit a crime dismissed Monday in district court by Judge Monte G. Basbas. The defendant was ordered to pay $75 in court costs by the judge.

Chevette looted of linens and rugs

CHESTNUT HILL — A 1980 Chevrolet Chevette was broken into Sunday afternoon while it was parked at the Star Market on Bolyston Street, police said. Vandals entered the car through a left-front, rear window and stole assorted linens and a rug valued at $100.

Brookline man convicted of larceny

WEST NEWTON — David F. Gosman of Brookline admitted sufficient facts to warrant a guilty finding in district court Monday on the charges of larceny of property over $100 in a single scheme and forgery.

On the charge of larceny, Gosman was ordered to pay restitution and $25 to the Victim Witness Fund. For the second charge, he was ordered to serve a six-month suspended sentence in a house of correction.

Oldsmobile stolen from Parker Street

NEWTON CENTRE — A red 1985 Oldsmobile Sierra was stolen Sunday night while it was parked on Parker Street, police said.

Dog stops burglary try on Hobart Road

NEWTON CENTRE — According to police, intruders tried to enter a Hobart Road home last week by breaking the cellar door window. The burglars were apparently thwarted by the owner's dog, police said.

Stolen pocketbook found in trash pile

NEWTON — According to police, burglars broke into the Multi-Service Center on Centre Street Monday night after climbing a rear fire escape and entering the building by cutting the screen off an unlocked window. The intruders made their way into an office, police said, and took from an unlocked closet a tan leather shoulder bag, containing $9, and a green duffle bag, containing assorted clothing. After a search of the area, Police Officer Mat Cummings discovered the pocketbook — belonging to a staff member — in a trash pile behind Beacon Carpets. The officer returned the bag, but the $9 was missing, police said.

Color television stolen from YMCA

NEWTON — A 19-inch color television set, valued at $325, was taken from the basement of the YMCA on Church Street last week when thieves entered the building through a basement door, police said.

Teen attempts to escape on moped

NEWTON — Officer Niles Anderson responded to Derby Street last week when police received a report of three teenage males checking the backdoors of houses in the neighborhood.

While in the area, Anderson responded to a second call from a Grant Street resident who reported a blue moped was taken from his driveway, police said. A short time later, the officer observed a teenager on a blue moped at a house on Parmenter Road. Once the youth spotted Anderson, he rode behind the house and yelled "cops," scaring off his accomplices, police said.

Officer Anderson gave chase through two back yards and caught the suspect near Waltham Road by pulling him off the moped.

The 16-year-old West Newton youth who was driving the moped was arrested and charged with larceny of property over $100 police said.

Vandals hit autos on Rockledge Road

NEWTON HIGHLANDS — A resident of Rockledge Road said she woke up Wednesday morning last week when she heard noises coming from the street, police said. When she got up to investigate, she yelled out of her bedroom window scaring off three males who were tampering with the passengers side lock on her 1983 Honda Accord, police reported.

Police received a second report — around the same time as the first — from another resident of Rockledge Road who said his blue Chevrolet had been broken into because papers were found on the street near the car.

Lincoln-Eliot suffers malicious damage

NEWTON CORNER — A custodian at the Lincoln-Eliot School told police the building suffered malicious damage last week when vandals broke two windows, wrote in spray paint and smashed three dozen eggs on the school's underpass.

Cars ransacked while parked in garage

NEWTON — A 1985 Honda and Buick was entered while they were parked in the garage of a Walnut Street resident, police said. Intruders entered the garage through a side door. The glove compartment of the Honda was ransacked, but nothing appeared to be missing, police said.

Wallet with cash, cards stolen at spa

WEST NEWTON — A member of the European Health Spas on Washington Street said his wallet — containing $250-$300 and several credit cards — was taken from the locker he was using at the spa, according to police reports.

Biker dies in crash

HOPKINTON — A Newton resident, David Regan, 24, was killed early Sunday morning after his motorcycle crashed into a stone wall and a tree in Hopkinton.

Regan, of 25 White Ave., was pronounced dead in Framingham Union Hospital shortly after the accident.

Hopkinton police said Regan was seen by Southborough police riding his motorcycle west on Route 9 at a high rate of speed at 1:25 a.m. The motorcycle turned onto Route 85, going southward, and attempts by Southborough police to stop the motorcycle failed.

Hopkinton picked up the chase and said they observed Regan go through the intersection of Routes 135 and 85 at approximately 75 miles an hour with his headlight off.

Hopkinton Police continued to pursue Regan southward on Route 85. They said he failed to successfully take a curve near the Milford town line and ran off the road, striking the stone wall and tree at 1:34 a.m.

Driving tips are issued

NEWTON — Chief William F. Quinn issued his annual fall and winter driving advisory to all drivers.

The chief stated, "After an above average fall the temperatures are falling as are the leaves from the trees; both create problems. The temperature drop leaves car windows with frost or heavy dew that should be cleared before driving."

He suggests allowing the heater to warm the windshield and free the frost and dew. Driving with only partial visibility is extremely dangerous for the driver, other cars and pedestrians. Therefore, it is important to have a clear and clean windshield and rear window.

The falling leaves create a hazard as the underside remains wet and creates braking and stopping problems. He also advises householders not to rake leaves into the roadway.

Quinn added, "This is the time to think 'Winter.' Is your car ready? antifreeze? wiper blades? heater and defroster working? battery at peak power? In addition tires and snow tires should be thought of, gas tank kept as full as possible to prevent condensation."

He also advised that with the end of daylight savings time, motorists should be especially careful, particularly when going home in the evenings, as they will be doing so in total darkness.

According to Chief Quinn, the first snowfall creates a problem because people do not think of winter. They forget we have an all night parking prohibition. Therefore, plan to park off the street, have your car ready and enjoy the season.

Teen charged with homicide

WEST NEWTON — Edward P. Sullivan of Newton pleaded not guilty in district court Monday to the charges of vehicular homicide, driving while under the influence of alcohol and operating a motor vehicle negligently so as to endanger. Sullivan was released on personal recognizance pending his trial on Dec. 12.

Charges against the 18-year-old youth stem from an accident in the city on Saturday morning in which a passenger, Robert Flanagan, 18, of Abington, was killed after the car Sullivan was driving struck a tree at 239 Winchester St.

According to police, Flangan was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident around 2 a.m. Saturday. The Abington youth was thrown out of the vehicle from the back seat when the car struck the trees, police said.

According to police reports, Sullivan was given two Intoxilyzer tests at the station which produced a blood alcohol reading of .16 and .14, respectively. Police said two empty beer cans were found in the car and on the road outside the car.

Sullivan and another passenger, John J. Flesher, an 18-year-old resident of the city, were not seriously hurt in the crash.

Paying a little extra in Newton

Prices started to escalate dramatically in December 1984. "After Christmas it was like lighting a candle," said Anita Jauregui, Century 21 partner. "A person who bought last year could put their house back on the market today for $50,000 more. I know of one person who has done that."

In the spring and early summer, buyers actually were outbidding each other for homes. A two-family home initially marketed for $198,000 was sold the afternoon of an open house for the asking price, said Jauregui. A $105,000 home sold in one afternoon for $1,000 more than the asking price. At present, a unique home such as a contemporary, a good two-family house, or "handyman's special" occasionally will top the asking price, according to Spencer Lookner of Lookner Real Estate.

"People are buying year round," said Jauregui.

The lowest-priced home in Newton, as listed in the most recent MLS bulletin, is located at 46 Heatherland Road in Newton Highlands, It was listed at $159,900 — down from an original asking price of $169,00. It has been assessed for tax purposes at $79,000.

The six-room house has no basement or garage, a limited attic, a tiny work kitchen with metal cabinets, two average bedrooms, a large living room with hardwood floors, and a small porch converted into a year-round room. The backyard of the 7,236-square-foot lot provides a quiet place to relax.

"It's a starter home," explained Spencer Lookner of Lookner Real Estate. "It's an alternative to a condo."

According to Lookner, it is location which makes this property — situated in a quiet neighborhood of $260,000 homes within a mile of an MBTA stop. But she admits the house needs work both inside and out.

Closer to the average Newton price of $210,000 is a garrison Colonial on Philbrick Road in Newton Highlands currently selling for $199,000. This home has been on the market for two months and was originally listed by the owner at $222,000.

What do you get for $199,000? Three large bedrooms, 1½ baths, a working fireplace with a "lovely" oak mantel and good sized living and dining rooms. It also gets you an exterior which needs repainting and a roof badly in need of repair — a job the the owner says she will be willing to undertake.

The size of the rooms makes this house attractive, but its noisy location adjacent to Route 9 would be prized only for its convenience to other major thoroughfares and the Chestnut Hill Mall. The house sits on a 6,170-square-foot lot. The owner, who lived in the home for 31 years, is seeking to move into a Chestnut Hill condominium following the death of her husband.

Charyle and Redmond Clark bought their Newton Lower Falls home on Concord Street for $111,000 just 2½ years ago. Today, after landscaping the backyard, painting the exterior of the house and installing new gutters and storm windows, and painting and wallpapering the interior, the Clarks, who are moving to Washington, D.C., are trying to sell the 12-room home for $269,000. It has been assessed for tax purposes at $108,400.

The house is priced to sell, said real estate agent Carol Butterworth of Century 21. "It has a lot of charm," she said, pointing out the hardwood floors throughout the house, recessed bookcases and china cabinet, and four plus bedrooms. Built in 1938, the house still has its original oil furnance, and on the second floor one must walk through some of the bedrooms to reach others. Concord Street is a slightly busy artery.

Charyle Clark uses one of two finished rooms in the attic as a workroom for her quiltmaking and in the fireplaced basement there is more space for office or a bedroom. The 12,700-square-foot lot has a large backyard, and its location in Newton Lower Falls is convenient to the MDC golf course, shops, health club and nursery school.

Hard as it may be to believe, local real estate agents claim there has been a general downturn in the market since spring, most noticeably since July.

"What would have sold in a couple of weeks, now takes a month to 60 days, said Anita Jauregui of Century 21 Realty in Newton.

That delay suggests prices are a little high. In spring sellers were getting close to asking price. "Now between what they're putting on and what they're getting is about a 5- to 10-percent difference."

According to Jauregui, the market has softened for two reasons. The supply of homes for sale exceeds demand. "In the spring there were 75 houses on the market, now there are over 250."

"I think a lot of homeowners saw what happened in the spring and are trying to cash in on it," added Secondly, buyers are balking at prices. "Most houses in Newton are over $200,000. This year did it. We've lost a lot of buyers who fall into the under $200,000 category." Jauregui said such people who might have gone to a Newton real estate agent and tried to find something in that category, aren't coming in. They're giving up after looking at the newspaper listings, she said.

The agent said homes have appreciated between 25 and 30 percent in the past year. Although the market is soft, Jauregui doesn't think it will go down, but homes will appreciate at a more normal pace of 5 to 8 percent.

Likewise, Brookline realtor John Campbell said some realtors might term the current market "slow." But he added it is slow only when compared to the flurry of activity last spring.

•••••

Small lots nonwithstanding, Newton is still one of the most-desired places to live in greater Boston. According to Jauregui, even those who can't afford Newton still dream of eventually living there.

"People are going out for two to three years, buying in Sharon and Framingham with the idea of coming back (to Newton)," she said.

Harrington termed the Garden City "the quintessential suburb" because of its proximity to Boston, recreational attractions, top-ranked school system and the status of having a large professional community of doctors, lawyers and professors who call Newton home.

Newton Planning Director Barry Canner agreed with Jauregui that housing will continue to appreciate at a rate slightly greater than inflation as long as the economy remains stable. But whether those who buy now will continue to be able to make a killing is in doubt.

"There is a limit to a person's ability to pay," said Canner. "But I'm still astounded at prices people are able to get."

Driving these prices to even more "astounding" levels is a scarcity of developable land in Newton.

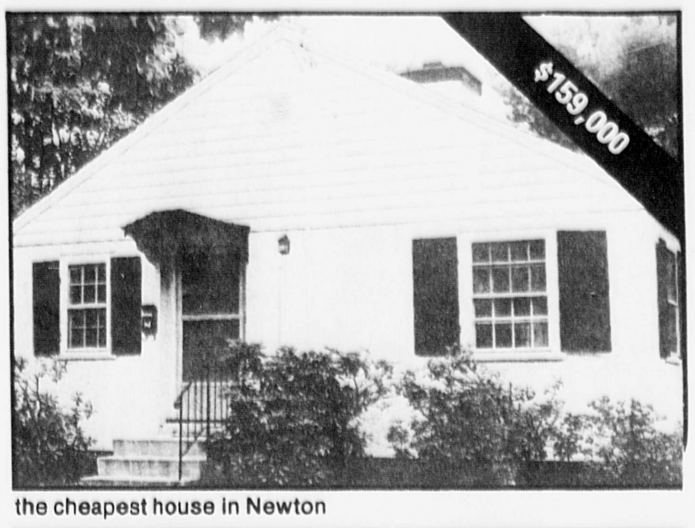

"There's nothing to develop in Newton unless you want to buy a building and then tear it down." Campbell said.

Nader Mameghani, who is president of Rezna Management, agreed.

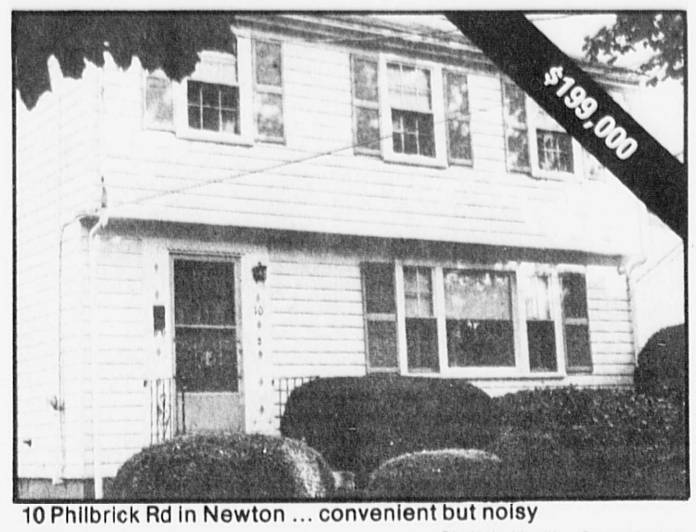

"It's almost impossible to find vacant land in Newton," he said. "Not many builders get to build. I saw one parcel off Rt. 9 near the Purity Supreme. They're asking $300,000 for a half-acre. Even if they get $200,000 for it, it's too much."

Since buildable land in Newton is severely limited, Canner said one option would be to turn toward multiple-family housing — a land use ranking with hazardous waste dumps in terms of popularity.

"This is a mature area of the country. It's heavily developed," Canner said. "People like the quality of life they have. But to meet demand, one would have to increase housing."

Golf courses and park land comprise the overwhelming majority of open space in Newton. But Canner feels it highly unlikely developers will be able to pressure the city to turn these toward housing. It would take action both by the board of aldermen and state legislature to convert park land to another use. Many of the private golf courses have applied for a tax abatement available to such recreational facilities. Should the owners decide to convert to another use, they would have to pay back taxes with interest. Even so, Newton Commonwealth Golf Course sold some of its land for condominium use both to help meet expenses and alleviate the shortage of new housing in Newton.

•••••

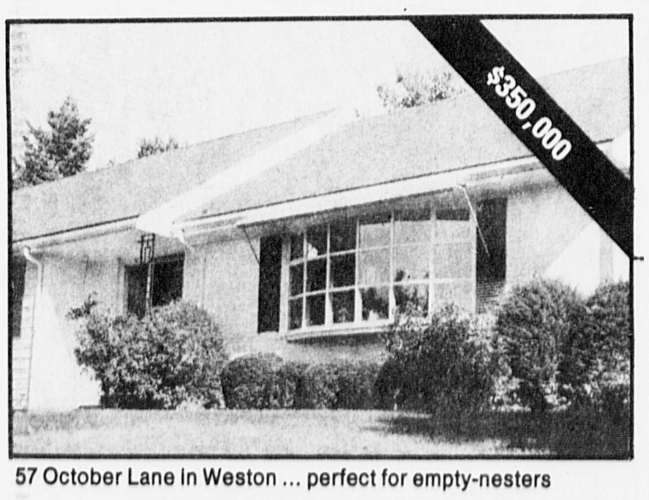

Are people who buy now fools? The question evokes a mixed response.

"I don't think it's foolish to buy at any time," said Mameghani. "I think you'll find for the next year or two prices will stay the same — maybe there will be another jump. I don't think they will go down."

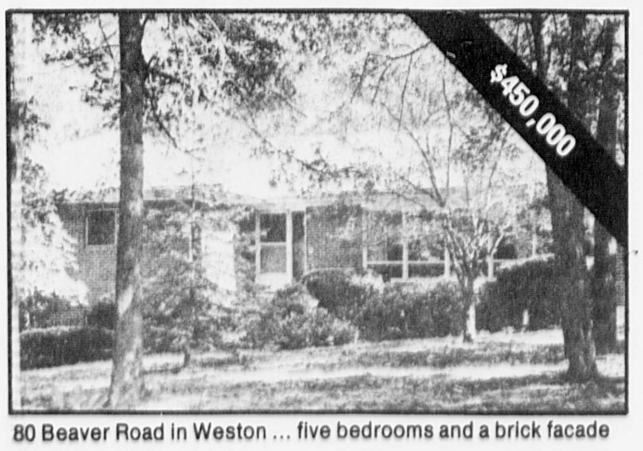

While home prices in such former boomtowns as Houston have fallen dramatically, Jauregui said she doubted whether the same would happen in greater Boston.

"Houston and Florida have had a lot of building going on. They're overbuilt," she said. That's not the case in Newton and other suburbs where buildable land is limited.

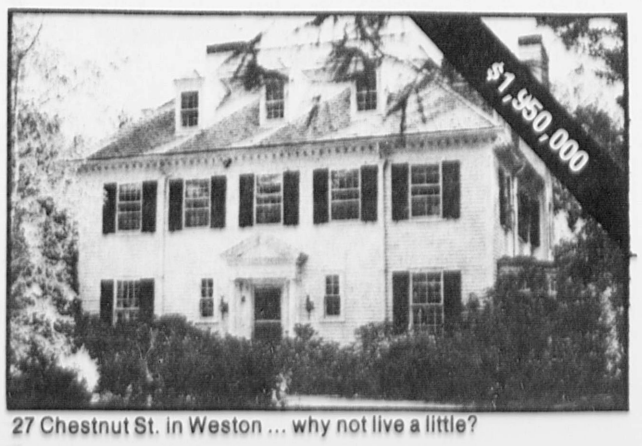

Weston: $250,000 'gets you in'

57 October Lane in Weston ... perfect for empty-nesters

80 Beaver Road in Weston ... five bedrooms and a brick facade

27 Chestnut St. in Weston ... why not live a little?

By Christie Herlihy-Starr

In this suburban town, when realtors list a home as 'exclusive' they really mean it

First-time visitors to Weston would arguably find it hard to believe there are just 12 short miles from Boston. Still dotted with huge estates, its 17 square miles is as resolutely unmetropolitan as any community could be.

And it can also be downright unhospitable to homebuyers looking for a single-family for much less than $250,000. According to Multiple Listing Service figures, prices in Weston currently range from $259,000 to $1,950,000.

"About $250,000 gets you into Weston," said John Bowen at the Mass. Association of Realtors. "But it doesn't get you much."

How much is "not much?" The cheapest home in Weston being listed by MLS is an "affordable five bedroom Cape" situated on 1½ acres at 798 Boston Post Road. It is being marketed for $259,000.

The house contains up to five bedrooms, and two full baths. While it has potential, it needs remodeling — especially the kitchen — and strange artificial wood paneling on the second floor could pose a decorating problem. The condition of the roof was not listed on the description sheet, meaning, in the words of one real estate agent, that it was "older." The garage has been used as a pony stall.

The property is called a "fixer-upper" that has been marked down because of noise. It is located on Route 20, Weston's busiest street.

For a little more — $350,000 to be exact — you can buy a small, white shingled, three-bedroom ranch located at 57 October Lane. The home is touted as perfect for empty nesters or the small family with one child. It's not a big home, but has areas for entertaining, including a large living room and a screened-in porch with cathedral ceiling overlooking an in-ground pool. It might not be big, but for $350,000 at least it is in good condition.

According to Grace Trefrey, president of Post Road Realty and a realtor for 17 years, Weston's housing market last spring was the "highest" it ever experienced. A total of 69 homes were sold in Weston during the first three quarters of 1985.

"We had buyers standing in line to get houses." Trefrey said, adding potential buyers had to decide virtually on the spot whether they wanted a particular home "or they would lose it."

"I had one man come in here from Savannah. He had a palace down there. Brought us pictures," Trefrey recalled. "He told me, 'I have a $100,000 to spend.' I had to tell him a $100,000 would buy an outhouse here."

After a house-hunting tour, the Savannah buyer reportedly told Trefrey that the increase in salary promised by a job offer in Boston was wiped out by the local housing prices. He didn't take the job.

Although she said prices remain "cock-eyed," with the exception of the cheapest houses, prices in Weston along with demand have leveled off since June. Houses are not selling as fast as they were, and the number of properties on the market has increased. But in the 18 months prior to that, homes saw a "conservative" 30 percent increase in value.

"Some people are still dreaming of the spring market," Trefrey said. "They are a little late."

At present, the difference between the listing and selling price can be $50,000 to $75,000, she added. In the spring homes were going for the asking price — and fast.

Like Newton, Weston is prized for its convenience and proximity to Boston. It also provides municipal services which far outstrip most towns of comparable size.

"You don't have to join a country club to enjoy nice things," said Trefrey, referring to the town's active recreation department which provides year-round tennis, an outdoor swimming pool and many other sports. Residents may audit classes at nearby Regis College free of charge.

But who would spend the kind of money it takes to live in Weston just to audit a college course?

The same ones who would spend $465,000 for a five-bedroom contemporary ranch at 80 Beaver Road. One of the few brick homes available in Weston, the house sports a "Tennessee marble" fireplace, an adequate eat-in kitchen in need of some remodeling, good sized bedrooms, and a huge laundry room and fireplaced family room downstairs. House is dark because of its wooded surroundings, but according to Trefrey sits in a neighborhood of $600,000 homes.

And for the truly munificent homebuyer, $1,950,000 will purchase the most expensive house currently listed in Weston.

"It is an opportunity to buy one of the few estates in Weston," said Trefrey of the oversized colonial located at 27 Chestnut St. The house sits on 4½ acres, and can be purchased with three acres for $1,750.000 with the option to buy the 1.5 acre buildable lot for $400,000 in the spring.

Described as a "magnificent slate roof colonial complete with widow's walk," the 50-year-old house has four bedrooms — with four more bedrooms, servant's quarters or multi-purpose rooms on the third floor. "People in this price range normally want a computer room," said Trefrey.

According to the glowing real estate hand-out, the house sports a distinctive bay window, early American pine paneling with some boards up to four feet wide, a marble fireplace, heavily carved cornices above windows, recessed corner cabinets, and a fireplaced game room with wet bar "where all members of the family can live a little without concern."

This is a house?

But cork covers some bedroom walls and carpeting hides hardwood floors. We were not shown the kitchen, but a peek revealed white metal cabinets. The house has a lovely manicured lawn with small grape arbor behind the three-car garage, and a stable with three stalls.

"Nearby is the Weston Town Forest containing many trails where your children can grow up riding their favorite horse in the fresh country air," said the hand-out.

Free cookbooks at homemakers show

NORWOOD — Annual Homemakers Show and Cooking School plans are set for Friday evening Nov. 8, at Norwood Junior High School, Endean Park, Washington St., South Norwood. Admission to the popular event is free but tickets must be obtained in advance by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Transcript Newspapers in Dedham, Waltham, or Norwood, or by picking up tickets at one of the three offices. Home Economist Diane Gryger White will be returning for the second year to run the Transcript show.

Free cookbooks, coupons and dozens of prizes will be a small part of the fun at the 1985 edition of the show.

All audience members will be able to follow the recipe demonstrations in their own free homemakers school 1985 cookbooks. The only need for notes will be self memos about your own ideas as the recipes unfold. Everything from main dishes to desserts will be prepared on stage with a lighted mirrors system to assure good viewing throughout the auditorium.

The complete kitchen on stage will be set up by Poirier Sales and Service of South Norwood. There will be a refrigerator, conventional oven, microwave oven and other appliances on which Poirier has built their excellent reputation.

Numerous door prizes will be awarded throughout the show including bags of groceries donated by Shaw's Supermarkets home improvement merchandise gift certificates from Diehl's in Wellesley and Westwood Lumber, two broiled stuffed lobsters from Captain Marden's in West Newton and Wellesley. Additionally Poirier Sales and Service is giving away a 19-inch color TV sent to anybody coming to their Washington St., South Norwood, showroom and filling in an entry blank. No purchase necessary.

Admission to the Homemakers Show - Cooking School is free but by ticket only. The three prior shows have all been "sellouts" and ticket requests are still being honored for this fourth edition of Transcript Newspapers show.

Tickets may be obtained at any of these Transcript offices in person or by writing, being sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, to: Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington St., Box 70, Dedham, 02026; 18 Pine St., P.O.Box 69, Waltham, 02254; 679 Washington St., P.O. Box 9, Norwood, 02062. Limit is two tickets per request.

Norwood Junior High School is located at Endean Park, Washington Street, South Norwood. There is plenty of free parking at the school. The doors will open at 6:30 and show time will be at 7:30.

School is offered for art in return

By Edward Cafasso
Staff Writer

NEWTONVILLE — Artists have plans for the former Claflin Elementary School, and Mayor Theodore D. Mann has plans for the artists.

If the Newton Artists Housing Partnership (NAHP) bids successfully on the vacant building, Mann said recently he is prepared to negotiate for their services in lieu of the money that could have been raised from a more profitable reuse scheme.

One such "in lieu of" arrangement might include the artists creating "objects of art" the city would own and use to adorn public property, according to the mayor.

The local group has been recommended as the new occupant of the former Claflin Elementary School by the aldermanic Real Property Reuse Committee.

The committee's decision is expected to run into some problems from low income housing advocates on the Board of Aldermen.

Real Property voted to sell the Claflin for a minimum price of $300,000 to a limited-equity cooperative consisting of no more than 20 residential artist studios. Three of the residential units would be made available to low-income families.

Mann said the city "obviously" would not be getting the building's "true worth" if the successful bids came in near the $300,000 figure.

In return for the relatively low sale price, Mann said he would attempt to negotiate an agreement with the NAHP to create "a public service art program" for the city.

Programs could be arranged, he said, to stimulate "an overall cultural renaissance" that would be "tied in" with his plans for the creation of a "muni-cultural center" when a new library is built across the street from City Hall.

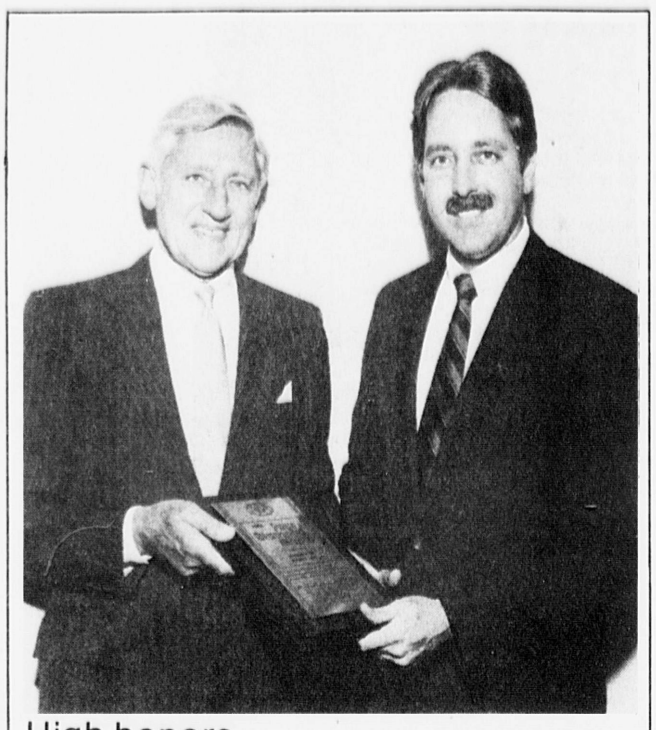

"This would tie in very decidedly with the creation of such things as the mosaic sculpture at the Newton Centre Green" by Mary Ann Rosenberg, Mann added.

"I would like to see the creation of a park for the opportunity to display this group's products," he said.

Although he believes a low-income housing development "would have been quite appropriate" at the Claflin, Mann said he would "endeavor to make the best kind of situation for the city.

"I have no alternative but to take the actions of the Board of Aldermen and work within them," he added.

The Claflin Neighborhood Association has endorsed the NAHP plan for 15 units of low-density, live-in artists studios in the former school, but the Newton Community Development Foundation would like to renovate the building for 24 rental units of mixed-income housing and would dedicate 30 to 40 percent of the units to low and moderate tenants.

High honors

John Foley, right, director of marketing at the Newton Marriott Hotel, accepts, special 4-Diamond plaque from Gerald W. Connolly, AAA Massachusetts general manager. The 4-Diamond award from AAA is one of the highest honors a hotel can earn. The Newton Marriott is one of 22 properties in eastern Massachusetts to achieve this distinction.

Highest honor awarded to Temple brotherhood

NEWTON — The Brotherhood of Temple Mishkan Tefila of Newton received the highest honor awarded by the National Federation of Jewish Men's Clubs in recognition of its unique educational Holocaust memorial program, "The Eternal Flame."

The Federation's First Place Torch Award was presented at its 52nd Biennial Convention, held in August at the Concord Hotel, Kiamesha Lake, N.Y.

The Eternal Flame Program of 1983, under the co-chairmanship of Dr. Herbert Birnbaum and Herbert Lerman, both of Newton, featured a commemorative program including a keynote address by the known author Gerda Klein and a musical presentation by the Zachor Choral Ensemble. A capacity crowd of 350 people attended the event.

The major achievement of the program was the publication of a highly acclaimed book continuing original essays from many members of the Greater Boston community. The book, co-edited by Jacob Birnbaum and Sara Feldman, now has a permanent place in the Library of Congress, the Vatican Library in Rome, the official archives of Yad Vashem in Jerusalem, the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum in Washington, the Museum of the City of New York, and many other libraries nationwide.

Monoprints, paintings exhibit at Pine Manor

CHESTNUT HILL — Jain Tarnower will exhibit recent works in a one-woman show "Monoprints and Paintings" from Nov. 4 through Dec. 20 at Pine Manor's Hess Gallery. The gallery, which was closed for renovation for one year, reopens with the Jain Tarnower exhibit. The show is free and open to the public.

The college is located at 400 Heath St. in Chestnut Hill. For further information about the Tarnower exhibit, call 731-7118.

Work in this exhibition consists of portrait and landscape paintings and black and white monoprint portraits. Tarnowers' work has been exhibited at the National Print Exhibition, Brooklyn Museum, New York; the Rose Art Museum, Brandeis University; and is currently on exhibition at the Chrysler Museum, Norfolk, Va.

A little bit of Paris on East 60th St.

NEW YORK (UPI) — In New York, where there are more Irish than in Dublin, more Jews than in Tel Aviv and more Italians than in Rome, the underrepresented French take refuge in a little bit of Paris on East 60th Street.

Called the French Institute-Alliance Francaise, it is the focal point of French culture in New York. In addition to French language and cooking classes and a French library and bookstore, it schedules French films, theater, lectures and social events.

The city's Alliance Francaise is only one of 1,200 such organizations around the world and ranks third in size behind chapters in Mexico City and Sao Paolo, Brazil.

About 2,000 of the institute's 8,000 members are French or French-speaking. The rest are simply Francophiles who seek greater exposure to French arts and language, much like those who first joined the Alliance in 1898.

The French Institute was formed 13 years later as a museum of French art and a place where French writers came to talk about current trends. It was one of the first places in the United States to feature the avant-garde work of Picasso and Degas.

The Institute suffered from the ravages of the Depression, however, and became increasingly a library and less a museum. It was not until 1970 that the Institute and the Alliance, recognizing their common goals, merged.

"We are not trying only to serve as a French center for French people," said Institute-Alliance director Jean Vallier. "They do come to our bookstore and our library, but our goal is to open ourselves to people who are not speaking French as well."

Vallier said the Institute-Alliance is renovating and expanding to accomodate more artists, dancers and speakers from France.

Using money from the sale of air rights above its headquarters to the developers of the neighboring Delmonico Plaza, the Institute-Alliance entrance is being enlarged and a new 400-seat performance space and 125-seat lecture hall are being built.

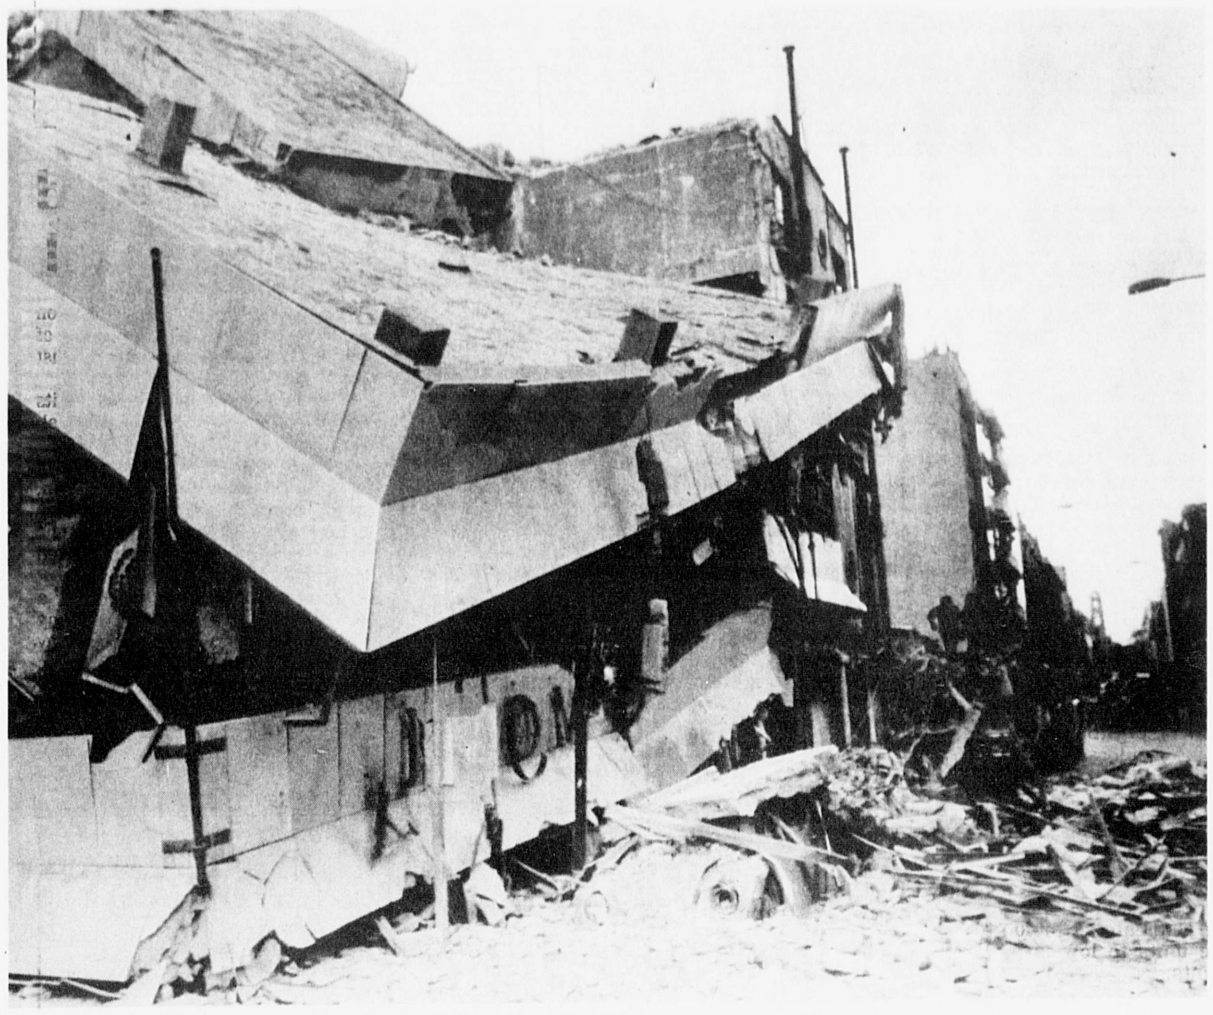

In the meantime, the Institute-Alliance's hugely popular film series is screened in the basement of the neighboring Christ Church.

This season's films include Claude Lelouch's "Cat and Mouse" Bertrand Tavernier's "A Sunday in the Country," "Swann in Love" starring Jeremy Irons and Eric Rohmer's "Full Moon in Paris."

Members also have access to the largest French-language lending library in the nation, with 40,000 volumes. The library, specializing in literature, history and philosophy, subscribes to all the major French periodicals as well.

Bread and butter for the Institute-Alliance are its French classes for adults, which cost $82 to $215 for seven weeks. About 6,000 people take the classes each year.

Class members are also required to become members at $18 for a year, which gives them free entry to the films, television screenings, lectures and use of the library.

The damage caused by two earthquakes has also ruined Mexico's tourist trade. File photo

Earthquakes cripple tourism

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Two devastating earthquakes that rumbled through Mexico City have emptied its hotels of foreign tourists, vital for hard currency, but officials are hoping the hardier ones will return in a few months.

"After the earthquakes, we were left with no business. It dropped to almost zero," said Manuel Olaiz, marketing senior vice president for the company that owns Holiday Inn Crowne Plaza, a posh capital city hotel.

The quakes Sept. 19-20 killed more than 7,000 and tumbled or seriously damaged more than 2,000 buildings. Among the destroyed were five hotels packed with foreigners.

Since then, Mexico's tourism minister, Antonio Enriquez Savignac, has campaigned in the United States and Canada to tourist to return — and he plans another tour at the end of this month.

The flow of Mexican tourists from the interior has almost returned to normal, officials said. Savignac and Olaiz agree, however, the near absence of international tourists remains a problem.

Mexico, with its beachside resorts, ancient pyramids, colonial-style towns, museums and other historical sites, relies heavily on its tourism industry to bolster a crumbling economy and help make payments on an overwhelming $98 billion foreign debt.

Tourism has consistently been the second largest earner of foreign exchange after oil, bringing in about $2 billion yearly.

Only hotels in Mexico City and the Pacific coastal resort of Ixtapa were seriously damaged by the quakes.

"The country was not devastated," Savignac said recently.

"Five hotels collapsed in Mexico City, including some 750 rooms. There was a total of 32,500 hotel rooms in the city, so the number of hotels and rooms destroyed is relatively little."

U.S. Ambassador John Gavin has said at least 11 Americans died in the disaster, and about a dozen others are missing and presumed dead. Most of them were staying in one of the five hotels that collapsed.

Savignac and Olaiz said the earthquakes came during the tourism industry's lowest season, September to October, minimizing the tragedy.

Just outside the elegant Crowne Plaza, tourists can see half-collapsed or dangerously tilting buildings and cargo trucks haul away concrete and steel rubble.

"The hotel's occupation has been rising little by little. We are now at 10 percent of normal. In November we hope to be at 50 to 70 percent and in February, 100 percent," Olaiz said.

Most of Mexico's publicized coastal resorts were not seriously affected. But Ixtapa, a 15-mile stretch of beach 230 miles west of Mexico City, was hit hard.

Half of the nine high-rise hotels were closed, and all suffered visible damage.

The Tourism Ministry and the National Tourism Fund have inspected damaged hotels in Mexico City and Ixtapa. They estimated that owners will need some $43 million in loans from the fund to rebuild them.

The government fund normally offers interest rates 40 percent below bank rates, but it will reduce its rates another 10 percent to help companies recover from the crisis.

Both Olaiz and Savignac said further "uncertainty" was created among potential tourists over the loss of long-distance telephone service.

"One of the country's biggest problems is the lack of outside communication. I believe that has been a big factor in the guests' hesitancy to come. They feared they would not be able to communicate with relatives once they got here," Olaiz said.

Telefonos de Mexico has said it may be months before full long-distance service is restored. The communications building was among those destroyed.

Horrid vacation could be a winner

By United Press International

Natalie Maier of Oradell, N.J., thought it would be a dream vacation, but instead her nightmare cruise to the Yucatan was horrific enough to win this year's Frankenstein Travel Award.

The award is the brainchild of Charles Reilly, a true American road warrior who travels about 200 days a year as chairman of The Executive Communications Group.

Reilly has suffered almost every possible embarrassment, indignity and humiliation available to the traveler. His luggage has been lost, his reservations canceled, his shoes eaten by a large animal, and once, in an Atlanta elevator, he was bitten on the leg by a small boy.

The Frankenstein Travel Award allows victims to vent their frustrations and win a prize for the most horrible vacation experience.

"Maier's account of a nightmare cruise to the Yucatan was the hands-down winner this year," Reilly says.

Maier endured a snow storm, a canceled airline flight, rancid clothes, seasickness, third degree burns, rainstorms, food sickness, 40-foot ocean swells and a screaming stewardess to become the big winner.

Here is her horrible tale:

Maier's woes began on an icy day in February as she and two friends were preparing to fly to Miami, where they would board a cruise ship for a tour of three balmy ports in the Caribbean and Yucatan.

On the day before her departure, a blizzard dumped 23 inches of snow on New Jersey. It took 13 hours to shovel Maier's car out of the driveway for the trip to Newark airport. When they got to the airport, they learned their flight had been canceled. They jumped on a flight to Charlotte, N.C., and another to Atlanta, where they located a flight to Miami.

A cruise representative met them at the airport, and told them the ship was being held for them. They made it to the ship, but the luggage did not catch up for four days. Scruffy and somewhat rancid, they cut a conspicuous figure at the Captain's Dinner.

The first day at sea, Maier became violently seasick. Unable to eat, sleep or even stand, she collapsed in a deck chair and remained there all day. By the end of the day she had third degree burns from the sun.

Next up was picnic day, except it rained. The picnic was held under a shelter, but the dining was somewhat less than elegant since the shelter had been erected adjacent to the toilets. There was a monsoon during the raft ride back to the boat.

In Cozumel, where the ladies had hoped to buy some clothes, all the shops were closed. Instead, they were driven to a hotel for drinks and a show. The show was uninspired, the drinks were warm, the food was cold and stale. Everyone became ill.

Two days later the ship docked at Grand Cayman Island and everyone rushed ashore to take advantage of the fabulous bargains to be found in the legendary shops. Of course, the shops were closed.

As an alternative, passengers were bused to a nearby beach for a swim in tropical paradise. But no one was permitted to go near the water; 17 people had recently been bitten by Portuguese Men O'War.

EXPLORE THE OPTIONS OF TEMPORARY WORK

EXPERIENCED TELLERS
$6.00 to $7.00 per hour

Taking a semester off?
Need holiday money?
Looking for a flexible work schedule?

These are just some of the reasons why you may want to consider a temporary position with Bank of Boston/Norfolk County. As New England's largest bank, we can offer you the opportunity to earn extra money while working with talented banking professionals in a stimulating environment.

Right now we have both full-time and part-time openings for experienced tellers throughout Norfolk County, including our Framingham branch. Our varied scheduling options allow you to work the hours that best fit your lifestyle.

These positions, which are available now through December, require previous teller or cashiering experience. Although temporary, these positions could become permanent.

Interested applicants are invited to call our Human Resources Department to arrange an interview, 237-1111. Bank of Boston, 372 Washington Street, Wellesley, MA 02181.

The automobile renowned for bigger...

In the beginning, Buicks were long, they were loaded and they were the state of the art in comfort, luxury and style. Portholes and all.

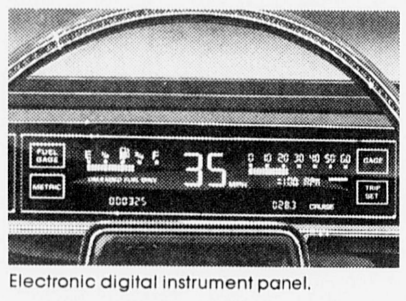

Today, the emphasis is on better — content rather than sheer size. And nowhere is that more evident than at the Buick Exhibit at the Auto Show this year.

You'll find Somerset and Skylark. Two exciting small Buicks built distinctively for the '80s. A closer look tells you both share great exterior styling and interior comforts that include available rich velour and sporty bucket seats.

Skylark: the inside story.

More evidence of Buick on the move: an electronic digital instrument panel, standard on both Somerset and Skylark. And the sequential-port fuel injection (SFI) and computer-controlled coil ignition, standard on Electra and Riviera. More innovations that take Buick to a new level of "better."

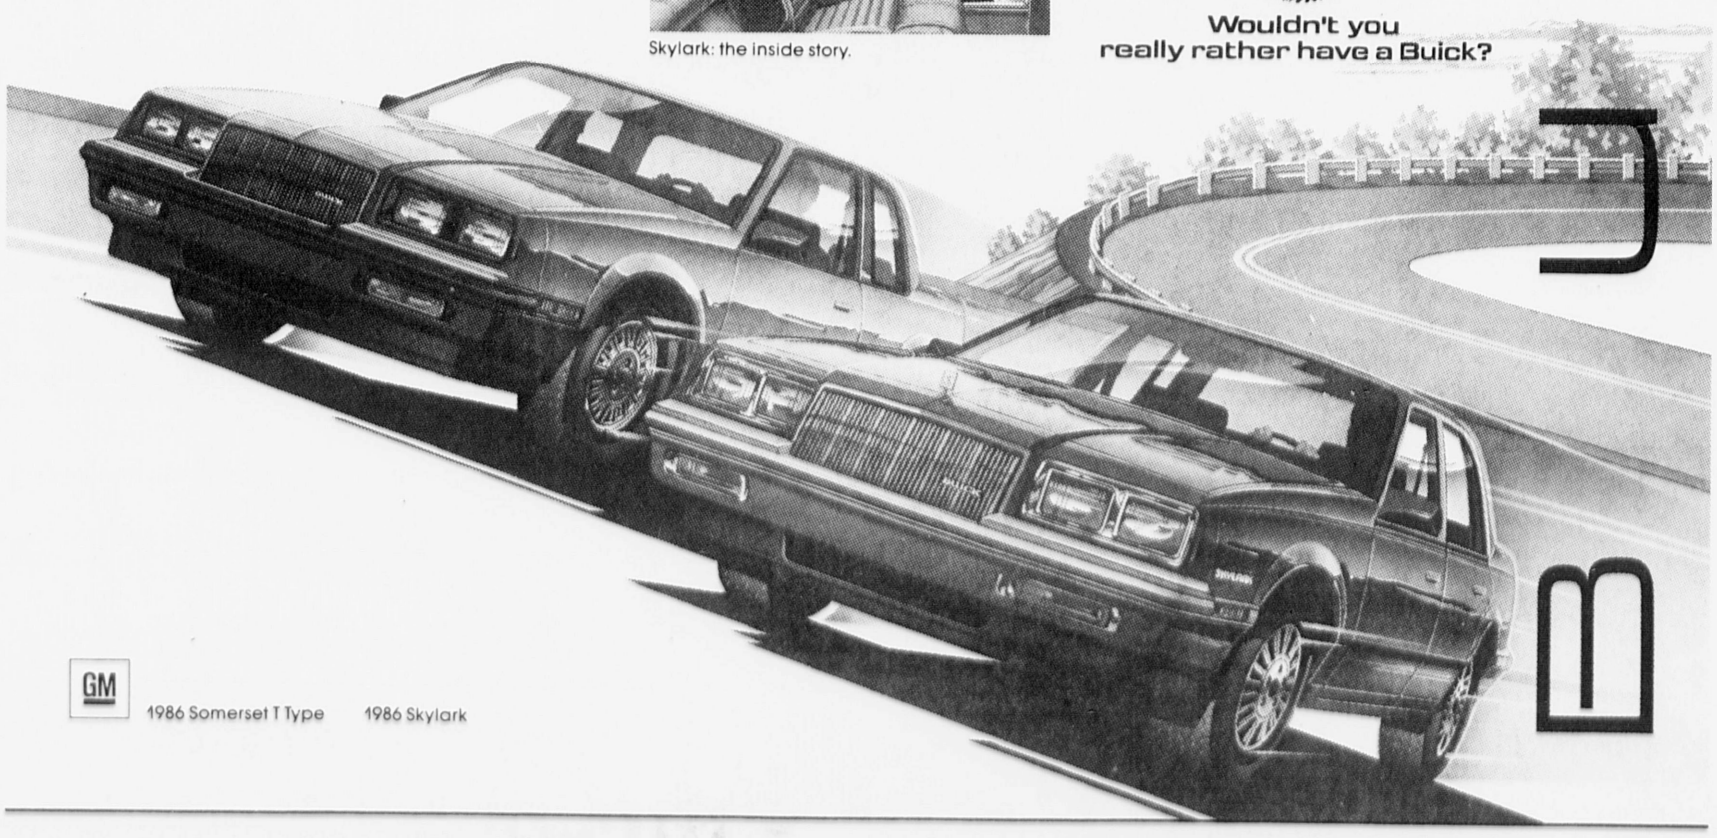

Electronic digital instrument panel.

And when was the last time a car company gave you their home phone number? If you want to ask questions, request a brochure or even arrange a test drive, just call 1-800-86-BUICK (1-800-862-8425) toll free.

Buick has come all the way from portholes to sequential-port fuel injection. Come see Buick on the move at the Auto Show this year . . . we've got the cars you won't want to miss.

Wouldn't you really rather have a Buick?

Donald L. Fessenden, formerly of Newton

FALMOUTH — A funeral service was held Saturday at 1 p.m. in United Congregational Church, Townsend, for Donald L. Fessenden, 80, of Falmouth, formerly of Newton, Needham and Westwood, who for 40 years was a reporter, rewrite-man and night city editor for the Boston Herald. Burial was in the family plot at Hillside Cemetery, Townsend.

Mr. Fessenden died last Monday in Falmouth.

He lived in Newton, Needham and Westwood before moving to Falmouth in 1984.

As a rewrite-man, he wrote, in whole or in part, accounts of outstanding events, including the Worcester tornado in 1953, the Andrea Doria-Stockholm ship collision in 1956, the Brinks robbery in 1950, the assassination of Robert F. Kennedy in 1968 and weather stories from hurricanes to temperature record setters.

As a reporter, he covered the McMath kidnapping at Harwichport in 1933, the maiden voyage of the Christoforo Colombo, and the influx of Rumanian Jews to Israel.

His most unusual story, he said, was author Kenneth Roberts' discovery in 1952 of fresh water-yielding wells in Bermuda, at sites which Maine game warden Henry Gross had pinpointed with a dowsing rod held over a map spread out on the bar in Roberts' home the previous December.

He also taught courses in journalism, publicity and article writing at Simmons College from 1945 to 1972.

Born in Townsend, he was a graduate of the Harvard School in Los Angeles, Phillips Exeter Academy, and Yale University. He started newspaper work with the Hartford Courant the Sunday after his graduation from Yale in 1928 and joined the Herald staff in 1930, retiring in 1970.

His wife, the former Margaret Wood, died in 1983, two weeks before their 54th wedding anniversary. He leaves two daughters Jane Fessenden of Falmouth and Ann Fessenden Clymer of New York.

Sherman Spaulding, formerly of Newton

WAYLAND — Funeral services were held Tuesday in the First Parish Church, Wayland, for Sherman P. Spaulding, 66, of Wayland, formerly of West Newton and Norwich, Conn. Burial was in Center Cemetery, Wayland.

Born in Worcester, he was a graduate of Harvard College and attended Boston University, where he earned his master's degree. Mr. Spaulding had been a Wayland resident for 23 years.

Until his illness, he had been a mathematics teacher at Lincoln-Sudbury High School.

During World War II, he served as a lieutenant in the Navy.

He was a member of the First Parish Church Choir and was formerly active with the Wayland Democratic Town Committee.

He leaves his wife, Evelyn S. (Hatch); his daughters, Frances Lea Hocking of Wonowon, British Columbia, Priscilla and Susan Spaulding, both of Wayland; his sons, Andrew and Jonathan, both of Wayland; four grandchildren; his sister, Jame Mormon of Crestline, Calif.; his brother, Lloyd Spaulding of Los Angeles.
